GATHERING SO LARGE ADJOURNED TO CITY HALL

Not All Harmonious For the Fourth of July Celebration

Labor Organizations Threaten to Withdraw Unless Represented

A largely attended meeting in the interest of a grand Fourth of July celebration was held Saturday evening at City Hall. Those interested first gathered at the rooms of the Board of Trade, but on account of the large number the meeting was adjourned to City Hall.

Eugene R. Stone, president of the Board of Trade, presided and a permanent organization was formed with Mr. Stone as president, Arthur W. Stetson as secretary.

The list of organizations to whom invitations had been sent requesting delegates to be sent to the mass meeting was read. As the name of each society was called the delegates responded.

Some of the organizations represented were: Quincy Yacht club, Granite City club, Granite Manufacturers association, John Boyle O'Reilly club, Royal Arcanum, Sons of St. George, Clan McGregor, Knights of Malta, Irish National League, John A. Boyd camp of Spanish War Veterans, Sons of Veterans, Grand Army of the Republic, Division 17 and 5 A. O. H.; John Hancock, Mt. Wollaston lodges and Manet encampment of Odd Fellows; Fore River Aprentices, Quincy Point Social club, Central Labor Union, St. Francis court of Foresters, Red Men, Norfolk lodge of United Workmen, Y. M. C. A., Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs, Quincy Retail Merchants association, Houghs Neck associates, Atlantic Signal corps, Street Railway, Ward Four Improvement association, Heptasoph, Waldorf, Mohawk, and Bigelow clubs, Eagles, Adams A. C. Ramblers, Bryant A. C., Cranch A. C., and other base ball clubs, Atlantic July 4 association and W. M. French Hose association.

The organization was completed by the election of Rupert F. Claflin, as treasurer, and James F. Burke as vice president.

The meeting then proceeded to nominate and elect the chairman of the several sub committees, who by vote of the meeting, with the above named officers became the executive committee.

The chairman of each committee was empowered to invite at least one from each ward to serve on his committee.

The chairmen elected were as follows:

Reception—Hon. W. T. Shea.
Parade—Lieut. Col. Henry L. Kincaide.
Finance—Thomas Gammon.
Sports—C. M. Gifford.
Music—A. L. Whitman.
Publicity—A. L. LaBrecque.
Fireworks—George Elcock.
Balloon ascension—Charles W. Hanscom.
Water Sports—Archie Briggs.

Brief remarks were then made by President Stone, C. W. Gill and A. L. Whitman on the necessity of raising funds to carry out the plans. This was a matter that should receive immediate attention, and Mr. Whitman thought it would be a good idea to start the ball rolling by all present contributing.

William Kelley jumped to his feet and said before the members of the Central Labor Union put any money in they wanted a fair representation on all committees. If they were not so represented no support or money would be given.

Fred F. Green of the Quincy Advertiser thought a mistake had been made in ignoring two of the local newspapers and selecting the editor of the third as the chairman of the publicity committee. It would have been better to have selected the editors of each paper on that committee.

The meeting then adjourned.

MAY FESTIVAL MUSIC HALL

Largely Attended by Children and Grand Success

The annual May festival under the auspices of the Educational committee of the Quincy Women's club was held Saturday afternoon at Music hall. While not as largely attended as that of last year the festival was a grand success, the actual count showing almost one thousand present, a very large majority of whom were children.

There were more tables this year than on previous occasions, owing to the large number of May baskets that had been received. The children of the public schools alone contributed 1000 baskets, while the several tens of the Kings Daughters, the ladies of the Catholic Society and the ladies of Clan McGregor contributed nearly as many more, so that a long table on each side of the hall was necessary to display them, while many of the baskets were sold during the afternoon, there were quite a few remaining at the close of th festival. These were purchasd by Delcevare King who will distribute them among the poor children of the city.

In addition to the May basket tables, there was a table for the sale of homemade candies. A large variety of candy was on sale and met with a ready sale. There was also a table for the sale of ice cream and this was well patronized.

The members of the Educational committee had charge of the May basket tables. The candy table was in charge of Mrs. Charles M. Bryant, who was assisted by the following ladies:—Mrs. E. E. Jameson, Mrs. Charles R. Safford, Mrs. Joseph C. Morse, Mrs. W. O. Wellington, Mrs. H. I. Hall, Mrs. Luther S. Glover, Mrs. Joseph A. Dasha, Mrs. Harry MacDonough, Mrs. J. H. Johnson and Miss Dorothy Fry.

The ice cream table was in charge of Mrs. Wilson Tisdale, who was assisted by Mrs. Helen Bass, Mrs. E. G. Pratt and Miss Lillian Marsh.

During the first part of the afternoon there was a pleasing entertainment, the several numbers of which were announced by Delcevare King. The program was as follows:

Sash drill by Y. M. C. A. boys.
Drill by the girls of Miss Bass' class of the Quincy Point club.
Dumb bell drill by Y. M. C. A. boys.
Cornet solo by Walter Clark.
Jockey dance by Constance Fryer.
Fencing exhibition by Miss Bass and Miss Elwell.

Drill by the Atlantic Signal corps under command of Winthrop M. Safford.

Before the afternoon closed seeds were distributed to the children and it was announced that the Children's Garden committee would give prizes of $3, $2, two of $1 each, and three of fifty cents each, for the best vegetable gardens and prizes of $2, $1, two of fifty cents each and two of twenty-five cents each for the best flower gardens.

THE YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB

Gentlemen Entertained at the Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Young Women's club was held at the club house on Saturday evening in connection with a gentleman's night. A short business meeting was conducted by Miss Minnie Packard, president, at which the resignation of Miss Gernia Saville treasurer was accepted. The reading of the annual reports showed that the first year of this club had indeed been a successful one.

At the close of the business meeting the evening was left in charge of Miss Mabel Lovejoy, chairman of the Social committee. The program consisted of a piano duet by Misses Marion Nichol and Jennie Boutilier; solo by Mrs. Talbot; whistling by Miss Parker; readings by Mrs. George Brown; and a short play "Jane's Legacy." The characters portrayed being as follows:

Jane Sampson, a bride,
Mabel E. Lovejoy
Robert Sampson, her husband,
Harold Prout
Miss Baxter, a deaf old maid
Mary L. Brown
Martha Hollard, Jane's sister,
Edith Lovejoy
Alden Blanchard, the squire,
Alden Blanchard
Mrs. Williamson, the minister's wife,
Edith Fox.

After the play, dancing was enjoyed until after 10 o'clock. During the evening harlequin lemonade and cake were served in the tea room by the Hospitality committee, Miss Margery Fay, chairman.

MRS. ABBIE A. KELLY.

One of the oldest residents of Quincy, Mrs. Abbie A. Kelly, passed away April 27, after a short illness. To few is the opportunity given of passing eighty-four years in one spot, witnessing many changes, but always adapting herself to her surroundings. Few realized her advanced age, as she retained her faculties and interest in affairs to the last. Descended from the old New England stock, she possessed all their sterling qualities, and she will be remembered as a kind neighbor, and a most faithful and devoted wife, mother and sister.

Her funeral was held Friday, April 29, at her late residence, 206 Washington street. The services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. E. C. Butler, assisted by Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy. Beautiful selections were rendered by Mrs. E. S. Moore. Mrs. Kelly was surrounded by beautiful flowers, the tribute of neighbors and friends, who were present. The interment was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

TODAY'S COURT.

Loring W. Littlefield was fined the costs amounting to $6.55, for violation of the automobile law at Holbrook.

Wallace G. Vageld was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Twenty-two continued cases most of which were for drunkenness were disposed of this morning.

BUSINESS FOR CITY COUNCIL

Roll Calls Expected on Granting Express Permits

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight, and the indications are that it will be a long one. Interest in the meeting centers in the reports expected from the License committee on the applications for permits to transport liquors. In addition to reporting upon these applications the committee will probably report upon applications for other licenses. All licenses for pool tables, common victuallers and to collect junk, expired May 1, and legally none of these people can do business until their licenses have been renewed. A few common victuallers have been granted but there are many more pending.

In addition to these matters there are many orders in the calendar which will probably be acted upon as they have been there some time. There will also be a public hearing on the street railway turnout on Squantum street. These with reports of other committees and new business argue well for a long session.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The Pullman Company will not be able to pull a man so much for upper berths hereafter.

Brother Andy seems to be really and truly sorry that he was so savin' with his pennies.

Uncle Sam will take care of "Sunny Jim's" automobile, but "Uncle Joe" is stuck for the garage bills. Isn't this undue discrimination in restraint of the square deal?

A Jersey City Justice of the Peace bids fair to be popular with prospective brides of his city for beginning May first he is to give every bride he marries 1000 trading stamps.

It is said that a germless kiss has at last been discovered, the participants kissing through disinfected silk gauze. As it is likened to eating ice cream through a fine screen we can see wherein it won't prove popular with Mary and her steady.

While all patriotic citizens are willing to cooperate in having a grand celebration in Quincy the coming Fourth of July it would seem that a mistake had been made at the start. To make the affair a success there should be harmony, but as now organized this would seem impossible. It would seem that at the mass meeting Saturday evening much better results would have been assured, if instead of the mass meeting electing the several chairmen of the sub committees, the meeting had elected an executive committee of 12 or 15 who should have been empowered to appoint the chairmen of the sub committees. Then they could have taken time and selected the men best fitted for the position.

Before Saturday nights meeting had adjourned two notes of discord were sounded, one by William Kelley, who announced that unless the Central Labor Union was represented on every committee no money contributions need be expected from them. The second by Fred F. Green, at the action of the meeting in placing at the head of the publicity committee a representative of a local paper yet in its infancy and entirely ignoring other local papers that had been in existence for a number of years.

What should have been done, if chairmen were to be elected by the meeting, was to elect some gentleman not connected with either paper. Then he could have requested the local papers to cooperate with him and all would have done so. Two names were placed in nomination for this position, Representative L. F. R. Langelier and Henry P. Dowst, either of whom would have made an ideal chairman. The meeting however threw them down.

There is another committee on which there is apt to be a conflict, and that is sports.

In this case, also it would have been much better to have selected a disinterested person and allowed him to select a committee that would represent all classes.

In view of these facts, if it is desired to make the celebration a success, it would be well for the executive committee when it meets to make the changes suggested. The mass meeting itself was made up largely of base ball clubs, not one half of the organizations invited sending delegates.

Bluejackets' Bravery Commended

Portsmouth, N. H., May 2.—Four bluejackets of the U. S. S. Maryland, J. Bruce, J. Hansen, M. F. Grimes and R. Glynn, have been commended by Secretary Meyer for risking their lives to save the ship from destruction in April 12, at the time of the boiler tube explosion.

"Now ,then," said the lecturer, pointing to a spot on the anatomical chart on the wall, "that is where your liver is."

"Excuse me, sir, "said one of the students, "but you are in error. My liver is inside of me."

GEORGE ADE'S SPEECH.

One of the hits of the evening was the after dinner speech by George Ade at the joint banquet of the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in New York on Thursday night. While humorous as was to be expected there was also considerable truth in his remarks as old newspaper men know. We quote a few paragraphs from his speech as reported by the Boston Globe:

"Everybody wants to help the editor. Not as regards cheaper wood pulp or keeping down the pay roll, but with suggestions for filling up the paper. Most people still believe that every newspaper must hustle every night to get enough copy to separate the advertisements.

"Being a post-graduate I know that you are compelled to throw columns and columns of stuff on the floor. Very often, in glancing over a long tariff editorial, I wonder what was thrown on the floor—however, I am not here to upset any traditions—merely to offer a few helpful hints.

"In the first place the city newspaper of today as compared with the Indiana newspaper of the 70s is tame, invertebrate, colorless and apologetic. The first newspaper with which I was associated came out every Thursday from a room over the hardware store.

"The fires of civil war were still smoldering. Indiana's chief occupation was politics. Nearly every man was voting as he shot, and some of them a good deal oftener. Our office equipment consisted of a Washington hand press, a foot-power job press, a perennial towel and a few fonts of type—mostly italics. Ah, but we had an editor!

"Those were the palmy days of journalism of which we hear so much at present. No taint of commercialism, no subservience to the counting-room (because there wasn't any counting-room), no cog-wheels or card indexes—simply a majestic figurehead of an editor who was animated by a high and patriotic resolve to promote manslaughter as often as possible. When he opened up on a man the man's only escape was to walk outside of our circulation, which he could do in about 10 minutes.

"If you hear a man raving about the golden age of American journalism, when each editor exercised an individual influence and led the way through the darkness with a flaming torch above his head—let it go at that. Don't take the trouble to examine the files of that wonderful period or you may be discouraged over your present efforts.

"I plead for a return of those heroic days when every editorial was a trumpet blast and every paragraph was a fire-cracker. We used to go to press at 2 o'clock, and by 4 o'clock the whole population would be on the streets waiting for the sounds of assault and battery.

"The old-time editor, the one we all read about, who stamped his individuality on every issue of his paper and didn't bother about the press-work, do you remember what he called a man if he didnt care much for him He didn't call him a molly-coddle or an insurgent or a malefactor or an undesirable. He said that the man was a poltroon, a hell-hound, a pusillanimous liar, an unmitigated horse thief, a jackal, a marplot, a catiff, a reptile, a viper, a cur and a whelp.

"Here are a lot of valuable and expressive words that are gradually being eliminated from our vocabulary because the editors of today, steeped in commercialism, have abandoned the methods of Wilbur F. Storey and accepted the leadership of Edward W. Bok.

"Also, the newspapers of today are criticized because they are kind to advertisers. I think newspapers are somewhat under the domination of the big advertiser. In fact, the big advertiser has got them so worked up that many of them want to run him for a third term.

"I read not long ago that down in Brown county, Indiana, the front room of the country poorhouse—a large, cheerful apartment with southern exposure and plants in the windows—is occupied by a man who for many years conducted a newspaper that pleased everybody.

"On the other hand, its hard to be successful without disappointing some of your best friends. So if you can't please all your critics, do the next best thing and please your subscribers."

"SQUARE DEAL" VIOLATED

O'Connell Regrets Roosevelt's "Mistake" and Calls O'Laughlin a Judas

Lowell, Mass., May 2.—Theodore Roosevelt's action in not meeting Pope Pius X, on the former president's recent visit to Rome, was called insulting and a violation of Roosevelt's principle of the "square deal," by Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, at a meeting of the American Federation of Catholic societies here.

John C. O'Laughlin, former assistant secretary of state, who conducted the negotiations between Roosevelt and the Vatican, was severely castigated by the archbishop, who declared that O'Laughlin had "played the part of Judas."

"It is a case of Mr. John Callon O'Laughlin," declared O'Connell. "Who is he? He says he is a Catholic, and he boasts of it, and in the same breath he cables all over the world that the head of his church is wrong and Mr. Roosevelt is the greatest thing in creation. That is the sort of a Catholic that we are ashamed of—Mr. John Callan O'Laughlin.

"We regret the mistake of Mr. Roosevelt. He has lost a great opportunity, but we denounce as a bad Catholic and a poor American this John Callan O'Laughlin."

DEFENSE OF CANAL IS URGED BY TAFT

Tells Congress Fortifications Are Needed at Panama

Washington, May 2.—In a special message sent to congress President Taft urges that the defenses of the Panama canal be completed and ready for business Jan. 1, 1915, on which date it is also proposed to open the canal to navigation.

"It is the right and duty of the United States to defend the work upon which it is expending such an enormous sum," the president said in his message. "An adequate defense requires suitable fortifications near the approaches to the terminals. I am of the opinion that such works as may be erected for the defense of the canal should be completed, occupied and ready for operation at the time the canal itself is completed and opened to the passage of vessels."

GETS FIFTH OF $1,500,000

Printer Who "Grub Staked" Party Shares In Rich Gold Find

St. Charles, Mo., May 2.—Harry Durant, a printer, who, two years ago "grub staked" a party of four gold hunters, headed by his brother, F. W. Durant, has learned that as a result of his investment he is worth $300,000.

A mine in the Blue mountains, Oregon, was discovered by the party which he financed, and some time ago it became apparent that the find was a rich one. It was not until yesterday, however, that its real value was disclosed. Government mining experts said the ore would run $1000 to the ton, and that the property was worth about $1,500,000.

Durant gets an equal share with each of the other four owners of the mine.

Barge Crew's Narrow Escape

Providence, May 2.—While Captain Young and his crew of three men slept in fancied security, the barge Shore Line, with 900 tons of coal on board, slowly filled and sank in sixteen feet of water at a wharf in this city. The shouting of the crew on another vessel, anchored near by, awakened the men, who escaped from the barge before she went down.

Letter Is Refused Brandeis

Washington, May 2.—The Ballinger-Pinchot committee, by a vote of 7 to 5, again denied Attorney Brandeis' request for the original draft of Attorney General Wickersham's summary of the Glavis charges and other papers bearing on it.

Our National Game.

"The raw American citizen," says Ellis Parker Butler in Success Magazine, "who takes his seat at a ball game for the first time feels as he would should he drop into the Metropolitan Opera House and find himself hearing Wagnerian opera from a seat in the midst of seasoned German opera goers. He hears a language that is new to him. The man at his right can tell more about the first baseman's peculiarities than he could tell about the manners of his own wife. The man at his left has trouble remembering the size collar he wears, but he can name every man in every club of both major leagues, tell the age of each, give the complete table of batting records offhand and recite, item by item, every feature of every game played on the home grounds during the last five years. That is why baseball is our national game. We love the game not because we are Chicagoans and the Chicago nine wins nor because we are Pittsburgers and the Pittsburg nine is winning, but because we are educated in baseball and like to see a good game played by the best men in their field that can be found in the world."

Her Father's Job.

The young daughter of a popular Chicago clergyman some time ago manifested a quick wit. Her father had gone on a brief holiday with a business parishioner and associate, and the talk of the children turned on the problem of which father needed the rare rest most sorely.

"Well, I think my father works the hardest," said little Miss Business, "and his work keeps him stirred up and anxious most of the time."

"Your father may work the hardest in one way," was little Miss Clergyman's answer, at once thoughtful and diplomatic, "but I think he gets more rest as he goes along. You see, he can let down a little evenings and Sundays, and if he gets cross and nervous nobody says anything. But my daddy has to be better than ever Sundays and evenings, because then everybody's taking notice and the whole lot of us children are around."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Shortened His Wait.

"Experience," said Mark Twain once, "makes us wise, but it also makes us hard. Consider the old, experienced man in the busy restaurant. He took a seat, looked round him and, pointing to a well dressed gentleman who had not yet been served, said to the waiter:

"'Waiter, how long has that gentleman been here?'

"'About twelve minutes, sir,' the waiter answered.

"'What's his order?'

"'Porterhouse and French fried, sir, with mince pie and coffee to come.'

"The old man, hardened by experience, slipped a quarter in the waiter's hand.

"'Waiter,' he said, 'I'm in a hurry. Put on another porterhouse and bring me his.'"

Fresh Discovery of an Old Truth.

Helen's enjoyment of the party given in honor of her ninth birthday was nearly spoiled by the ill tempered outbreaks of a very pretty and well dressed little girl who was among her guests. A peacemaker appeared, however, in a plain and rather shabby child, who proved herself a veritable little angel of tact and good will.

After her playmates were gone Helen talked it all over very seriously with her mother. She summed it up in this piece of philosophical wisdom:

Salt and Health.

Few persons understand the therapeutic value of salt. A little salt in one's drinking water is "good medicine." Salt applications to the skin are wonderfully soothing and wholesome. There is nothing better as a wash for the throat and the nasal passages to prevent or to cure catarrhal troubles than a solution of common salt in plain water—the cheapest remedy one can find. Many persons give their eyes a daily bath of cold salt water with satisfactory results.

The Married Voice.

A dramatic critic has been saying that our most accomplished players cannot reproduce on the stage the "married voice," even when they are married. There is a peculiar domestic note—used at home—which cannot get over the footlights and was never meant for publicity.—London Chronicle.

Soporific.

"I heard one man," said the playwright, "who attended the premiere of my new play last night complain that it was so late when he got out."

"Yes?" queried the critic.

"Yes, and yet the final curtain fell before 10:45."

"Ah, perhaps he overslept himself!"—Catholic Standard and Times.

In Half Mourning.

"I don't understand you, Linda. One day you're bright and jolly and the next depressed and sad."

"Well, I'm in half mourning; that's why."—Fliegende Blatter.

Lost Both Ways.

"Did you get in without your wife hearing you last night?"

"No, and I didn't get in without hearing her, either."—Houston Post.

"WORTHLESS" DOG A HERO

Saves Family of Man Who Had Refused to Pay Taxes on Him

Sandusky, O., May 2.—A shepherd dog, upon which E. J. Phelps, a Huron farmer, refused recently to pay taxes, saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Phelps and their five children. The barking of the animal aroused Phelps from his sleep just in time to enable him and his family to escape from their burning dwelling.

A number of passengers on an electric car bound for Ceylon from this city helped fight the fire, but only a few articles of furniture were saved.

Phelps says that his heretofore worthless dog could not be bought today for any price.

EXPLOSION OF GARLIC

Upsets Nerves of Judge and Causes an Adjournment of Court

San Francisco, May 2.—An explosion of a bottle of garlic, held as exhibit A in the case of Andrew Gertondi, charged with sweeping refuse into the street, led to a hasty adjournment of the police court.

When court reconvened, Judge Conlin announced that he would defer sentence, as the odor of the garlic had upset his usual judicial poise.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Activity Among the Wollaston Societies

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

Rev. Preston Gurney, a former pastor of the Wollaston Baptist church, preached Sunday morning from Job 42: 10; subject—"The Turning of the Tide."

Seven persons were received into the church during the morning service and four persons were baptized at the close of the evening service, as follows: Miss Cora Titus, Mrs. Annie MacFarland, Mrs. Emma May Cook and Mr. James Porter.

The Christian Endeavor service was well attended. Miss Florence Newcomb favored those present with a very pleasing solo.

George A. Brown will lead the cottage prayer meeting at Montclair on Tuesday evening at 7.45.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

Rev. Carl G. Horst took his text for the Sunday morning sermon from the 5th chapter of St. John, the 17th verse:—"My Father works and I work." Labor was viewed as a great blessing to mankind, raising him, by its necessity from the brute to the highest form of mankind. Most logically the preacher showed that this necessity for work and its results, is the mainspring of human improvement and cultivation. All, rich and poor alike, must serve humanity either by the contribution of hand work or of the fruits of mind and thought which minister to the higher life of man.

The cry of the spiritless man that the world owes him a living is the cry of the weakling. The world owes no man a living but owes every man the opportunity to make a living, which each may do if he studies his own ability. Idleness, in the light of this inspiring thought, becomes a sin. Labor is the law of life, the blessing and friend of man, and not his curse.

Man was made for thought and action and in the employment of his faculties for work and developement comes his highest joy. God has toiled for perfection in all the past ages, and man must cooperate with Him in the upbuilding of the world's work. We find ourselves here not to be ministered unto but to minister, and in this giving of ourselves in unselfish labor for the good of the human family we find our greatest blessing.

The practical and helpful sermon closed with the singing by chorus choir and congregation the beautiful hymn by William H. Burleigh which ends with the most appropriate stanza

"While the day lingers, do things best!
Full soon the night will bring its rest;
And duty done that rest shall be Full of beatitudes to thee."

The Y. P. R. U. met in the vestry at 7 o'clock with Miss Helen Wade in charge of what proved to be a very pleasant and varied program. After a few moments spent in business matters Miss Alice Day gave two piano solos, Mrs. Frank A. Page sang "Alone with Thee," and Rev. Mr. Horst spoke a few helpful words suggested by Dr. Hales well known admiration of the first and last verses of the 1st chapter of Genesis. The keynote of his talk was that in the beginning, however far back it might have been, God was, and that He created all things, and having created saw that it was good. No evil or disappointment or sorrow comes from God, but through our own ignorance of laws under which we live.

The Unitarian Church-Helpers will meet with Mrs. L. L. Young, 144 Arlington street, Thursday, May 5, at 2 P. M.

Mrs. S. P. Moorhouse and daughter, Marion, and Miss Harriet Turner will sail May 5 for a years sojourn in Germany. In August they will represent this church at the fifth International Congress of Free Christianity and Religious Progress at Berlin. They will be greatly missed from church life at Wollaston.

The members and friends of the Wollaston Unitarian church are invited to attend the installation of the Rev. Lewis Claws Dethlefs as minister of the First Unitarian church in Hyde Park, Thursday, May 5, at 7.45 o'clock.

Childrens Sunday will be observed June 13. Parents who desire to present children to be dedicated to God and a Christian life will please communicate with the minister.

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S CHURCH.

At St. Chrysostom's church Sunday morning Rev. L. C. Manchester, D. D., took for his text St. Matthew 6:33—"But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." He said in part:—This teaching of our blessed Lord suggests some thoughts on the supreme reality and power of the Christian religion. This religion is God's appointed way for all men. He is our Creator and Father. He has made known to us his truth and his commands to and through Jesus Christ. Which involves the acceptance of Christ the following after his will and only in the practice of it are we in harmony with the Father and acceptable to him.

The care of physical needs had no place as the aim of his living and the holy life he showed had no burden from them to hinder it. There is something higher and superior to the necessities of this temporary life. In the service of God in the following after Christ in living for Heaven come the really higher things. Purity, love courtesy, charity, peace, integrity righteousness, spirituality, these and such things that come from the life of God in the soul, that make lofty character, these vastly outweigh all carnel things.

Whoever seek God's Kingdom and Righteousness it comes to us in its priceless results, not all at once, you can readily make a beginning. It comes to every one that yearns for and seeks Him. But there must be a continual seeking all the life, the common daily world of material things which hold you with sure mastery unless by combined faith and prayer and the hand of Christ leading, you escape and emerge from the slavery. And for him that endureth, that fights a good fight that finishes the course that keeps the faith there is laid up at last a crown of Righteousness.

WOLLASTON M. E.

The Sunday morning "Love feast" of the Wollaston M. E. was well attended. Rev. V. A. Cooper of Boston, spoke and presented the conference claimants cause which met with a generous response. He took for his text Luke 22:19. He spoke of the communion; it's history and why it was instituted. He said that we should partake of the elements, with love in our hearts. We should go back to our seat from the altar in a different spirit from which we approached. He told of the many ministers who had given their lives for Christ's work. He urged the people to carry the communion spirit with them all the time.

A large number were out to Sunday school. The primary showed a very large number. There were few vacant seats to be seen after they came in. This is due to the work of the primary superintendent, Mrs. Crothers, and her able corps of workers.

Many children were present at the Junior League. Miss Mary Cleveland had charge of the Epworth League. Chester Cleveland had charge of the music.

The pastor Rev. Wesley Wiggin spoke in the evening on "Jesus Touch." Irma Douglas sang at this service.

Holy communion was administered at the close of the morning service, by the pastor assisted by Rev. Mr. Cooper. The new individual communion service was used for the first time.

Work will be commenced in a few days laying a section of the main sewer on Crescent street, between Cross street and Barry lane. An eight-inch main will be laid through the street.

Wollaston is not the only section of the city where there is a building boom for things in the building line are equally as active in the vicinity of Independence avenue. The city recently built new sidewalks on several of the streets in this section which has added much to the accessability of the section. John B. Johnson Bros. are having a special sale this week of teas and are offering low prices for fancy goods.

TOO MUCH DILLYDALLYING

Says Representative Thomas Relative to Transportation

Representative William R. Thomas of this city, who is serving on the Metropolitan committee of the Legislature is taking a prominent part in transportation problem of Boston. Hennessey of the Globe says:

Representative Thomas of Quincy, of the committee on Metropolitan affairs, dissents from the report of that committee, which provides for the authorization and the building of a new tunnel from the Park street station of the subway to the South station.

Mr. Thomas dissents, he says, because he believes that the committee should go still farther in the building of tunnels and subways in the congested districts in order to provide real rapid transit for Boston and the thousands of suburbanites who do business in this city. Mr. Thomas expressed his surprise at the attitude taken by the "Big Four."

The commission notified the committee on Metropolitan Affairs on Thursday last that owing to the complications which had arisen they thought it desirable to defer legislation authorizing the building of a tunnel between the North and South stations for a year.

The commission was requested by the joint committee on Metropolitan affairs to draft a bill for this tunnel, and most of the committee believed that the "Big Four" would comply with the request. Mr. Thomas says that he has to admit that he is unable to follow the changes in the minds and the plans of the various interests that have been agitating this tunnel question.

"I think that there has been altogether too much dillydallying . that both the city and the commonwealth have been too niggardly in dealing with this problem," said he the other day. "It is a big question to be sure, but the commonwealth might just as well face the situation and prepare to meet the demands of the Metropolis of New England in matters of transportation. Too much time has been wasted. It is time for not only the legislature, but for the officials of the city and of the transportation companies to get together and do something."

Couldn't Frighten Him.

An Indian maharajah once received Lord Clive, the famous soldier, in his palace court. Presently in sprang two whopping big Bengal tigers, as big as ever grew. They rolled and sprawled and romped all over the court, growled, spit and struck at each other. All the time the rajah slyly and snakily stole glances at Clive to see if it would scare him green white. After a little the tigers were driven out. Clive smoked his cheroot all the while.

How I Won

Capturing a Girl by Means of a Common Interest.

By LAWRENCE FOSTER.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

One winter when congress was in session I was invited to the national capital to spend a week with my friend Jim Treusdail in company with others, forming a very pleasant house party. Jim had not been long married, and I was a bachelor. I have always thought that his wife got up the affair especially for my benefit and that of Miss Mildred Sweet, Mrs. Jim desiring to make a match between us. If she did she had no trouble, so far as I was concerned, for I had not been acquainted with Miss Sweet ten minutes before I remarked to myself, "That's the girl I am looking for."

I have a theory that a good way to win a girl is to conjure up something in which you and she may have a mutual interest. Fortune favored me in this wise:

One evening at dinner Mrs. Jim showed plainly that something had happened. She said nothing to any of the guests and when they spoke to her replied in monosyllables. Treusdail labored hard to keep a certain amount of life in the party, but was not successful.

After dinner Jim took me up to a little den he used to hide away in and told me what was the matter. His wife had lost a diamond as big as a hickory nut. It had been handed down to her for five generations and been turned over to her on her wedding day. She had taken it out of its receptable to wear it that evening at a reception that was to occur at the White House and had left it on her bureau while giving some directions about the dinner.

He had no sooner told me this than it recurred to me to make a detective of myself for the purpose of discovering the thief and to take Miss Sweet into the business with me. By interesting her in the case I hoped eventually to turn that interest from the gem to myself.

I asked Jim a good many questions, but only elicited the information that every servant in the house during his wife's absence from her room was downstairs and quite busy, most of them with the preparations for the dinner. The men guests were all in the billiard room. Two of the women guests were dressing in their rooms for dinner and after that the function at the White House. A third, a widow, Mrs. Jernegan, with a little daughter, five years old, had finished her toilet and was assisting her nurse to put the child to bed.

Mrs. Jernegan was my first choice for the thief. Women who are not dressed don't run about in another person's house, and Mrs. Jernegan was the only person on the floor at the time the stone was lost. I went to the White House reception with Miss Sweet and during the evening told her about the loss and began to excite her curiosity as to who could have been the thief.

"It would be a nice thing," I said, "if you and I, working together, could recover the stone and turn it back to the rightful owner."

"Indeed it would," she said, "but how can we do that?"

"I don't know that we can, but we can try."

I confided to her that I suspected Mrs. Jernegan. She did not especially fancy the widow, but could hardly bring herself to feel that she had stolen the diamond. I told Miss Sweet that she, being a woman, could keep an eye on the suspect better than I, and she agreed to do so.

I had a little scheme up my sleeve to compel Mrs. Jernegan to show her colors if she were guilty. Of course that was not proving her guilty or getting back the stone, but it would serve for a clew. I invited a party, including Mrs. Jernegan, to visit the capitol. Miss Sweet was, of course, with us. After showing the party through the building I took them up into the dome. There is a whispering gallery in this dome in which a voice speaking on one side can be heard at the other. Leaving the widow on one side of the dome, I took Miss Sweet halfway round the semicircle, and, watching till Mrs. Jernegan was separated from the others, I suggested to Miss Sweet to put her mouth near the wall and whisper the words, "What did you do with it?"

She did so, and the effect was instantaneous and unmistakable. The widow staggered, turned pale and looked hurriedly about her. When she turned her eyes upon us we were looking down on to the marble floor far below.

My companion was delighted with the success of my device. She seemed to be struck with surprise and admiration at what she was pleased to call my ingenuity. I was more interested in Miss Sweet than in the thief. I disclaimed any great shrewdness—indeed, thus far I was simply lucky. But I must keep up the illusion. I must find some method of learning from the widow what she had done with the diamond.

And here I showed that instead of being an experienced detective I was a mere bungler. I permitted the widow to discover by keeping a watch over her that I suspected her. I knew that she was aware that I did suspect her, for she showed me plainly that she feared me. Doubtless she would have taken or sent away the diamond (if she had it), but Treusdail, at my suggestion, would not permit any one to leave the place without being searched, the guests volunteering to submit to the ordeal if they were obliged to leave before the gem was found.

I held long deliberations with Miss Sweet, who was now profoundly interested in the case. These deliberations, besides giving us something in common, enabled me to be a good deal with her. I hoped, if I made any further progress, to have my assistant to think that it was her ingenuity or perceptive faculty that was doing the work and not mine. I wished for this on the basis that if you make a person think he is talented it counts for more than if you show your own ability.

"I have made a discovery," said Miss Sweet to me one day, with great glee.

"You don't mean it!" I replied. "Have you found where the gem is concealed?"

"No. I have discovered that Mrs. Jernegan's nursemaid shares her secret with her."

"How so?"

"They know that we are watching them. Whenever the nurse sees me looking at her she quails."

"It's two against two, isn't it?"

"Yes, and we'll beat them yet."

"No doubt of it."

"Have you anything to suggest?"

"Well, no; not just now."

We saw the nurse go out with her charge and knew that every afternoon she took the child to a little park in the neighborhood. Treusdail should not have permitted this, but he said that it wouldn't do to keep the little girl in the house. I proposed to Miss Sweet that we walk out, follow the nurse to the park and see if we could learn anything. She consented, and, getting her hat and wraps, we sallied forth.

We soon saw the nurse walking slowly, the child trotting alone, either beside or behind her, carrying a toy balloon. We measured our pace to suit theirs, and they entered the park without knowing that we were near them. A moment later the nurse turned and, suddenly seeing us, gave an involuntary start.

"The plot thickens," I remarked to my companion. "I'll bet that this nurse, being permitted to leave the house, will get rid of the diamond."

"Suppose she has it with her now?" said Miss Sweet.

"It's possible."

"I have never seen her so agitated as when she turned and saw us behind her."

"You are on the track. You made the discovery that she was in league with her mistress. Suppose we let her see by our acts and the expressions of our faces that we are watching her. It may drive her into doing something that will expose her."

By this time the nurse had taken a seat on a bench, while the child played about with her balloon. On several occasions she let go the string, the balloon rose, and the nurse caught it only in time to save it. We walked by the woman and as we did so stared at her ominously. She trembled like a leaf. We walked on a short distance and turned. The child's balloon had escaped and was caught in the branches of a tree overhanging the seat where the nurse sat. The child was crying for her toy, and the nurse was trying to quiet her.

"I'll buy you another, dearie," she said. "That one has gone where one can't get it."

The nurse spoke the truth. Only a long ladder would enable any one to reach the toy. It had lodged some thirty feet from the ground. As I walked past the tree I looked up at it. I noticed that the string attached to it hung straight. It suggested nothing at first, but presently I asked my companion:

"Do you notice how straight that string hangs? Is it caught on a branch, and does the balloon keep it taut?"

"No; the balloon is against a bough. But there is something—very small—tied to the end of the string."

"So there is."

I glanced at the nurse, who knew we were talking about the balloon, and saw she was holding her breath from suspense. I called some boys who were playing near and offered any of them a quarter who would climb the tree and bring down the balloon. One of the boys took my offer, and in a few minutes I was in possession of the toy. At the end of the string was a bit of tissue paper. In the paper was the diamond.

I looked around for the nurse. She had vanished.

The delight both of myself and Miss Sweet may be imagined. We started to the house with the little girl. Far down the street we saw the nurse running ahead of us. It did not occur to us what she was going to the house for till we got there, when we discovered that she had warned her mistress and gone on. Before saying a word to any one I took the stone to Treusdail, and we had a long consultation. We had no proof against the widow, and since she was a connection of Jim's he decided to tell her that her maid had stolen the diamond and not intimate to her that she herself was supposed to have been an accomplice. This would avoid any unpleasantness.

When the matter was given out to the guests I told them all that the find was entirely due to Miss Sweet's ingenuity and foresight. She was the lioness of the party from that moment till we broke up and generally became convinced that she had done it all herself.

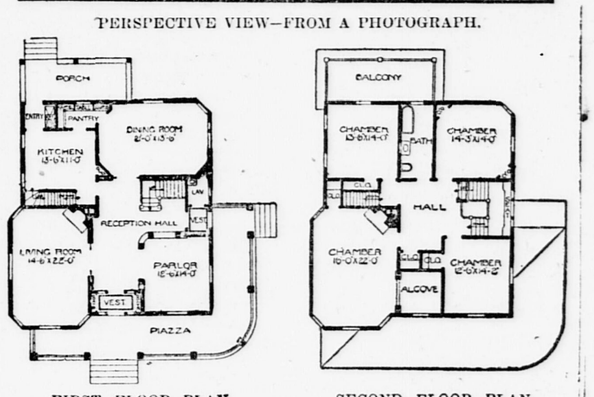

That gave me a good start, and in time I won—not a stone, but a woman.

An Attractive Country Home.

Design 922, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN. SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This design makes a splendid country home. The circular porch is an interesting feature, seldom incorporated in smaller houses. Two large bays give the living room a beautiful symmetry and afford a view in all directions. The large reception hall may be entered through either of two vestibules. The parlor is made a part of the reception hall by columned archways. There are four chambers upstairs and a hall large enough to accommodate several chairs or a table. Size thirty-six feet wide and forty feet deep. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $8,000.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish a complete set of plans and specifications of design No 922 for $30.

CANNON FLAYS INSURGENTS

Opens Campaign of "Education and Enlightenment"

REPUBLICANS' ACHIEVEMENTS

They Should Be Forgotten, Says Uncle Joe, Rather Than Have "Liberal" Added to Party's Name—Renews War on His Critics and Hopes Next Congress Will Be Better Than Present One

Boston, May 2.—Speaker Cannon of the house of representatives, speaking as the guest of honor at the dinner of the Middlesex club at the Hotel Somerset, aroused his hearers to a high pitch of enthusiasm by his vigorous defense of the Republican party and its policies, and his scathing arraignment of the administration's critics and those who term themselves "Liberal Republicans."

The speaker was given one of the greatest receptions ever accorded to a guest at the club. Insurgency had apparently no friends in the gathering. It was attacked by Cannon. It was denounced by ex-Governor Black of New York. Governor Draper, ex-Congressman Powers, president of the club, and William H. McElroy of New York all had a fling at it, and the manifestations of approval were frequent and seemingly unanimous.

It was "Grant night" with the club, the occasion being the 88th anniversary of the birth of General Grant. The event was of national significance, for it was practically the beginning of a campaign of "education and enlightenment" which is to be waged by the "regulars" throughout the country from now until election day.

Mr. Canon's speech, in the main, was an eloquent tribute to the greatness of Grant, but the life and experience of the soldier and statesman were used to point morals applicable to the present situation. He drew a parallel between the coalition of '72, when "the leaders and the editors announced the dissolution of the Republican party, and prepared for its burial," and the insurgent movement of today, which he declared to be the same in all essential respects.

"But," he said, "the party could not be controlled by the leaders and the press. The men who formed the combination reckoned without the main body of the people. They were not representative of the people, but of selfish interests. The main body of the people remained true to their party, and Grant was elected by the largest electoral vote ever given to a president since Washington. And," he added, "history will repeat itself."

He read his speech from manuscript, but departed long enough to eulogize the Republican party and to denounce the "Liberal Republicans."

"Liberal Republicans!" he exclaimed. "Oh, men of the Middlesex club, let us wipe the word Republican off the banner and forget the glorious achievements of the past before we add an adjective to the name."

"In all our glorious history," he continued, "when any one has attempted to improve upon the name Republican party he has had it in mind to delude genuine Republicans, without having the courage to march over and join the Democratic party.

"The Republican party has from time to time," he said, "met with partial or complete defeat. But I say to the people of New England, as I will say to the people of the west later, keep the faith, close up the ranks, or we will have another house of representatives and another senate like the present, where no man can tell from day to day whether the Republican party has a majority or not.

"Let us labor so that the fruits of victory shall not turn to ashes in our mouths."

Mr. Cannon defended the system under which the speaker of the house is able to wield such power. "When we have to change the rules of the house," he said, "to permit a minority to dictate legislation in behalf of special interests, we will be confronted with the necessity of changing our constitution and all our conceptions of a people's government, where the majority shall legislate and accept responsibility for legislation."

MAYOR HOWARD'S TROUBLES

Facing Court Proceedings After Declaring He Is Bankrupt

Salem, Mass., May 2.—Mayor Howard is cited to appear next Friday in the poor debtors' court on a judgment obtained by Lewis Sherry, a New York restaurant keeper. On Tuesday he is scheduled to appear in the Essex county superior court in Newburyport to defend suits for libel brought against him. Saturday the mayor filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the federal court here. He gave his liabilities at $36,415.

Howard's petition shows that all of his creditors live out of this state. His debts were nearly all piled up in 1907 and 1908. Besides owing Sherry, he owes the Carleton hotel, London, $445 for board and lodging in 1908; the Holland house, New York, $179 for meals in 1907, and the New York Transportation company $1000 for carriage hire in 1907.

TRYING TO END MILK WAR

Governor Draper Arranges Conference With Boston Contractors

Boston, May 2.—Another attempt will be made by Governor Draper today to prevent the milk famine with which Boston is threatened. He has arranged a conference at the state house with the five large contractors of Boston who control, to all practical purposes, the milk business of New England. Draper hopes he can persuade the contractors to consent to arbitration of their differences with the farmers.

Thousands of quarts of milk were held back from shipment yesterday by the angry New England farmers, but the contractors declare that plenty of milk will be available from other sources even if the strike should last a year, or all the New England farmers turn their milch cows into beef and hides.

WESTON IS ON LAST LAP OF LONG WALK

Will Complete His Coast to Coast Journey This Afternoon

New York, May 2.—Edward P. Weston left Yonkers this morning, refreshed from his rest on Sunday, and reached Broadway and Seventy-second street shortly after noon, resting for a short time at the Ansonia. Here he was met by a large escort of police and the Metropolitan band. From here to city hall his march will be one of continual ovation. He will probably not reach city hall before 4 o'clock on account of the crowds.

Mayor Gaynor will receive him on the steps of city hall and will make him a short speech of welcome and appreciation.

Weston will respond by telling the mayor the reasons why he made the trip, and handing him a message written to Mayor Gaynor by Mayor Alexander of Los Angeles.

The mayor will then hand Weston a purse of $1000 which his friends have made up for him during the past week. After all this Weston is going home.

VISITS TULIP SHOW

Roosevelt Is Presented With Silver Model of the "Half Moon"

Amsterdam, May 2.—Theodore Roosevelt gave Sunday over to an inspection of the magnificent display of tulips, which are now almost at perfection, and of Dutch paintings. With the members of his family he motored from The Hague to Haarlem. On either side of the road were thousands of acres of blooming tulips, great masses of color, and the air was heavy with perfume.

The national tulip show is now in progress at Haarlem, and President Krelags and the directors received the party at the entrance. Krelags presented Roosevelt with a silver model of the "Half Moon,", saying: "You may call it the Half Moon or the Mayflower, just as you like."

SCARLET FEVER EPIDEMIC

It Now Appears to Be Under Control In Boston and Vicinity

Boston, May 2.—The Boston board of health states that the worst of the scarlet fever epidemic has passed and that it looks for a continually decreasing number of new cases this week.

In most of the new cases the disease was traced to the milk dealer. The total number of cases of fever for the month in Boston will be a little over 500. Had it been a normal month the figures would have been about 175.

In towns and cities in the fever zone 331 cases have been registered since the epidemic appeared. There are at present 821 cases of scarlet fever within the metropolitan district.

APATHY SHOWN ON EVERY HAND

THE SITUATION IS DESPERATE

Insurgents In Senate and House Are Very Busy—Attacks on Railroad Bill Disconcerting to Administration Managers—Statesmen More Anxious to Attend to Affairs In Their Political Districts Than to Pass Bills

Washington, May 2.—Congress seems to be near the parting of the ways. Before President Taft returns from his western journey at the close of this week it may be apparent whether the president's legislative program is to be practically abandoned by shelving the bills in conference or whether the leaders will continue to apply themselves to the task of forcing something through.

The situation has been becoming more and more desperate, and the worst feature of it is that no friend of the administration appears to care. The insurgents are exceedingly active in senate and house. The are planning fresh attacks upon the railroad bill. If they can muster as much strength against it as they expect, even the president may be willing to abandon the measure.

The latest insurgent talk, now that radical amendments have been placed upon the bill, including physical valuation of railroads, is to choose the house conferees on the floor. Whether much will come of this talk is not yet plain, but it is disconcerting to the managers on the part of the president.

The insurgents claim that if the conferees are chosen in the regular way the radical amendments will be sacrificed. It is doubtful whether the Democrats would care to go on record as favoring the choice of conferees by any other method than designation by the speaker.

The senate insurgents have not been as triumphant, but they are, none the less, making a very aggressive fight. They are prepared to make trouble for the senate organization in many particulars, and this fact is stimulating the leaders to hasten the day of adjournment.

It is becoming increasingly difficult to keep a quorum of either legislative branch in Washington. The weather is now warm enough to be occasionally uncomfortable and the political conditions at home call for the attention of many scores of senators and representatives.

Apathy and lack of organization are apparent on every hand. As the president is out of town for a week, it is probable that congress will fritter away much of the time till his return, when there will be more parleys as to just how much there shall be done before adjournment is taken.

CHORUS GIRLS IN JAIL

Only Quarters Available, Because Ministers Filled the Hotels

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 2.—Bluffton is a dry town and to this fact is due, the anti-saloon people say, the fact that there are no prisoners in the Wells county jail, which housed ten chorus girls of a light opera company.

The Methodist conference was in session, and all the hotels were packed when the company arrived. A few members of the company succeeded in securing quarters, but no place could be found for ten of the chorus girls.

Finally it was said to the manager of the company that sleeping room could be secured at the county jail. He broached the matter to the girls, and they consented to go there.

A NEBRASKA FISH STORY

Giant Catfish Left In Pond by Platte River's Receding Flood

Valley, Neb., May 2.—Presumably the largest fish ever caught in inland waters was landed here by William Orris and John Wixon, farmers. It was a black catfish and weighed 297 pounds and was almost six feet long.

The Platte river has been unusually high, having flooded the low lands and bottoms. Now it is rapidly receding. Orris and Wixon were out in a pasture, repairing fences. In a swale over which the river had swept and which was filled with water to a depth of a couple of feet they noticed a great disturbance. Going out they discovered the monstrous fish.

BOOKS IN OUR PUBLIC LIBRARY

It may be helpful to those asking "What shall I read next?" to call their attention to some of the new books added recently to our excellent Public Library and to review some of the older and no less desirable books on the shelves. I, myself, was reminded to take out one book in particular during the late "bit of a row" in the House at Washington, when Uncle Joe Cannon had such a good chance to show his grit and when the old man held out so well "he made even his enemies to praise him." The book I refer to ought to be a matter of pride with all Quincy people for it was written by a former Quincy woman, Miss M. P. Follett.

The subject has never before been so completely and satisfactorily handled, and required great patience and skill in the collecting and presenting of facts connected with it. The book is entitled "The Speaker of the House," and though so profound a subject it is handled so clearly and interestingly that any layman, or laywoman can read it understandingly.

The Chapter called "Personal Element" forces us to conclude that human-nature loves power and will grasp and make the most of it whenever possible. The problem in connection with the Speaker always has been and will doubtless continue to be, shall he serve the party who put him in the chair, and which he unquestionably represents, or shall he act as an honest umpire and upright judge in the nice questions of the game and the law. Miss Follett concludes that "the drift of power to the Speakership is as clear as the fact that strong and forcible speakers have greatly affected the development of that power." This book, as I just said, can be read now with special interest, though published several years ago.

Another book on this subject just added to our Public Library is H. B. Fuller's "Speakers of the House," which, an able reviewer says, while "less valuable and scholarly than Miss Follett's, covers a later period and is better adapted for public library use."

There are some more recent books also of national interest, particularly those upon the Panama Canal, the South American Republics, and China, and Japan. Books in connection with all these vital questions have been added to our Library within the past two months. There is the "Re-shaping of the Far East" by E. Putnam Weale in which he tells us that the "whole story of the past decade in China, Manchuria, Korea and Japan is most curious ,and their entanglement with one another and with European nations is without parallell in the world's history." Graphic descriptions and fine illustrations make these volumes delightfully interesting.

We have another book of Mr. Weale's ,his latest, "The Human Cobweb." It tells of the experiences of American and English capitalists in their atempts to establish railroads in China, and is woven rather clumsily into the form of a love story. The god Cupid appears in full feather in the first chapter, but, very soon disappears almost completely until the last one. (Side-tracked probably as this is a railroad story.) The rest of the book is given up to interesting though rather disgusting details in connection with the experiences of an Englishman railroad promoter and incidents in the every day life in Peking and national traits and habits of the Chinese.

Mr. Weale's clumsy attempt to weave in a love-story adds to the entertainment of the book, though it detracts from its value as literature.

Mr. Frederic Palmer's "Central America" is another new book. It gives his experiences and conclusions as searcher for facts in this region of foolish strife and blood-shed. Where the crying need is, as in Cuba and Porto Rico and the Philippines, for good roads to bring rich produce to waiting markets and seaports, and where, doubtless, a generation of our American flag and public schools would make a wonderful wilderness blossom as the rose. Mr. Walker pronounces Casta-Rica the most prosperous and contented as well as intelligent of these strange little blundering republics, and we may be excused for thinking it has profited by its proximitiy to Panama where our Government has wrought such beneficial changes. And this reminds me to take up another new book. "The Panama Canal and its Makers" by Cornish. This should be read in connection with Admiral Evans magazine articles on the same subject. If we are to take an intelligent part in the opening of this great water highway, so soon to be realized, it will be well to study the history and as far as possible its future. The volume in hand is only one of several in the Library upon Panama almost equally valuable, but this has the advantage of being very compact while completely covering the ground. It has illustrations from photographs, and a map authorized by the Canal Commission.

This stretch of land which as Cornish says "has hitherto been a barrier between two oceans, and has failed to act as a bridge between two continents" has a most romantic history. It is safe to predict its most important epoch lies in its future. Are we building this canal for America or for Asia?

Another new book which will probably not prove generally interesting, will be read with interest by many, especially women because of the old books it calls. It is the "Life and Letters of Susan Warner" who gave us as girls so much pleasure as well as profit, with her story entitled "The Wide, Wide World" followed by "Queechy" and "Say and Seal."

In this volume is read also the life of the devoted sister who has compiled it, because as she says in her pathetic preface "My love they want me to tell about you and if I can I must. They write me from England and America that back of such books as yours there must be a faith worth hearing about ,a life that should be told." After reading this life carried bravely and successfully through so much privation and labor by love and faith alone, no one can ever cavil, or smile derisively at what is often called "die too religious" atmosphere of these helpful, delicate, charming stories told by these two gifted sisters. For Anna Warner who has given us in her extreme old age this convincing life of Susan Warner is also a writer of no mean reputation. She has perhaps even more skill with her pen-wit and vigor. If any one cares to take her first book from our Library "Dollars and Cents" it will well repay the reading. And read in connection with the early life of these sisters on Constitution Island, the experiences narrated are found to be all too true. And just here let me say Miss White says that when one cannot get a new book from the shelves it is well to remember there are plenty of old books waiting to be read. T. B. Aldrich says of them, "They are books that have had their day and should get more praise now than perusal. They always remind me of venerable old colonels and majors and captains who having reached the age limit find themselves retired upon half pay."

Of these books of high rank and on half pay. I can take space to mention only a few. They are many and good enough to warrant a column all their own. Among those ranking as captains more recently retired from service are the entertaining novels by Anthony Trollope all about people and country life in England. This author takes his characters from one back to another and the reader is constantly meeting old acquaintances. Every young woman ought to read The Small House at Allington and ask herself "Ought Lily Dale to have forgiven her recreant lover?" A young man might also read this book and ask himself "Shall I, or shall I not make matrimony a "matter-o-money?" Anthony Trollope's own brief biography is a good key to his books. Another author among the captains is William Black. Every yachtsman should read his "White Wings;" while for adventures on land the happier story of the "Strange Adventures of a Phaethon" will be found delightful. Black's books, like Trollop'es are good healthy reading, no mental or moral indigestion as in so many of the rank and file of the novels of today.

The Thomas Crane Public Library has fortunately never indulged in Bibliomania, for it is a dangerous malady but it can boast one rare book though "only a child's book." I will begin its story before giving its title. One of our good men in contributing to our Library from his own unwittingly gathered up this little volume by mistake, and sent it to us among some more valuable matter. When the wife of the donor learned that one of the treasures of her childhood had thus disappeared she was very sorry, but unselfishly and kindly relinguished her claim in favor of some child of today, and it took its place on our shelves. That child proved to be a sick little girl whose shut-in hours were made so bright by this small volume that she asked for a book like it "all her own." So one day when her mother "ran into Boston" (as Quincy mothers do occasionally) she sought to buy the book but in vain. It was nowhere to be found. The obliging bookpeople as vainly tried to find it in Boston's numerous second-hand shops. At last a big book-house in New York, (Brentano's) was appealed to, still without success. But this firm staked its reputation on always getting the book asked for, and it would get this one. It's agent searched the United States, he crossed the ocean to Europe, his memoranda read "Wanted: "Memoirs of a London Doll." It was nowhere to be found. But Brentano's had promised and the firm said "If one litle girl wants this book so much, other little girls would like it, "and they wrote saying, If the Crane Library would lend them their one copy ,a reprint should be made. The copy was loaned them. But when the time came for its return, "Horrors!" It could not be found. The Crane Library was naturally annoyed and tempted to be suspicious, Brentano anxious and deeply apologetic, at last the precious little volume was discovered hidden under some very profound manuscript. It was restored to our shelves everybody shook hands, and had always prophesied its return. With the little old book came also a gift to us of the new one, in all the glory of a flowered silk, brocade cover with lovely etchings for illustrations instead of the red muslin and quaint wood cuts of the original. The old book can leave our library no more, but Miss White will gladly show it to anyone interested.

The story of a London doll is good enough for grown ups who will enjoy the doll's letter in it written by the great English Lord. Somebody for his litle daughter Lady Flora and accomplished after deep thought and deliberation to the neglect of his delicious raspberry tart, and hindrance to his duties as a valued member of the Queen's Council.

Among other books of its kind in our library is the recent one by Laura Starr, called simply "The Doll Book." It is all about dolls ,their history, educational value, the dolls of different nations, with many directions for quaint and pretty homemade dolls. She tells us that "one million dolls are sent out every year by one firm alone in Bavaria, where there is a whole colony of doll-factories, and in France a large corps of doll artists are kept continually busy designing new ones.

Dolls seem to have gone out of fashion in this country. I was tempted at one time to think the Teddy Bears had devoured them. But the Bears themselves are far less in evidence. They all seem to be disappearing with the fairies of our childhood. Perhaps some Pied Piper in revenge for our extreme realism has whistled them all away. But speaking of fairies there is a new book in the children's room they will welcome gladly. It is "The Fairier Queen" by Rev. A. J. Church, which gives the famous old rhymed story in such simple English and clearness that it will help the grownups to better understand it.

I have, after all ,told only a very little of what might be told of the books in our Public Library.

WINS FORGIVENESS OF HIS PARENTS

"Tip" Knox and His Bride Receive Parental Blessing

Washington, May 2.—It took just one month for "Tip" Knox, son of the secretary of state of the United States, to prove to his father that he could marry a shop girl if he choose and make a living for himself and his bride, despite his 19 years. And the result is that Philander C. Knox, Jr., is with his bride in the home of his parents, forgiven and the recipient of the family blessing.

Washington society is not yet acquainted with the former May Boller, the 18-year-old Providence shop girl, who eloped with the young student.

From the moment of his elopement, "Tip" Knox was confident that he would win his father's consent before long. When his allowance was cut off, and even when his father refused to receive him and his bride, the lad's courage never faltered.

For a month he worked as an automobile salesman for a Providence concern and proved his mettle. Providence society helped him, and selling automobiles was a pastime.

NEW ENGLAND LABOR STRIFE

May Day Finds Thousands at Odds With Employers

TROLLEY STRIKE THREATENED

Over Four Thousand on Lines Operated by Holding Company For New Haven Road Awaiting Order to Quit —Building Trades Crippled by Strike of Carpenters and Laborers— Railroads Have Some Troubles

Boston, May 2.—May day, generally regarded as the first day in the industrial year, finds in New England numerous disagreements between employers and employes. Nearly 10,000 working people are today at odds with their employers, largely because of demanded wage increases.

The 4200 union trolleymen employed in Springfield, Worcester and in other places in western Massachusetts and in Connecticut on street railway lines operated by the New England Investment and Security company, a trolley holding company for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, await only the sanction of their national officers before calling a strike in furtherance of their demands for an increase in wages.

The situation there is in contrast to that elsewhere in New England, a number of street railway lines in the past few months having voluntarily granted advances in wages ranging from 5 to 10 percent.

The building trades in Providence, Pawtucket, Newport and Auburn, in Rhode Island, and in Fall River were crippled this morning by the declared strike of about 2800 carpenters and laborers, seeking principally increases in wages. In Fitchburg, Gardner and Leominster, Mass., and in Portland, Me., the carpenters may strike for the same reason. About 700 men are involved in these latter places.

Of strikes which were in progress prior to today there are several. The trouble in the mills of the International Paper company, now several months old, still continues, although proportionately few men are out. The 200 operatives at the Stillwater woolen mills at Greenville, R. I., have been on strike now ten days, because of unsatisfactory working conditions. The same number of women operatives at the Roxbury carpet mills have been out two weeks, following their demands for a 25 percent increase in wages.

In addition to these disagreements, in which an open rupture between employer and employe has taken place or is seemingly imminent, there are pending the adjustments of a number of increased wage requests. The officials of the New Haven road have refused the wage demands of their telegraphers, and the men are now voting on the strike question. Wage scales and working agreements of railroad conductors and trainmen on the Boston and Albany road, of locomotive firemen, freight handlers and freight clerks, and the federated trades on the Boston and Maine road and of the yard conductors and trainmen and the federated trades of the New Haven road are awaiting arbitration.

The May day situation in Boston is unusually quiet. Only one new strike impends. That is of the piano and furniture moving teamsters, who ask an increase in wages. Many trades have adopted June 1 as contract day.

"DRY" STRETCH IS BROKEN

Chelsea's Thirsty Ones May Now Be Served With Favorite Beverages

Chelsea, Mass., May 2.—At 6 o'clock this morning thirty-two licensed saloons opened for business in this city. Chelsea thus breaks the "dry" stretch which has been extending up the North Shore from Boston to Gloucester.

But Police Chief Shannon says that the liquor business is going to be run differently in Chelsea now. The chief handed out a few straight tips to Chelsea imbibers about how they should behave and wound up by declaring:

"Not a woman must step into a saloon, to say nothing about taking a drink."

GIRL LOSES FORTUNE

Goes Toward Making Up Shortage of Kansas City's Treasurer

Kansas City, May 2.—Upon one little girl falls the burden of "Billy" Baehr's shortage, since the late city treasurer will reimburse the municipal treasury from his $50,000 estate.

In this way Ruth, his 15-year-old daughter, will lose her mother's fortune, which Baehr's wife left him by will. Baehr's shortage will probably reach $65,000.

Early Fourth In Rhode Island

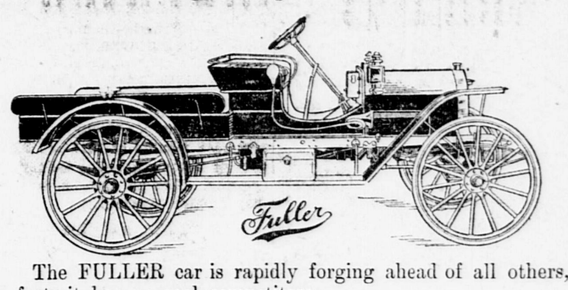

Providence, May 2.—Rhode Island's Independence day will be officially celebrated on May 4. Through action by the general assembly the citizens of the state will, by observance, further the contention that the Rhode Island declaration of independence antedates all such documents.

The "Mudtown Minstrels" which appeared at St. Marys hall Friday evening made one of the hits of the season. After the minstrels came a gymnasium exhibition, quartet singing, and an amusing farce entitled "The two counts." Dancing followed until 3 A. M.

PROTEST NOT ALLOWED.

The protest of the Fore River association football team against the Boston Rovers was considered Sunday at a meeting of the managers of the Williamson challenge cup competition held in Lynn. The secretary announced that the Fore River team had lodged an objection as to the game with the Boston Rovers in the final tie for the cup on the grounds that George Elliott of the Rovers was a professional and had been paid for his services both by the New England and Eastern leagues. After some discussion a tie vote resulted and the chairman cast the vote overruling the objection of the Fore Rivers.

OLD COLONY SCHEDULE

Lincolns Admitted in Place of the Tauntons

(By Rube.)

The Old Colony Baseball league magnates held a very enthusiastic meeting at Hotel Belmont, Brockton, May 1, all clubs with exception of Randolph sending representatives.

President Jerome F. Murphy presided over the meeting in his usual capable manner, and many questions and suggestions came up for discussion.

The first was by far the most important, that of securing the sixth club, caused by Taunton drawing out, as told exclusively in Friday's Daily Ledger.

Mr. McCarthy stated he was unable to secure grounds in Taunton, Brockton or Dorchester, and had been given an opportunity to sell to Lincoln where the team was run by a wealthy citizen. He then introduced W. A. Blodgett, a marketman, as the sole proprietor of the Lincoln baseball team. Mr. Blodgett arose and told of the baseball situation in Lincoln. He said in part: "Lincoln is a small town about 18 miles outside of Boston where baseball has become a big attraction. We have a pretty baseball park, have bleachers that can accommodate 600 and draw our attendance from Waltham, Lexington, Concord and Hastings, all of which are within a few miles of our grounds.

Our grounds are not enclosed and we have never charged admission, always passing the hat to get the contributions of the fans. If we enter this league I will guarantee that we will complete our schedule and land the pennant if possible. He closed by saying he would answer any questions the directors cared to ask."

The questions and answers brought out fact that a club could be sent to Lincoln much cheaper than to Taunton which of course was in favor of the applicant. When it came to a vote the Lincoln club was a unanimous choice to fill the vacancy.

The next busines was adoption of a baseball to be used during the season. L. J. Willard, a Brockton dealer, submitted a proposition on a new baseball at a small saving, but the league did a wise thing in adopting baseballs sanctioned by the national commission which gives clubs a right to use either the Spaulding or Reach ball.

The next business was the election of a vice president to take place of William McCarthy of Taunton. Daniel M. O'Brien, the live wire of the Rockland club was the unanimous choice of the meeting. Mr. McCarthy was elected an honorary member.

Last but not least came the adoption of a schedule. The committee drew up a schedule on which but few changes were made. This should prove more than satisfactory to Quincy for there are no conflicting dates whatever with the Deweys. The "Granites" will undoubtedly draw many from over the river while the Deweys are on the road and the Deweys likewise when Quincy is on the road. The schedule is as follows:

TEN TO FOUR.

The Fore River Apprentices met the Mohawk A. C. on Saturday and won 10 to 4. The Apprentices had 8 safe hits to 4 for the Mohawks, and made 2 errors where the Mohawks made 5. The score by innings:

LOCAL SPORTS.

The four days' tournament of the Wollaston Golf club will open on Wednesday.

July 30, Aug. 9, and Aug. 27 are the local dates for the races of the Dory Association in connection with the local yacht clubs.

Only four classes came to the line for the events of the Old Colony Gentlemen's Driving Club on Saturday at Weymouth park. Mr. Young's Roy K won in two heats in Class A. Herbert Beal's Ada Smith took the first heat in Class B but Henry Baker's Judge won the race. In Class C it was the same way, Queen Lil taking the second and third heats. It was a walkover for J. W. Linnehan's Helen Dare in Class D.

J. J. Daniels with a handicap of 14 was an easy winner in the members' tournament against bogy at the Wollaston links on Saturday. A. P. Earle won from J. S. Phelps in the second round for the directors cup.

LARGE HANDS ARE IMPORTANT

Big Mitts Most Desirable For Successful Ball Tosser.

TANNEHILL HAS GOOD PAIR.

Chicago Americans' Third Sacker Has Large, Sinewy Maulers—Evers Has Small Hands, Yet He Is One of Game's Greatest Fielders.

Many columns of stuff have been written about "baseball brains," while "baseball hands" have been sadly neglected. Fair hands are common, but the real perfect type is scarce. It is generally admitted that Lee Tannehill, the Chicago Americans' third sacker, has the ideal hands for a ball tosser. Lee is on the down grade as a top liner these days, but in his prime he could pick up a grounder better than any of his rivals in the infield.

A close study of Tannehill's hands show them large, strong and sinewy. When he places the tips of his fingers together, and also the base of his palm, a baseball fits there as snugly as a glove on the hand. On scooping up a grounder around third base the ball appears to be almost crushed before he lets it go to first base. It is this that started the expression of "devouring the ball" or "eating it up." A man who has delicate hands can never play an infield position as easily as one of Tannehill's kind.

GEORGE STONE, ST. LOUIS AMERICANS' STAR LEFT FIELDER.

Another infielder who "eats up" the ball is Hans Wagner. Without stretching the point any, his hands look tremendous when he swoops up a grounder. They are about the biggest hands a man ever looked on. It takes a fearful drive to get away from his clutches. Once he gets his hands on a grounder it generally means certain death for the batter. His hands are more necessary to the infielder, for it is much harder to scoop up a ball when it is coming fast than to catch a fly. Many a fielder who is sure death on a fly ball or a line drive will let a grounder out in his territory get away from him.

Devlin of the New York Nationals has a perfect baseball hand. So have Bill Bradley of the Cleveland Americans and Delehanty of the Detroit Tigers. But the perfect type is a rarity. Manager Chance of the Chicago Nationals looks at a player's hands first in sizing him up as a possible recruit. It is there that the man's strength is shown, and, for that matter, his character.

A man with delicate hands who starts in the infield is a "freak." Johnny Evers of the Cubs comes under this classification. To see Johnny in citizen's clothes he appears more like a bank clerk or a cashier, a man whose business it is to write or to handle money. His fingers are long and tapering, almost like a woman's. It makes one wonder how he can save them from injury and also how he can round up some of the terrific drives which go his way.

Boston Teams Composed of Youngsters

The two Boston teams this year are composed nearly entirely of players well under the twenty-five year mark. The Doves, with one or two exceptions, are all under twenty-five, while the majority of the Red Sox players are below that limit. These are the youngest teams that ever played together in major league baseball.

Collins Family Prominent.

There are three Collinses in the American league this year. Two of them are second basemen. Eddie of the Philadelphia Athletics and John of the Chicago White Sox. Ray Collins of the Boston Red Sox is a pitcher.

LICENSE COMMITTEE IS OVERRIDDEN

Nearly Twice as Many Express Permits Voted as Committee Recommended

Considerable Other Business and a Midnight Session

As it was expected Monday night's meeting of the City Council was a long one. The lateness of the hour of adjournment being due to the time required to dispose of the hundred or more licenses. The greatest fight came on the granting of permits to transport liquor. The committee reported in favor of granting but eight giving the others with the exception of five leave to withdraw. The Council however overturned the committees report and before an adjournment had been reached fifteen permits had been granted and with one exception all of the others had been given leave to withdraw. This one exception is now on the table.

COUNCILMAN SMITH.

Every member of the council was present and no one was permitted to leave to go home with the exception of President Hobbs who has been ill. He remained until after eleven o'clock and then Councilman Whiton looked after matters. Several times members would leave their seats but the president would send the City Messenger to bring them back. The members were prepared to clean up the license question even if it took all night.

After roll call the council decided to limit all debates on any one question to fifteen minutes and each member to three minutes. This materially aided to facilitate matters.

Bethany Men's Club Planning for Ladies' Night

Much to the regret of all the members of the Men's Club of Bethany church, on Monday evening, President Edward Souhtworth declined a reelection. His name headed the list of officers reported by the nominating committee, and every effort was made to induce him to accept a reelection, but when he retires as a Boston master in June he desires to be free to go and come as he pleases for a few years. These officers were elected:

President—Frank W. Crane.
Vice President—George F. Sidelinger.
Secretary—Henry P. Hayward.

Chairman Entertainment Committee—Charles H. Hardwick.
Chairman Membership Committee—W. G. Shaw.
Chairman Outlook Committee—Richard Bishop.

The secretary reported an increase in membership and the treasurer reported $48.96 in the treasury.

MERCHANT'S MEETING.

The May meeting of the Quincy Retail Merchants' Association is called for Thursday evening, at 7.30, at Union hall. There will be two or three out-of-town speakers, and reports are expected relative to Merchants' Week. All business men of the city are invited.

FOURTH OF JULY COMMITTEE.

The executive committee in charge of the Fourth of July celebration will hold a meeting Friday evening of this week in the Board of Trade rooms at 7.45. The committee consists of the officers and the chairmen of the various committees elected at the meeting on Saturday evening.

BRIEFS

The case of Charles M. Nelson vs. the Old Colony street railway to recover $5,000 for damage to horse and buggy struck by car Jan. 26, 1909, is on trial in the Norfolk Superior court.

Special services were held at St. Mary's church on Sunday for the Ladies' Sodality of the church, it being the tenth anniversary of the society. The members received holy communion in a body at the morning mass.

Davis Dean Randall, who died at East Weymouth on Monday, in his 80th year was one of original members of South Shore commandery, K. T., and the commandery will conduct the funeral on Thursday at 2.30 P. M.

Mr. and Mrs. William Richards entertained a large number of guests at Malnati hall Saturday evening in honor of the wedding anniversary of their daughter Mrs. Irving Doble. There was vocal and instrumental music and dancing.

Friends of Mrs. Clare W. Hall of 17 Davis street will be sorry to learn that she has met with a serious accident. She went over to New York a few weeks ago to visit a friend. They were run into while crossing a street, both receiving injuries. Mrs. Hall is at the Flowers hospital with a dislocated hip and will have to remain there several weeks.

LICENSES NOT IN EFFECT

Mayor Shea Will Take Time to Investigate

Although fifteen permits to transport liquor were granted by the City Council Monday night it will probably be several days before the Mayor puts his name to the orders making them a law.

Under the City Charter his honor is allowed ten days to approve, disapprove, or allow them to become a law without his signature. He says that he does not intend to sign the licenses off hand, and that he shall oblige every applicant to come before him in person before he grants any permits.

The permits granted will probably reach the Mayor on Wednesday morning, so that at best it will be the latter part of the week before any expressman gets a permit.

Another case is that of pool tables. On Monday the Mayor ordered them all to close until they had been granted a license and as a result there are no pool games in progress in the city. These licenses are in the same condition as the expressmen, and the pool rooms will probably remain closed the most of the week, if not longer.

As for Common victuallers the thirty or more persons granted these licenses Monday night will doubtless be permitted to serve food until the new licenses are issued.

SUICIDE AT HOUGHS NECK.

Mrs. Ida S. Nord committed suicide on Monday at her home on Sea street, Houghs Neck, by hanging. Mrs. Nord got up as usual and built a fire. Not hearing her moving about Mr. Nord started to investigate and found her hanging from a door. She had taken a small piece of rope and placing it about her neck had fastened the other end to the door. Mr. Nord cut her down and as the body was still warm he tried to resuscitate her, but without avail. Medical Examiner Jones was notified. Mrs. Nord was 45 years of age and leaves a husband and two sons.

CONGRESSMAN MOORE

To Speak in This City Friday May 20

Hon. Brooks Adams, president of the Quincy Historical Society, has secured a great treat for Quincy. Congressman J. Hampton Moore, president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association has accepted Mr. Adams invitation to speak here, Friday, May 20.

On Thursday evening, May 19, at a banquet in Boston, the chief speakers will be Congressman J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, Congressman John Humphrey Small of North Carolina and Governor A. J. Pothier of Rhode Island.

The Atlantic Deep Waterways convention, under the auspices of the Massachusetts State Board of Trade, will be held May 19 in the Hotel Vendome, for the purpose of stimulating further interest in the national convention to be held in Providence next fall.

The convention will be participated in by delegates from the constituent bodies of the State Board of Trade, delegates from the other New England States and local boards of trade and commercial and civic organizations, together with governors of the New England States, as well as business men who are interested in the commercial development of the Atlantic deep waterways.

President Loyed E. Chamberlain will welcome the delegates in the banquet room of the hotel at 1.30 o'clock and the afternoon will be devoted to a discussion of the deeper waterways movement.

Quincy is greatly indebted to Mr. Adams for securing these noted speakers for our city on May 20. Several prominent citizens have expressed a desire to assist in entertaining these gentlemen.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

The Woman's Missionary meeting of the Wollaston Methodist church was held Monday at 2.30 o'clock with Mrs. J. A. Sedgwick, 240 Goffe street, Quincy. A large number was present. Mrs. Wesley Wiggin, the president, presided. Mrs. George Crothers had charge of the devotions. Mrs. S. N. Belcher read a tribute to Miss Mary E. Holt, written by Bishop Mallalieu. Mrs. A. B. Cassidy reviewed the chapter on "The gospel in Mexico." Mrs. George Taylor read an article on "The child of Atocha." Refreshments were served by Mrs. Sedgwick, who proved a most congenial hostess.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Bar and Bottle Bill Sent to the Governor

Senator Hultman and 19 others voted for the enactment of the "Bar and Bottle bill" in the Senate on Monday, and the opposition could muster but 17, so the act goes to Gov. Draper. It was not until 6 P. M. that a vote was reached, and the senators voted as follows:

Yes—Bennett, Blanchard, Bray, Burnham, Crosby, Denny, Evans, Farley, Greenwood, Harvey, Hultman, Keith, Mellen, Mulligan, Nash, Nason, Newhall, Rockwood, Tolman, White—20.

No—Bunting, Butler, Doyle, Hibbard Lomasney, Mahoney, Malley, Meaney, O'Connor, Parker, Pickford, Rankin, Ross, Teeling, Tinkham, Turner, Turtle—17.

The Senate postponed until Wednesday the "Safe and Saner Fourth of July" bill, also the direct nomination bill of Speaker Walker.

The committee on Judiciary and Labor reported the Sherman bill to permit labor unions to impose fines and enforce penalties. Four dissented.

There was little of local interest in the house, but a petition was admitted for investigation of the regulation of billboards. Jury trials for injunction cases was under debate at adjournment.

Alive Under an Avalanche.

Human beings occasionally live through incredibly long imprisonments after their dwellings have been overwhelmed by avalanches. On March 19, 1755, avalanches buried the village of Bergemoletto, in the Italian Alps, and on April 25 three women were dug out alive from a stable in which they had been immured for thirty-seven days in the dark beneath the mass of snow which lay forty-two feet higher than the roof. With them had been buried a little boy, six goats, a donkey and some hens.

The child, the donkey and the fowls soon died, but the goats helped the women to survive, their milk supplementing the thirty or forty cakes and the pocketful of chestnuts upon which they depended for food. Hope of finding the women alive had been abandoned when far in April the brother of one had a dream in which she appealed to him for rescue.

The weather then at last made excavation possible, and the women were restored to the world and presently to health.—Chicago News.

Dew as Drinking Water.

The English administration at Gibraltar, where water is very scarce, collects dew by the following very simple method: A large pit is dug in the earth and covered with dry wood or straw, which in turn is covered either with earth or with sheet iron. The straw or wood serves as a heat insulator and effectually prevents the conduction of heat from the ground to the layer of earth or the sheet iron above. Consequently this earth or iron cools after sunset much more rapidly than the ground, so that its temperature soon falls below the dew point of the surrounding air; hence dew is formed upon the iron or the layer of earth in very large quantities. The water thus obtained is drained off into reservoirs and after clarification is used for drinking.—Scientific American.

Sheep as Land Cleaners.

In discussing the value of sheep on a country place their service as land cleaners should not be ignored. They like pasture grasses, but they seem to like weeds and bushes even better for browse. They will often clean up an old field in a year or two, so that what was a tangle or unsightly weeds and shrubs will appear a smooth shaven lawn. Angoras are simply wonders at this sort of thing, but the common, everyday sheep of the ordinary breed will do mighty good work if you confine her to her job and put in enough of her. Five years ago one small pasture of mine was a veritable chaparral of thorn bushes and solidago. I set the ewes in it, and today it's as pretty a bit of sward as there is on the ranch—bushless and weedless and thick turfed.—Country Life In America.

SUNDAY SERVICES

HALL PLACE M. E.

"The new covenant" was the subject of the Sunday morning sermon at the Hall Place M. E. church. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered by the pastor, Rev. Carl H. Raupach.

There was an increase in attendance at the session of the Sunday school. Junior League was held at 3 P. M. with a good attendance.

The text for the evening service was taken from Isaiah 60-1. "Arise, shine, for the light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee.

A short session of the Epworth League cabinet was held at the close of the service. The Epworth League business meeting will be held in the vestry Monday evening at 7.45.

MRS. WELCH, THE TREASURER.

A former Quincy school teacher is one of the most prominent ladies in the arrangements for the General Federation of Women's Clubs at Cincinnati May 11 to 18. Mrs. George O. Welch of Fergus Falls, Minn., the treasurer of the general federation, humorously claims three states as hers by right, being a Rhode Islander by birth. "Massachusettsian" by marriage and a Minnesotan by adoption. Mrs. Welch comes of a long line of New England ancestry and was educated in the private and public schools of her native city, Newport, afterwards being graduated from the Salem, Mass., normal school, and taking a post-graduate course in the Quincy, Mass., training school for teachers under Col. Francis Parker and his successor, Sylvester Brown. It was during her second year of teaching in the Quincy schools that she met Dr. George Oaks Welch of Boston, to whom she was married in 1882. They have one son, an electrical engineer. Mrs. Welch has been an earnest clubwoman for a number of years, having served in various offices in her home town and state. She is now serving her tenth year as a member of the library board of Fergus Falls, an office which caims her great interest and attention. Of all the work that Mrs. Welch has undertaken that which is closest to her heart and to which she has given her most earnest endeavor has been industrial training for insane women. It is through her efforts and untiring devotion that the very excellent system of industrial work has been established in the Fergus Falls hospital.

Curran and Lord Clare.

Curran, the Irish advocate, was on terms of intense enmity with Lord Clare, the Irish lord chancellor, with whom, when a member of the bar, he fought a duel and whose hostility to him on the bench, he always said, caused him losses in his professional income which he could not estimate at less than £30,000. The incidents attendant on this disagreement were at times ludicrous in the extreme. One day when it was known that Curran was to make an elaborate statement in chancery Lord Clare brought a large Newfoundland dog to the bench with him and during the progress of the most material part of the case began in full court to fondle the animal. Curran stopped at once. "Go on, go on, Mr. Curran!" said Lord Clare. "Oh, I beg a thousand pardons, my lord! I really took it for granted that your lordship was engaged in consultation!"

CORPORATION TAXES

Quincy Will Now Benefit From Home Industries

Gov. Draper has affixed his signature to a bil which will greatly benefit Quincy with its large corporations. It is a bill whereby the entire tax paid by corporations shall be apportioned to the cities or towns where corporations are located.

The bill was introduced by Representative Erson B. Barlow of Lowell and by two others in the legislature. A big opposition at once started out to prevent any of the bills from getting through. The committee reported adversely with a strong minority. The House substituted one of the tax bills for the adverse report and passed it along to the senate. This was considered a personal victory for Representative Barlow. Representative Thomas was also an active advocate.

In the senate, through some study of the situation, it was found that the actual wording of Representative Barlow's bill was the best and it was substituted for the first measure and the measure signed is Representative Barlow's bill. The victory has been attained through sustained and continuous and evidently effective efforts which have covered a period of over two months with opposition from members of the house and senate which was hard to overcome. Cities and towns which would lose by the new law fought the measure tooth and nail, and cities like Lowell, Lawrence Haverhill, Chicopee, Quincy, Holyoke, Fall River and New Bedford, whose industrial corporations are largely state owned, fought for it. They won and these cities will now receive the entire state tax which their home corporations pay, instead of dividing it with towns in which the stock of the corporations may be held.

SENATOR HALE'S SON HORSEWHIPS EDITOR

Objected to Articles Which Appeared In Maine Newspapers

Portland, Me., May 3.—A horsewhipping was administered by Colonel Frederick Hale, son of United States Senator Hale, and a leading candidate for congress to succeed Representative Allen, to Charles T. Libby, publisher of several suburban weekly papers, at the latter's office. The cause of the assault was an alleged slanderous article published in the Six Towns Times in which Hale's mother was attacked.

The editorial to which Hale objected charged that Mrs. Hale in her ambition for her son was willing to buy his nomination. It then said: "Mrs. Hale, the daughter of the notorious 'Zach' Chandler and brought up from childhood in the atmosphere of the most unscrupulous political chichanery, has said to friends in Portland: 'Fred shall go to congress, no matter what it costs.'

"In so doing she lays aside the garment of modesty which in New England protects womanhood from political asperities and stands forth in all the hideousness of open corruption. Her vile purpose deprives her of all consideration due to her sex."

"You are very kind, sir," she said, panting for breath.

"Not at all, madam," he replied. "It's not kindness. It's simply self defense."

The Chamois Trail.

Every day at noon at Grindelwald there is a rush of visitors for the telescopes in order to gaze at one of the most interesting natural scenes in the Alps, "the chamois trail." Regularly at this hour a herd of twenty to thirty chamois may be seen passing in Indian file up the yawning abysses of the precipitous Mettenberg rocks, separating two glaciers, the male animals leading the way, the king of the herd keeping twenty yards in advance and on the watch. At the bottom of the Mettenberg, where the slope is freed from snow, the chamois find a meager subsistence when their usual feeding grounds are under deep snow. It is a curious fact that the chamois descend to their feeding grounds at dawn, when there is little likelihood of avalanches, and return to their haunts at an hour when avalanches—for this portion of the mountain has frequent avalanches—have already fallen and the danger is past.—Geneva Cor. Pall Mall Gazette.

Pussy and the Burglar.

A good dog has hitherto been considered the best protection against burglars, but a certain old lady differs from this view. She believes in cats, and, her house being broken into not long ago, she proceeded to put her theory into practice, and with marvelously good results. The midnight hour had not long struck when she heard unusual sounds in the hall below. She slipped out of bed, took her faithful feline in her arms and walked quietly on to the landing. She leaned over. The burglar was on the stairs. Suddenly in an unlucky moment he struck a match upon the staircase. The lady could see the burglar, but the burglar could not see the lady. She held puss up and then dropped her upon the burglar's head. The cat uttered an unearthly screech and then commenced to scratch for all it was worth. Puss was certainly the willing worker. The next instant the man was outside in the street.—Manchester Guardian.

Whistler's Friendships.

That Whistler, the man of famous enemies, had faithful friends is recalled by Ford Madox Hueffer, writing of the pre-Raphaelites in Harper's Magazine. Madox Brown had a circular printed drawing the attention of all his old patrons to the merits of Whistler's etchings and begging them in the most urgent terms to make purchases because Whistler was in indigent circumstances. The story is that upon one occasion Madox Brown, going to a tea party at the Whistlers' in Chelsea, was met in the hall by Mrs. Whistler, who begged him to go to the poulterer's and purchase a pound of butter. The bread was cut, but there was nothing to put upon it. There was no money in the house, the poulterer had cut off his credit, and Mrs. Whistler said "she dared not send her husband, for he would certainly punch the tradesman's head."

Why He Waited.

The man who is anxiously watching the steeple jack at work 300 feet from the ground is approached by a passing acquaintance.

"Hello, Brown!" says the latter. "Are you still here? It's fully an hour ago that I saw you standing in the very same spot."

"That fellow up there gives me the cold shivers," says Brown. "He makes me feel weak in the knees."

"Going back to your office?" inquires the friend.

"I guess so," Brown reluctantly replies. "There doesn't seem to be much use in waiting any longer. I don't believe he is going to fall."

Great Age of Halley's Comet.

While Halley's comet has been identified as a member of our system for over 2,000 years, certain characteristics of its orbit lead us to believe that it has been with us at least ten or perhaps 100 times as long as that. According to all accounts, it was a magnificent object at the time of the Norman conquest in 1066. Its head was equal to the full moon in size, and its tail increased to a wonderful length.—Century.

A Queer Hiding Place.

During a furious storm in Paris a janitor was struck on the shoulder by a small but heavy tin box which had fallen from an upper story of a house in the Rue de l'Ouest. The box was found to contain $6,000 in gold and notes. It was claimed at the police station by an elderly woman, who said that the money constituted her entire savings, which she had hidden by tying the box to the drainpipe outside her window.

A Nice Calculation.

Two very dear old ladies walked up to the window where tickets were to be sold for two popular concerts. They wanted tickets for both nights; but, alas, those for the second evening were all gone! This was the more popular entertainment of the two.

"I'm so sorry, my dear!" pattered one of the old ladies to the other. "We did want to go, didn't we, and we wanted to go both nights?"

"You couldn't give us two tickets for each night?" inquired the other of the clerk.

"No, ma'am."

"You haven't two seats anywhere for the second night?"

"No, ma'am. Couldn't give you nose room."

"Then," said she firmly, "give me four tickets for the first night. We will make them do."

"Why, sister," quavered the other, "you're going to invite somebody?"

"No," said she, "but if we can't go both nights"— She paused, bewildered, quite out of her calculation. Then a happy thought struck her, and she added, "We'll go twice the first night."—Youth's Companion.

A Wandering Lake.

Lake Nor, in the Tabi desert, in southwestern Asia, which has been called the "wandering lake," presents a phenomenon about which contradictory views have been entertained. Perhaps the Swedish explorer Sven Hedin has given the most plausible explanation touching this phenomenon.

It appears, according to that explorer, that the Tarim river, entering the lake from the west, brings down during the period of high water late in summer a great quantity of salt, which has the effect of driving the lake lying on the level floor of the desert toward the southeast. But the summer wind, drifting the surface sand and darkening the heavens with dust, blows generally from the northeast, and it, too, tends to drive the lake before it. The combined effect of the urging by the wind and the river is to force the lake southward. Yet it is thought the migration of the lake is not constant in direction, but it shifts back and forth intermittently, according as the circumstances change.

Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata."

The story runs that Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata"—always so called, though he so rarely gave a descriptive name to any of his works—was composed on an occasion when he had been playing to some stranger folk by chance. Walking with a friend, he overheard in a humble house some one playing with much feeling a bit of one of his sonatas. He paused to listen. In a mament the music ceased, and a girl spoke longingly of her wish to hear some really good concert. The voice was so appealing that the composer stepped without hesitation to the door and knocked. Admitted to the wondering host, he said, "I will play for you," and played wonderfully till the lamp burned out. Then with the moonlight filling the room he began to improvise—the mysterious delicate breathings of the beginning of that wonderful sonata, then the tricksy elf-like second part, and the agony of the close.—Christian Science Monitor.

REMINISCENCES OF MARK TWAIN

Old Comrades Relate Stories About Humorist's Early Days.

HIS WIT KEEN TO THE LAST.

Asked Friend to Visit Him Before They Got Too Old to Hear Each Other Swear—When He Was Taken For Buffalo Bill—One of His Last Beautiful Thoughts.

San Francisco's old timers and others have been recalling the days, fifty years ago, when the late Samuel L. Clemens, the great humorist, was plain Sam Clemens and the name Mark Twain had little significance for anybody except steamboat men on the Mississippi river.

"Back in the old days," mused Joseph T. Goodman, the pioneer editor of the west, who gave to Mr. Clemens his first job as a writer, "Sam was the best company, the drollest entertainer and the most interesting fellow imaginable. His humor was always creeping out and stayed with him to the last.

"A few weeks ago I received a letter from him couched in characteristic terms. He wrote, 'Come on and visit me once more before we get so old we can't hear each other swear.'

"It was my privilege to read many of his works in manuscript before they were sent to the publishers. I recollect his giving me the manuscript of 'Roughing It' to read one afternoon when I was visiting him in the early seventies. He made a great hit with 'Innocents Abroad,' and he was afraid he would not sustain his newly acquired reputation. When I began to read Sam sat down at his desk and wrote nervously.

"For an hour I read along intently, hardly noticing that Sam was beginning to fret and shift about uneasily. At last he could not stand it any longer, and, jumping up, he exclaimed: 'D— you, you have been reading that stuff an hour and you haven't cracked a smile yet. I don't believe I'm keeping up my lick.'"

His First Newspaper Work.

"Mark Twain lacked only seven months and nine days of fourscore years of age," said Judge C. C. Goodwin, a veteran editor of Salt Lake City, in commenting on the death of the humorist. Judge Goodwin was one of the brilliant company who gathered at the Comstock lode in the old days.

"I know he said that he was only seventy-four," continued the judge, "but when we were in Virginia City, Nev., Mark was older than I was, and I am seventy-eight. Here is the record of it." He opened a book of biographies by Amelia J. Carver, published in 1889. There it was: "Samuel L. Clemens, born Nov. 30, 1830."

"I did not go on the Virginia City Enterprise until Clemens left it," said Judge Goodwin, "but I never ceased to hear from him. He first wrote a burlesque Fourth of July oration, which was published in an Aurora (Nev.) paper. As I remember it, it began:

"'I was sired by the great American eagle and borne by a Continental dam.' This pleased Joseph T. Goodman, editor of the Virginia City Enterprise. He wrote to Clemens, telling him that if he were not making more than the Enterprise was paying he would be welcomed to the staff of the paper One day a man came into the editorial sanctum. He wore a dilapidated hat, jeans, a hickory shirt and carried a roll of blankets. That was Mark Twain's entrance into literature. Except for his experience on the Enterprise it is doubtful if he would ever have been known as a genius."

A Child's Tribute.

Dan Beard, the artist and naturalist, who lives only a half mile from Stormfield, Mark Twain's home at Redding, Conn., where he died, told a recent experience the humorist had confided to him. He was walking up Fifth avenue, in New York, when a little girl about ten years old slipped her hand in his and started to match his stride.

"I'm awful glad to see you," she said.

"Are you?" said he. "That's very nice."

"Yes," she answered. "I knew you right away." They continued to the next corner chatting, he proud that he could be so well known that a little girl like this could pick him out. Suddenly a horrible thought struck him, and he stopped. "Who am I?" he asked, turning around. "Why," answered his companion, "Buffalo Bill, of course."

A Visit to Wall Street.

A white haired man gnawing pensively at a large, black cigar passed slowly along Wall street in New York one day several years ago. Everything about him marked him as one who did not belong to any branch of the family of clerks, office boys, brokers and financiers who hurried past him. As he came in front of the subtreasury building he stopped and gazed silently at the big bronze statue of Washington on the treasury steps.

It was Mark Twain. To him the ways of Wall street were ever written in an unknown tongue. On this particular occasion he had just passed through a stormy session in a banker's office, in the course of which his knowledge of things financial had been sorely tested. An investment in which he saw nothing but rosy prospects had been painted in its true colors by men whose advice he felt to be more trustworthy than his own in such matters.

This sort of thing happened over and over again. Twain was forever thinking up new schemes for investing his earnings, schemes which fell through when the humorist brought them to Wall street. Once he came to the office of a banker with a bundle of excelsior under his arm and a spiral hatpin in his pocket and, finding that the banker was in Europe, spent the entire morning demonstrating to the office force the advantage of the spiral pin over other kinds.

He used the excelsior as a head of hair, plunging the corkscrew shaped pin into it and showing that it "stayed put"—that it didn't fall out like ordinary hatpins. The office force was convulsed. It did not know whether to take him in earnest or not. Yet he seemed to be in deadly earnest. He thought that pin would be a great thing if it could be placed on the market. The manager of the office, who to this day is not sure whether Twain was joking or not, believes that he wanted the banking house to float bonds on the strength of the spiral hatpin. Wall street, in fact, understood Mark Twain about as well as he understood Wall street.

A Joke at His Expense.

Probably the best joke that ever happened at Mark Twain's expense occurred a few years ago when he passed through Monroe county, Mo., on his way from Hannibal to Columbia. He was on a Missouri, Kansas and Texas local passenger train, and the trip across the country was a triumph, hundreds of people gathering at the different stations to see and shake hands with him. At Paris there were 2,000.

A week prior there had occurred at Paris, Mo., the county seat, the only lynching in the history of the county. A man named Witherup had killed a boy named Grow, cut his body up, placed it in a sack and hauled it to the river three miles distant. The friends of the boy's family organized a mob, which the citizens and the officers alike considered a joke, and after watching it parley around until midnight without doing anything all the spectators save the more curious and a few small boys, street gamins, went to bed. At 1 o'clock the mob overpowered the sheriff and broke into the jail. The prisoner was dragged from his cell, and as the tall and gaunt form was passed by strong arms out into the moonlight the boys who were perched on top of a coal shed near the jail door cried out: "Here he comes! Here he comes!"

This was answered by men on the outskirts of the crowd with the shout: "Get a rope! Get a rope!" And the murderer was finally taken to a bridge near town and hanged.

When Mark's train slipped into Paris some of these same gamins were perched on box cars on the side track. The crowd thought the distinguished vistor would appear on the steps between the chair car and the smoker and surged that way. He did not appear, however, and disappointment was keen until some one at the rear of the train caught sight of him coming out and shouted: "Here he comes! Here he comes!" Immediately above the confusion and noise arose the shout of one of the gamins: "'Get a rope! Get a rope!"

His Serious Jests.

Spontaneity, playful extravagance, the ignoring of the conventional and the staid, even at the risk of shocking limited and literal beings, were characteristics of Mark Twain. His scrawl on a card to a sick man on whom he called, "God and I are sorry that you are so ill," was an expression that came to him without the slightest hesitancy over its incongruity.

His calm remark that he thought that the report was somewhat exaggerated when it was bruited that he was dead is on a par with his philosophical outlook on the game of destiny.

"I hear," he wrote to the press last Christmas eve, "that the newspapers say I am dying. I would not do such a thing at my time of life. I am behaving as well as I can. Merry Christmas to everybody!"

One of the last of those beautiful and reverent thoughts which Mr. Clemens so often uttered was spoken only a few days before his last departure for Bermuda. He and Mr. Frederick A. Duneka were playing billiards late in the night in one of the great rooms in Stormfield.

"The shades were drawn aside," said Mr. Duneka, "and from the windows we could look out into the clear night. I remarked that the moonlight was heavenly.

"'One of my ideas of heaven,' said Mr. Clemens slowly, 'is a place full of friends.'"

Electric Lights on Rolling Chairs.

The latest fad on the board walk at Atlantic City, N. J., is a rolling chair brilliantly lighted by electricity. It is a private chair, and installed beneath the seat are eight dry batteries in connection with four incandescent lights projecting from the roof. It is arranged for a gentleman who does not wish to forego his favorite newspaper or magazine when riding on the board walk at night.

DIAGNOSIS BY TELEPHONE

Woman's Heart Beats Are Heard at Distance of Hundred Miles

London, May 3.—A test that has just been carried on shows it is possible to diagnose heart trouble by telephone at a distance of 100 miles.

The experiment was conducted between Mr. Milne's house on the Isle of Wight, where the seismologist and four physicians, using an ordinary telephone, listened interestedly to the beating of a woman's heart in London.

A stethoscope held over her heart in the familiar manner had attached to it a telephone relay invented by Sidney Brown. By means of this device minute sounds are magnified.

Washington, May 3.—The United States supreme court decided that the trial of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the sugar trust, must proceed. This is a victory for the government in the case at New York.

LETTERS FROM EX-PRESIDENT

Said to Have Indorsed the Administration of Taft

LOEB AS HUGHES' SUCCESSOR

Washington Newspaper Hears That Roosevelt Will Not Be Presidential Candidate In 1912 Nor For Any Other Office In the Meantime—Well Informed Men Concede Plausibility of Statements Accredited to Teddy

Washington, May 3.—The Washington Post says that "Theodore Roosevelt has written several letters to President Taft clearly indicating that he thoroughly indorses the present administration." The story goes on to say that Roosevelt's choice for governor of New York to succeed Charles E. Hughes is William Loeb, Jr., collector of the port of New York.

Continuing, the Post story says: "In the letters to President Taft, and others to Senator Root and Collector Loeb, Colonel Roosevelt declares his decision to remain in private life is final."

He will not be a candidate for re-election to the presidency under any circumstances.

He will not be a candidate for congress.

He will not be a candidate to succeed Chauncey M. Depew in the senate.

He will not be a candidate for the governorship of New York.

He will make one or two speeches in the west, advocating the return of Republicans to the Sixty-Second congress.

He will remain in private life, and will devote his efforts to literary work and to the delivery of many lectures.

Efforts were made to confirm the statement that the former president has written letters to President Taft and to other persons indorsing the present administration unreservedly, but confirmation was found to be lacking.

On the other hand, well-informed men here concede the plausibility of most of the statements accredited to Roosevelt, although denying that authority for them can be found in black and white on this side the Atlantic. Friends of Roosevelt never have doubted that the ex-president is warmly sympathetic with Taft and his policies, although regretting the effect of some mistakes of methods.

The story further says that while Roosevelt believes that a contest within the party, when it is confined to opinions of legislation, may be healthful, he does not favor a degree of insurgency that threatens to disrupt the party at the polls, and will probably deliver some speeches in the congressional campaign in the west urging the return of Republicans to congress.

When Roosevelt speaks before the national conservation congress in St. Paul in September, it is said he will declare himself again for the policies for which he has always stood, but will insist that the work be pressed forward without making conservation a pivot for political expedients.

In a word Roosevelt has expressed himself as convinced that Taft has been working hard and conscientiously to carry out the policies which were started during the Roosevelt administration, and has given to the Taft administration his whole approval.

MRS. MONTEFIORE ARRIVES

Thinks American Suffragists Have Not Received Due Encouragement

New York, May 3.—Mrs. Dora B. Montefiore, an English suffragist who thinks that American women ought to wake up, has arrived in New York from Liverpool to help along the cause for which she has been fighting in England and other countries.

"It is time that American women should awaken to a full realization of the great issue that is involved in the fight," she said. "The women who have been working vigorously for suffrage in this country have not received quite the amount of encouragement that they should have had from their sisters."

Mrs. Montefiore's first active work for suffrage was in Sydney, N. S. W.

Militia Bill Vetoed

Boston, May 3.—Governor Draper sent to the house his first veto of the year in which he states his objections to the bill which provides that employes of a city or town on military duty shall receive compensation from the city or town. The governor says the bill would establish a privileged class and create jealousy in the service.

Hughes Confirmed by Senate

Washington, May 3.—The senate confirmed the nomination of Charles E. Hughes to be an associate justice of the supreme court.

No Corporation Decision

Washington, May 3.—No decision of the supreme court of the United States was announced Monday in the corporation tax cases.

WORCESTER'S "DRY" PERIOD

Did Not Prevent Her Citizens Using About $1,000,000 Worth of Liquor

Worcester, Mass., May 3.—Two years of no-license in this city has become past history. Figures compiled by the police, however, show that Worcester has not been completely "dry" during the twenty-four months that the saloons were closed.

The police figures, based upon a record of liquor shipments into the city by the various express companies, indicate that during two years of drouth Worcester people paid for liquor $999,629 on legal shipments protected by the federal interstate commerce law.

How great a quantity of alcoholic beverages has come into the city through underground channels will never be known. The record of express shipments, however, shows that during the two years of no-license there was brought into Worcester the grand total of 2,127,551 gallons of beer and ale and 102,293 gallons of whisky.

GOVERNOR'S EFFORTS FAIL

Boston Milk Contractors Refuse to Agree to Arbitrate Strike

Boston, May 3.—The first week day of the milk strike ended with the farmers holding back every gallon of milk they had claimed to control with confidence on their part that the contractors were losing money by the prices they were being foced to pay for additional railroad hauls, and by a disagreement among the three largest contractors because two lowered the price of milk 1 cent a quart, which the third refused to do.

The fact that there was no actual shortage of milk did not bother the farmers. They said that no shortage was to be expected before Thursday at the outside.

Another conference with Governor Draper failed to bring arbitration any nearer. The Producers' association again announced its willingness to arbitrate, but the contractors adhered to their statement that the question was one incapable of arbitration.

RAILROAD MEASURE IS LOST IN SENATE

Taft Turned Down on Traffic and Merger Propositions

Washington, May 3.—President Taft's railroad legislation will be emasculated. At the close of a protracted conference of leading "regular" Republican senators last night, it was apparent that the revolt of the senate "insurgents" had been virtually successful, and that the sections of the bill relative to traffic agreements and mergers, which insurgents have been fighting to amend, will be abandoned.

Practically nothing distinctive of the original bill will remain, save the sections providing for the creation of a court of commerce. Even that has had a perilous time in the house, and nobody is prepared to guarantee that it will be enacted.

BALLINGER WILL STAY

Secretary of Interior Says He Has No Intention of Resigning

Washington, May 3.—"If I were disposed to consider the question of resignation, I would not do so as long as these vicious and unwarranted attacks continue against me," said Secretary of the Interior Ballinger in denying the renewed rumor that he contemplated retiring from President Taft's cabinet soon after the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation is concluded. "I have no intention of resigning," he emphatically declared.

The rumor was to the effect that the resignation of Ballinger as secretary of the interior was to be expected about as soon as he could write it after the investigation committee had made its report. This action would be taken, it was said, regardless of what the verdict of the committee might be.

STRIKE IS AUTHORIZED

Trolley Lines In Western Massachusetts May Be Tied Up

Springfield, Mass., May 3.—The sanction of the executive board of the International union for the threatened trolley men's strike in this city and Worcester was received last evening.

The board of aldermen last night passed an order requesting the parties at issue to resort to arbitration in the failure of other means of settlement of the wage question.

Another conference between President Storrs of the New England Investment and Security company, the holding concern, and representatives of the trolley men's unions, has been set for today.

Standard Oil Out of Tennessee

Washington, May 3.—The decree of the supreme court of Tennessee, ousting the Standard Oil company of Kentucky from doing business in the state of Tennessee, was affirmed by the supreme court of the United States.

LIFELINE FOR REPUBLICANS

Taft Offers Tariff Idea Which Is Considered Important

PLANS SCIENTIFIC REVISION

No Change For Two or Three Years, During Which Period a Study of Prices Will Be Made by Experts, For Which Appropriation of $2,500,000 Will Be Needed—Those Interested Expect to Overcome Obstacles

Washington, May 3.—President Taft's purpose to let the tariff alone for the next two or three years, but to pave the way for an ultimate revision which shall be the most thorough and scientific in the history of the country, bids fair to meet with the sanction of congress.

The start will be made with an appropriation of $250,000 with which to enable the tariff board to make a study of the comparative costs of production in the United States and foreign countries. This will be done not only through the personal investigations of the present tariff board, but by means of the best experts in various lines of production the board can employ. Representative McCall of Massachusetts has been particularly active in assisting Chairman Tawney of the committee on apropriations to bring about conditions in the house which will result in the approval by the house of the item of $250,000 which Tawney will insert in the sundry civil bill.

The task of securing this appropriation requires much patience and skill. Not only must the house be canvassed and the members shown the great advantages, political and otherwise, which the president expects to result from his investigation, but several legal complications must be considered, that the appropriation may not go out on a point of order.

It is a rule of legislation that whenever the terms of an appropriation seek to change existing law, a point may be raised by any member that the clause is "out of order," and if it is apparent that the appropriation implies new legislation, the speaker has no option but to declare it out of order and the appropriation fails.

McCall, Tawney and their associates believe that the appropriation for the tariff work can be made strictly within the provisions of existing law, which in this case are contained in the Payne tariff act. They will rely upon several provisions in the act.

If the case can be made strong enough, and McCall, who is an able lawyer, believes it can, the appropriation will meet with no obstacle in congress among Republicans, but the votes of the stand-patters.

It is by no means certain that these gentlemen will think it wise to oppose the appropriation, for they are all Republicans and most of them already have developed the political sense to see that unless this concession is made to the country and the Republican party shows its willingness to make future tariffs in the daylight and not in the dark, the voters will be given a substantial excuse for retiring the stand-pat element from public life.

The members of the lower branch are more amenable to public opinion than the senators and many of them believe that this tariff plan of the president's is the lifeline of the Republican party, if such a thing can exist. If it were possible to change some of the duties in the Payne law, like those on paper and pulp, congress would like to do it, but it is axomatic that no item of American tariff can be changed without opening the whole to revision.

In the excited state of the public mind, no doubt several of the great schedules of the bill would be torn to pieces, if revision should come now, with little regard for the business aspects of the questions involved. President Taft desires to avoid such a catastrophe, yet to prepare the way for a thorough revision which shall work no hardship. In the opinion of thoughtful men the policy he has marked out in this respect is almost epoch-making.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS
Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Residents of this vicinity are constantly testifying to permanent cures.

Richard Smith, South Central avenue, Wollaston, Mass. ,says: "I suffered from backache and kidney trouble for a long time. I had dull pains through the small of my back and on arising in the morning, I was so stiff and lame that I could hardly dress myself. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply and in a short time after beginning their use, I was relieved. After I had taken the contents of two boxes of this remedy, I was in good health and I have had no kidney trouble since. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for this change for the better and I gladly recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

A Vision and the Story of the Ghost Girl.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"I do not believe in ghosts," said John Slade emphatically.

Daniel Gilbert drew his chair nearer to the crackling blaze.

"I never believed in ghosts—until last year," he said quietly.

"What happened last year?" Shade's tone was skeptical.

"I saw a ghost."

"Where had you been dining?" laughed Slade.

"I hadn't dined at all. I came down to the Elms quite unexpectedly. I wanted to look up some papers that I knew to be in the library. The house had been closed all summer, and at this time even the caretaker was away for a few days.

"My plan was to dine at the village inn, go up to the Elms, spend the evening searching for the papers, sleep in my old room and take the first train to town after breakfast. My train was several hours late, and when we arrived in Elmville the inn was shut up for the night. If you are acquainted with our village boniface you will understand that for neither love nor money or 'auld lang syne' would he open his doors to a guest after midnight. So it meant a dinnerless tramp up to the house.

"It was nearly 1 o'clock when I entered the avenue, and I was surprised to find the iron gates of the drive wide open. That was against my orders.

"It was a dark night. The stars shone brightly, and a young moon threw a thin silver veil of light in the open spaces. As I came in sight of the house I stopped still in my tracks.

"You may not believe me, John, but my house was a blaze of light from basement to cupola, and from behind the lighted windows came the strains of an orchestra, while forms floated to and fro in swaying rhythm to the waltz melody.

"As I stood rooted to the spot the church clock in the village struck once, and as if by magic the music ceased and all motion stopped behind the thin curtains. An instant later every light in the house died out as if extinguished by some mighty breath. I ran up the steps and fitted my key in the great lock. It yielded, and the heavy door swung outward to my touch.

"I threw a ray of light about the great entrance hall and reached for the button to switch on the electric lights. The button clicked without response. Again and again I tried, but in vain.

"A search of the drawing room and library revealed the same condition. The current was shut off and probably had been since the departure of the caretaker.

"I lighted the large oil lamp on the library table. It was an easy matter to dig out the documents I wanted and store them into my leather bag. As I set the bag on the floor I saw lying on the Turkish rug a white rose, fresh and fragrant as if just plucked.

"This was no earthly blossom I decided as I laid it before me on the table. And then I had another shock, for almost under my hand and in the very spot on which I had placed my bag when entering the room was a small lace handkerchief. Across one corner was embroidered in tiny letters a girl's name."

Gilbert blew a cloud of smoke that obscured his face. John Slade leaned forward in his chair.

"And the name—the girl's name?" he asked quickly.

"Viola—just Viola," said Gilbert dreamily.

"That is not all of the story," said Slade impatiently. "Go on, old man."

"No; that is not all. I turned to the mantelpiece and leaned my head against the high shelf, trying to solve the mystery of my house, for to my knowledge no woman save the caretaker, an old black mammy, had darkened—or shall I say brightened?—my doors for several years.

"When I turned back to the table the handkerchief was gone!

"With hardly a thought as to whether I was seeking shadow or substance I thrust the rose in my pocket, and, snapping on my pocket flashlight, I hastened into the hall. There was a gleam of white in the distance, and I pursued it. It flicked around a corner and disappeared up a small spiral staircase that led to the second floor.

"When I reached the top of the stairs the bit of white became a woman's graceful form, with some ethereal garment of filmy stuff floating behind her. And as I followed I seemed to be walking among violets.

"Down the grand staircase she vanished, this time with little clicking heels on the polished floor. I held her steadily in my ray of light and was after her like a flash. We crossed the drawing room, and then she disappeared through the paneled door that leads into the west gallery—you know that long, glass inclosed gallery that my father used as a winter parlor? She flew down the length, and I hoped to catch her at the end, but at the door leading into the garden she turned her face toward me for one instant, and, by Jove, John, she was the loveliest girl I ever laid eyes upon—and you know I don't care for women!

"Just a glimpse of her beauty, and the door opened and closed sharply, leaving me alone in the west gallery. I was tired out by the exciting adventure of the night and too wide awake to sleep, so I went back to the library, got my bag, put out the light and left the house. I spent the night sitting on a bench in the railroad station, and it is needless to say that I took the first train to town."

"Isn't it enough?"

"You didn't search the house, make any effort to discover whether the intruder was spook or human—didn't you do anything?"

"Nary thing. I went abroad the following week and at times forgot the incident. A few days ago it came back to me, and so I invited you down to spend this night with me at the Elms."

"Why this particular night?" demanded Slade suspiciously.

"Because it's the anniversary of my adventure with Viola," replied Gilbert coolly. "I want a witness to further demonstrations, you know."

John Slade sank back into the shadows of his chair and smoked thoughtfully. Once he burst into a reminiscent chuckle.

"I suspect you have lost your heart to this Viola, as you call her. Was she so lovely?"

"She was perfect," said Gilbert sincerely. "Her hair was that dusky black that frames the face mistily, you know; her eyes were almost golden and her brows fine and black like her hair; but her coloring, her features, her form—oh, I say, Slade, I can't get her face out of my mind!"

Slade lighted a fresh cigar. "I must tell you an incident of the same sort that happened to a friend of mine," he said solemnly, "and it may serve to throw light on your own affair."

"Out with it," said Gilbert briefly. "It's only 10 o'clock now. You have till midnight, John."

"This man owned a grand old place in the country, but he was a bachelor and never looked at it.

"There was a young cousin of the man's, a girl who was a beauty and a toast. Never mind her name. She has married and changed it for another. This girl was up to all sorts of mischief and pranks and carried a lot of scatterbrained young folk with her in many a harmless escapade.

"She conceived the idea of giving a ball in the old mansion of her cousin. Now, I have not the slightest doubt that the man would have gladly consented to turn the house over for such a merrymaking had they asked him. But, no; of course half the fun lay in the clandestine proceedings!

"And so one night when the moon was young and the aged caretaker off on leave several great automobiles rolled quietly up the long avenue, and the mischievous girl and her friends and their reluctant chaperons trooped through a side entrance and made their way to the great ballroom on the second floor.

"The room had been cleaned in some mysterious manner, and when the electric chandeliers were ablaze and the polished floor stretched forth an inviting surface the small orchestra they had brought tuned up, and the fun began. Several servants unpacked refreshments in an anteroom while the young people danced and between dances wandered over the grand old house lighted from top to bottom by Laura's"—

"Laura!" shouted Gilbert, but Slade interrupted:

"Hold on, there, Danny. I didn't mean to make a slip! The house was lighted up and the dancing was going on and everything was going along finely when suddenly a messenger appeared among them. The station agent from the depot, who had known of the merrymaking, came to say that the owner had arrived at the station and was on his way to the house. He had jumped on his wheel and sped with the message.

"They worked fast and without judgment. One bright soul cut the electric light wires and plunged the house in total darkness. Before a search could be made for candles and escape made the front door was opened and the intruders heard footsteps below stairs. After awhile the library door opened, and all was silent.

"By aid of matches and the station master's bicycle lantern the party reached the ground floor and by stealth left the house. That was all part of the fun, don't you know. And then just as they were going to leave one of the girls discovered she had lost her pet handkerchief and was sure she had left it in the library. She recovered it, although she would not say how, and she was quite breathless when she climbed into the motor. And that is all!"

Daniel Gilbert arose to his full height and laid his pipe on the mantel. "And that was Laura, who got up the party and everything. I shall bless your wife all her days, John, if she will introduce me to my ghost girl—Viola—Viola who?"

"Viola Blair. She happens to be visiting Laura now. I hardly think you'll find her in the west gallery tonight, Dan."

Gilbert pulled a time table from his pocket and looked at his watch. "She is quite free?" he asked abruptly.

Slade yawned and stretched his long arms luxuriously. "She was—er—until—we always thought she had met her fate just a year ago tonight. She has never been quite the same since. I can't say any more"—

"There's a train to town at 11:05. We'll take it. You and Laura owe me something, John!"

"We'll pay it with compound interest. That will be Viola!" said Slade, grasping his friend's outstretched hand.

OLD RECORDS ARE SMASHED

IS GIVEN ROUSING WELCOME

Marches Through Cheering Lines of Half a Million People to City Hall, Where He Is Cordially Greeted by Mayor, Who Declares He Is Proud of Aged Pedestrian—Latter Is So Deeply Moved That He Sheds Tears

New York, May 3.—Five hundred thousand people crammed New York's greatest thoroughfare to see one white-haired man march through their cheering lines. The man was Edward P. Weston, and the ovation which he received was the greatest ever accorded to any man not connected with public life.

At 3:10 o'clock, a speck in a human whirlpool, he mounted the steps of city hall toward Mayor Gaynor. And as he took the last step of his 3500-mile record-breaking ocean to ocean walk, and the hand of the mayor closed upon his shoulders, the aged pedestrian broke down and wept, with great tears rolling down his cheeks. He attempted to speak, but the trembling of his lips prevented him, and so he stood with lowered head, and with the mayor's arms across his shoulders.

Below him the gathered thousands took off their hats and cheered and cheered and cheered.

In 72 days and 23 hours he has walked 3483 schedule miles and over 3500 actual miles. When he started he intended to perform the feat in 90 days. He has completed the task on the 48th day of his 72d year.

Both Weston and Gaynor were jostled by the immense crowd, which pressed in upon them with irresistible force despite drastic measures on the part of the police. A circle of patrolmen surrounded them and beat the crowd back as best they could. Without speaking Weston produced a letter to Gaynor from Mayor Alexander of Los Angeles and handed it to Gaynor.

The mayor took it and read it, and then looked affectionately at Weston.

"I am proud of you," he said, "and the whole world ought to be proud of you. Your achievement is a marvelous one. There was never anything like it in the history of the world. You are a benefactor to the human race, for you have shown people what can be done by a man who lives simply and healthfully in the open air.

"You have made people go out into the open and taught them how to live. If they will follow your example they ought to live to be 100 years old, instead of dying at the age of 50, after living the lost few years of their lives living the last few years of their lives surpassed every feat of ancient and modern athletics."

Mr. Weston was deeply moved. When he was finally able to speak, he told the mayor in a low voice that his sole idea in taking the long walk was to encourage the young athletes, and to show old men what could be accomplished.

After his address, the mayor presented him with an envelope, containing about $400, which had been subscribed for Weston by some of his friends. "And that's not all," said the mayor, "there's more to come."

Later, in the mayor's private office, he was presented with a gold championship belt by President Powers of the Eastern baseball league. It is the famous six-day-go-as-you-please belt won by Dineen and Cavanaugh in 1902 and 1903, respectively.

The speeches over, Gaynor and Weston had a cup of tea together in the mayor's office, and the mayor, who is an ardent walker, invited Weston to visit his country place on Long Island.

Bar and Bottle Bill Is Enacted by Massachusetts Senate

Boston, May 3.—The famous bar and bottle bill, which divides the liquor licenses and says that a bar license shall not be exercised on the same premises where there is a license to sell bottled goods, was enacted in the senate by a vote of 20 to 17.

That is the last stage of the bitter fight over the bill in the legislature. It now goes to Governor Draper, who is said to be prepared to sign it.

The bill is regarded as the most drastic anti-liquor measure that has gone through the legislature in years.

STATE-WIDE MOVE AGAINST BIG FIGHT

California Clergymen May Prevent Jeffries-Johnson Bout

San Francisco, May 3.—The statewide demand that the Jeffries-Johnson fight be called off as a result of the death of Tommy McCarthy after his fight with Owen Moran has alarmed the promoters of the battle.

His death is declared in one of the leading papers to have been a "murder in the ring," and the sporting fraternity fears that the agitation will result in killing the fight game in California.

Under the leadership of the San Francisco Church Federation, clergymen throughout California are preparing to make formal protest to the state and the Alameda county authorities against the heavyweight championship match slated for July 4.

The federation has appointed a committee to carry the protest to Governor Gillett. From more than a score of widely separated cities and towns demands for the stopping of the big fight have come from clergymen and congregations.

Mr. Roosevelt, in reply, said that he had received a cordial message from the king and thanked the prince for his hospitality. He then proposed a toast to the king and the royal family of Denmark.

RECORD UNBROKEN

Quincy High Wins from Revere High

Another victory was added to the High school baseball team's string Monday afternoon when Revere High was defeated 7 to 3. This continues the successive victories made by Capt. Russ Bates team. Previously South Boston High, Rockland High and Weymouth High had fallen. The local team is going at full speed and is making havoc in the enemies' camps.

The game did not start until quite a time after the appointed hour, as the Revere boys did not appear. But as soon as they arrived on the scene there was something doing all the time. Although Quincy had it over them the nine from the beach put up a good contest and managed to get a run in the fifth, sixth, and eighth inning. Phil Rice was right onto his job and the number of strike outs by Revere was large: they averaged about two an inning. His collection of curves and pitching stunts seemed to fool them about every time.

As to wielding the stick, when the Quincy men got fully warmed up, the sight was enough to delight anyone. Mel Chapman made hits every time he was up. In the fourth inning he sent the sphere almost to the street getting a three-bagger. Soon afterwards Harold Chapman sent a hot drive and reached the third sack. In the fifth inning Mel Chapman knocked about as pretty a hit as anyone could desire down to the street. and went around the bases. Some of the other batsmen hit hotter ones than the fielders could handle. Murphy also made a hit which carried him to third. Two base hits were almost as numerous, Murphy, O'Connor and Manning doing the stunt. So one can see the strength of the home nine, in the batting line.

At one time during the game Murphy at first came within an ace of putting two men out in the same play. First he caught a hot liner off the bat, putting that man out. The man on first base attempted to get to second when the hit was made, but as he saw where it would probably end he returned to first just in time. Another of the Revere boys was caught between first and second base. With these and others, brilliant plays were a good deal in evidence.

For the Revere team Allen, MrDougal, and Smith went around the bases, MacDougal made a three base hit which deserves credit.

—Ten years ago the automobile was a novelty, the subway an untried experiment and the flying machine an inventor's dream. Today, with farmers and truckmen using automobiles and with two great subways in operation in New York, it is announced that on May 15 railway trains will be running under the East River and from Munich will be started the first regular air passenger service. The progress made in the various forms of earth transportation in the last decade promises well for rapid progress in air navigation. If twelve passengers can be successfully carried by air from Munich to Starnberg and Oberammergau, it will not be long until air lines are established in all parts of the civilized world.

I received notice this morning that the Onions challenge the Parsnips for a cricket game to be held this week, if possible. If the former are as strong as their name I fail to see a ghost of a show for Parsnips.

The Pioneer Juniors challenge any 12 or 13 year old team in this section. Any team desiring games will do well to get in touch with James Gilcaine, 12 Summer street, or Charles Armstrong, 103 Glencoe place.

Representatives from the Mohawk A. C. and the Y. M. C. A. athletic team met last evening and drew up plans for a dual athletic meet to be held in Quincy, Saturday, May 28. Last evening articles were signed for a fifteen mile match race as a special attraction for the day by Bruce and Gover. Another meeting will be held Thursday evening in physical director's office at the Y. M. C. A. when more definite plans will be arranged.

It would not surprise me to see the Deweys of Weymouth, the champions of the Old Colony league, meet the Makarias at Merrymount park in the near future. "Tommy" Nash, the popular manager of the "champs" said Sunday the Dewys will be attired in white suits the coming season. Gee, but they will look odd without those blue suits.

I have received a request from outside parties, for the address of "Honey" Curtis, the well known Makaria outfielder. If this "speed boy" will send it in I will be very thankful.

C. M. Gifford, chairman of committee for July Fourth sports, informs me that he will have an able corps of assistants who will work hard for a successful celebration.

The baseball bugs in this city are loud in their praise of the Old Colony league schedule which affords them a chance to see both the Deweys and Quincy in all their home games. By the way, Bjorkland informed me Sunday that he had secured a boxman with a national reputation and while I promised not to reveal the name, I know this twirler will land the bunting if he comes here this season.

TENNIS SCHEDULE.

The Wollaston Tennis club which opened its season several weeks ago has announced the following schedule for the year:

May 30—Club doubles.
June 17—Open doubles.
July 4—Lobster tournament.
Labor Day—Handicap singles.

The club is in flourishing condition with a full membership and a waiting list. The courts are in the excellent shape of last year. Composing the officers are: Arthur B. Hillman, president; Herbert H. Albee, secretary, and Charles E. Barker, treasurer.

TARIFF DEBATE.

Ladies' night of the Brotherhood of the First Presbyterian church was observed Monday evening, many guests being entertained by the members of the club. During the first part of the evening there was some enjoyable vocal and instrumental music by Cambridge friends.

The club then took up the regular debate—the subject was "Resolved that the present tariff should be revised for the general benefit." John Childs and George Craig took the affirmative side of the question, and John Bissett and John Munn the negative. After their arguments there was a general discussion by those present.

The judges were William Cumming, Charles Miller and William Mayer. While they were in doubt which side won they were rather inclined toward the negative.

The debate was followed by a social hour during which refreshments were served.

STARVING CANCER TO CURE IT

Remarkable Results of a New Treatment Shown at a Clinic.

Dr. William S. Bainbridge of the New York Skin and Cancer hospital has an entirely new treatment for cancer, which he explained in his annual clinical lecture at the institution the other afternoon.

In the course of the clinic, the subject of which was "Ligation," the process of cutting off the blood supply upon which cancerous affections feed and absolutely isolating the cancer from the rest of the body, he exhibited several apparent cures which aroused the keenest interest. For instance, Dr. Bainbridge introduced first a man and then a woman, both of whom had suffered from serious cancers of the face. In each case nearly the whole side of the face had been removed and a new cheek created by grafting skin, taken from the patient's legs and arms, on the side of the head where the cancer had been.

Dr. Bainbridge defined the subject of the clinic, ligation, as the starving out of the death eating growth. Near Dr. Bainbridge at this time was an elderly man, over the left side of whose face was spread a piece of antiseptic cloth. The man looked happy. Presently Dr. Bainbridge turned to him and, calling him by name, asked him to come forward.

The man walked briskly up to the side of Dr. Bainbridge, and the latter put his arm around him and removed the cloth which obscured his face. Even some of the doctors present shuddered at what they saw. Nearly half of the man's face was gone, but the hole was healing, as everybody could see.

The man came to Dr. Bainbridge several weeks ago, he said, apparently in a dying condition. An operation was performed, the blood vessels leading to the cancer being closed so that it had nothing to feed upon.

"This man," said Dr. Bainbridge, "was operated on five weeks ago. He tells me now he has no pains, that he has gained eight pounds in weight and he is feeling fine."

Dr. Bainbridge told of one woman whom ten physicians had given up. At the cancer hospital ligation was performed, and in six weeks she was out automobile riding. One of his cases was a police sergeant, who first noticed his affliction a year ago, when seized with pains in the abdomen after eating. The sergeant has gained forty pounds since the operation and is back on the force. Another man was given up as dead when admitted to the hospital, but is now fast recovering.

In some of the cases presented there had been no indications of a recurrence of the malady. In others the ravages of the disease had been checked and life prolonged, perhaps for a period of years.

THE BUTTONLESS CUTAWAY.

Latest Fad In Men's Dress In London Started by King Edward.

The latest fad in men's dress in London was originated by King Edward. To be in the fashion this spring in London men must wear only one button to their cutaway coats, or, better still, none at all.

The buttonless cutaway is popular. It is worn by most of the men one sees in the fashionable restaurants. All the actors appearing in society plays now wear the buttonless cutaway coat. The sides of the coat are held in position by a link of braid about an inch and a half or two inches long. Thus the coat does not meet, and the link of braid, which acts as a kind of understudy to the button, hangs horizontally across the waistcoat.

The king has extended the principle of the buttonless morning coat to evening dress, but in the latter garment, sometimes worn by the king, the small connecting link between the flaps of the coat is finished on either side in a beautiful oynx button which is intended only for ornament.

CIGAR SMOKING CHAMPION.

Washington Man Kept Weed Going 94 Minutes 30 Seconds.

The long distance cigar smoking championship of the world was won recently by a man in Washington. Harry McKelden, a telegraph operator, smoked a mild cigar of standard size for ninety-four minutes and thirty seconds without relighting it. He exceeded the record made a few days ago by a Cornell professor by nine and a half minutes.

McKelden undertook to break the Cornell man's record on a wager, and the cigar was smoked in a Washington broker's office in the presence of five witnesses, one of them a physician, whose services were not needed.

Mark Twain.

His hands fall from the wheel; he looks no more
To see what reef or shoal may be ahead,
What narrow channel there may be to thread,
What jagged rocks may jut out from the shore,
What message is it that the leadsmen send?
"Mark Twain!" The troubled engines cease to throb;
The song the breezes sang ends in a sob;
The trip is done—the world has lost a friend.

On lips he taught to smile the laughter dies;
The sun shines with a lesser, fainter glow;
Along the shores where mirth was spread a low,
Sad murmur passes, and with tear dimmed eyes
Men look out on the stream, yet while they gaze
In silence share the comforting belief
That safe in port, beyond the last dread reef,

I'D FIGHT A BULL FOR $101,000, SAYS SHARKEY.

Tom Sharkey's determination to challenge the winner of the Jeffries-Johnson fight has aroused a good deal of interest.

Tom is cold gray serious. He has erected a gymnasium in his home, and, as a matter of fact, he is in remarkably good condition despite he has been out of the ring for many years, and, judging by his present condition, he does not need much work to be in good trim for another battle. In talking of the coming fight Sharkey said recently: "Look at the money there is in the fight game nowadays! Think of it—$101,000 for a scrap! Why, I'd fight a bull for that!" And Tom would when he was in his prime.

COVALESKI'S GREAT FEAT.

Hurled Ball Six Times Between Players but Foot Apart.

Sporting writers in the past have turned out some wonderful yarns of baseball feats, but the palm must be presented to the Cincinnati man who is responsible for the following story:

Talk about your pitchers having control of the ball, here's a little stunt that Harry Covaleski, the big Pole, pulled off during practice the other morning that is surely going some in handling the pill. Several Reds were arguing as to who had the most control.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said "Covey." "If two of you chaps will stand up in front of Tom Clarke with your heads a foot apart I'll throw the ball into his hands between your heads six times running."

Harry Gaspar had confidence in Harry's accurate aim and agreed to be one of the two to stand up and let "Covey" see how near he could come without hitting him.

Others were not so confident until Mike Konnick volunteered. So Gaspar and Konnick stood up over an imaginary plate, leaned forward until their foreheads were but a foot apart, and "Covey" set himself to the task. He wound up for the throw and let the ball go. Gaspar and Konnick didn't have to move, for the ball shot between their heads as true as a well aimed bullet. The other five balls went in the same place, and Gaspar and Konnick, in spite of their confidence in the young Pole, heaved a sigh of relief when the stunt was over.

made a grand cleanup and defeated the best professional short distance runners in England. While Nat has not done any racing to speak of since he returned to this country last fall, he is in excellent shape and will show his heels to his rivals while abroad.

COMING SPORT EVENTS

Gustave Ljungstrom, the champion Marathoner, is to meet Tom Longboat, the Indian, in a twenty mile race in Buffalo, May 7.

The international yacht regatta will be held in England, Aug. 8 and 9, off Portsmouth. It will be held in France in 1911 and in Germany in 1912.

William J. Glover, Jr., a Baltimore swimmer, may try to swim the Boston strait this summer. He claims to be the champion long distance swimmer of this country.

Eddie Cotter of Toronto will very likely run in the Polytechnic Marathon race at London, May 21. It is the long distance event of the year in England and is held over the Olympic course.

REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS SECURES THE PEN

Board of Trade Bill for New Courthouse Signed by Gov. Draper

Authorizes Expenditure of $80,000 Including Land

It can no longer be said that the Quincy Board of Trade amounts to nothing. When the organization started in to secure a court house for Quincy few thought there was any prospect of success, but on Tuesday Gov. Draper signed an act passed by the Legislature, in the presence of Representative William R. Thomas, and presented the Quincy legislature with the pen, which he now has upon his desk.

The Board of Trade have had but little outside assistance from the start. They saw the need of better accommodations, discussed the problem at one of their meetings in the fall, appointed a committee and prepared a petition to the Legislature. Members appeared at the legislative hearings in advocacy of the measure, and when the committee visited Quincy for an inspection they met them at the station took them to the present court rooms, showed them about the city, and entertained them.

REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS.

Good work since then has been put in by the Quincy members of the Legislature, but especially Representative Thomas, and success followed.

The act authorizes the expenditure of $80,000 by the Norfolk County Commissioners—Messrs. John F. Merrill, Evan F. Richardson and Silas A. Stone—for land and building, and should provide another public building which will be an ornament to the city of Quincy.

It seems to be generally conceded that some site on Washington street should be selected; either the Nightingale estate of 19,729 square feet at the corner of Temple street; or the estate of the late Henry H. Faxon on the corner of Coddington street, or the Laban Pratt estate of 16,530 square feet adjoining the Thomas

WHO FOR COMMITTEE

Enquiry in Financial Condition of the City

President Hobbs has not as yet appointed the special committee created by the order introduced by Councilman Nowland on Monday night at the Council meeting, to investigate the financial condition of the city. President Hobbs when asked about the committee said the selection of the proper men was somewhat of a problem. He did not want to have a committee that was too pronounced for or too pronounced against the administration. He said that he had made up his mind in regard to three of the four members, but he was stuck on the last member and until he had fully made up his mind he should not give out any names.

SCAVENGER WORK.

The City Council by its action Monday night made it possible hereafter for the scavanger work of the city to be done by the Board of Health. There has been considerable difficulty in the past for the board to get cesspools and vaults cleaned out promptly. Just at this season of the year orders come in thick and fast for this work, and some people have had to wait on account of a lack of system. The present contractor for this work does not care to continue it longer, and the Board of Health were confronted with quite a proposition. Now that the city is to own its tank and wagons, and do the work, there may be better service. It is figured out that the returns from the work done will more than offset the cost of maintainance, so that another year the department in this respect will be self sustaining.

FOURTH OF JULY

Washington Social Club to Keep Open House

The Washington Social Club, the only club having rooms in Ward Two, will hold open house for all comers on the Fourth of July. At its last meeting the club voted to keep the club rooms open from 12 P. M. July 3 until 1 A. M. July 5, and to extend an invitation to everyone who may visit their section of the city to come in and make himself at home. The club rooms are on Washington street, near Madison avenue, and one and all are invited to take advantage of the hospitality of the club. The movement started by the Washington Social Club may well be copied by other Social and Athletic clubs about the city since we expect that a great number of out-of-town people will be in Quincy during the day who will be glad of such a welcome.

GRANITE EXHIBIT.

The proposition to make an exhibit of Quincy granite at the coming meeting of the National Retail Monument Dealers Association was discussed at length at the meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' association this week. To make the exhibit would entail considerable expense, and in order that all phases of the situation might be better understood, final action on the proposition was deferred until the next meeting. Some minor changes in the by laws were made, and routine business transacted.

MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENTS

Secretary of State League to Address Civic League

"Municipal Improvements" will be the topic at the next meeting of the new Civic League of Quincy. President W. H. Hull has been successful in securing as the speaker of the evening Edward T. Hartman, secretary of the Massachusetts Civic League whose subject will be "Civic Cleanliness." Mr. Hartman devotes all his time to the duties of his office, and his services are in demand all over the State. He has already commenced an inspection of our city, and by the aid of the stereopticon will present views of some of the localities where improvement might be made. Wonder what he will say about the Nightingale corner right in the heart of our city!

Another matter to be brought before the meeting is the "Sidewalk Problem," on which it is expected that some definite plan of action will be outlined and put into operation.

The league is to entertain as guests the Civic Betterment Committee of the Women's Club, so that this meeting is to be opened to ladies, and it is hoped all members will abail themselves of thisprivilege. The date is Tuesday evening of next week, and the banquet will be served at 6.30 P. M. at the Y. M. C. A. hall The dues of the league are only $1 per year and all men interested are urged to become members and lend their encouragement

It is the "pop" season in Boston.

Boston is to have a zoo-logical garden at Franklin park and an aquarium at City Point, the Council voting the appropriation at its meeting Monday evening, the income from the Parkman fund to be used. Boston is not going to let New York get too far ahead.

The vote passed by the City Council Monday night to buy the property of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company at the corner of Washington and Coddington streets is giving general satisfaction. With this building removed the Library corner will be a beauty spot rivaling any to be found in the state. Hardly a person enters the Post office but pauses on the steps to look across the Library lawn. Its attractiveness, especially at this time of the year, appeals even to those who do not think they care for nature's beauties. Let the good work go on until Quincy has a civic center to be proud of.

Growing interest and appreciation of the work of visiting nursing is being shown in substantial ways these days. In Spencer by a codicil to the will of the late George Bemis the District Nurse association receives a fund of $10,000, the net income to be used in support of the district nurse. In Brockton ex-Gov. Douglas has contributed generously to the work in that city. One of the first works undertaken by the Quincy Women's club on forming some five years ago was establishing a visiting nurse. The club has paid the nurse's salary from its treasury and by generous donations from individuals, the King's Daughters and other interested organizations. The work is going steadily forward and the services and kindly ministrations of the nurse are every day appreciated more and more.

Of all the names suggested to fill the vacancy on the school board caused by the death of Dexter E. Wadsworth, there is one who seems particularly fitted for the position, and that is Commander John L. Gow, of Revere road. Mr. Gow came to Quincy several years ago in the interest of the United States government, being stationed at the Fore River shipyard where he looked after the financial business of the government, anditing bills, paying government employes, etc. This gave him good business training. Add to this some fifteen years of teaching previous to entering the navy and coming to Quincy and this candidate seems well fitted to become a member of the school board. On retiring from the navy Commander Gow decided to make Quincy his home thus showing an interest in the city and its people. Since becoming identified with our city he has interested himself in civic and educational matters; is a member of the Anti-tuberculosis committee and various public organizations. He often talked over school matters with Mr. Wadsworth and through him became interested in the public schools of the city.

Mr. Gow is too modest to put himself forward as a candidate for the position but his friends feel that he is just the man for it and they will probably put his name in nomination and rally in his support.

Although more express permits were granted by the City Council this week than recommended, congratulations should be extended to the Committee on Licenses that the total for 1910 is nearly a third smaller than in 1909. Fifteen is the total to pass the Council this year, while 21 were in operation last year. This is certainly quite a gain, and should be a sign of encouragement than otherwise. But when a city votes so overwhelmingly against the granting of licenses to sell intoxicating liquors it is surprising that so many express permits are granted. In years past it has been argued that the Council should not put expressmen out of business, but this year some of the applicants were desirous of being set-up in business, and one of these was successful.

The regulations imposed by Mayor Shea last year, requiring daily returns to the Police department, proved one of the best restrictions of the traffic ever inaugurated, and perhaps it can be imposed this year when the expressmen realize that the Mayor the Chief of Police and the City Council mean business and that permits will be forfetied unless complied with. At the outset perhaps Mayor Shea may deem it advisable, however, to reduce the number of permits, by vetoing some of those passed.

The members of the License committee this year are: Arthur C. Gardner chairman, James M. Nowland, William H. Flynn, Alexander Clark, John J. McDevitt, C. E. Cherrington and E. W. Branch.

DRIFT OF OPINION

It seems not unlikely that a reduction in the price of upper berths in sleeping cars will add to their popularlay and add to those who patronize the sleeping car company. While the ruling of the commissioners does not call for a very great difference in the prices, that margin will be sufficient to attract many who will not pay present prices. The fact that the "uppers" cost less than the "lowers" will go a long way toward removing the prejudice that exists in the minds of those who regularly patronize the sleepers. They will quit growling and take an upper on a crowded car just as good-naturedly as they now pay for the less expensive staterooms on a steamship. It would seem as if the company might better try the new schedule than to appeal from the ruling of the commissioners, as it is reported is the intention.—Haverhill Gazette.

Dress has a great deal to do with the spirit and sentiment of a person, and he wants his dress to cultivate the right spirit. He can rise or lower himself according to the character of the clothes he wears. One feels the effect of his clothes. Clothes seem to be a very superficial matter, but they enter very much into character-making. Put a hat on a boy that is banged, upturned, rakish and rowdy-looking, and by some sort of an osmosis these qualities pass into the nature of the boy and control his tendencies, says the Ohio State Journal. There is no better example of the influence of environment than is seen in the effect of clothes. The cost has nothing to do with it. It is in the neatness, the taste, the way it sets and feels that help make up the inclination and disposition of a person. —Framingham News.

MAY BASKET LUNCH.

The fourth annual May basket party was held in Wollaston hall on Tuesday evening by Wollaston lodge of the American Benefit society.

A brief entertainment opened the evening, during which piano duets by Miss Emily Bjorkman and Miss Myrtle Harlburt were enjoyed. E. E. Bullock, who contributed several vocal solos, was loudly encored. Brother Carney of the central body explained the objects of the society and invited those present to become members.

The feature of the evening was the auctioning of the May baskets. These were knocked down in a most businesslike way by Samuel P. Hanson, the amateur auctioneer, to the highest bidder. As the gentlemen who purchased the basket was supposed to share its contents with the young lady who made it, there was great excitement and tittering as each was sold. One basket to which a cigar was attached, brought the record price.

Dancing to the music of Merrill's orchestra rounded out an enjoyable evening. In charge of the affair was a committee composed of Mrs. D. C. Miller, Miss Eliza Miner, Mrs. L. C. Merrill and Mrs. L. W. Taylor.

SHIPYARD AT ST. JOHNS.

The Public Works Department at Ottawa has sent Engineers Coste and Davy to St. John to complete the borings in Courtenay Bay, where the Grand Trunk Pacific terminals and the dry dock and ship-building plant will be located. The borings will cover the whole bed of the Bay, the object being to get accurate data on which to base estimates for the dredging that must be done. A previous examination of a considerable portion of the Bay did not encounter any rock at a depth that would interfere with vessels. The bay is on the Eastern side of the City, and offers opportunity for great development work, for which plans have already been prepared at Ottawa.

Eight of the nine petitioners were successful but four of these had only a bare majority of the Council. The other four had 14, 15, 16 and 17 votes.

NOT GUILTY.

The case of Fillipo Gardiano of Miller street, for violation of the liquor law, was heard in the district court this morning. Gardiano is the man who is said to be the proprietor of the lunch room where the row among Italians occurred some days ago, and during which Officer Curtain had his thumb bitten. When that case was heard the evidence was such that the police decided to swear out a warrant against Gardiano. A large number of witnesses were heard, after which he was found not guilty and discharged.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

RAILS NEED ATTENTION.

Editor Daily Ledger:

Permit me through the columns of your paper, to call the attention of the city, or Street Railway authorities or both, to the condition of the rails on School street most of the joints are badly worn slanting towards each other, and when the many heavy cars pass rapidly over these defective places, the noise produced is most annoying and a serv‡re nervous strain on those who are continually compelled to hear it; the jar produced is often severe enough to be felt in the house. Something should be done, at once, to remedy this nuisance, and disturbance of the peace of the community.

OPERETTA PRESENTED

A Dress Rehearsal of Cinderella Makes a Hit

The operetta "A dress rehearsal," as presented by the Junior Alliance on Tuesday evening, proved a very pleasing entertainment for a large audience at the First church chapel. Miss Minnie Packard was the director and the scene was at the Grove House Academy. Flags of different colleges were used in the decorations.

In the cast were:

Miss Jones, principal of Grove House Academy — Lela Smith
Mademoiselle Epinard — Dorothy Packard
Amy Fibbs, Cinderella — Minnie Hardwick
Clara Wilkins, Prince — Marie Bass
Sarah Ann, the greedy girl — Ruth Bass
Sophanisba Spivins, the romantic girl — Catherine Saville
Martha Higgins, spiteful sister — Mollie Harris
Carry Jackson, spiteful sister — Ruth Packard
Mrs. Jarvey, elocution mistress — Ella Packard
Miss Prudence Pinchbeck, a visitor, — Ruth Penniman
Rosa Jennings, fairy godmother — Roberta Smith
Servant, — Nettie Pote
Humpie — Minnie Packard

The operetta opened with a chorus by the school girls, which at the outset established the fact that they were good singers. They were liberally applauded. Everyone in the cast took her part well, but special mention should be made of the principal parts. Miss Hardwick was a capital Cinderella. Miss Ella Packard, in the difficult part of elocution mistress was great both in get-up and acting. Miss Smith as principal, usually maintained the dignity of her position. The two spiteful sisters, Miss Harris and Miss Ruth Packard, were not only good actors, but in the trio with Cinderella made a great hit, and repeated it on encore. Another popular musical number was the duet of Cinderella and the fairy Godmother. Miss Dorothy Packard made a good French girl. Miss Marie Bass who took the part of prince at short notice was all that could be desired. The closing chorus was repeated on encore.

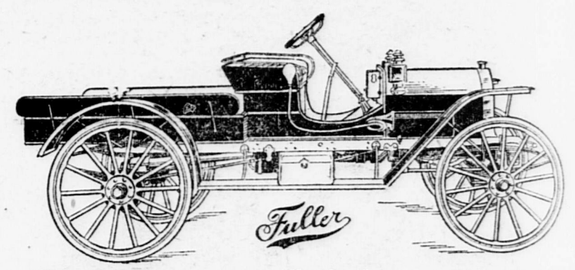

Between scene one and two little Miss Constance Fryer delighted the audience with two fancy dances in appropriate costume. First the butterfly dance, and afterward the jockey dance. She was asked to repeat the latter, and was presented a bouquet of flowers. Another little miss, Florence Mead, prettily attired in white, gave a charming recitation. William E. Weston was the accompanist of the evening.

On Thursday evening the operetta will be repeated at Dedham, the girls making the trip to the shire town in automobiles.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

At Manchester last week at the annual meeting of the Woman's club it was voted to support a District Nurse. The president in her address said: "I am very glad the Club has voted to support a District Nurse. I feel it is work of this sort that is going to hold us together. We can make this work a success only by having that same spirit of co-operation which has existed in our two years of club life. Every member must feel it is her duty as well as pleasure to work for this charity, and I ask you all to help." The president of the Outlook committee of the club in her report also spoke of district nursing. She said: "When finally established and understood, the work of a district nurse in a community can only mean infinite good and comfort to its people. There is always the difficulty at first of thinking her work is wholly charitable, and only for the poor who cannot pay for her services. While the nurse gladly attends any such cases, still she is instructed always to collect her fees where they can be paid. These fees of 25 cents an hour, very soon go far toward the support of the association, and on the other hand, are a very light burden for the splendid service received.

There are always numberless cases where the constant service of a nurse would be unnecessary, and where a district nurse can do all that is needed in a few hours each day.

She is not only a powerful factor in the village for the teaching of intelligent and hygienic care of the sick, but also for the comfort and consolation her very presence brings."

BRIEFS

A movement has been started to organize a local of journeymen blacksmiths in this city.

The City Council Committee on Streets will make a tour of the city Saturday, viewing streets which the city is asked to accept or repair.

The regular May meeting of the Board of Trade will be held this evening. The subject assigned for discussion is "Electric lighting."

The annual May party of the Quincy Catholic club will be held tonight at Alpha and Union halls. There will be dancing in Alpha hall and whist in Union hall. An enjoyable evening is anticipated.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hutchison, nee Newell, who were quietly married recently, have returned from their wedding trip and are making their home on Intervale street. Their many friends wish them much happiness in their future life.

It is with regret that Wollaston people learn that Miss Lotta Crabtree is not to occupy the Faxon estate at the corner of Hancock and Beale streets which she leased the first of the year. After interior repairs were commenced she learned that the Burkhart estate at Squantum could be bought and the workmen were stopped. The estate that Miss Crabtree has purchased has a mile of water front. It contains 150 acres joining the park system and boulevard.

—Travelers will rejoice at the order of the interstate commerce commission, reducing the Pullman sleeping car rates in the west, and compelling a different scale of prices for upper and lower berths This order is doubtless but the beginning of a general overhauling in this company which for so many years has been bleeding those who patronize their cars. The $60,000,000 profits of the past ten years is sufficient proof of too high prices.—Old Colony Memorial.

BOY MURDERER IS CAPTURED

Had Escaped, With Another Inmate, From Insane Asylum

THOUSAND PEOPLE IN A HUNT

Young Lunatics Eluded Them All For Nearly Twenty Hours Only to Be Captured Separately by a Manchester Policeman, Whose Activity Prevents Release of One Who Gave a Story Which Appeared Plausible

Manchester, N. H., May 4.—After an all-day chase, extending over parts of three states, in which more than a thousand people took part, Ambrose Van Buskirk, 16 years old, accused of the murder of an aged Lawrence woman a year ago, and his companion, James Valway, aged 25, both escaped lunatics from the Danvers, Mass., insane hospital, were taken into custody here.

No trace was found of the pair from the time they broke out of the Danvers asylum between 2 and 4 o'clock yesterday morning until Valway was recognized here late last evening by Officer Wood from the description of him sent out at roll call.

Officer Wood found Valway alone near the transfer station on Elm street about 9 o'clock, and at once arrested him on suspicion. When taken to the station house, however, the young man gave such a plausible story that the police came very near releasing him. But for the arrival of Wood at this moment with Van Buskirk, Valway might have convinced the officers of the truth of his story, so carefully had he prepared it.

Wood, believing that he had not been mistaken in thinking Valway the escaped lunatic, returned to the Elm street transfer station to look for Valway's companion while the other officers were questioning him. Scarcely had he reached the place where he had founr Valway when he saw Van Buskirk standing on the sidewalk. He put him under arrest, the boy making no attempt to resist.

Van Buskirk's youth and size, together with the peculiar birthmark, resembling a pig's foot, on his cheek, made his captor practically certain that he had bagged the man he was looking for, and when closer examination revealed the fact that the index finger on the boy's right hand was missing doubt was no longer possible. The patrolman took him to the station house, where Valway was still arguing with the officers.

When Van Buskirk entered the room Valway began to laugh, and the police then knew that they had found the right man.

The men refused to give any account of their actions during the day. Van Buskirk, in particular, was extremely reticent, and confined his conversation to the admission that he was the person they were seeking. The young men were returned to the asylum this morning.

Police officers throughout Essex county are still mystified by the ease with which Van Buskirk and Valway slipped through the meshes of the drag-net laid for them.

Van Buskirk has been an inmate of the Danvers hospital for more than a year, entering it shortly after he was charged with the murder of Mrs. Catherine Gray, an aged Lawrence shopkeeper, in January, 1909. He is looked upon as extremely dangerous in spite of his youth.

Valway is six feet tall and very awkward in his appearance. He weighs 170 pounds. The police believe that the escape had been planned in every detail long ago.

The two made their way from the watch ward, in which they were confined, to an elevator in the rear of the building. They ran the car from the third floor down to the basement and made their exit from the building through the basement window, which was just large enough for them to squeeze through.

POISON IN SWOPE'S BODY

Doctor Tells of the Finding of Strychnine and Cyanide

Kansas City, May 4.—Dr. Walter S. Haines, in the Dr. Hyde murder trial, told of finding traces of strychnine in the ejecta of Margaret Swope, in the brain and stomach of Colonel Thomas H. Swope and the liver and stomach of Chrisman Swope.

Cyanide was found by him and Dr. Vaughn in the stomach of Colonel Swope and on capsules which Hyde is alleged to have discarded on a street in Independence, he said.

A Remarkable Old Lady

East Longmeadow, Mass., May 4.—Miss Mary S. Cooley, whose father and grandfather were both soldiers in the American Revolution, yesterday observed her 94th birthday. She has never been in a steam or trolley car, not even in a stage coach. She has either always walked or ridden behind oxen.

London, May 4.—At Barrow-in-Furness the keel was laid of the battleship Princess Royal, the largest warship of any navy in the world. She will be 26,000 tons displacement and 700 feet long.

MILL OF 100,000 SPINDLES

Borden Contemplates the Building of One at Fall River

Fall River, Mass., May 4.—At a hearing before the board of aldermen to discuss a proposition to extend Durfee street, in this city, by means of a viaduct across land purchased within a year by M. C. D. Borden of New York, representatives of Borden opposed the project on the ground that it would interfere with plans for a large new mill.

The land lies near the locations of mills Nos. 6 and 7 of the Fall River Iron Works company plant. It was stated that a three-story brick mill building was to be erected. No further details were given. The mill is to produce print cloths for the American Printing company, as the seven existing mills of the Iron Works plant do. It is understood that a mill of over 100,000 spindles capacity is proposed.

LOSES $40,000 GEMS

Countess Szechenyi Robbed on Ocean Liner While on Her Way Home

London, May 4.—It has become known here that jewels valued at more than $40,000 were stolen from Countess Szechenyi, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, while on her way to Europe from New York.

It is said the jewels were stolen on the liner on which the countess left New York. She did not miss the jewels until after the steamer had docked and she had arrived in Budapest.

The thief, it is said, secured a position in the catering department of the liner on which the countess and the count returned from America solely that he might have opportunity to steal the gems. Arrests are imminent, according to Scotland Yard authorities.

BOY GETS $13.750 FOR LOSS OF A LEG

Large Verdict Against the New Haven Road Is Upheld

New York, May 4.—Thirteen thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars for the loss of a leg was awarded to Harold Schaffler, 15 years old, by the appellate division of the supreme court, affirming a decision of the lower court. It is the largest verdict ever upheld here for such injury.

Schaffler was struck by an iron bar protruding from a work car as he stood on a platform of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railway in the Bronx. As he had a commutation ticket in his pocket and was waiting for a train, the court held that he was to all intents a passenger.

RAILROAD BOOSTS FARES

Boston and Albany Announces Higher Rates and Others Will Follow

Boston, May 4.—An increase of approximately ¼ cent per mile in passenger rates is announced by the Boston and Albany road, to take effect on June 1. The fares from Boston to Worcester will be increased from 90 cents to $1, and from Boston to Springfield from $2 to $2.25.

The reasons assigned by officials of the Boston and Albany for the increase of rates is the higher cost of operation and the stagnation of fresh sources of revenue. The cost of material, they assert, has risen 40 percent. Owing to the demands of organized labor, wages have been increased.

GOTHAM BAKERS' STRIKE

It Leads to Rioting In Which One Man Is Stabbed and Many Injured

New York, May 4.—There was rioting Tuesday in the bakers' strike. One strike breaker was stabbed, several were mauled, and hundreds of loaves of bread were tossed from wagons into the street.

The strikers say that 6000 men are out and that nearly all the big bakeries, including those in the larger hotels, are seriously crippled. The employers on the other hand insist that they are only temporarily handicapped.

Many hotels are getting bread from neighboring cities. As yet the drivers have not joined the strike.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., May 4.—Rufus Woodmark, 25 years old, in a cell, boastingly told how he had deliberately strangled his wife to death during a quarrel in their home at Smith's Falls.

Woodmark had frequently threatened to kill his wife. Yesterday he put the threats into execution.

WAS HELD BY UNSEEN POWER

WAS HIS SLAVE FOR MONTHS

After Long Struggle to Break Thralldom She Finally Escapes and Flees to Police For Protection—Place Is Raided While Oriental Seance Is In Progress—Second Young Woman Is Also Set Free

New York, May 4.—Remarkable stories of hynotism and thraldom told by two fine looking young women, who assert that for months a Hindoo has held them in his power by the exercise of his strange influence, are responsible for the arrest of Pierre A. Bernard, who, according to the girls, represents himself as a Swami from India and possessed of extraordinary powers of communicating with the dead and performing miraculous feats.

On the complaint of Miss Zella Hopp, 19 years old, who said she had been held in a hypnotic state by Bernard for some time, Police Captain Thompson raided the headquarters of Bernard in a house in Seventy-fourth street, where he found ten men and women in unconventional garments on a rug, going through peculiar incantations amid luxurious Oriental surroundings.

The complainant, Miss Hopp, told the police that while Barnard's mind was entirely engrossed upon another subject she escaped from a hypnotic trance he has exercised over her for many months, during which she was his slave, and that she fled to them for protection and justice from a flat in West One Hundredth street in which he had installed her.

She declared also that Bernard had in the house in West Seventy-fourth street, under similar conditions, Miss Gerhard Leo, also 19 years old, who had been in the power of Bernard for four months and could not escape from him even when left alone and with an opportunity to flee, owing to the hypnotic spell.

Miss Leo was found in the house by the police and she was taken to the police station with Bernard and the complainant. There, the police say, Miss Leo told a story similar to that of Miss Hopp. Bernard was placed in a cell and the young girls were allowed to go to the home of Mrs. Jennie Miller, in the Bronx.

Bernard, the girls say, represented himself as a Swami from India and declared he was called Oom by the Hindoo people. The girls say he showed to any one who cared to see it in his cellar a large white glass globe to which a wire was attached and declared that by turning on the light, which was not electric, but from an unseen force, he could get into communication with the countless millions of the dead.

The ten men and women who were found in the place were not molested by the police, but the strange rites through which they were invoking the appearance of astral bodies from the spirit land were broken up and all of them departed hastily.

Miss Hopp declared, the police say, that Bernard had about 150 men and women who visited the house alternately in classes of from ten to fifteen, and that each of them paid an initiation fee of $100, which was supplemented by another fee of $20, this being for a physical examination.

Miss Hopp told the police that on Aug. 1 of last year she went to the place in West Seventy-fourth street, which she believed to be a school of languages, and that she met Miss Leo there. She was told, she said, of the teaching of an Oriental philosophy and became engrossed in the subject.

Almost without knowing it, she declared, she became a member of the organization by progressive steps, until she finally was taken in one of the inner circles.

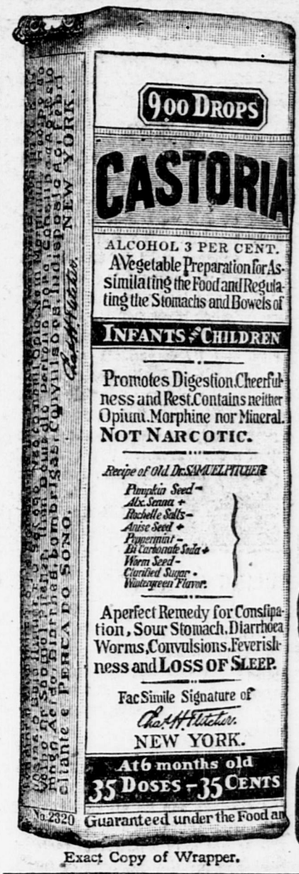

NEW CASES FALLING OFF

Backbone of Scarlet Fever Is Broken In Boston and Vicinity

Boston, May 4.—Twenty-six new cases of scarlet fever was the report to the Boston board of health Tuesday, the same as for Sunday and Monday. The fact that the number has shown no increase is looked upon as favorable by the officials of the board, who feel that the backbone of the disease is broken, so far as primary infection is concerned.

Reports from several of the nearby cities and towns indicate that the spread of the disease is checked.

COMMISSION'S CONCLUSIONS

Regarding Cause of Advance In Cost of Living

BLAME IS ON GOLD AND WASTE

Increased Supply of Yellow Metal Has Reduced Purchasing Power of Money —Many Forms of Public and Private Extravagance and Higher Living Standard Also Cited—Tariff, Trusts and Trade Unions Exonerated

Boston, May 4.—The report of the commission on the cost of living has been filed with the clerk of the house. The report will make a printed document of over 700 pages. The work of preparing this encyclopaedic report was begun, carried through and finished within eight weeks.

The commssion finds that the primary cause of the world-wide advance of prices since 1897 has been the increase of the gold supply, which has reduced the purchasing power of money and brought about a corresponding increase of values measured in money in all of the leading commercial states, and at least in the United States has served as the basis for a vast extension of credit.

The advance of prices in the United States has been accelerated greatly by the enormous waste of income through uneconomic armament and through multiple forms of extravagance, both public and private, and of wastage, both individual and social.

The increasing burden of disease, accident, crime and pauperism imposed upon society, and the loss through expenditure on a rising scale for luxuries and through wasteful domestic methods are potent factors contributing to the advance of the cost of living.

The advance of prices has been further promoted by a complexity of causes operating, on the side of supply, to reduce the volume and increase the expenses of production, and, on the side of demand, to extend and diversify the consumption of commodities.

The main factors in restricting supply and enhancing the cost of commodities have been the drain of population from the land, which has decreased the proportion of persons engaged in producting the food supply; the exhaustion of natural resources, which has resulted in increasing expenses of production and distribution, especially the latter.

The chief influence on the side of demand, which have worked parallel to the forces affecting supply, have been the growing concentration of population in great cities, which has increased the proportion of non-producing food consumers, the general advance of the standard of living, which has enlarged the requirements on the part of individual consumers of all classes, and the national habit of extravagance, which has further extended and diversified to an abnormal degree the demand for comforts and luxuries created by that advance.

With regard to the tariff, the trusts and the unions, which have been declared to be either primary or contributary causes of the increase of the cost of living, the commission finds that none of these factors can be regarded as a direct and active cause of the recent general advance of prices.

GETS THREE TO SEVEN YEARS

Katz Convicted of Larceny In Selling Heinze's Copper Securities

New York, May 4.—Charles Katz, who was found guilty of larceny by a jury in the supreme court, was sentenced to serve an indeterminate term of from three to seven years in the penitentiary. A certificate of reasonable doubt was granted and bail was fixed at $35,000 pending an appeal.

Katz, with Donald Persch and others, was charged with selling $110,000 worth of copper stock put up with the Windsor Trust company by an agent of F. A. Heinze as security for a loan of $50,000.

LIVED IN A SHANTY

Queer Notion of Minneapolis' Richest Man, Who Has Just Died

Minneapolis, May 4.—Levi H. Stewart, said to be the richest man in Minneapolis, died last night. He held more real estate in Minneapolis than any other man and his estate is computed to be worth many millions.

For many years he lived the life of an eccentric bachelor in a small wooden shanty, situated in the heart of the city.

Unusually Large Seal Catch

St. John's, May 4.—With the last of the Newfoundland sealing fleet safe in port, the year's total catch of seals amounts to 320,000. This is an unusually large catch. The steamer Aurora, which was reported as missing, arrived with a catch of 11,000 seals.

Report Against Police Pensions

Boston, May 4.—The legislative committee on ways and means reported adversely in the house on a bill to authorize cities and towns to pay a gratuity to the families of policemen killed or fatally injured in the discharge of their duties.

HENRY A. WISE

Chagrined at Being Repeatedly Balked

RULING IN HEINZE'S FAVOR

District Attorney Fails to Connect Him With Big Copper Pools

New York, May 4.—Judge Hough plainly told United States District Attorney Wise that he had failed in a two days' effort to connect F. A. Heinze with the so-called pools in United Copper stock in 1907.

The United States district attorney therefore abandoned his attempt to put in the record evidence to this effect at the trial of Heinze, who is charged, as president of the Mercantile National bank, with misapplication of the bank's funds and over-certification of checks to the firm of his brother, Otto Heinze.

Balked at almost every turn, either by the rulings of the court or the failure of his witnesses to recall the facts sought, Wise showed his chagrin as he gave up the quizzing of Max H. Schultze, a member of Otto Heinze's firm.

BRYAN'S DAUGHTER IS AGAIN A BRIDE

None but Close Friends of Family Witness the Marriage

Lincoln, Neb., May 4.—Lieutenant Reginald Owen of the British Royal Engineers and Ruth Bryan Leavitt were married at the home of William J. Bryan by Rev. Harry F. Huntington. The ceremony was performed in the presence of relatives and a few close friends. Owen and his bride left this city last evening and will go direct to Jamaica, where Owen is stationed.

No details of the ceremony were made public. Threats of William H. Leavitt, the husband whom Ruth divorced, to interfere with the wedding, were believed to be responsible for the reticence of the family and those in their confidence.

The Bryans did not believe that Leavitt would carry out his threat to come to Lincoln and endeavor to stop the wedding. They were prepared, however, for any emergency.

FRANCE HAS WAR BALLOON

Machine Built In Secret Expected to Travel Fifty Miles an Hour

Paris, May 4.—The surprising announcement is made that there has been constructed under the direction of the war department and with strict secrecy, a dirigible balloon of the semi-rigid type capable of a speed of nearly fifty miles an hour, and that the machine will be ready for participation in the approaching summer army maneuvers.

The new military craft has been named "The Frigate." It measures 112,000 cubic feet and has two cars within which are contained motors designed to develop 240 horsepower.

CAR STRIKE AVERTED

Wage Problem In Bay State to Be Submitted to Arbitration

Springfield, Mass., May 4.—There will be no strike of the more than 1200 employes of the street railway companies controlled in central Massachusetts by the New England Investment and Security company, the holding company of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

At a conference between representatives of the trolleymen and officials of the company it was agreed to submit the matter of increased wages to arbitration.

Income Tax Killed by One Vote

Albany, May 4.—The assembly knocked out the income tax resolution by a vote of 75 to 67, 76 being necessary to adopt the resolution. Governor Hughes opposed the passing of the amendment, but President Taft had urged the legislature to adopt the measure.

Great Glass Factory Destroyed

ADAMS CHAPTER, D. R.

Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution were entertained for the May meeting on Monday afternoon by Randolph members at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Belcher. Randolph members are so hospitable and the trolley ride so enjoyable that the Daughters look forward to going to Randolph

Monday's meeting was no exception and was in every way enjoyable. The hostesses were Mrs. Charles Belcher, Mrs. Henry Belcher, Mrs. William Porter and Mrs. Frank Porter. The rooms were bright with spring flowers the gift of Mrs. John E. Bradley of Illinois chapter, D. A. R., who was unable to accept an invitation to be present, but sent a cordial greeting and the flowers. A short business meeting presided over by the regent was followed by a program of music and a paper. Miss Helen E. White sang a group of songs accompanied at the piano by Mrs. H. W. Langley, both receiving hearty encores of appreciation. The speaker W. E. Beal of Brockton was announced to give a patriotic talk. He said his subject was a long one. "Our country—our ancestors and our responsibilities for the future." Mr. Beal said his paper would probably be quite different from any heretofore given for the chapter, as instead of dealing with past history and dwelling on the deeds of our ancestors he preferred to present the needs of the present day. He spoke of the newcomers to our country, the necessity of seeing that they became good citizens for the man in the trench today is the grandfather of future Americans. He thought the tendency of the age was extravagent living and selfishness, too many automobiles for those who could not afford them. We must be united for the good of the whole country and keep away from sectional feeling. Mr. Beal was an admirer of ex-President Roosevelt and believed in his straightforward way of dealing with large issues. He spoke of the North and the South and of the present need of unity of thought between the East and West.

Mr. Beal's paper proved interesting to the ladies who rather liked getting away from the usual subjects and they gave him a rising vote of thanks. Another group of songs by Miss White and all uniting in singing America, closed the afternoon program.

The hostesses served a dainty luncheon from a table decorated with D. R. colors, buff and blue, the centrepiece being yellow snapdragon and violets. The sandwiches were tied with buff and blue ribbons.

Trolley cars like time and tide wait for nobody but in this case the conductor kindly waited a few minutes while members made hurried exits from house to street putting on coats and gloves en-route. It was found only two were missing when enough breath had been recovered to be cognizant of surroundings and they probably followed more leisurely on a later car.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

The May meeting of the executive board of the club will be held Thursday morning at ten o'clock at the club house. As the season is drawing to a close it is hoped all members will try to be present.

The somewhat unique idea of the Music Committee in giving the opera of Pinafore with an entire cast of ladies has aroused a great deal of interest among club members and their friends. The audience promises to be large and enthusiastic as many from the surrounding towns are buying tickets and it is hoped that all the ladies in our own city will make Saturday May 21, a real holiday, and attend the "Opera." It is sure to be amusing presented this way even to those who have heard it many times, with a mixed cast. The well known professional coach, F. R. Pitman is taking great pains to perfect the action. Costumes will be made to order by Wolf, Fording Co. of Boston, and the scenery to be used is that which was painted for the production of Pinafore at the Bijou theatre, Boston, some years ago. All the singers, some forty in number, are either members of the club or on the waiting list. The cast of principals includes Mrs. Emma S. Moore as Josephine; Mrs. George H. Ryder, Buttercup; Mrs. Frank A. Page Hebe; Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell, Ralph Rackstraw; Miss Alice Gertrude Coe, Sir Joseph Porter; Miss Annie Deane, Capt. Corcoran; Mrs. Frank A. Emery, Dick Deadeye; Mrs. Ernest V. Fitts, Bill Bobstay; Mrs. Oscar A. Blaisdell, Bob Becket; Mrs. George L. Badger, and Mrs. Victor E. Miller Sergeants of Marines.

The closing meeting of the club season will be on Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse. It will be the annual with reports of the officers and committees followed by music and a social tea.

With the closing of the year come many applications for membership and the waiting list is steadily growing. Members who wish to retain their membership and have not paid their dues have yet a few days left. Dues must be paid before the annual meeting or member will be dropped and the placed filled from the waiting list. As this is a by law of the club and bills have been sent every, member, no exceptions will be made if any fail to pay.

WORLD EVANGELIZING PLAN.

Protestant Laymen to Conduct Campaign Against Heathenism.

For the first time in the history of the world Protestant churches representing every denomination will meet on common ground to wage the greatest propaganda for Christianity the world has ever known.

The inspiration and backbone of this colossal undertaking is the Laymen's Missionary movement, with offices in New York city. The strength, like the general interest given to this international movement, is voiced in the long list of names of men high in the world of finance, as well as those known in the professional and various lines of successful business life. Men whose names are identified with some of the greatest fortunes of the United States are actively interested in this movement to Christianize the world.

The keynote of the movement is based on the belief that if the successful business men of the United States were to apply their time, their business ability and their professional experience to a movement to evangelize the world the purpose of this mission could be accomplished. So for the first time in history the twentieth century will witness the spectacle of this great combination of power with the added strength of the allied churches arraying itself against the heathen world.

The figures that deal with this proposed movement are something that even the lay mind will stop a bit to ponder. To begin with, the Laymen's Missionary movement proposes to evangelize the world within this generation. That this will be no small undertaking one need only observe these figures, furnished by the Laymen's Missionary movement:

Of the world's entire population of 1,500,000,000 only 500,000,000, or one-third, are Christians. Now, to fulfill the vow taken by the movement will require money, and much of it. The statisticians of the movement have figured that it will require about $35,000,000 annually to do the work. This means $1,925,000,000 to be spent in the next thirty-five years to evangelize the world.

Can this be done? The Laymen's Missionary movement says that it can, and on May 3 they will open their first national congress in Chicago to discuss plans for carrying on this worldwide campaign against heathenism. About 4,500 representative men coming from every state in the Union will attend this congress, to be held in the Auditorium.

ACTORS TO GIVE TAFT MEDAL

Presentation to President on May 9 First Event of Its Kind.

President Taft will receive the first medal ever presented to the chief magistrate by the theater on May 9, when he goes to New York from Washington expressly to open the Actors' Fund fair. The presentation will be made by a committee of twelve of the leading actresses on the dramatic stage.

The medal, which was designed by Chester Beach, one of the youngest of New York sculptors, was struck in gold. Mr. Beach was commissioned to make the design by Archer M. Huntington, president of the American Numismatic society. The selection of the design was made by John W. Alexander, president of the American Academy of Design and chairman of the art committee of the Actors' Fund fair, from a great number of drawings and plates submitted for the competition. The face of the medal portrays "Charity" coming forward, with "Comedy" and "Tragedy" stretching forth her arms in an appeal for charity. On the reverse side, in low relief, are the comedy and tragedy masks. The medal bears the words "Actors' Fund, New York, 1910." The dies for the medal were donated by Edward J. Deitsch.

A PARTY FOR HUSBANDS.

Pittsburg Women's Club Will Give It In Place of a Rose Fete.

The Women's club of Pittsburg, which recently took umbrage at insinuations of race suicide in Pittsburg and which in self defense gave a baby show for babies of members only, caused additional interest the other night by announcing that the usual June rose fete would not be given this year by the club, but instead there would be a garden party for husbands.

The club promises to make somewhat of a flutter by its display of husbands in the rose month. It is whispered that husbands of one half the members of the club do not know the husbands of the other half, and this is intended to make every one acquainted.

Appropriate.

"I want to look at some canes," said a magnificent young man to the shopkeeper, "and I'm in a great hurry."

"Yes, sir; yes, sir," responded the shopkeeper, very much flurried. "Here, James," to shop assistant, "show this gentleman some hurricanes."—London Fun.

TO EQUALIZE RATES FOR PRODUCERS

Railroad Committee Launches Bomb at Milk Contractors

Boston, May 4.—Action taken at the state house may end the milk war. The legislative committee on railroads voted unanimously to favorably report bills which will enable, without further legislation, the railroad commissioners to order roads to give farmers the same milk transportation rates enjoyed by contractors. The bills, which will be reported favorably, repeal the restrictive milk transportation law of 1906.

The action of the committee is regarded at the state house as a bombshell in the ranks of the contractors. The bills will undoubtedly be reported to the legislature today.

The agricultural members of the legislature, numbering more than fifty, at a meeting of the committee on agriculture at the state house, passed stirring resolutions, in which they took the side of the milk producers in the milk controversy, and appointed a committee of five to have the attorney general investigate the whole matter thoroughly. The farmers were encouraged to maintain their stand.

SORORITY KNELL SOUNDED

Result of Initiation Ceremony Which Sent Girl to Sanitarium

Bridgeport, Conn., May 4.—Fraternities and sororities at the Bridgeport high schools will be abolished by board of education, beginning with the next school year.

This is the substance of a resolution adopted by the board, following its investigation, as a committee of the whole, of the recent initiation of Miss Lorrain Clark, a member of the high school, into a sorority.

The investigation followed a complaint by the father of Miss Clark, who alleged that as a result of the initiation his daughter had become so ill that she had to be sent to a sanitarium.

Miss Anna Farrington of Dorchester, formerly of Wollaston, has been the guest of Miss Clara Mansfield of Davis street for several days.

The leading golfers of the State are entered for the open tournament of the Wollaston Golf club, which opened today.

It is with sadness that we announce the passing from out this life today of a young life, which through months of illness has been courageous and hopeful, Miss Jessie D. Gardner, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Gardner of Edwards street.

LEAVING THE MINISTRY.

The most important business of the Norfolk conference of Congregational churches at Holbrook on Tuesday was the appointment of a committee to investigate the "causes that are influencing so many of the ablest and most efficient men to abandon the work of Christian ministry for other pursuits." Four ministers of the district, which includes Quincy, have recently resigned for this reason, and they constitute one-ninth of the active pastors.

STEADILY GAINING.

The Ledger is forging right ahead, the past year being one of the best since the paper started nearly a quarter of a century ago. It is not alone in one department but in all that the Ledger notes steady gain. The circulation increases every day both by subscription and daily sales; the advertising is brisk not only as to quantity but quality, the clientage representing the most reliable caterers to home trade. There are no dead ads or space fillers and readers will make no mistake in following up the advertising tips in the Ledger. During April over a thousand dollars' worth of contracts were signed for new local advertising also several contracts for a good class of foreign advertising. With the May bookings already coming in and each month gaining it looks as though it would soon be a crowd.

IN HANDS OF MAYOR

Wants Some Time to Consider Express Permits

At the Mayor's office this noon it was said that none of the orders granting permits to expressmen had been signed. The Mayor said that all expressmen granted permits would be notified this afternoon to appear before him Thursday morning at City Hall, at 9 o'clock as he desired to interview all applicants before he signed any orders.

The orders passed by the City Council Monday evening granting permits to transport liquor, to run pool tables, to common victuallers etc., were placed in the hands of the Mayor this morning at 9 o'clock. An hour later the Mayor and Chief of Police Burrell went into executive session to consider them.

The Mayor said that there were some of the expressmen whose records he personally knew to be all right, and that he would probably sign these permits immediately. There were others which he desired time to investigate, and it was somewhat doubtful when they would be signed.

There were something like 125 orders passed by the City Council Monday evening, a large majority of which were given to the Mayor. As some of these will require his signature twice to be complete, it can readily be seen that he is apt to have an attack of the writer's cramp before he gets through. His Honor said this morning that his right hand was a little lame, so he may need a few days.

HYDE PARK DRY.

The Selectmen of Hyde Park voted Tuesday evening not to grant any express permits to transport liquor, or druggist licenses to sell liquor.

ANOTHER LAUNCHING.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Company has issued invitations for another launching. On Thursday, May 12, the U. S. torpedo boat destroyer No. 27 will be christened "Sterrett." The launch is scheduled for 11.30 A. M.

ODD FELLOWS' ANNIVERSARY.

Mt. Wollaston and John Hancock lodges, Manet encampment and George L. Gill Rebekah lodge are planning to observe the ninety-first anniversary of American Odd Fellowship on Thursday evening, May 12. The affair will be held at Alpha hall and a large gathering of the fraternity and their friends is assured. The program as now outlined includes vocal and instrumental music and readings by out of town talent, an address on Odd Fellowship by Past Grand Chief Patriarch William H. Mitchell of Boston, a collation and dancing.

BREACH OF PROMISE.

In the superior civil court at East Cambridge on Tuesday before Judge Crosby the jury awarded Mrs. Emma Boisner of Watertown $500 in her suit for breach of promise against John Robbaa of Houghs Neck. In reply to a question is she was now willing to marry Robba the woman replied no. She sued to recover $5,000.

—Overseers of the poor in Athol have supplied to all persons locally authorized to dispense liquors a list of forty heads of families who have received aid from the poor department within the last year, and have forbidden the dealers, druggists insell t osuch persons. The boycotted persons naturally complain; yet it seems a logical proposition that no community is under a moral obligation to help its paupers save money to buy rum.—Boston Transcript.

Soon Tired of His Books.

The 7,000 volumes of chronicles and travels from which Gibbon distilled the "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" were purchased by Beckford after the writer's death. "I bought it," said the author of "Vathek," "to have something to read when I passed through Lausanne." There were few rarities in the collection, but most of the authors were in the best obtainable editions and in perfect condition. The fastidious Gibbon was incapable of behaving disrespectfully to a book. For six weeks Beckford reveled in his purchase and read himself nearly blind. He soon tired of his books, however, and presented the whole collection to a German physician named Schell. The recipient showed his appreciation of the treasure by promptly selling it.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Close Vote on the Anti-Injunction Bill

All day Tuesday the House debated the National income tax without reaching a vote.

By a close vote of 103 to 105 the House refused to order to a third reading the anti-injunction bill which provides for a jury trial in proceedings of punishment of violations of injunctions.

Representative Thomas of Quincy and five others of the committee on Metropolitan Affairs dissented from the report of the committee to extend the civil service law to collecting treasury and penal institutions in Boston.

The greater Boston movement again received a black eye the committee on Ways and Means reporting adversely on the bill to define the Metropo'itan Boston district and the Metropolitan Boston council.

The senate postponed the John Weaver Sherman anti-injunction bill, the eight-hour bill, the Seaman's Union bill, the Canning eight-hour bill, the trade union fines bill and the bill relative to the liabilities of married women.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

The Red Sox are going wrong.

Will "Jep" Saunders and Johnnie Rogers drop in and see me at their earliest convenience. I have good news for them.

It is good news to lovers of horseflesh in Quincy to learn that the grand circuit will remain intact this season, thus giving all of us a chance to see racing at Readville as usual.

If it could be arranged, I would like to see Quincy High school nine meet the representatives from Thayer Academy this season. These schools are going at a fast clip and in Rice and Willard, both have south-paw twirlers who bow to none in this section. Get busy, Manager Veale, and see if we cannot have a battle royal between these great rivals.

The M. S. girls held a very enthusiastic meeting last evening. It was voted to give the proceeds of the dance held last Wednesday evening to the Tuberculosis Camp fund and it was handed to Treasurer Plummer this noon. The amount goes well up into double figures and the club deserve much praise for this move.

That was a great game at Cambridge yesterday when Harvard defeated Holy Cross college of Worcester by a score of 1 to 0. The Holy Cross battery consisted of "Joe" Foley and "Bernie" Spillane. Foley has pitched frequently for Stoughton Old Colony league club and I am personally acquainted with Spillane, who is a fine catcher. By the way, Aronson, the Harvard outfielder, will play with the Quincy league team this season. "Rube."

HEAVY SUITS FOR DAMAGES

One Against City and One Against Shipyard

Among the cases recently entered in the Norfolk Superior court are two claiming large damages from Quincy.

A. Evelyn Jones sues the city of Quincy to recover $5,000 damages for the death of her husband, Fred Jones, who, while in the city's employ as a linesman, was killed by an electric shock, Dec. 3, 1909.

Fred Hopperman of Boston sues the Fore River Ship Building Co., to recover $15,000 damages for personal injuries due to a fall from a platform, March 19, 1909, while at work on the church at 1 P. M., a reception in shipyard at Quincy.

HERE'S SAM LANGFORD'S TIP ON BIG FIGHT.

Why not take a real live hunch on the big fight from a man who knows? Let's get right on this Jeffries-Johnson affair. The way to do this is to peruse the ultimatum of one Samuel Langford, who plays the role of general reducer of fight championship aspirations. Samuel recently issued a statement in which he offered to fight anybody in the world, with the sole exception of James J. Jeffries.

"That Mistah Jeff he ain't no man; he's just a big train, and he's going to run over eunybody 't tries to hol' him back," said Langford when asked about the matter.

"But how about Johnson?" was the query to him.

"Honey, he's jest mah meal ticket. If I can get that big moke in front of me I'll knock him clear out of the moving pictures. Yas, suh, I will. I know, 'cause I met him once."

If there is any better line on the matter than this it has yet to be dug up. Langford's unconscious tip on the big mill is surely not biased. He can whip Jack, but nothing doing with Jeff.

BASEBALL TIPS

Larry Lajoie of the Cleveland Americans is proving to be an excellent first baseman. The position is new to the clever and hard hitting player.

Manager Jennings of Detroit has about decided to carry ten pitchers. They are Mullin, Donovan, Summers, Willett, Lelivelt, Works, Killian, Pernoll, Browning and Stroud.

CLOSE CALL FOR TWO CHILDREN

Rescued Just in Time from Burning Cottage Destroyed by Fire

Chief Williams Has Ill Turn While Responding

The one and one half story frame cottage at 40 Sachem street, Wollaston, occupied by William Anderson and owned by George Mitchell of East Elm avenue, was completely gutted by fire Wednesday evening caused by a centre draught lamp.

The fire made a big blaze which could be seen all over the city, and had made great headway before the fire department arrived.

The two children of the Anderson's, Charles aged seven and Helen aged four, were asleep in the chamber above. Mr. Anderson was preparing to shave in the room below, and had set the lamp on the chiffonier while he went for some hot water. Upon returning Mr. Anderson found the paper sheathing which formed the ceiling of the room to be in flames, and had just time to rescue his two children from the smoke-filled chamber above in their night clothes. In her escape little Helen was slightly burned. The only thing which Mr. Anderson saved was the safety razor he had in his hand at the time and the clothing on his back.

Neighbors seeing the flames telephoned the fire department, and at 9.13 the alarm sounded. Chief Williams while responding to the alarm was taken ill, and required medical attendance. He was unable to leave his wagon when he arrived.

Mrs. Anderson who was attending a lodge meeting in Boston was not notified and returned to find her home in ruins. The furniture of the Anderson's was covered by insurance. George Mitchell is not sure whether this cottage is included in the insurance of his other property or not. The Andersons found shelter with neighbors for the night.

APPEAL TO BEST IN CHILDREN

Mrs. Cabot Discusses What Punishments

The Mothers' Association held its regular meeting at Bethany Congregational Chapel Wednesday afternoon. There was a good sized audience; among those present were ladies from Milton, Wollaston, Quincy Point and Atlantic.

The devotional exercises were in charge of Mrs. W. G. Shaw who conducted them in a very pleasing manner. Mrs. John D. Mackay, president of the association introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Richard C. Cabot of Boston as one to whom much had been given and of whom much should be required.

Mrs. Cabot is a woman of culture and experience in educational matters. She has for years been interested in child study, and her subject, "What punishments are of moral value" is one upon which she has put no end of work. In her own sweet, persuasive manner, Mrs. Cabot tried to show her audience that the old adage "Spare the rod and spoil the child," had ceased to be a safe precept to follow. She said in part that the old methods of punishments had largely been replaced by reasoning together—parent and child. The elder one seeing the child's position, and sympathetically understanding his weakness, and yet with a gentle but firm hand guiding him over the rough spots where discipline was necessary, so carefully and kindly that between the child and the parent there would always be perfect confidence and entire trust.

She showed how necessary it was that the punishment should not be more than the offence required, and how absolute justice to the child would force the latter to feel that a deserved punishment threw the blame upon himself. She gave many instances of how fear of punishments led to deceit and other misdemeanors.

She also said that there are often physical explanations for displays of temper and naughtiness, which will come to light with careful investigation. The system of substituting for punishments the arousing of interests along special lines of work and placing responsibility upon offending children has been one which has brought excellent results.

Mrs. Cabot's whole plea was for sweet reasonableness and untiring efforts to appeal to the best in children rather than the severe methods which often drive the child away and create the great divide between the parent and child.

The members of the Mothers' Association are looking forward to the June meeting which comes the first Wednesday of the month. The speaker of that afternoon is to be Mrs. W. H. Doble. Her subject is to be "The period of adolesence." Mrs. Doble is a most excellent speaker, and a great favorite throughout the city. It is expected that there will be an unusually large attendance at that meeting. The paper which Mrs. Doble has prepared is one upon which she has put much time and thought, and which all mothers will want to hear.

DEADLY CROSSING.

Two more serious if not fatal accidents occurred at the Popes Hill grade crossing of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. on Wednesday, where the Abbott & Miller auto was recently wrecked. Early in the morning George F. Cushing, aged 24, was struck by an inbound train while on his way to work; his skull was fractured and leg lacerated. About 10 A. BOARD OF TRADE IS HAPPY

Return Thanks for Assistance on Court House

The Board of Trade was feeling happy Wednesday evening over its success in securing an $80,000 appropriation for a County Court House in Quincy. First it extended the Daily Ledger a vote of thanks for its excellent report of Wednesday, giving the Board the credit for securing the passage of the act in the Legislature. Then a vote of thanks was extended to Senator Hultman, Representative Thomas, Representative Langelier and the committee of the Board of Trade, for their successful work in behalf of the bill.

Later it voted that the committee on Court House continue its good work and consider available sites and report their recommendations to the board. On this committee are: John R. Richards, John D. Mackay, Eugene R. Stone, Walter E. Piper, Edward J. Sandberg, T. L. Williams and W. P. Thompson.

Secretary Stetson reported that he had received replies from Senators Lodge and Crane, Representatives O'Connell, and most of the Massachusetts Congressmen taking an interest in the petition for the improvement of the Fore river channel.

Mr. Stetson, as one of the delegates to the Fourth of July meeting, reported on the organization.

The Board of Trade learned with pleasure that Congressmen Moore and Small were to be guests of the Quincy Historical Society on Friday, May 20, and voted to cooperate with the Historical Society in entertaining. These gentlemen are foremost in the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association and will speak in Boston May 19, and Brockton, May 21. The committee of the Board of Trade will be Henry L. Kincaide, Frank F. Crane, H. S. Barker and T. L. Williams.

The specially assigned subject for the evening was "Electric lighting." President H. M. Faxon of the Quincy Electric Light Company, sent word, however that he would be unable to attend. The rates for electricity were informally discussed by W. H. Teasdale, A. L. Whitman, John R. Richards, J. D. Mackay, Charles H. Johnson, E. W. Branch and others. The subject was then postponed until the next meeting, and it was voted that the company be requested to send a representative to that meeting.

Voes of thanks were extended to W. H. Teasdale for cigars, and to T. L. Williams for peanuts. Adjourned at 10.45.

SURVEY OF BOYHOOD OF THE CITY

Four Commissioners Appointed to Carry the Recommendations Offered

Will Take Up Work in Earnest in Early Fall

The Quincy Young Men's Christian Association has for some years been earnestly and actively engaged with the problems of the boy. The efforts have however been somewhat spasmodic and without accurate scientific knowledge of the field as a whole ,or its needs.

That resources and energies might be directed in the right channels and the problems more perfectly understood, it was decided that a thorough personal examination of the field should be made, as an intelligent policy could be planned and accomplished only after such an investigation.

In prosecuting this inquiry it was decided to use the outline and general scheme of the now famous "Detroit survey," and we are deeply grateful for this pioneer work which was of invaluable aid to us in the approach and in arriving at our conclusions.

The contemplated plan of the survey was mapped out in December, when two weeks was set aside for the undertaking. At a dinner served in the Association building in December, fifteen men, known in Quincy for their interest in boys and prominent in educational circles met to consummate the plans.

The following acted as chairman of the different subjects investigated:

Rev. J. A. Matherson, "The Home."
C. A. Randall, "The Church and Sunday School."
D. E. Goodspeed, "Amusements."
C. A. Blaisdell, "The Social Evil."
J. D. McKay, "The Juvenile Delinquent."
J. A. Sedgwick, "The Employed Boy."
T. B. Pollard, "Playgrounds."
W. F. Blake, "Baths."

After some weeks which necessarily lapsed in summing up and editing the report, a meeting was called to listen to the reading of the completed report. This meeting adjourned to May 3, when a final discussion was held on the various findings of the survey.

The matter is too voluminous to permit of its publication in full, so some of the recommendations are given herewith which indicate something of the tenor of the study.

1. Organize a commission which shall issue literature in various languages to be read by parents. secure a corps of physicians for a series of talks to fathers and mothers separately ,also a series of talks to be given through the medium of any church or other organization desiring them.

2. Work toward a public sentiment that will demand the opening of school buildings for such meetings, under the supervision of the school department.

3. A social service and educational work for employed boys in the Association and in factories. Group factory or home Bible classes, and group meetings with talks on ethics, history, nature, hygiene, etc. Classes in first aid to the injured. Encourage mutual benefit and saving societies, the giving of educational moving pictures and stereopticon shows.

4. A continuation of the Association College Club vocational talks, and other such organizations, inside the school and out, would help the fellow who wants to stand for right.

5. The public baths in the summer, and the Association swimming pool the year round, should be used to their fullest capacity, in teaching boys to swim. The new method at the Brookline pool and elsewhere is suggested.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Boston now leads Philadelphia as a port and the axis of the universe sticks out of the gilded dome on Beacon Hill a little higher.

With Fourth of July drawing near it is well to keep in mind the record of last year's fatalities.215 little ones killed, 264 maimed and bruised and crippled for life, and 46 boys and girls lost both eyes and were made totally blind for life.

The slogan printed in an Augusta, Me., paper is "Boost Maine!" We like to see something like that, and something to show that actual boosting is being done. Boost your state, and your town. Let the other fellows do the hammer throwing at your district—they will do plenty and some more yet. It is a pretty good idea these days to stand on the sidelines and act as one of the cheering section, and if you have voice enough, be the captain of the section. Whoop it up for your own town every day in the year, and make your town worthy of the whooping up!

DRIFT OF OPINION

The year 1910 will be notable for the formation of a Federation of State Associations opposed to Universal Suffrage for women.

The states of Illinois, Massachusetts New York, and Oregon, already bound by the bonds of a common purpose and a united effort, have welcomed to this Federation the newly formed and vigorous Pennsylvania Association, which has sprung into being, fully equipped with a strong Executive and a distinguished Standing Committee.

Each Association will have a representative on the Federation Committee, which will take charge of inter-state work and everywhere stretch forth the hand of encouragement and persuasion to women who are thinking of organizing to oppose the extension of the suffrage.

This Federation is the first step in the knitting together of the conservative women in every part of this broad country, to express the preponderating latent sentiment opposed to woman suffrage, hitherto largely silent, but which is being roused to assert itself by the persistent and unauthorized claims of the suffragists to the ballot.—The Remonstrance.

A great many readers will undoubtedly be interested in the following extract from the Boston Record. Incidentally, it ought to hold a large measure of concern for wage workers in private circles who must provide from their smaller earnings against the day of possible need, or suffer the consequences:

Former Sergeant-at-Arms Remington is preparing to move from Somerville to Springfield, where he has bought a house. He will thus be nearer his old home in Northampton. That with his half pay of $1700 a year, his pension, and his state aid, his declining years will pass in comfort; and nobody will begrudge it to the veteran. At the same time, a good many are viewing with alarm the possible depletion of the state treasury through the extension of the veteran's retirement act to county officers. The governor himself shares in this feeling, and the bill has been recalled from him, by the senate, for an amendment so that the maximum pension shall not be over $800 a year. It is believed that any veteran receiving over $1600 a year ought to have been able to save something; and anyway the pension system was not established to help high-salaried people.

Thus far, however, it is the higher-paid public employes in whose favor the civil pension principle has been applied. The pensions, based solely upon the completion of a prescribed term, run from $600 a year upwards. We have repeatedly emphasized, for the benefit of private wage earners, what such payments mean, by comparing the pensions with the returns at the highest savings bank dividend rate on the sume requisite to yield a like income. Thus, a public ex-employe drawing a civil pension of $600 is receiving the income, at four per cent, on $15,000. The $1000 pensioner, a like rate on a surplus of $25,000; while the retired official fortunate enough to draw a $1600 pension is receiving the equivalent of a four per cent. dividend on $40,000. If the private wage earners would like to draw such incomes, after having reached the age of 50 or 55, he must save and invest, until like sums are securely placed. Easy, isn't it?

We hope that the governor is waking up to the abuses, the inequalities and the humbuggeries for which the civil pension system, based alone upon the performance of duties for a certain term, is notorious. It would be a good thing if legislators who are thus voting away public money so flippantly, and parading themselves as generous-hearted mortals at cost to the tax-payers, were also to wake up to the folly of their course. They do not seem disposed, however, to pay the slighest heed to the interests of the masses, upon whom the financial burden of these civil pensions, eventually falls. For this reason, it would be a good thing all around if gubernatorial vetoes of these bare-faced raids on the public treasury for the benefit of certain favored officials and public employes were forthcoming. That might tend to rouse the pension-voting legislators to a due appreciation of the virtue of reform.—Salem News.

MILK FAMINE MAY SPREAD OVER EAST

Farmers Expect to Start Strike In the New York Market

Boston, May 5.—A milk strike of gigantic proportions, which will cause a famine throughout the entire east, is threatened by the New England farmers who are fighting the Boston contractors for an increase of 7 cents a can over the usual summer prices.

Angered by the action of the big New York city distributing companies who have come to the assistance of the Boston contractors by shipping carload lots of their own supply, the organized producers declare they have both the power and the will to do just what they threaten.

One of the best organizers in the ranks of the Producers' association was rushed off to New York state to secure the co-operation of the farmers' organizations there, organize the milk producers in the outlying sections, and make the preparations for calling the threatened strike of the New York market.

That the New York producers are ripe for a milk strike, and a demand for better prices and conditions in their own behalf, is the confident belief of the local producers.

The appointment was made on the suggestion of Governor Colton of Porto Rico. It is understood the governor wants to find out the nature of the franchises and the kind of service being rendered under them with a view to bettering the administration of the island in this particular.

WAR RECORD J. Q. BENT

Was in Several Engagements of Civil War

In its interesting war records of different members of the Grand Army the Brockton Enterprise of Tuesday had this sketch of a well known Quincy soldier:

Comrade John Quincy Bent, who was born January 16, 1841, in Dedham, county of Norfolk, State of Massachusetts, entered the service volunteering in the early part of the war for a three-years' term of service, and was mustered as per adjutant-general's records ,as a private in Company H, 11th Regiment (Infantry) Massachusetts Volunteers, June 13, 1861, accredited to Quincy, Mass.

The regiment was raised chiefly in the vicinity of Boston, was ordered to Fort Warren May 4, 1861, and sworn into the service of the United States June 13, 1861. On June 15 it went to Camp Cameron, and on the 24th of the same month started for Washington, D. C. On July 21, 1861, Comrade John Q. Bent, with the regiment, participated in the Battle of Bull Run (or Manassas, Va.) and also in the subsequent three years participated in the following battles and engagements: Williamsburg, Oak Grove, Glendale, Malvern Hill (Aug. 5, '62.) Manassas, Second Bull Run (or Groveton), Aug. 30, 1862; Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, July 2 and 3, '63; Mine Run, Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna, Cold Harbor. Was present also at Yorktown, Fair Oaks, Savage Station, Bristoe Station, Chantilly, Fredericksburg and Potopotomoy. These battles were all fought in Virginia, except Gettsburg in Pennsylvania.

Comrade Bent had three brothers in service namely: George A., who served in the same company with himself, was wounded severely at the battle of Chancellorsville and served the remainder of the time in the Veteran Reserve Corps; William H., (H.) Bent, who served in Company B, 24th Regt. Massachusetts Vols., having previously served as a "Minute Man of 1861" as private in Company K, 5th Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Militia; and Luther M., who served as corporal in Company I, 1st Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers. He was mustered into the service with the regiment May 24, 1861, was severely wounded in the 2d Battle of Bull Run, Va., Aug. 30, 1862, and died in Washington, D. C., by reason of his wounds October 1, 1862.

Comrade John Q. Bent was discharged June 24, 1861, by reason of full three-years term of service. He joined Fletcher Webster Post No. 13, G. A. R., Dec. 2, 1908, by transfer from Post No. 88, of Quincy, Mass.

A good record—four brothers who all enlisted early in the war. They were surely war "bent." They all volunteered and were mustered into the service between April 15 and June 15, 1861. One, William H. H. Bent, jumped into the ranks of the Massachusetts Minute Men of 1861," later volunteering, as did all the others, for a three-years' term of service.

These brothers all can justly point with pride to the records of their several regiments, and their comrades doubtless can give them words of commendation. Certainly if they in any way duplicated the examples of bravery and soldierly conduct of their cousin, Major Luther S. Bent, of the 18th Mass. Regiment of Volunteers, who was promoted from orderly sergeant of Company K to second lieutenant, first lieutenant, captain, and finally to major, which promotions were gained for soldierly conduct and bravery in action and on the field. He too, was a Quincy soldier, of whom Quincy should be and doubtless is proud.

The 11th Mass. Regiment of Volunteers left the State for the seat of war June 24, 1861 and in less than a month was engaged at "First Bull Run," losing 48 killed and wounded besides the missing. Lieut.-Col. Fox says in part in his book, "Regimental Losses:"

"At Gettysburg their (the 11th Mass. Regt.) loss was 23 killed, 96 wounded, and 10 missing, fully half of those engaged. On expiration of the original members of the regiment's three-years' term of service the recruits and re-enlisted veterans of the regiment, left in the field, were formed into five companies, designated at 'Eleventh Battalion,' which was subsequently increased by two companies of similar material left by the Sixteenth Massachusetts Regiment."

Adjutant-General Wm. Schonler of Massachusetts writes to Col. Wm. Blaisdel' May 19th, 1862: "The conduct of the Eleventh Regiment at the battle of Williamsburg was gallant in the extreme, and his Excellency Gov. Andrew tenders to yourself, your officers and your men his warmest congratulations, and his sincere thanks for their bravery and good conduct on that terrible day. As a small recognition of their valor, his Excellency has ordered a new regimental color to be made and forwarded to the regiment."

INDEPENDENCE DAY IN RHODE ISLAND

Patriotic Exercises Held In Old State House at Providence

Providence, May 5.—The 134th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence in the Old Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations was publicly celebrated in this state for the fifth time. Gun salutes at sunrise ushered in the celebration in several places.

Governor Pothier and Speaker Burchard of the house of representatives were the principal speakers at patriotic exercises held in the old state house in Providence. The addresses were delivered in the same room in which the famous declaration was drawn and signed 134 years ago. Public schools throughout the state were generally closed, except where exercises were held, and many business houses closed for the day.

Rhode Island's Declaration of Independence was signed May 4, 1776. The original paper on which Governor Cooke and members of the general assembly enrolled themselves as rebels to the king was brought to light tion as a nurse.

CONFESSION OF ATTENDANT

Aided In Escape of Two Youths From Danvers Insane Asylum

Danvers, Mass., May 5.—Frank C. Wentworth, aged 26, assistant attendant at the Danvers insane hospital, was placed under arrest last evening after he had confessed that he aided in the escape of Van Buskirk and Valway from that institution.

An assistant surgeon interviewed the two boys and got an admission from them that Wentworth had aided them in making their escape from the hospital. District Attorney Peters was communicated with and he at once proceeded to take action against Wentworth.

Wentworth has been employed in the hospital about six weeks. His wife is employed in the same institution jail at this place.

CARE OF THE INSANE

New York, May 5.—More than one-seventh of the entire revenue of New York state is spent for maintaining the hospitals for the insane. Comptroller Williams gave out a statement at Albany concerning the state's finances for the last ten years, and the care of the insane proved to be the biggest single expenditure.

The total receipts of the state for the ten years following Oct. 1, 1899, amounted to $342,025,805, while the disbursements were $326,569,532. For the hospitals for the insane $54,018,-361 was used.

BILL AWAITS TAFT'S RETURN

SENATE STAMPEDE PASSING

Something In the Way of Legislation May Be Corralled by Administration by Return of Wandering Regulars—Prospect of "Empty Session" of Congress Begins to Worry Some Who Wavered on Party Measures

Washington, May 5.—Congress is now doing business with the senate regulars in a distinctly improved condition of mind. Enough of them had grown panic-stricken two or three days ago to throw the senate into the most sensational confusion, but on the authority of men whose business it is to diagnose critical situations, it can be said that the regulars are feeling more cheerful and the insurgents correspondingly depressed.

Enough wandering regulars, it is said, have returned to the reservation to give the administration senators something more than the semblance of control.

The regulars, with their reenforcements, have now definitely decided to let the talk on the bill keep going, but to permit no vote of any kind on the railroad bill until the return of the president on Friday. He will then be confronted with the question whether the bill shall be abandoned or an effort be made to put it through in the best form possible after two and possibly five important sections have been dropped out of it. The insurgent leaders say that they expect to see some kind of a bill put through.

A long conference was held by forty-three Republican senators to consider whether the dismantling of the railroad bill meant that the whole administration program had failed or whether there was yet time and a chance to save something out of the wreckage.

When President Taft returns to Washington he will be told that forty-three Republicans of the senate will pledge themselves to carry out his program and he will be asked to use the club if necessary, to bring four more Republicans into line.

At the conference all of the senators present agreed that if the party measures failed they would have nothing except "a long empty session of congress" on which to go before the country next fall. The party leaders say this picture "sobered" some Republicans who have wavered on many of the party measures.

"Early adjournment of this session of congress means no legislation of public importance whatever. If the administration legislation is to be put through at this session it presages a long session of congress." Thus spoke a senate leader in reviewing the legislative situation now confronting congress.

The senator pointed out the divergent views now entertained by both houses of congress with respect to the bills introduced at the instance of the Taft administration and threw up his hands in despair. The situation as outlined by him was this:

The senate and house are about to take widely divergent paths as to postal savings bank legislation.

The same situation obtains as to the railroad bill.

The house has passed a statehood bill that is hardly a first cousin to the proposed senate bill.

The senate is about to amend the house conservation bill giving the president power to withdraw lands from the public domain.

The anti-injunction legislation wanted by President Taft suits few as it has been proposed.

It has been learned here that some of the railroad representatives who have been watching the progress of railroad legislation have let it be known that without the sections which the senate leaders have either abandoned or are about to abandon, the railroads will lose interest in the legislation and give the word to those they can influence to defeat the remainder of the bill if possible. It is understood that nothing definite as to the final fate of the railroad bill will be decided by the senate leaders until President Taft gets back to Washington on Friday.

In the meantime, it is understood to be the plan of the Republican insurgents to hammer away at the railroad bill in the hope that a bill may finally be passed by the senate which will produce what they believe to be results.

The Democrats are enjoying the embarrassments of their political adversaries to the full and are not inclined to give aid or comfort to either side on any pending administration legislation. In the house, however, the Democrats are assisting to make the house railroad bill as strong as possible, although they will probably oppose its passage almost unanimously on the final vote.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

The High School baseball team is surely making a fine record this season. Friday the Weymouth nine was defeated 7 to 3. The Revere team failed to defeat the Quincy players Monday, and the final score was also 7 to 3. This winning streak began April 19 when South Boston was conquered 4 to 3, and a few days later Rockland to the score of 13 to 2. Let us hope it will not stop until the season ends. Phil Rice in the pitcher's box is doing fine work and improving every game. The other players, H. Chapman catcher, Murphy on first base, M. Chapman on second, Capt. Bates on third base, Manning at shortstop and Barry, Allen and O'Connor in the field have put up excellent all around games. They are also strong in the batting line. The Chapman brothers especially have done great work at the bat. Quincy's career in the baseball field has made almost as meteoric a start as the basketball five. It is to be hoped that the Brockton nine will meet the same fate tomorrow.

Tuesday, May 10 a game is scheduled with Abington at Quincy, and Thursday, May 12, the Melrose team is expected to meet Capt. Bates' team at Merrymount park. Come out and watch the good work of the nine.

In the Cushing Academy "Breeze" for April is a report of a track meet Feb. 14 in which Norman S. Cook, Q. H. S., '09 took a prominent part. He was chairman of the committee in charge of the meet. In the high jump he won second place with five feet. It will be remembered this was his record at the High school meet May 29, 1909. Third place was also won by him in the running broad jump, distance sixteen feet, six inches.

The next "Goldenrod" will be issued June 11. In the recent competition the editors have decided that a story by Charles Sayward entitled, "All's well that ends well," worthy of first prize. None of the other stories presented have been considered quite worthy of the second prize. There seems to be rather a dearth of good poems so the editors have granted an extension of time until next Friday, so others may enter this competition. Some excellent plans will be put into operation for the next issue. Besides offering a prize of two dollars for the best and second best original stories, a one dollar prize is offered for the best original poem. The editors have voted to have "room editors" under the direction of local editor William Northrop. It is hoped by this that much of interest will be collected. As customary, a picture of the editorial staff will be the frontspiece. The characteristics of the members of the class of 1910 will be written in rhym, and promises to be very interesting. Thus it is hoped because of the many original features that this issue will surpass all others.

MORTGAGE BURNED

Reception to New Pastor of Park and Downs Church

It was a gala day at the Park and Downs Congregational church on Wednesday evening when combined with a reception to their new pastor, Rev. William Bingham Ayers, the burning of the church mortgage took place and over one thousand dollars was raised toward the construction of a new edifice.

A social time in the vestry preceded, and refreshments of fruit punch and fancy crackers were served by a committee composed of Mrs. G. M. Daniels, Mrs. Theodore Gram, Mrs. Frank C. Knowlton, Mrs. William Thompson and Mrs. Reginald Shaw, assisted by the following young ladies: Miss Elizabeth Torrey, Miss Freda Klingenhagen, Miss Florence Nelson, Miss Ethel Axberg, Miss Flora Sass, Miss Bessie Hunter and Miss Inez Jefferon.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the reception began and at the head of the stairs in front of a canopy of the national colors stood Rev. William Bingham Ayers assisted by Deacon and Mrs. James A. Macdonald and Deacon and Mrs. Dringwell.

The entertainment opened with a hearty selection by the chorus choir of the church with Mrs. Saunders and Mr. Hey in the solo parts. Miss Henrietta Gram presided at the piano.

Rev. Mr. Ayers, after a brief address of welcome, turned the meeting over to Rev. Asher Anderson, D. D., secretary of the National association of Congregational ministers. Dr. Anderson said that he was there to raise money for the proposed new stone church and raise it he did. The money came in amounts ranging from five to one hundred dollars until something over nine hundred dollars was reached and he was obliged to leave and catch a train.

Rev. Thomas W. Davison of the Atlantic Memorial church continued the good work, and when the thousand dollar mark was reached the applause was loud and prolonged. As each five or ten dollar pledge was added, the clapping continued.

During the evening two readings, "Fishing" and "He was there and so was I" were given in a most fetching manner by Miss Marguerite Hutchins, who was heartily encored. Mrs. Steffens contributed a violin solo, Mrs. Saunders rendered "Jesus lover of my soul" most beautifully.

Rev. E. N. Hardy D. D. of Bethany church and Rev. Thomas W. Davison of the Atlantic Memorial church brought the greetings of their respective churches, and spoke a few words of encouragement and felicitation.

The culminating point of the evenings program was reached when Frank C. Blake and George A. Smith burned the mortgage, which for the past 14 years has been standing over the church, to the strains of "Praise God from whom all blessings flow" by the entire congregation.

—Approximately 2,500 immigrants were landed at Boston, within a period of twenty-four hours last week, by three ocean liners. As a straw showing how foreign arrivals are swelling the population ,these figures are significant. And the business, too, is bounding at all the Atlantic ports.

MAY DANCE AND WHIST

Enjoyable Party by the Quincy Catholic Club

One of the most enjoyable of the many social functions held under the auspices of the ladies of the Quincy Catholic club, was the annual May dance and whist, which was held Wednesday evening at Alpha and Union halls. The affair was under the personal direction of Miss Mary Louise Gavin, the president of the club, who was assisted by an efficient committee of ladies.

Both halls looked very attractive with their decorations of apple blossoms which with the handsome gowns worn by the ladies made a picture pretty to look upon.

Cuff's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing, which took place in Alpha hall, while those who preferred a quiet game of whist occupied Union hall. Something like thirty tables engaged in whist, their comforts being well looked after by an efficient committee headed by Mrs. Edward J. Murphy, the vice president of the club. The servers and score markers were Miss Esther Dasha, Miss Emily Dinegan, Miss Alice Harkins, Miss Anna Heaney, Miss Alice Mahoney, Miss Carmel Brogan, Miss Clara Brown and Miss Margaret Sullivan.

At the conclusion of two hours of whist souvenirs for the best scores were awarded to Mrs. George T. Magee, Miss Julia Duffy, Mrs. Maurice P. Spillane and Miss Agnes Kelley. The successful gentlemen to receive souvenirs were Michael Cook, Charles C. Hearn and Richard Walsh.

While the whist was in progress the younger set were holding forth in Alpha hall where they were later joined by the whist players, all uniting in the dance until midnight, the program of dances being so arranged that those who did not desire to participate in the more modern dances could enjoy the quadrilles. Encores of the various dance numbers were a rule and in some cases, especially the moonlight waltz, at least four encores were given.

Leo J. McMaster was the floor director, and he was assisted by the ushers whose distinguishing mark was a gold sash. They were: G. B. Gavin, J. J. Deasy, E. J Murphy, E. L. Bean, D. J. Deasy, J. J. McAnarney, T. J. Dunphy, R. E. McDonnell, J. A. Dasha, T. J. Carey, C. C. Hearn, E. J. Barrett, L. W. Lyons, W. E. Elcock, J. W. Walsh, W. L. Russell, W. J. Biganess.

Observe Ladies Night and Boom Base Call

The seventh annual ladies' night of the Makaria Fraternity was held Wednesday evening in the chapel of the Bethany church and was attended by upwards of 150. The affair was entirely informal and more in the nature of a social. These annual affairs are always held just previous to the opening of the baseball season, and are to create enthusiasm and give impetus to the baseball club. During the first hour, under the leadership of Delcevare King, the founder of the fraternity, the fellows and their lady guests indulged in games of various kinds, and Mr. King kept everything on the move.

Shortly after 9 o'clock an adjournment was made to the dining room, where ice cream and cake and fruit were served. The dining room looked particularly attractive with its decorations of apple blossoms. The tables also were decorated with red, white and blue, the Makaria colors, while at one end of the room was the large red flag with the letters "M. F."

Charles E. Grassick, president of the fraternity, presided at the after lunch, and after a few words of welcome and a word about the approaching athletic season, introduced Theophilus King. Mr. King spoke in his usual happy vein. He was followed by Dr. Edwin N. Hardy, Delcevare King and Paul Frohwein, the new manager of the Makaria ball team. Mr. Frohwein received an enthusiastic reception. He spoke chiefly of the coming season, of the personnel of this year's ball team, and what it hoped to accomplish. Following the remarks of Mr. Frohwein there was informal remarks by several members of the fraternity. The evening's enjoyment came to an end at 10 o'clock, and the general sentiment was that it had been the best ever.

GOLD MEDAL FOR PEARY

Britishers Welcome Him as the First and Only Pole Finder

London, May 5.—Before a vast audience which filled every corner of Royal Albert hall, the Royal Geographical society last night presented Robert E. Peary with the special gold medal of the society, and through its president, welcomed the American explorer as "the first and only human being who ever led a party of his fellow creatures to a pole of the earth."

A silver replica of the medal was presented to Captain Bartlett, who commanded the steamer Roosevelt, and who accompanied Peary to the last camp before the dash to the Pole.

Commander Peary prefaced his lecture with a tribute to the British Arctic explorers, who for centuries made such splendid efforts to reach the Pole and paved the way for those coming after. The lecture was enthusiastically received.

DEPLORES BEER-SWILLING

Kaiser Warns Germans That It Is Causing Them to Fall Behind

Berlin, May 5.—The kaiser is being applauded by one section of German opinion and condemned by another for his sharp condemnation of the beer-swilling habits of German students.

His criticism did not take the form of an ex-cathedra denunciation, like his past strictures on gambling and high living in the army, but was addressed to a son of Professor Erhardt, who is a freshman at the Freiburg university and who has just joined the students' corps, in which the ability to drink great quantities of beer is one of the first qualifications of popularity.

The emperor earnestly warned the lad that the drinking habit was seriously damaging not only to individual students, but to the German nation with the result that both were falling behind foreigners.

GIRLS' STORIES OF A "HINDOO"

Will Shed Light on Mysterious Doings of High Priest

REVOLT OF HIS DEVOTEES

Brought About by Energy of Sister of One Young Woman Who Says She Was Chained by His Hypnotic Influence—Leader of Strange Cult Under $15,000 Bail—Students Took Oath to Keep Secrets

New York, May 5.—Exposure of the details of mysterious Oriental rites which Pierre A. Bernard and the devoted adherents of his cult are said to have practiced nightly in a richly furnishd house in Seventy-fourth street, near West End avenue, is expected to be made when Bernard will be examined in court to answer to the complaints of two girls who have made charges against him.

Miss Zelia Hopp, who lived with her parents in the Bronx, and Miss Gerhard Leo, 19 years old, who was taken from the Seventy-fourth street establishment, are the complainants. It is charged that Bernard conducted seances in which he instructed a class of students attired in strange and scanty raiment in the "mysteries of the Orient" of which he was regarded as high priest. He was held in $15,000 bail by Magistrate Breen to appear in the West Side court again when the real hearing of the case is scheduled to take place.

The revolt of some of Bernard's devotees had its beginning when Miss Hopp, who is 18 years old, wrote to Mrs. Edward H. Miller of Tacoma, Wash., informing her that her sister was being mistreated by Bernard.

Mrs. Miller, who came 3500 miles to rescue her sister, is directly responsible for Bernard's arrest. When she received the letter from Miss Hopp she immediately came to this city and took the matter up with the police. She got Miss Hopp to accompany her to the police station and was with the police when they forcibly entered Bernard's house and broke up his Oriental seance.

Mrs. Miller says she has known Bernard for several years, having first made his acquaintance in Tacoma. She says that first of all he poses as a physician. Assistant District Attorney Reynolds, who is in charge of the "white slave" investigations, and who talked with the three women, said the Medical society would probably look into this feature of Bernard's career.

"I know all about this man Bernard," said Mrs. Miller. "He is the active head of an organization known as the Tantrik Order, an East Indian Black Magic society, which uses the teaching of alleged Orientialism to cloak terrible things.

"His Oriental classes met at the Seventy-fourth street house three and four times a week. You couldn't get past the door unless you had the countersign. New candidates are required to take a most horrible oath never to reveal what takes place at the gatherings.

"My sister has been at the house for months and knows all about the goings on there. She says they paid $15 a month rent. What the police saw Monday night when we broke in there was respectable compared to the proceedings of what is known as the inner circle, composed of persons whom Bernard felt he could trust.

"My little sister's life has been blasted, but I made up my mind that if publicity could keep other girls from following in her footsteps I would give out the facts. Miss Hopp is going back to Tacoma to live with us."

Miss Hopp and Miss Leo told the police that Bernard exerted a hypnotic influence over them and that they were unable to leave him of their own accord.

Miss Hopp said that she had become acquainted with Bernard last October through a friend who told her he was a heart specialist. He visited her home in the Bronx and convinced her parents that if they would put her in his care for a short time he would cure her of an affection of the heart from which she had suffered for some time.

She says that after a few visits he convinced her that their relations would have to become more intimate if she wished to regain her health. She says he placed her in a flat in West One Hundred and Ninth street and kept her there under a hypnotic spell until a few weeks ago.

She says he assured her of his love, and she believed him until she found out about his relations with Miss Leo. Then she left him and went home. She said she had never been initiated into the Oriental "mysteries" and knew nothing of them until a few days ago.

Miss Leo said she had known Bernard in Tacoma and had come to this city to take up the study of Orientalism and act as his secretary. This was last March, and after she had been at the house a short time their relations changed. Both girls say that they had their liberty at all times, but could not break the hypnotic spell which bound them to Bernard.

JOHN Q. A. WARD, SCULPTOR.

Famous Artist Who Was Called Maker of American History.

John Quincy Adams Ward, dean of American sculptors and one of her greatest, who died recently at his home in New York city in his eightieth year, was born in Urbana, O., on June 29, 1830.

Mr. Ward spent practically his entire life in New York city, having gone there from Ohio in his youth. His first teacher in the art of sculpture was Henry K. Brown, with whom he collaborated on the famous equestrian statue of Washington in New York.

Among his other well known works are equestrian statues of Sheridan and Hancock in Philadelphia, and in New York the statues of "The Indian Hunter," "The Pilgrim," Shakespeare, all in Central park, New York; Henry Ward Beecher in Borough hall park, Brooklyn; also statues of Commodore Perry at Newport, R. I., and Israel Putnam at Hartford, Conn.

Daniel C. French, a pupil of Ward, in paying a tribute to his genius recalled how Edwin Booth, the great tragedian, posed for the Shakespeare statue in Central park and gave helpful suggestion for arranging the folds of the cloak. "But his greatest work," said Mr. French, "a work which St. Gaudens pronounced the finest equestrian statue in the world, is the statue of General Thomas in Washington. There the horse is a real horse in every detail. Mr. Ward knew horses and loved them."

The ancestral Wards landed at Jamestown, Va., in 1607, and some of them moved westward in the course of time, stopping at Urbana, O., Mr. Ward's birthplace. He never saw a piece of sculpture before he was fifteen years old, but long before that he had learned how to make such queer figures with mud and clay that the country people called him "Ward's queer boy."

One day he went to Cincinnati, where he saw for the first time a piece of real sculpture, the work of Hiram Powers. Returning home, he attempted to mold figures of his own, without encouragement from his parents, however, who regarded the boy's efforts as foolishness.

If it had not been for a sister Ward might have remained a resident of Urbana. The sister came from Brooklyn to visit her parents and managed to arrange for her brother to return with her to New York for instruction. Toward the end of seven years' time he turned out "The Indian Hunter," which is one of the notable bits of sculpture at present in Central park, New York.

The first work for which Mr. Ward was paid was the execution of a wolf's head for a fountain in Mexico. He was given $10 for it. Mr. Ward was fond of fishing, and his real home of late years had been on his estate of 2,000 acres at Peekamoose lake, in the Catskills. Here the sculptor had a large house as well as a clubhouse and entertained in them large parties of his friends. When he was in his prime Mr. Ward was a skillful boxer, and up to the end of his life he was a Hercules for strength.

One of his paternal ancestors, John Ward, reached this side of the Atlantic in 1619, landing at Jamestown, Va., and a maternal ancestor settled in Pennsylvania in 1685. His lineage, the fact that he never studied abroad and the character of his work made him what his brother artists have often called him, an indigenous artist, "one of the makers of American history." In another sense he was a "maker of American history," since he had preserved its chapters for all time in the faces and figures of his many noted statues.

Mr. Ward was married three times. He had been an academician since 1863.

MARK TWAIN'S FOUR GIFTS.

Brander Matthews Discusses Them In Lecture at Columbia University.

According to Professor Brander Matthews, who lectured the other afternoon at Columbia university, in New York city, Mark Twain belonged to that group of writers headed by Cervantes and Moliere. "As a writer," said he, "he combined four great gifts, for he was a real humorist, a great story teller, a great stylist and a great moralist. As a stylist he surpassed Stevenson and Thoreau. Though he was never a preacher, he was a great moralist, because he understood life clearly and adequately.

"He will go down to posterity for a trio of his works rather than for the completed works. This trio will probably be 'Huckleberry Finn,' 'Tom Sawyer' and 'Pudd'nhead Wilson.' The 'Man That Corrupted Hadleyburg' is one of the finest works of its kind in English literature and compares favorably with the best work of Swift."

Curious Bequest to a Golf Club.

U. B. Corbett of Crabwell Hall, Mollington, Cheshire, England, left directions in his will that he should be cremated and added, "I should wish a £3 ($15) cup to be given to the Cheshire Golf club, to be competed for on the day of my cremation and on the six following anniversaries."

Halley's Comet.

[Note.—The latest sidereal news by telescope is to the effect that Halley's comet has lost its tail.]

Hey, there, comet!
What's this news we hear?
Are you losing your appendage
As you are drawing near?
Well, say, now, don't you do it,
Or if the thing's been done
You'd better chase around awhile
And find another one,
Because we want the very best
That's going in the starry skies,
And we may say to you right now
A bobtail comet we despise.
—W. J. Lampton in New York Tribune.

HOW VICTIMS ARE RECRUITED

Traffic In Young Girls Is Carried on Systematically

A CONFESSION BY LEVENSON

New York Man Who Received Commission on Girls' Earnings Says There Are Three "Stockades" In New York In Which Best of Young Girls Are Kept Ready For Instant Delivery at Any Hour

New York, May 5.—Harry Levenson, under indictment for selling young girls into lives of shame, told the district attorney that there are at least three "stockades" in New York, in each of which from five to ten such girls are kept ready night and day for instant delivery wherever they may be wanted. His counsel was with him during the interview and confirmed it last night.

Little effort, said Levenson, is made to recruit women of the street. The stockades are filled from the best of young girls who are unhappy at home or who live narrow lives on their own earnings and long for leisure, good clothes, gayety and freedom from restraint.

Well-dressed women make it a business to frequent cheap restaurants, moving picture shows, sentimental matinees and the bargain counters to single out such cases, and first winning attention with an invitation to dinner then describe the ease and pleasure of the alternative they propose.

The girls delivered to the stockade, it then becomes the business of the proprietor to place his merchandise. It was in this end of the traffic, Levenson told the district attorney, that he was a specialist. His business was to find a house where the girl was wanted.

The house paid the stockade keeper a lump sum and allowed Levenson a 10 percent commission on the girl's earnings. He and others like him kept in touch with their charges, he said, and often transferred them from house to house. He had little to do with recruiting. That was almost wholly in the hands of women, who found it easier to get a hearing.

TRIES SUICIDE IN CELL

Woman Overcome by Remorse When Arrested For Alleged Theft

Boston, May 5.—Overwhelmed with shame at being arrested on a charge of theft, Miss Elizabeth White, 54 years of age, tried to commit suicide in her cell in the city prison by hanging.

She tore the sheets of the bed into strips and made a rope. One end she made fast to the bars of the door, the other she made into a noose and placed it about her neck. Then she swung clear of the cot.

Other prisoners saw her. They screamed and the police rushed in. The woman was cut down. Judge Murray continued her case until she is examined as to her sanity.

Miss White is charged with stealing a handbag and contents valued at $15. She refused to tell anything about herself aside from her name.

NO REDRESS IN COURTS

Civil Service Commission Can Reject Boston Mayor's Appointments

Boston, May 5.—Neither Mayor Fitzgerald or any of his rejected appointees can hope to get any redress in the courts as the result of the civil service commission turning down four of the mayor's new appointees without making public its reasons for the same.

Such at least is the opinion which Corporation Counsel Babson has submitted to Fitzgerald on this matter. Babson says that the power of rejecting the mayor's appontees which the civil service commission has, may be likened to the powers which the old board of aldermen had, and also to the present powers of the governor's counsel.

MAINE TO BE RAISED

Bodies Confined In Hulk to Be Interred In Arlington Cemetery

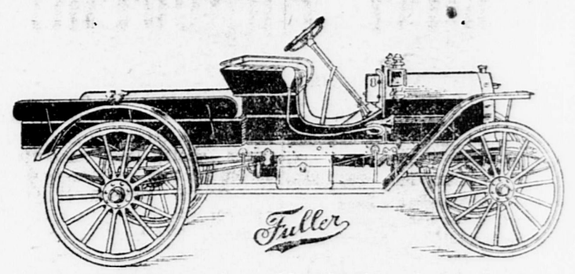

Washington, May 5.—After twelve years, the ill-fated battleship Maine is to be removed from Havana harbor and the bodies which went down with the vessel will be interred in the national cemetery at Arlington.

A bill providing for such removal and burial, which has passed the house, was passed by the senate Wednesday.

CURED TO STAY CURED

If you suffer from backache—
From urinary disorders—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.
Grateful people testify.
Here's one case of it:

C. H. Foster, 180 Thatcher street, Milton Mass., says: "The symptoms of kidney trouble in my case were not serious at first and I paid little attention to them. The result was that before long I found myself firmly in the grasp of this complaint. I became so weak that I could hardly attend to my work and I also suffered from sharp pains in various parts of my body. I lost twenty pounds in weight and could not sleep well. I was very nervous, had no energy and was in such poor health that the doctor told me that I should take to my bed. I did not do this, however, being unwilling to give up. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised. I procured a supply and had only taken part of the contents of one box before I began to feel better. From that time on I improved steadily until I was well." (Statement given May 1905.)

A Permanent Effect.

On June 24, 1908, Mr. Foster added: "My former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. I have been free from kidney complaint during the years that have passed since I first took the remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

The White Spruce

It Brought Barbara and the Young Forester Together.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Barbara Owen parted the flaps of the tent and drank in with delighted eyes the scene before her. The little camp perched almost on the edge of the precipice commanded a magnificent view of the snow topped Cascade range blushing under the first rays of the rising sun.

Barbara went to another tent and called her father. He replied by a yawn, followed by a racking cough. Then she hastened to a third tent and prepared breakfast.

Presently James Owen came forth.

"Hungry as a bear, Bab," he said. "The very smell of that coffee makes me feel ten years younger!"

"I wish the taste of it would make you feel ten times better," said Barbara as she placed the meal on the table.

Barbara chatted brightly during the meal and when it was over completed her household tasks, and, leaving her father swinging in a hammock among the trees with a book between his thin fingers, she disappeared in the forest.

The path she trod was faintly defined by disturbed brown needles, and it followed a course marked by high branched trees, winding in and out, skirting a thicket of dwarfed spruce or leading over a roughly bridged gully to a broad wagon trail.

Before she reached the wagon trail Barbara turned abruptly to the left. Here a giant spruce lifted a naked white shaft high above the surrounding trees of the forest.

Crowding about the spruce was a thicket of young hemlock, ragged and starved for want of light and air. There were an opening in the thicket and a low mound covered with brown needles. Dry eyed and tearless, Barbara sat down in the dimness and tried to face a future that was ominously near—a future when her father should be laid beside her mother in another grave under the tall spruce.

A branch crackled under a firm tread, and then another. A man's low whistle came nearer to Barbara's retreat, and presently the man himself came into view among the distant tree trunks. Clad in brown khaki, like herself, with leather puttees, blue flannel shirt open at a strong brown throat and a canvas hat tossed back on a rumpled head, Barbara recognized the young man as one of the foresters patrolling the government's forest reserve wherein their camp was pitched. She had met these men occasionally along the wagon trail, and her father had fallen into conversation with one of the sturdy, bronzed woodsmen and afterward had spoken enthusiastically of the splendid work in which they were engaged.

Barbara watched him with interest, confident that he would not penetrate into the thicket.

When he came to the spruce he stopped suddenly, leaned back and squinted his eyes at the white shaft above his head. He knelt down and examined the young hemlocks and once more drew out his notebook. Barbara, silent and brown, blending with the background of brown trunks, was unobserved until the forester drew his hatchet and cut a deep incision in the spruce tree. The girl was on her feet in an instant.

"Stop!" she cried. "Don't do that!"

The man started and peered as it some brown wood fairy had arisen before his bewildered eyes. Barbara laughed shakily.

"It sounds like a school oration, 'Woodman, spare that tree;' but, you see, my mother is buried here—and—and—the tree marks her grave."

The man had removed his hat and looked at her with respectful attention. Barbara noted that he was young, perhaps thirty, with a crop of thick, sunburned hair and a handsome, well tanned face lighted by keen dark eyes.

"I am very sorry." He hesitated. "I would not do anything to pain you; but, you see, it is my duty to take care of the forest. For the safety of the other and younger trees this dead spruce should come down."

Barbara's eyes filled with tears as she bowed her head against the white trunk of the spruce. "We thought it would be quite undisturbed here in the forest," she sobbed. "There are only three of us—mother here—she died suddenly; father, back at the camp, where he is trying to regain his health in the open, and I. I dare not tell father about the tree. He loves to come here when he is strong enough. The trees sing overhead"—

The forester stepped forward and placed a finger on her sleeve. "Please do not cry," he said awkwardly. "Will you trust me to respect this little spot in the forest and yet do my duty to my employer?"

Barbara looked at his steady eyes and the friendly smile on his clean cut mouth. "Yes," she said slowly; "I will trust you."

"Will you give me your mother's name and the date of her birth and death?" he asked, pulling his notebook out.

Puzzled and a little curious, Barbara gave him the desired information and, with a word of thanks, turned away.

"One week from today you may come again," said the forester gravely.

"Thank you," said Barbara once more, and then she stepped lightly into the trail and was gone.

It was a long week for Barbara Owen. Her father's health improved for the time, and he was anxious to walk in the forest and visit his wife's grave. Barbara invented a dozen excuses to keep him away from the white spruce.

Seven mornings she saw the reflection of the rising sun on the western mountain snows.

On the seventh day she took her father, and together they walked over the narrow trail to where the white spruce had towered. James Owen uttered an astonished cry as he stopped before his wife's grave. Barbara clung to his arm, overcome by a strange emotion. She was glad that the forester was not there to witness it.

The stump of the white spruce arose like a five foot shaft of marble; the bark had been planed off until the wood showed white as satin and as smooth; the top was rounded, and on the flattened side of the stump a hot iron had burned a brief epitaph above Mrs. Owen's resting place. The young hemlocks had been thinned out until they formed a green semicircle about the white shaft.

"Who has done this?" asked Owen huskily.

Barbara told him in a few words of her meeting with the young forester, and after awhile the two walked over to the wagon trail in the direction of the metallic ax blows.

He saw them coming and came to meet them. "I am glad you liked it," he said simply in response to Mr. Owen's warm thanks. "It was better that we should remove the tree in a shipshape manner than permit it to fall of its own accord."

"But the work you did on the stump, young man—it was more than kind of you; we are deeply grateful."

"I had a mother once myself," he replied soberly.

"Come over to the camp and see us, Mr."— said Owen suggestively.

"My name's Charter — Benjamin Charter," said the forester quickly. "You are very kind; I shall be glad to come."

After that day James Owen improved rapidly. There would never be hope of his complete recovery, but a return to even moderate health was an encouragement to his only child. They walked through the woods to the little hemlock circle and felt that here was a spot they might call their own forever.

Their walks often included a search for the foresters engaged in their interesting work of conserving the native trees and guarding against encroaching lumbermen or wandering flocks of sheep or devastating herds of cattle.

Benjamin Charter came to the camp and proved an entertaining companion for father and daughter. He played cards with Mr. Owen or read to the invalid the week old newspapers that came their way. He brought his violin, and Barbara drank in the wonderful melodies woven by the brown fingers and the flashing bow.

The snow caps on the mountains became a little smaller as the season advanced; the dry air was warmer and seemed to give new life to the sick man. Barbara's eyes had a new light in them, and Benjamin Charter's fingers trembled when he played the violin.

Then one day Barbara and her father walked in the forest. They had gone along the wagon trail and were drawing near the working foresters. There was a sound of blows on wood, a silence and then a crashing tearing sound close at hand. Somebody shouted wildly and pushed Barbara and her father out of harm's way, somebody who was too late himself to spring from under the falling tree and so was caught beneath the weight of heavy green branches.

A tree had fallen in an unexpected direction, and Benjamin Charter's quickness had probably saved Mr Owen and his daughter from injury, if not death. When the tree was removed by the score of laborers that sprang into view Charter was quite unconscious.

He was carried into the camp on the precipice, and one of the men rode madly away to the distant settlement for a doctor. In the meantime Barbara and her father did what they could. The forester opened his eyes upon their anxious faces.

"I am glad you are safe," he said feebly.

"You saved my worthless life and Barbara's precious one," said Owen brokenly. "I wish I could reward you Charter. You have been a friend indeed to me."

"I wish you would give me Barbara," said Charter, with more strength. "I haven't got very much but I can take care of her and make her comfortable."

"What do you say, Bab?" asked her father.

Barbara's face, bent above the injured man's, was sufficient answer.

"You needn't wait till I'm gone to be happy," suggested Mr. Owen after the doctor had come and pronounced Charter's injuries to be slight—more painful than dangerous. "You can get married as soon as you are we enough to hobble around and find a minister."

"Thank you, sir," said Charter. His arm was about Barbara as she knelt beside his cot.

"I suppose you know who you're marrying," resumed Owen, with a twinkle in his eyes.

Owen laughed softly. "Barbara Owen, daughter of James Herkimer Owen, the copper king," he said dryly.

"I can't leave the forest," said the forester when he had recovered from his surprise.

"And I don't want to leave it," said Barbara happily.

DIG TO LIVE, URGES WILSON.

Secretary of Agriculture's Remedy For Food Cost Problem.

NEED OF GREATER PRODUCTION

Cabinet Officer Points Out Importance of Soil Conservation Before Conference at New York Produce Exchange to Consider Problem of Labor and Best Methods of Farming.

James Wilson, secretary of the department of agriculture, who recently addressed the New York Produce Exchange on the food cost problem and its relation to the farm, said that conservation of the soil both east and west would determine future prosperity and promised government aid in any state movement to increase the productivity and improve the condition of the soil.

JAMES WILSON.

The exchange had called a conference on this subject and invited the secretary, congressmen and the heads of the various big railroads in the east. As an outcome of the discussion a permanent organization was formed, on which the railroads are represented, to educate the farmers of the state of New York in the best interests of production and of inducing residents in cities to go "back to the farm."

"We cannot afford to buy food from foreign countries," said Mr. Wilson. "We must see to it that our western farms produce enough, not only for home consumption, but also to sell abroad and square up the balances of trade.

"It costs more to get anything done in our country than in most others. Production does not increase as fast as population. Prices go up. It costs more to pay carriers, dealers, manufacturers, all classes. The farmer gets big prices now, but it costs him twice as much to grow things as it did ten years ago.

Cannot Afford to Buy Abroad.

"The fact that population increases faster than food sets us thinking. We cannot afford to buy food from foreign countries. The balances of trade for goods bought and sold since the civil war, independent of farm products, have been heavily against us during that time and have been paid by exports from the farm.

"Most of our people in the east are being fed from the Mississippi valley, and the states from the south draw much from the same source. For the last half century the young people of the farms have been educated to leave them. No teacher until recently taught a scholar the way to make more of his day's work on the farm or how to make the acre respond better, and for a very good reason. The teacher had never learned it himself. Education flows downward from the university regarding everything but agriculture. If applied science along this line is not understood at the fountainhead there will be no stream from which to drink.

"Ignorance permitted the soil to become unproductive. The highest intelligence is required to bring back fertility. Generally speaking, our farms are managed with too little capital or the farm is too large for the means of the operator. Help is dearer than it has been, and it is scarce in all sections of the country. Higher prices for farm products will justify more pay to the farm hand and have a tendency to keep workers on the farm.

"The cheap food of the past has been one of the great advantages the manufacturer has had. He has it no longer. Neglect of the soil will very soon impress itself on all classes.

Soil Conservation Urged.

"Importations of food will bring about a change in our economics, a revolution in our policies, which may be avoided by better farming and a comprehensive view of the situation by those who deal in big things, whether carrying commerce, manufacturing or finance. If the America we know today is to continue with its opportunities for all classes, high prices for skill and labor, home ownership for every industrious man, education for every child, an easily acquired competence for every frugal, industrious family, we must look to the soil and its power of production. Other nations prosper by commerce and manufacturing, but their working classes are not as comfortable as ours.

"Every state should organize to conserve fertility of its soils. The department of agriculture would gladly cooperate with all of them. This department has corps of scientists that could be made useful in this regard. There is no kind of conservation that compares at all in importance with soil conservation, while all are important. We are late in beginning, but high prices are impelling and insistent from every standpoint.

"Some political economists tell us that boys leave the farm because land values are so high, but land values east of the Alleghenies have gone down because the boys left the farms and renters without capital got possession to grow grain and hay for sale."

DELAY IN HEIKE CASE

Government May Be Handicapped by Illness of Important Witness

New York, May 5.—The illness of one of its chief witnesses may seriously hamper the government in its prosecution of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, whose trial on sugar underweighing conspiracy charges is set for May 10.

There is manifest anxiety on the part of the prosecuting officials over reports of the condition of Richard Parr, the customs official who discovered the fraudulent device by which the government was deprived of duties on sugar imports, and whose testimony was expected to play an important part in the trial of Heike and other men indicted with him in connection with the alleged sugar fraud conspiracy. Parr is threatened with appendicitis and an operation may be necessary.

TODAY'S COURT.

August Tecinto was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. As he was still badly under the influence of liquor his case was continued until Friday, and he was sent back to the police station.

Michael J. Haarington was arraigned for larceny at Milton. Case continued until Saturday.

She Repudiated the Charge.

At the men's service in a Yorkshire parish the vicar tried to convey the lesson that the truest heroes and heroines are those who do noble deeds in the secret corner of the home, where none can see or applaud.

"Few of you seem to think," he concluded, "that your wives staying at home uncomplainingly to mind the children and prepare the meals are heroines, and yet their touching devotion to duty proves them to be so."

It certainly hadn't struck one old farmer in this way before, and as soon as he got home he promptly told his wife that the vicar had called her a heroine.

"Whatever does that mean?" asked the good lady.

"Oh, it means a woman who stays in t' house instead of goin' art to show hersen," explained the farmer vaguely.

"Then I'm not a heroine, an' I'll thang t' vicar to mind what he's sayin'," snapped the wife. "I go to his church as much as t' other women do, an' he must be blind if he can't see me. Why, I'd five different colors in t' bonnet I wore last Sunday!"—London Spectator.

The Amen of Nature.

Do you ever wonder why poets talk so much about flowers? Did you ever hear of a poet who did not talk about them? Don't you think a poem which, for the sake of being original, should leave them out would be like those verses where the letter a or e or some other is omitted? No; they will bloom over and over again in poems as in the summer fields, to the end of time, always old and always new. Why should we be more shy of repeating ourselves than the spring be tired of blossoms or the night of stars? Look at nature. She never wearies of saying over her floral paternoster. In the crevices of cyclopean walls, in the dust where men lie, dust also; on the mounds that bury huge cities, the Birs Nemroud and the Babel heap, still that same sweet prayer and benediction. The amen of nature is always a flower.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

BIG BASEBALL SALARIES BUNK

Public Greatly Overestimates Pay Envelopes of Stars.

FEW PLAYERS GET $3,500.

Pittsburg's Salary List Reported to Be Around $75,000, While Philadelphia Athletics' Pay List Is Said to Be $35,000.

The statement recently that a salary of but $4,500 was being paid annually to Johnny Kling, the Chicago Nationals' star catcher, came as a big surprise to the baseball fans. It was popularly believed that the clever backstop was drawing a much larger stipend for his work. During a recent fanfest among the Pittsburg players some interesting facts came out concerning baseball salaries in general.

Wagner's salary, for example, is a matter of guesswork purely to all except Pittsburg club officials, the Flying Dutchman and possibly one or two others, who have been told in strict confidence. He is supposed to be and probably is the highest salaried man in baseball, but the wages he is paid for clouting, base running and spreading his giant frame over several acres of territory for the Pirates has undoubtedly been overestimated by many persons who profess to have inside information on the subject. It has been put as high as $8,000 a year by some guessers, and very few persons think he is getting less than $10,000. One of the few, however, is a prominent member of the Pittsburg club.

"I do not say that Honus isn't worth that price. He is worth even more, considering his playing ability and his value to the club from a box office point of view. But baseball is a business proposition, and $10,000 is an enormous amount to give to any player for a few months' work. They will have to show me before they can convince me that Honus is drawing that much. He may be getting it, but he is not getting more."

Several of the players suggested that the big Teuton ought to be getting a percentage of the gate receipts. Then the salary subject took a wide range, and the same player who is quoted above declared that in his opinion every member of the Pirates who figured to any extent in the winning of the National league pennant and the world's championship received an advance in salary for this year. He believed that "Dots" Miller's contract calls for more than twice as much as he received last year and that all the regular players were advanced.

"It seems to be the policy of the club," he said, "to lend substantial encouragement to brains, ability and willingness, and it is to that fact, combined with the very able leadership of Fred Clarke, that you can credit that ideal club spirit that prevails among the Buccaneers. I'll venture to say that the Pittsburg club paid out $75,000 in salaries last summer and that no other club paid as much. I have been told, and I believe it to be true, that the salary list of the Philadelphia Americans for the season of 1909 amounted to only $35,000, making a difference of $40,000 in the money paid out to players by two major league clubs. How Connie Mack can pay such small salaries and manage to keep his club up in the race is something I cannot understand."

The salaries of the Cubs were also discussed, and it was agreed among the players that the average and the total of the Pirates are much larger. Chance, they understand, signed a three year contract as manager of the team at a figure under $8,000, and Kling and Brown are the only members of the team receiving anything like $5,000. Reulbach is said to be pitching for $3,500. Lajoie is said to have received $9,000 a year from Cleveland, of which $2,000 was for managing the club. Many other star players were mentioned and their real and paper salaries given.

Of course it is possible that the Pirate players who gave the information on the subject may be mistaken, but it must be admitted that they are in a position to learn the actual facts better than the newspapers. It was generally agreed among them that the public has an erroneous idea about fancy salaries paid to players. Connie Mack, even in war days, is said to have averaged only $3,000 to his players.

While the public may be wrong in its beliefs, the fact remains that any player which delivers the goods in fast company gets enough money for it to keep the wolf from the door during the winter, and most of them earn several times as much as they could take down in any other trade or occupation for which they are fitted.

Mack, Dean of Big League Managers.

In continuous service Connie Mack is the dean of major league managers. He took charge of the Athletics in 1901. For managing the Philadelphia team the owners gave him a big slice of stock. Today Mack is a rich man.

Honest Jack Coombs.

Jack Coombs of the Philadelphia Americans declined a raise in salary this spring, saying he did not think his record in 1909 entitled him to any advance.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION AWAKE

"WORK FOR QUINCY FIRST AND MYSELF NEXT"

"And You Will Find That You Are Working For Yourself First and Quincy Next"

ALBERT W. DONOVAN CAUSES AN AWAKENING AMONG QUINCY MERCHANTS

Alfred W. Donovan, president of the Boston Boot and Shoe club and Vice President of the Massachusetts State Board of Trade, struck out straight from the shoulder at the meeting of the Merchants' Association Thursday evening and gave them a good dressing down. It was a talk full of meat and should bear fruit. Many of the things which he told them were not new, but had been overlooked in the rush of business, but now that they have been brought forcibly to their attention good fruit ought to result. His subject as announced was "Conditions in Quincy as I have found them."

W. G. Shaw, the vice president of the association, presided in the absence of E. W. Sheppard, the president, who is ill, and the talk by Mr. Donovan was the first thing on the program.

In beginning, Mr. Donovan with a smile on his face, said he was all out of breath, having been brought from Rockland in an automobile of American make by Mr. Duggan in 14 1-2 minutes. He said that he had ten or twelve years' experience in looking up conditions in various towns and cities, seeing what the trouble was, and if he could do anything to make them better. He found that, as a rule, towns had many more good things than bad. As for Quincy, he felt like a neighbor, he lived so near. Quincy was a young city but judging by Quincy avenue it was 250 year old. You in Quincy have much to feel proud of in your Adamses, Everetts and Quinceys, and the deeds and good things they have done for the country will ever remain. While we should pay homage to them, Quincy should have a new slogan. Let us pay homage to the living and live ones as well as the grand old dead. His friend, Mayor Shea, was the man of the hour. No city can match him in its Mayor. When the time comes to elect a new congressman there will be no trouble in electing him.

You have a Granite City club whose personnel is the best in the City of Quincy. If the members of the club would do something other than play whist, they would be a power for good in the city. They owe it to do all in their power to help Quincy.

The electric car service is not what it should be. In trying to get through on the cars one had to make connections and changes. A concerted effort, with one idea in view, can do anything they see fit. You are a power to be reckoned with. If you only feel, that anything that hurts industries hurts everybody, it will help Quincy. If you will forget the petty jealousies, and come together and realize how good you are, and say I am in for Quincy if it does cost me something. It is the open door that does the business. When you realize that your next door neighbor is as good as you are you will be doing something. Start in tonight and forget the past. Start tonight and say, "I am going to work for Quincy first and myself next" and soon you will find that you are working for yourself first and Quincy next.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING ?

What are you doing to get the money of the twenty thousand people in your neighborhood? Why do you let them send to Boston for goods? Freight, weight and cash is the slogan of Sears Robuck, but it comes out cash, weight and freight. Do you see the point?

Show the people that they can have goods delivered at their house cheaper by you than by any mail order house in the world. You can prevent this condition.

Mr. Donovan then took a turn at the newspapers. You must support the newspapers and demand of course something in return—but, you must expect to pay for it. You do not give them the advertising you should. I see with surprise the little space you merchants take in the papers and that you let the oportunity pass. It is time for the merchants of Quincy to make an advertising contract . This is the age of headlines. The travelling public do not have the time to more than look at the headlines. Get the "get together" feeling. You are the men to get what you want in the newspapers.

You are not getting from any of the public service corporations what you should for your money. If you allow the electric railway conditions to exist you are not helping. You should make it possible to get better connections. Many people go around Quincy rather than go through it.

Do you realize what a power the Fore River company is, and what she is doing for Quincy? You cannot do enough for such an enterprise. She is advertising you all over the world by the magnificent ships she is building. The way to build up is to hold what you have got, rather than punt round for some broken down enterprise to come here. The country realizes what you have in the Fore River and the west and south are jealous because you have corralled the Fore River.

FREE WATER PORT.

You have an unexcelled water front. It is possible for you to have a free water port in Quincy. Do you realize what a free port is? It is a section walled in. A port of entry where any amount of material can be brought and manufactured and shipped all over the world without paying duty. It is your fault if you do not get it here. The time has come when Quincy cannot make great headway and help the taxpayers until you get larger manufacturies here and help those that you have. He would not give up its beautiful residential section, but there was plenty of available land along the railroad and water front for manufacturies. There is something wrong with you merchants when you are not getting your summer colony as the other sections are. When I see the people flocking to the North Shore, I believe it is time the South Shore people got busy and got these people. Go in for it. It belongs to you.

In the past forty years over four billion of shoes had been sent out from Massachusetts, and only about three-fourths bore any mark to tell where they came from. He had seen Massachusetts shoes on sale in western cities and seen them marked "Our own make" indicating that they were made there. There is an awful amount of wasted energy in New England.

He knew Mr. Kincaide, and he was known beyond the limits of Quincy, because he advertised. It is a shame to make people come over such awful streets as you have. You have got to start right, and he did not think that years ago the right start was made in road building.

It was time the Quincy parkways were connected. Do you realize what the connecting of these two parkways would mean for Quincy?

Is there any feeling of unity among the merchants in Quincy? Now, honestly, is there? He wished he could create a better feeling among the merchants. If you do what you have set out to do, you can accomplish anything. Get together. Some cities have a commercial secretary where any information about the city can be obtained. Would it be possible to have a grievance committee here in Quincy? They are pretty good. But an arbitration committee would be better for the merchants.

Long applause greeted Mr. Donovan as he finished his talk and Mr. Kincaide immediately arose and moved that Mr. Donovan be made an honorary member, and the vote was unanimous. Mr. Donovan thanked the association for its honor and assured them that he would keep his dues paid up.

WILL BEAR FRUIT.

President Shaw felt that the dressing down the speaker had given them would bear good fruit.

In reply to questions the speaker told what had been done for Natick, the dullest town in the State outside of Chelsea, by a merchants' week. He also answered questions as to what merchants should pay for advertising, and how much percent of a merchants receipts.

He said that printers' ink was doing the business, and that too much could not be expended if the papers gave them a good paper and had the circulation. The trouble with most advertisers is that they do not leave white space enough around their border. It cost more but it pays. They crowd too much in a small space and then expect people to read it. Support the papers and make them open their books to you to show what their circulation is.

Do you realize that the late Henry H. Faxon was the first man in the United States to offer a piece of land as a farm?

At the conclusion of Mr. Donovan's talk there was an informal gathering about him, and he explained what he meant by the "get together" idea. Also his idea of what a newspaper should be. Before he departed he was given three rousing cheers. Routine business was then taken up.

BUSINESS OF EVENING.

Frank F. Crane, the Dock and Water Front Commissioner, spoke of the lecture of May 20, by Congressmen Moore and Small on waterways. Tickets could be had on application to Emery L. Crane. These were two of the best men in the country in this line, and he hoped they would be greeted by a large audience.

A committee consisting of Henry L. Kincaide, Eben W. Sheppard and Robert E. Foy were appointed to draw resolutions on the death of Dexter E. Wadsworth.

Nathan Ames was elected as treasurer for the balance of the year, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Wadsworth.

Reports of the various committees on Merchants' Week were in order. The finance committee reported that it had been pledged $915, and to this Mr. Prescott for the Daily Ledger added $10 making the amount $925.

The advertising committee reported that it had planned to get out an eight page advertising sheet in two colors. The seven hundred inches

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

DRIFT OF OPINION

According to the news reports, the amount of the lawyers' fees in the long will contest over the Russell estate in Boston has reduced its value from $750,000 to $160,000; and in Camden, N. J., Chancellor Pitney in Chambers rebuked a firm for charging a "total fee of $75,000" in a case involving $40,000 with interest. In the old frugal days great lawyers were more modest. Rufus Choate was accustomed to taking cases for a fee of $50 and Aaron Burr, a most successful practitioner, did not come to infamy because he charged even less. Daniel Webster, in the greatest period of his career, never earned more than $20,000 a year. Abraham Lincoln amassed $8,000 in money and a small cottage in Springfield, Ill., before he became President, hoping to increase it to $20,000, and that," he said, "is as much as any man ought to want."—Roachs Financial Facts.

Having demonstrated to his own satisfaction, we trust, and most certainly to the world's, that he is a walking phenomenon at his age in life, Edward P. Weston should quietly retire from the public eye and enjoy the emoluments which his latest feat must have brought him, or promises to bring him. To have crossed the continent when 70 years of age and to have re-crossed it a year later and with only 77 days actually spent on the road, is proof to the youth of America that he (Weston) is not a by-gone, or even going by just yet. Now let him retire on his laurels.—Barre, Vt., Times.

Boston Bank Would Now Like to Find "Samuel Cohen"

Boston, May 6.—Some person, who calls himself "Samuel Cohen," has been able to cash a forged certified check at the National Shawmut bank for $4875. The check was supposed to have been certified by the brokerage firm of Allen, Arnold & Co.

"Cohen" had several transactions with this house and it had no reason to believe that he was not honest. Finally he asked it to sell all the shares of stock which it had bought for him and in return he asked for a certified check. The amount was about $370 and the firm certified this.

Then Cohen, it is thought, made a duplicate of the check, signature and all. On the forged check he placed the amount at $4875. He took the two checks to the National Shawmut bank and asked to have them cashed. They were both the same size, color, and exactly similar as to typography and signatures.

The two checks were cashed. When they were cancelled and returned to the brokerage firm the theft was discovered. The bank promptly met the loss and the police were notified.

PROSECUTION COLLAPSES

Conspiracy Charge Against Cuban Negroes Not Borne Out by Facts

Havana, May 6.—All the negro prisoners concerned in the recent alleged conspiracy against the government, except General Estenoz, leader of the negro party, and six others, have been discharged by order of Judge Ponce, who was appointed to try all the cases.

It is said there is a strong probability that Estenoz and the other prisoners will soon be released because of lack of evidence. The sudden collapse of the prosecution is taken as being strongly confirmatory of the general impression that there did not exist any real conspiracy, but merely a movement in the direction of forming a negro political party.

He Was In Charge.

"What did you do in the army?"

"Most of the time I was in charge of a squad of men."

"On special duty?"

"No; they were taking me to the guardhouse."—Cleveland Leader.

HIGH TOP BOOTS ARE HIS FRIENDS

New Minister to Portugal Says He Will Not Desert Them

New York, May 6.—Former Governor Gage of California, newly appointed minister to Portugal, sailed for his new post on the steamship George Washington and with him went eighteen pairs of high-topped boots.

The former governor's especial fondness for high-topped boots is well known, and before departing Gage said:

"When the announcement that I was appointed was printed, a fellow in London sent me a prospectus of silk stockings, lavender dancing pumps and boy's size velvet pants, and thought I'd order some. It made me so mad that I sent out and had eighteen new pairs of top boots made. Think I'm going to change my habits now? Not much!

"They laugh at my boots, but my boots have been good friends of mine, and I don't see why I should go back on them. For the Portuguese court I got all kinds—patent leather, tan, red and ordinary black ones."

REGULATION OF AUTOS

Passage Between States May Be Subject to Government Control

Washington, May 6.—Uniform automobile regulations will be undertaken by congress at this session, if possible. The house committee on interstate commerce appointed a subcommittee composed of Representatives Wanger (Pa.), Townsend (Mich.), Hubbard (W. Va.), Bartlett (Ga.) and Peters (Mass.) to draft a bill to regulate the passage of automobiles between states.

A bill for this purpose has been introduced by Representative Cocks (N. Y.), but it is probable that the subcommittee will make material changes in it before reporting it to the house.

New Industry For Gardner

North Brookfield, Mass., May 6.—The East Brook company, capitalized at $300,000, has been organized by some of the officials of the Oxford Linen Mills to manufacture oxowool, a new flax fibre. The new company will locate at Gardner, in the vacant plant at Riverview.

Maine Prohibitionists' Ticket

Portland, Me., May 6.—At the state convention of the Prohibition party held here, James H. Ames of Bowdoinham was nominated candidate for governor and Franklin Skillings of Portland for state auditor. The delegates subscribed $250 for a campaign fund.

Noted Preacher Dead

Edinburgh, May 6.—Rev. Alexander McLaren, the noted Manchester preacher, died here. He was minister of Union chapel, Manchester, since 1858. He was born in 1826. He published several series of powerful sermons and a number of other works.

PREMIUMS ON BONDS.

Under a new law of the Legislature of 1910 premiums from municipal bonds cannot be used to pay current expenses. Chapter 379 reads:

Section 1. Whenever a city, town, fire district, or water district shall issue and sell bonds to pay for the construction, purchase or extension of water works, sewerage or sewage disposal systems, electric lightnig plants, street pavements or other public improvements, or for the refunding of any debt previously contracted for any such purpose, any premium received upon such bonds, less the cost of preparing, issuing and marketing them, shall be applied to the payment of the principal of the bonds in the manner prescribed in the following sections.

Sect. 2. When a sinking fund has been or is to be established to pay said bonds at maturity the premium shall be added forthwith to the sinking fund, and the amount of the annual contribution to be made to the sinking fund shall be reduced correspondingly.

Sect. 3. In case no sinking fund is established for the retirement of the bonds, but in lieu thereof certain of the bonds mature and are to be paid at fixed periods, any premium received as set forth in section one shall be applied to the payment of the principal of the first bond or bonds so to mature and the contributions from other sources for the payment of said bonds shall be reduced correspondingly.

Approved April 8, 1910.

PENALTY FOR COUNCILMEN

Who Sign Common Victuallers Licenses Granted Illegally

The new law passed by the Legislature of 1910 relative to granting licenses to innholders and common victuallers is of interest at this time. It will be seen that a fee of $5 may be required. Chapter 383 reads:

"Section two of chapter one hundred and two of the Revised Laws, as amended by chapter two hundred and ninety-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and six, is hereby further amended by striking out said section and inserting in place thereof the following:

"Section 2. The licensing boards in cities having such boards, the mayor and aldermen in cities having no such boards and also in cities which have such boards but which, in any year, vote not to authorize the granting of licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquor, and the selectmen of towns, may grant licenses to persons to be innholders or common victuallers in such cities or towns.

"Such license shall not be issued or be valid until it has been signed by the mayor and a majority of the aldermen in cities in which the license is to be granted by the mayor and aldermen, or by a majority of the licensing board in other cities and in towns. A mayor or any member of a licensing board may refuse to sign a license for a person who in his opinion has not complied with the provisions of this chapter; and a mayor or any member of such board who signs a license granted contrary to the provisions of this chapter shall be punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars.

"The provisions of this section shall not require the licensing boards to grant either of the said licenses, if in their opinion the public good does not require it. A fee of not more than five dollars may be charged for each of said licenses. In Boston the licenses shall be recorded in the office of the licensing board.

Approved April 12, 1910.

NEW ENGLAND'S TELEPHONE PROGRESS.

According to the annual report of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company there are 337,021 telephones connected to the system of this company and its sub-licensees, and in this company alone the daily average of local and toll calls is about 1,200,000. These figures represent a business that covers the four northern New England states and gives employment to about 8,400 persons. The report says it is expected that at least 30,000 stations will be added during the year 1910.

As showing how strongly the New England Company is a New England institution, General Sherwin notes that of the 4,020 stockholders, more than 93 per cent are residents of the four states. In addition, the sub-license companies, having arrangements with the New England Company for toll connections and thus being in fact a part of the New England system, have about the same number of local stockholders. The financial showing for the year was quite satisfactory. The gross revenue was $12,086,782.86 and the net revenue $3,183,949.47. For the year 1910 the sum of $7,570,000 is estimated as the appropriation for extensions and for maintenance.

GARDEN PARTY.

The Young Ladies' Charitable association supporting the Free Home for Consumptives at 428 Quincy street, Dorchester, announce that the annual garden party for important and advantageous reasons will be held this year in the fall.

The great picnic of 1910 at Lake Pearl, Wrentham will take place Saturday, July 16. All are hereby notified to make ready their garden hats and gowns. The picnic park is one of the most beautiful natural resorts in New England. Twenty-five acres of beautiful pine woods, hill, valley and field along the shore of the lake. It contains athletic field, race tracks, row boats, bath houses, large powerboat, open air theatre, dance hall, merry-go-round, children's playground, etc.

The public are also asked to save newspapers, magazines, rubber, etc., for the home. Notify by card and a team will call regularly for same. As it is to be sold to aid the Home you will aid great work by saving for the cause.

Great Britain Shocked When Physicians Issue Bulletin Admitting That Royal Patient's Condition Causes Anxiety—Life Believed to Be In Extreme Danger—Streets Near Palace Are Padded to Prevent Noise

London, May 6.—All Great Britain was startled last night by an official bulletin which, hidden beneath reassuring words, revealed the fact that King Edward's life hangs in the balance. He is desperately ill from bronchitis and his condition is grave.

No bulletin would have been issued unless the king was in an extremely critical condition. Court etiquette forbids an admission of illness even, unless the patient is in danger of death.

The bulletin came as a tremendous shock to the people, for it read as follows: "The king is suffering from an attack of bronchitis and has been confined to his rooms for two days. His majesty's condition causes some anxiety."

Every precaution has been taken to prevent disturbing the patient. The quadrangle of the palace and the carriage approaches have been covered with peat to deaden the noise. The king's apartments are on the first floor, overlooking the grounds and Constitution Hill.

The Prince of Wales was sent for and remains at Buckingham palace in constant attendance. Last evening the Duchess of Argyll, the king's sister, was sent for, and later the Duke and Duchess of Teck were summoned.

Serious fainting spells have left the king in a weak condition. At midnight a more reassuring bulletin was issued, which said that, while there had been no change, the illness was not grave.

It is believed, however, that the midnight bulletin was issued to calm in a measure the excited condition which prevailed in London when the first bulletin was given out.

No one doubts that the king is in a most critical condition and that his life is in extreme danger. The attitude of the court physicians in the illness of Queen Victoria is taken as an indication of how extreme the case must be. It was not until the late queen was very close to death that even her illness was admitted.

King Edward is now in his 69th year, and for the past six months has been in an enfeebled condition and constantly under the doctor's care.

The first intimation that anything was amiss was the failure of the king to meet the queen, who returned from the continent last evening. It has been the king's invariable rule to be present on the queen's arrival from any out of town journey, and his absence last evening was made the subject of general comment immediately it was noted.

The queen hurried to the palace, and soon afterwards the public learned by an official announcement that the king had been ill for two days. The fact that his illness had been thus concealed from public knowledge increased the alarm when once it became generally known. The king suffered from a similar attack at Biarritz owing to the inclement weather and cold winds, but it was supposed that he had completely recovered, especially as he attended the opera at Covent Garden within three hours of his arrival in London from Biarritz last Wednesday.

A Storekeeper Says:

"A lady came into my store lately and said:

"'I have been using a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove all winter in my apartment. I want one now for my summer home. I think these oil stoves are wonderful. If only women knew what a comfort they are, they would all have one. I spoke about my stove to a lot of my friends, and they were astonished. They thought that there was smell and smoke from an oil stove, and that it heated a room just like any other stove. I told them of my experience, and one after another they got one, and now, not one of them would give hers up for five times its cost.'"

The lady who said this had thought an oil stove was all right for quickly heating milk for a baby, or boiling a kettle of water, or to make coffee quickly in the morning, but she never dreamed of using it for difficult or heavy cooking. Now—she knows.

Do you really appreciate what a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove means to you? No more coal to carry, no more coming to the dinner table so tired out that you can't eat. Just light a Perfection Stove and immediately the heat from an intense blue flame shoots up to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven. But the room isn't heated. There is no smoke, no smell, no outside heat, no drudgery in the kitchen where one of these stoves is used.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

KNOCKERS' CLUB DINE

Tips from the Mayor, Overseer and Others

After a lapse of some weeks the Knocker's club, that well known dining organization, gathered again about the festive board at Thompson's restaurant Thursday afternoon for one of their feasts. The roll call of members showed several absentees, but all had good excuses. Mayor Shea occupied his customary seat at the head of the table, President Spear being at his right hand. The remainder of the knockers, big and little, being seated wherever their fancy led them.

The dinner was as usual of several courses, including all of the delicacies of the season, and it goes without saying that the diners did full justice to every course, topping off with ice cream and strawberry shortcake.

Dinner over, and cigars lighted, remarks of the good of the order was on the program. The president had considerable to say, for the reason that other matters had prevented him from working off his surplus energy, and it goes without saying that he made the best of the opportunity. Then the Mayor had a word to say about booze permits, and told in his own way why it was that Quincy had been dry for the past few days. He had done his duty, however, and made himself solid, with at least fifteen expressmen, by signing their licenses, thus releasing the lever which would let the stimulants into Quincy again.

Overseer Elcock said that since the last meeting the City Council had been good enough to give him money to employ a clerk in his office in the basement of City Hall and that hereafter there would be no question about his being on hand at every meeting. He was also reminded, by seeing the face of the president, that it must be nearly a year ago that we celebrated the president's birthday anniversary, although no one would think he was a year older.

There were others of the bunch that had a word or two to say, all of which made the afternoon hours pass very quickly, and it was with regret when they saw by the clock on the wall, that the hour was nearly 4, and that it was time to stop pleasure and get down to work again.

When Lincoln Sat For His Bust.

When Vinnie Ream, the sculptor, was a mere child still and her experience in modeling consisted of a few busts and medallions she timidly asked President Lincoln to permit her to model his bust. "I don't know why any one should want the picture or statue of so homely a man," he answered and at first declined to sit. But when Senator Nesmith told him that the western girl, "who was poor, but talented," would be disappointed if unable to secure this favor he turned quickly and said: "She is poor, is she? Well, that is nothing against her, and I will sit for the model."

During the sittings the great man would watch with much interest the hands of the girl sculptor at her work; but, speaking of him later, she said: "For the most part he was sad and silent, weighed upon by the stress of a nation in peril and his own recent personal loss of a beloved son. Ah, those were sad days at the White House! One day the president's eyes were full of tears as he turned from gazing out of the window, and he said to me, 'I am thinking of Willie.'"—Designer.

Curious Training Methods.

Every baseball player seems to have his own system, and some of the methods used are laughable, and few are of any practicable value. One young catcher who joined a National league club a few years ago brought five gallons of iron, beef and wine in jugs in his trunk to make him strong. Cannon balls that weigh twenty-five pounds are used to roll over the abdomen. Iron rolling pins, special bandages, a thousand kinds of rubbing oils and lotions, ranging from patent medicines to horse liniments and oil made by boiling down fishing worms, vibrators of all sizes and shapes, odd arm bakers to be superheated with electricity and rubber bands are employed. Hotel rooms are turned into gymnasiums, and one of the funniest sights of a year is to sit in a card game with half a dozen players swathed like puffy mummies in blankets, sweaters and flannels until they look as if they were starting on an arctic journey.—American Magazine.

ILLEGAL SHIPMENT

Will be Charged Against Boston Liquor Dealer

One of the things which the police have long had to contend with in their efforts to suppress the illegal sale and transportation of liquor into Quincy has been the shipping of packages of liquor into the city with no mark on the packages to tell that it contained liquor when the law explicitly says that all such packages shall be marked with the contents.

Inspector Goodhue, whose special work is in the line of liquor officer, has succeeded however in getting hold of one case, and before it is setled it will doubtless learn the liquor dealers of Boston a lesson.

Sunday on visiting the office of Murphy's express at West Quincy, he found a package unmarked except the name of the party to whom it was consigned. The package had a suspicious look and upon being opened was found to contain several bottles of whiskey. The expressman said that it had been left at his office for transportation and delivery in Quincy, and he had no way of knowing its contents. The package was returned to the liquor dealer the following day as his name was found inside the package.

Thursday on visiting the office of Abbott & Miller, he saw the same identical package waiting delivery. Mr. Miller said that he did not know where it came from, as it had been left at his office. This time, however, the case was marked as containing Apollinaris water. Upon being opened it was found to contain the same bottles of whiskey that had been returned by Mr. Murphy. The liquor dealer was communicated with by telephone, and gave the expressman the laugh.

There was also at this same express office another package, a barrel by the way, that had a suspicious look. This was also opened, and found to contain beer and ale. There was no mark on the package to tell that it contained liquor. In both cases the Boston liquor dealer had violated the law. The liquors were seized and are now in the keeping of the police.

The two local express companies will not be prosecuted for violating the law, as they were innocent of wrong doing. A warrant, however, will be taken out against the Boston liquor dealers. As they violated the law in the City of Boston the warrant will be sworn out against them in that city. If convicted they stand a good chance of having their license revoked by the license commissioners of Boston.

These cases will probably put a stop to this method of violating the law which has been one of the worst which the police have had to contend with.

REPUDIATED, SAYS HENEY

Discouraged by San Francisco Election, He Will Live In Gotham

San Francisco, May 6.—Francis J. Heney, who left for New York, where he will take up a permanent residence, said to his friends on departure:

"I feel that the result of last year's election was a repudiation of my work in San Francisco, and that a wider and more profitable field opens for me in the great metropolis. So I have put all my past fights behind me and am seeking new fields."

—Arbor day for 1910 found the forward apple movement in New England gaining strength and spreading not only with great activity but in a fashion that bids fair to last substantially and solidly. The increase in the orchard planting and cultivation in the last 18 months in New England will probably average 13 p. c. At that rate the sudden apple invasion from the Northwest orchards and farmers may be met with genuine competition.—Boston Record.

—The splendid efforts which the citizens of Springfield, Mass., are putting forth to beautify their municipality may result in giving it the name of "the Garden city." There are to be 77 cash prizes, a silver cup and $5 worth of trees or shrubs given to the ones who make the finest showings in the various classes of gardens that are to be considered. The happy contest will prove most beneficial to all concerned and will amply reward all who take part in it. The "Springfield idea" is worthy of adoption by all other enterprising communities.— C. S. Monitor.

ANNUAL BANQUET

Mayor and Others Address St. Mary's Society

The annual banquet of the St. Mary's C. T. A. & M. R. society was held Thursday evening at St. Mary's hall, and was attended by upwards of 150. An excellent supper was served, after which there was several addresses. The first address was by Mayor Shea, the second president of the society, and a member since May 1876.

His Honor said that he was proud that he came from the only ward in the city that had a body of upwards of two hundred young men pledged to total abstinence. A body of young men who by their own efforts unaided by any auxiliary had built and paid for a building of its own, dedicated to total abstinence. A body of young men not only pledged to total abstinence, but who practiced it.

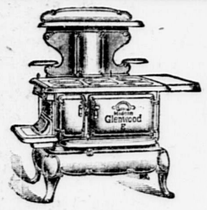

The building had been erected by their own personal efforts. They contributed their mite towards it, and when the time came to begin operations took off their coats and dug the cellar after doing a hard day's work. It was a body of men of which any city could well feel proud.

Rev. Henry T. Grady also spoke on total abstinence, and congratulated the society on the good work which it was doing.

The speaker of the evening was John T. Shea, president of the arch diocese of Catholic Total Abstinence societies, who spoke of the national convention of Catholic total abstinence societies to be held in Boston the coming August.

—Mr. Bailey a farmer in Orange county, who has four acres of strawberries ,thinks they will pay him $1,000 per acre, and with cabbage and lettuce for a winter crop, beans and strawberries for spring, followed by tomatoes, cantaloupes, watermelons and sweet potatoes in the summer, with beans and Irish potatoes and beets and onions for fall. With four crops on the same land, an each crop made to pay $100 to $1,000 per acre ,truck farming offers great opportunity if not the shortest road to absolute independence. Mr. Bailey says that he thinks that is rather better than living in a New York or Chicago flat with hardly room to turn around in. Texas farms and industries are being rapidly developed by the modern hard roads in process of construction or planned all over the state.

ROOSEVELT ON WORLD PEACE

Urges Stronger Nations to Take Lead In the Movement

THREE METHODS SUGGESTED

Arbitration Treaties, Development of The Hague Tribunal and Limitation of Armaments—Peace an Evil Thing When It Serves as Mask For Cowardice and Sloth or Instrument to Further Ends of Depotism

Christiania, May 6.—Theodore Roosevelt delivered his address on "International Peace" before the Nobel Prize Committee Thursday. The former president entered upon the most difficult field of European politics and in the conclusion of a carefully worked out thesis, advocated an international agreement that would serve to check the growth of armaments, especially naval armaments; and the formation of those great powers honestly bent on peace of a league of peace, "not only to keep the peace among themselves, but to prevent by force if necessary, its being broken by others."

What Roosevelt had to say before the king and queen of Norway and other representative personages constituted the basis of the private conversations which he is having with the statesmen of Europe as occasion arises, concerning the practical possibilities of a collective action by the various governments for the enforcement of universal peace.

Having admitted the limitations to the work for international peace, Roosevelt set forth how in his judgment the cause could be advanced. In the first place there should be effective arbitration treaties between really civilized communities. Then there should be a development of The Hague tribunal, of the work of the conference and courts at The Hague. In the third place a way should be found to check the growth of armaments, and finally it would be a master stroke for the powers sincerely desiring peace to establish a league of peace with international police power competent and willing to prevent violence as between nations.

Mr. Roosevelt said that it must be borne in mind ever, that the great end in view was righteousness, and he explained that peace, generally good in itself, was never the highest good unless it came as the handmaid of righteousness. It became a very evil thing when it served merely as a mask for cowardice and sloth or as an instrument to further the ends of despotism or anarchy.

"No man is worth calling a man," siad the speaker, "who will not fight rather than submit to infamy or see those that are dear to him suffer wrong." This principle Roosevelt applied to nations.

The address was received with expressions of appreciation and at its conclusion John Lund, vice president of the Nobel prize committee, paid a tribute to Roosevelt and to the nation of which he was formerly the chief executive.

Besides the members of the Nobel prize committee there were present members of royalty and other personages distinguished in the political, educational, commercial and social life of Norway. It was the Nobel prize committee, the members of which are elected by the Norwegian storthing, that in 1906 conferred upon the then President of the United States its medal and money award of $40,000 in recognition of his services in bringing to an end the Russo-Japanese war.

RHODE ISLAND WHISKY

Found to Contain Fifty-Eight Percent of Purified Wood Alcohol

Providence, May 6.—That a sample of the whisky confiscated by the Pure Food commission, following the deaths of fourteen persons in Westerly and surrounding towns since April 5, contained 58 percent of purified wood alcohol, was the synopsis of the analysis made by John E. Groff of the state food and drug commission, received by Attorney General Greenough.

The so-called whisky, it is said, was purchased from a Westerly drug store. Greenough has not determined what action the state will take as a result of the analysis.

Once Famous Horse Brings $105

London, May 6.—The American bred chestnut horse, Gold Ring, at one time a famous trotter in the United States, known as "The Guideless Wonder," was sold at Alfridge's mart for $105.

Prize Ring Death "Accidental"

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Keliher Held In $25,000 For Trial In Cambridge Bank Case

Boston, May 6.—The trial of William J. Keliher (Big Bill) was set for May 18 by Judge Francis Hale in the United States circuit court after Lawyer Pratt had made a heated protest in which he declared that his client was being "railroaded," while the man who had stolen over $300,000 (George W. Coleman) and had broken the Cambridge City National bank had not been brought to trial.

Asa P. French, United States district attorney, cited the Wolter murder case in New York as affording a precedent for swift justice, and this brought a rejoinder from Pratt that it was a shame to railroad a man to death as Wolter had been, just as it was a shame to railroad a man's liberty away.

Keliher was arraigned to plead to the two indictments. He pleaded not guilty and was held for trial in the same bond that he had furnished before, $25,000.

"KILLED AS A SNAKE"

What Ballinger Thinks Ought to Have Been Done to Glavis

Washington, May 6.—R. A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, while under cross-examination by Lawyer Brandeis in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation yesterday afternoon, said:

"Glavis loafed on the job, and the first I knew of his charges against me was from the president's letter. I had made up my mind that Glavis ought to be killed as a snake before that."

Mr. Ballinger said that since Pinchot's dismissal there had been a complete reversal of the forestry policy of the government, and that he believed it would keep a great many Americans from emigrating to Canada and would result in developing many portions of the forest reserves.

FIVE HUNDRED DEAD; CITY IS DESTROYED

Former Capital of Costa Rica Wiped Out by Earthquake

Managua, Nicaragua, May 6.—Cartago, the picturesque and ancient capital of Costa Rica, was destroyed by an earthquake.

Five hundred persons are dead and fully as many are wounded. Half the houses in the city have been destroyed. Hundreds of men, women and children are homeless.

Among the public buildings destroyed is the magnificent court of justice, presented by Andrew Carnegie as a permanent arbitration tribunal where disputes between the Central American republics could be settled without resorting to arms.

Thieves and murderes who escaped from the prisons are plundering the houses, increasing the terror. Martial law has been established and the soldiers and police are having the greatest difficulty maintaining order.

NEW MOVE IN MAINE

Democratic Leader Suggests Nomination of Senator In Convention

Augusta, Me., May 6.—A unique departure from the customary procedure in Maine political matters was taken when the call for the Democratic state convention, to be held here June 15, was issued by Fred E. Beane, chairman of the Democratic state committee. It provided that, in addition to the nominations for governor and state auditor, the delegates "see what action the convention will take in naming a candidate for United States senator."

The custom in the past has been for the state senators and representatives of both parties to nominate candidates for senator in caucus the night before the scheduled time for the election by the legislature of a senator.

NEW YORK STILL LEADS

Massachusetts Is Seventh Largest State In Point of Population

Washington, May 6.—According to unofficial returns New York still leads in population, having 1,500,000 people more than Pensylvania, which in turn is about the same number ahead of Illinois, the third state. Ohio ranks fourth, Texas fifth, Missouri sixth and Massachusetts seventh.

The only state to lose in population in the last decade is Iowa, which shows a falling off of 43,006.

Two New Battleships

Washington, May 6.—The demand of the administration for two new battleships will be granted, the senate committee on naval affairs having practically decided to accept the provision of the house bill on this subject.

SENATE LINES NOW DRAWN

Administration Is Facing a Very Serious Situation

SPLIT ON RAILROAD MEASURE

Counting of Noses Shows That Forty-Five Votes Are Controlled by Regulars, Who Need Two More to Pass Taft Bills—Eight Near-Insurgents and Half a Dozen Real Insurgents Besides Democrats to Deal With

Washington, May 6.—Friends of the administration in the senate are able to count noses and announce to the country the names of Republican senators who will stand by the president on the railroad bill; who can be counted on to use all their eloquence to discredit the administration before the people and who, while desiring certain modifications of the bill, are yet tractable and will come into line on the final round-up rather than play into the hands of the Democrats and thus assume responsibility for a political overturn. The list thus divides naturally into three classes of regulars, insurgents and near insurgents, as follow:

Near-insurgents, who object to some features of the bill, but will meet the regulars half-way in making concessions: Borah, Brown, Burkett, Bourne, Crawford, Gamble, Dixon and Nelson—8.

These fifty-nine men represent the full Republican strength of the senate, which contains also thirty-three Democrats. A majority of the senate is forty-seven, hence the regulars need only two more votes to give them complete control, without the necessity of securing a single Democratic vote. This end is what they have been trying to reach for several reasons of great importance.

The regular Republicans realize the ridiculous figure their party will cut if it can get its legislation through only with Democratic aid. The party can claim no credit for it and the defenders of the administration would be seriously handicapped on the stump if they were compelled to admit that Republican platform pledges had been fulfilled only by means of recreant Democrats.

As will be noted in the foregoing list, certain states are split in two over the railroad bill, one senator standing with the regulars and the other with the insurgents. In cases like these, one senator has taken grave political chances in standing by the administration, if it be true that popular sentiment in his state favors the course of his insurgent colleague.

As the crisis the administration is facing is a vital one, so are the claims upon the White House and the regular organization of the men who stand by both, at the risk of their political lives, correspondingly binding. The full power of the administration must go out to strengthen these men in respective states from now on; and, on the other hand, if the administration senators are punished at home, the administration is bound to suffer with them.

It can hardly be conceived that after such a desperate lineup in aid of the president he can treat his friends and his enemies with equal favor.

In other words, even if the present plan goes through, it is certain to leave the Republican party badly devided in many states and to give the election next fall a broader significance than they have possessed since days of Grover Cleveland.

—The publicity committee of the proposed merchants' week for Brockton met Monday. The work horse parade is expected to be a big feature and the Brockton Humane Society is showing considerable interest in it.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

The fact that Balfe's much-loved opera, "The Bohemian Girl" is never included in the repertories of these grand opera organizations made up of world-famed stars, such as the Boston Opera Company of the regular season, the Metropolitan, Manhattan and other similar organizations, makes it a welcome novelty in the series of the Aborn English Grand Opera company at the Boston Opera House. "The Bohemian Girl" has not been presented in Boston in a long time, and probably never before upon the elaborate scale promised in the coming Aborn revival of it for their fifth week, beginning Monday night, May 9th. Therefore it will be like a brand new offering to many of the younger generation, who have heard and admired all of the dear old melodies and other musical beauties of this opera without having witnessed its presentation as a whole; and at the same time it will be a welcome renasance to older music lovers. This is one of the few grand operas originally written in English ,and is practically the only one of that language to reach high success and subsequent popularity. It is almost exclusively the property of English-speaking countries, and has been heard but little in continental Europe, though its composer, Michael William Balfe, was a popular baritone in grand opera at Paris and Milan, and this, as well as some of his other operas, was produced at Paris. They will introduce a new American prima donna, Miss Rena Vivienne, to be heard for the first time in Boston, in the role of Arline. Others in the cast will be Louise Le Baron, John Dunsmure, Paul Bleyden, Phil. Branson, Ottley Cranston, Florence Coughlan and others.

ETHEL BARRYMORE in "MID-CHANNEL."

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

Miss Ethel Barrymore comes to the Hollis Street theatre Monday evening for a two weeks' engagement. Miss Barrymore has scored the greatest triumph of her wonderfully successful career in the play "Mid Channel." There are four acts in the play and during the time Miss Barrymore is on the stage, there is scarcely a string in the entire gamut of passion, that she does not touch with a skill of which any actress would be justly proud, and her scenes of intensity when passion is uppermost are played with assurity of touch and technique which places Miss Barrymore in the first rank of emotional actresses. "Mid-Channel," takes its name from an allegory recited by one of the characters during the first act of the play, in which he likens married life to a certain shoal in the English channel, midway between Folkestone and Boulogne. The Blundells ,husband and wife, have been married for fourteen years, no children have come of the union and they are plainly on each other's nerves, they have reached their mid-channel and in the crossing, their bark is wrecked. The role of Zoe Blundell is totally different from anything Miss Barrymore has ever done and although in past years she has played a great variety of parts, it has developed this delightful actress from one of America's foremost comediennes into one of the leading emotional actresses upon the stage at the present time. "Mid-Channel," is in four acts, the scenes being laid in London. it is a big play, a very big play and it is written with all of the wonderful skill which characterizes Pinero's dramatic work, for this author is a past master in technique, character drawing, dialogue and epigram. Charles Frohman has surrounded Miss Barrymore with a particularly strong supporting company.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Charlotte Hunt and her stock Company will begin a summer engagement at the Majestic theatre Monday night in the Clyde Fitch comedy "The Blue Mouse." There will be matinees every day except Monday. Miss Hunt will appear in the name part of the play, Mr. Richard Buhler will appear as Augustus Rollett, Mr. James A. Bliss as President Lewellyn, Miss Olive Rea Temple as Mrs. Rollett, Miss Eleanor Brownell as Mrs. Lewellyn, Miss Florence Hale as the old German "mother "and Harry Brooks as Mrs. Rollett's father, Wallus. In organizing her Company Miss Hunt has selected players of established reputation. Her long training in the theatre has educated the little actress in such effective manner that she realizes that her supporting company, must be of the best to secure the best results. Richard Buhler, the leading man has just closed a season in the name part of "Ben Hur." He has long been a prominent player with the Frohman forces, and is esteemed one of the most promising young actors of the present day. He is handsome and manly and has had such experience in stock work as to make him particularly suited to Miss Hunt's Company. Miss Florence Hale is a player of the old school. Her name will be found on the playbills of many famous actors, for she has had a long and honorable career as an actress. Miss Hunt is fortunate in securing the services of Miss Hale for this summer engagement. Miss Olive Rea Temple is a Brookline girl who has been upon the stage for about five years. Her career began as an amateur player and since entering professional work she has supported many well known players. When last in New England she appeared here in support of Joseph and William Jefferson and will also be remembered for her work with the stock company at the Boston theatre two years ago.

JEANNETTE BAGEARD Tremont Theatre.

THE TREMONT THEATRE.

The greatest event of the present theatrical season is scheduled at the Tremont theatre beginning Monday evening May 9, when that extraordinary sensation, 'The Girl in the Taxi," with Carter De Haven and its all-star cast of players, comes to Boston direct from its phenomenal run of more than 200 night in Chicago. Produced in Chicago more than five months ago, "The Girl in the Taxi" created a sensation such as has been seldom equalled in this country and proved potent to crowd the playhouse to the doors with enthusiastic audiences at every performance "The Girl in the Taxi" is probably the funniest entertainment, with a touch of sensationalism, that has been produced in years and its coming to the Tremont theatre May 9 for a limited engagement may be looked forward to as the most noteworthy event of the year. The plot of the piece deals with the endeavors of a hopeful son to follow in the somewhat unconventional footsteps of his father, who while posing as the incarnation of propriety in the home circle is really a great rounder on the outside eating little midnight suppers with members of the chorus in the belief that this short life should be crowded with all the pleasures possible to obtain at whatever cost or risk. The complications are better imagined than described. An evening spent with "The Girl in the Taxi" is sure to make anyone positively good-natured.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Jesse Lasky's "Country Club," one of the biggest productions ever presented in vaudeville, with an atmosphere about it which will be particularly attractive at this time of the year, is the feature at Keith's next week. Another big production is that of Tom Nawn and company called "When Pat Was King." Mr. Nawn has for years been recognized as one of the greatest of Irish comedians, and in his present sketch written by Anna Marble he has perhaps the best vehicle he has ever offered the public. It is in two scenes, one showing Pat as a gardener, and another when he becomes King of Ireland and to say that it is a succession of laughs from beginning to end is putting it mildly. Another feature will be Willette Whitaker, the singer and harpist, who has just returned from one of the most successful tours ever enjoyed by an American in Europe. Miss Whittaker has a voice of remarkable power and sweetness and has been particularly fortunate in her songs, which appealed to the English public as something entirely new. Since her return to America she has been a greater favorite than ever. Les Trombettas, a big company of European singers and mimics who have a decidedly novel act, will be seen here for the first time, and other features will be Wilbur Mack and Nella Walker in a sketch; Doherty's Poodles which will prove a big laugh for the children, Minnie St. Clair ,the western girl who has become recognized as one of the leading comediennes of the country, Bellclair and Hermann in Grecian feats of strength, and Lena Pantzer and company in acrobatic stunts.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

A farce and the liveliest of its kind. That is the best description that can be given of "My Wife" which is to be the play at the Castle Square next week. It will be chiefly remembered as the leading play in John Drew's repertory a season or two ago, and also that in its title character Billie Burke made the hit that carried her to stardom. It now comes to the Castle Square for its first stock production in Boston. Adapted by the ingenious Michael Morton from the French, its plot tells how a light-hearted and pleasant young man assumed the guardianship of a beautiful girl, and how they soon fall into love and marriage with each other. It is a clever piece of work, laughable and entertaining from beginning to end, and it promises to rival in laugh-giving qualities, both "Are You a Mason," and "The Marriage of Kitty." In the Castle Square production John Craig will play the leading role of Gerald Eversleigh in which John Drew made an emphatic hit, and the heroine, Beatrice Dupre, will be made lovely and merry by Mary Young, who is especially clever at the interpretation of such roles. The entire John Craig Stock Company will fill out the other roles. "My Wife" will hold the Castle Square for only a single week.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

Of peculiar interest to all lovers of dumb animals will be the mammoth production at the American Music hall next week of "Black Beauty" a vaudeville playlet founded on the world famous book of that name by Anna Sewell. Every American is familiar with the book of "Black Beauty," but a word of explanation may be necessary regarding the dramatization. This was brought about by an offer of George T. Angell president of the Massachusetts Humane Society, who in 1896 offered a prize of one thousand dollars for the best dramatic version. The playlet that will be presented next week is a condensed form of this successful version and will be presented by a powerful company of nine people. Perhaps the most interesting character in the piece will be "Black Beauty" himself who has been especially secured for this engagement. The music end of the program will be well taken care of by the Romany Opera Company, a troupe of twenty accomplished grand opera singers. This company is so well known in vaudeville that little comment is necessary.

SECRET SERVICE EXPENSES

Greatly Enlarged by Extensive Traveling of President Taft

Washington, May 6.—President Taft's desire to travel is proving a costly proposition to the secret service branch of the treasury department, according to testimony given before the house committee on appropriations by Chief Wilkie. The expenses of the secret service men during the last six months is almost as much as during the entire preceding fiscal year.

"Our principal item of increase," said Wilkie, "is the protection of the president. He has traveled so much that our expenses for six months are almost equal to the expenses of the full preceding year."

Chief Wilkie also said the activities of counterfeiters had increased during the year." He remarked that it was a peculiar coincidence that during times of financial distress there is almost certain to be increased activity among counterfeiters.

MILK INQUIRY ASSURED

Committee Named by Legislature Will Have Judicial Power

Boston, May 6.—The order for a searching probe of the milk war was rushed through both branches of the legislature yesterday, and as soon as it was in force the senate members of the committee were named by President Treadway. The members are Senators Mellen, Meaney and Tinkham. Both Mellen and Meaney have been prominent in the fight for the side of the producers.

It is expected that Representative Gardner of Westfield, who is master of the state grange, will be chairman on the part of the house.

The committee will have judicial power and compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books and papers. It will have the right to call upon both contractors and producers for the complete story of the controversy.

PETERSON'S SUGGESTIONS

RFTAIL MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION

of advertising space had been almost sold. The cost would be about $300 and fifteen thousand copies would be distributed. Large posters would be put on the bill boards and signs on the street cars. It was also probable that the street railway would have its illuminated car out.

The ocmmittee on sports reported that arrangements were being made for a series of sports to include a ten mile run, and races for the children of the different schools. That the National band would give concerts eevry night during the week. On the second Saturday there would be a parade and tryout of the Fire department the same as the field days held under Chief Litchfield.

The committee on decorations reported that they had secured flags and cards, which were being sold among the merchants and others. Up to date 230 flags had been sold and 164 cards. The members of the committee would get down to work Friday and make a thorough canvass of the city.

The committee on lights reported that arrangements had been made with the electric light company for a number of the flaming arc lights to be placed along Hancock street between Music hall and Saville street. There will probably be at least sixteen or perhaps more of these lights. The committee intend to put every cent possible into the lighting proposition, for it was the general opinion of all that too much street lighting would be impossible.

The street railway had agreed to furnish all passengers coming to Quincy from out of town with rebate checks which would be redeemed at the stores for return tickets home. There would be a special ticket furnished the merchants by the railway company.

The last committee to report was that in charge of the banquet to the clerks which is to be held May 26. Everything in this line was moving along, and a good speaker had been secured.

It was after 11 o'clock when the meeting adjourned and it was without doubt one of the best meetings the association has ever had.

FOUND DEAD IN BED

Fore River Man Passes Away at Boarding House

A man supposed to be John Moseley aged about 50 years was found dead in bed at his boarding house 46 Winter street Thursday afternoon. The man had not been feeling well for some days and that morning his boarding mistress seeing him in bed thought that he was asleep. When afternoon came she became suspicious and upon further investigation found that he was dead. Medical Examiner Jones was called and the man removed to Hall's undertaking rooms.

From all that could be learned his name is John Moseley. It was said that his home was at 38 Battery street, Boston. Inquiry there brought out the fact that it was a grocery and that the man and others were in the habit of having heir letters come there. Later it was learned that the man probably belonged in Charlestown. He had been employed at the Fore River for some years. The body is now at Hall's undertaking rooms.

Miss C. S. Hubbard has returned from Mount Dora, Floridy, where she has been spending the winter and is at her home at 186 Billings street, Atlantic.

OPERETTA GIVEN AT DEDHAM.

The cast of the operetta "A Dress rehearsal" was accompanied to Dedham on Thursday evening by other members of the Junior Alliance of the First church and several young men, and it was a very enjoyable evening for all. The trip was made in one of the Boston signt-seeing automobiles in about an hour. The operetta was repeated in the vestry of the Unitarian church for the benefit of the Y. P. R. U. of that church and was even better than at Quincy. Between the scenes there was instrumental music, and dancing followed the entertainment. It was after midnight when the party returned.

WILL GO TO SUPREME COURT.

The case of John M. O'Brien against the city will be passed upon by the supreme court. Judge Hitchcock before whom the case was tried, returned a verdict in favor of Mr. O'Brien, but said, if requested by counsel, he would report the case to the supreme court to pass upon the questions of law involved. This will be done at City Solicitor McAnarney has so requested.

MRS. EDITH BO WOLFE.

Quincy friends of Mrs. Edith B. Wolfe were grieved to learn of her death Thursday night at her home in North Weymouth of pleuro-pneumonia after an illness of only two days. Mrs. Wolfe was a past president of Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps of this city and at present patriotic instructor. She was active in all patriotic work and also a great worker in the Third Universalist church at North Weymouth.

She was a devoted daughter to her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chubbuck, with whom she made her home and they have the sympathy of many friends in the sorrow that has come to them, as has also her only son who will miss a mother's love. Four sisters and a brother and a large circle of friends also mourn the passing away of Mrs. Wolfe.

ALABAMA MINE DISASTER

But Little Hope That 180 Entombed Men Are Still Alive

Birmingham, Ala., May 6.—Forty-five white and 135 negro miners are entombed in a coal mine at Palos, Ala., as the result of a terrific explosion. It is believed that all are dead.

The flames from the explosion shot 200 feet into the air and the shock was felt for miles. Timbers were hurled several hundred feet from the mouth of the mine. Rocks from the roof caved in and made access difficult. The fan machinery was damaged, but air is pumped into the mine in hopes that some of the men are still alive.

Printers' Marks.

The interrogation mark or "point" (?) was originally a "q" and an "o," the latter placed under the former. They were simply the first and last letters of the Latin word "questio." So, too, with the sign of exclamation or interjection (!). In its original purity it was a combination of "l" and "o," the latter underneath, as in the question mark. The two stood for "lo," the Latin exclamation of joy. The paragraph mark is a Greek "p," the initial of the word paragraph. The early printers employed a dagger to show that a word or sentence was objectionable and should be cut out.

Mushrooms In Old Mines.

Theodore Imback of the Maryland state experiment station has found a new use for abandoned mines. He has produced in them mushrooms of the best grade, his experiment showing the abandoned mine to be an ideal place for mushroom culture. He is producing mushrooms of the best quality in an abandoned mine near the state farm at Morgantown, Md., having plants that yield from the one mine from $8 to $10 worth of mushrooms a day.

A Long Walk to Cure Tuberculosis.

Walking from Boston to Denver as a cure for tuberculosis, J. W. Lee, aged thirty, applied to the Allegheny General hospital, at Pittsburg, for medical treatment the other day and was invited to stay, but after a short rest continued on his trip. Lee said that he had no relatives or friends and was working his way across the country, riding when he could. He had walked most of the distance from Boston to Pittsburg.

He Did.

"Did Simkins get any damages in that assault case?"

"Did he? My dear fellow, you ought to see his face."

STORIES OF THE DIAMOND.

Veteran Pitcher Cy Young Tells How He Broke Into Game.

BEGAN WITH HICKORY BOTTOMS

In Order to Teach Chesty College Boys a Lesson He Decided to Twirl—How Cy Defeated Cadiz and Got His First Chance In Professional Baseball.

No. IV

By CY YOUNG.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

It was a good many years ago—doesn't make much difference how long ago, but it was before the World's fair, and we will let it go at that. You see, I am getting sort of weary of this "Old Cy" business. I stand for what the women say on the question of age when they say they are just as old as they feel. That's me. I'm just as old as I feel; but, at that, I guess most folks who know me know I've passed the forty mark.

I'm glad to get the age question off my chest, for I started to talk about the Hickory Bottom team. Never heard of that team, hey? I started playing ball with them, the good old Hickory Bottoms of Hopedale, Harrison county, O.

CY YOUNG, VETERAN PITCHER OF CLEVELAND AMERICANS.

I had been pitching hay, playing ball with some of the farm hands, and we were having quite a time of it. A little place called New Athens—not the Athens on up the state, but New Athens—had a college and some 500 folks. They were rather chesty when it came to playing ball, and when the boys would drive into town on a Saturday afternoon we would watch the college boys play ball.

They didn't look much to me, so I got our farmer boys in line, and we hunted a long time for a name. Big Stillwater and Little Stillwater were two creeks close by, and we thought we would call ourselves the Stillwaters, but some of the fellows kicked on that. As we lived in a part of the county called Hickory Bottom and as our first bats we made ourselves out of good old hickory trees, we took up the name of the Hickory Bottom baseball club, and then we started. Say, we didn't do a thing to those college boys! We just ate 'em alive.

Well, I never will forget the day we went to Cadiz. I was down to pitch, and all I could do was to throw a ball like—well, I could throw 'em some in those days. Did have an outcurve, I guess, but I just counted on speed. The Cadiz team had been cleaning up everything from Wheeling, Steubenville and on down the river, and to think the Hickory Bottom team would lick them! Why, say, it was a joke to those fellows.

We played on a side of a hill. Never was a ball ground quite like that. The only thing any way near level was the run from first to second. You had to run up hill to first, up hill from third to home and down hill from second to third.

The Cadiz team had a fellow they called Home Run Grimes. He played shortstop, and his record was a home run or two every game. Say, I fanned that fellow every time he came to bat, and we won the game 12 to 1. Funny how they got that one run! It came in the second or third inning, I forget which. But some of the Cadiz sports got to betting that I would blow up or kill our catcher, and that made me hot again. So I kept firing the balls in sort of reckless-like, and I hit two fellows, and one man got to base on balls. I hit the next fellow, and that forced in a run. Then I settled down, and we won hands down.

The Cadiz Republican gave me a big writeup on the game, and the Canton (O.) manager got hold of the story and booked me. The boys told how I went into professional ball on a hay wagon, and there was a heap of truth in it at that.

The First Balloons.

The chemical philosophers have discovered a body (which I have forgotten, but will inquire) which dissolved by an acid emits a vapor lighter than the atmospherical air. This vapor is caught, among other means, by tying a bladder compressed upon the bottle in which the dissolution is performed. The vapor, rising, swells the bladder and fills it. The bladder is then tied and removed and another applied till as much of this light air is collected as is wanted. Then a large spherical case is made, and very large it must be, of the lightest matter that can be found, secured by some method like that of oiling silk against all passage of air. Into this are emptied all the bladders of light air, and if there is light air enough it mounts into the clouds upon the same principle as a bottle filled with water will sink in water, but a bottle filled with ether will float. It rises till it comes to air of equal tenuity with its own if wind or water does not spoil it on the way. Such, madam, is an air balloon.—From Dr. Johnson's Letter, Sept. 22, 1783, to Mrs. Thrale.

She Forgot.

At 3 o'clock the absentminded woman left home with an umbrella. At the subway station she concluded it wouldn't rain and left the umbrella with the corner newsdealer. When she came back at 6 o'clock it was raining. Boys with umbrellas to rent darted toward her when she appeared at the head of the subway stairs. She paid one boy 10 cents to escort her home. Then she remembered her own umbrella. Sheltered by a borrowed umbrella, she went back to get it. The newsdealer looked uneasy.

"Just a minute," he said. "Oh, Tom, come here!"

A small boy dodged around the corner of the stand and handed over a dripping umbrella. The absentminded woman looked at the boy; she looked at the umbrella. She recognized both.

"Idiot!" she said. "I paid that boy 10 cents for taking me home with my own umbrella."—New York Press.

"I'm going to be a minister," said Tommie, forcibly.

"Why, Tommie dear?" asked his father.

"So's I can talk in church," said Tommie.

GRAND PARADE THE BIG EVENT

Liberal Prizes to be Awarded for the Best Features

The Route of Parade as Now Suggested

The executive committee of the city of Quincy Citizens July Fourth celebration committee held a meeting Friday evening at the rooms of the Board of Trade, at which time things began to assume definite shape toward the grand celebration which it is proposed to hold on the coming National holiday. Chairman Stone of the general committee presided, and several of the chairmen of the sub committees were present. Some of these have already selected the names of the gentlemen who are to assist them and the general outline of the day's program was gone over.

GRAND PARADE.

The first thing of the day will be a grand parade in the morning. This it is proposed to start at 7 o'clock sharp. Col Henry L. Kincaide, the chairman of the parade committee, says that when the hour of 7 is stated that it means 7, and that the parade will start promptly whether all are ready or not. It was decided that the parade should consist of several features, namely:—Civic military, antique and horrible, societies, floats and original features. Prizes will be offered for the best features in each of these sections or divisions.

The formation will be at Merrymount park, and the route as now laid out will be up Hancock street to Granite street, Granite street to Brewers corner, down Water street to Franklin street, Franklin street to School street, School street to Elm street, Elm street to Washington street, Washington street to Hancock street, passing around the fountain and for the second time in review in front of the First church. On this stand will be the Mayor and city officials and judges. Just what the prizes will be for each feature have not been decided as yet. The chief marshal and aids are not as yet appointed.

It was decided to have at least two bands and a drum corps, and possibly more. It was also decided to employ none but union bands in the parade, as it was given out that none of the labor men of the city would take part in the parade should non union bands be employed.

Following the parade there will be a serious of sports. Mr. Gifford, the chairman of this committee, has not fully completed his program, but as it is proposed to offer something like $400 in prizes there should be a good field.

CHILDREN'S ENTERTAINMENT.

Then there will also be an entertainment for children. This will be in charge of W. Ward Whitcher, who was elected as the chairman of this committee by the executive committee. The fact that Mr. Whitcher is the head of this committee is sufficient guarantee that it will be all right.

In the evening there will be band concerts at Merymount park and a grand display of fireworks which will close the day.

$4,000.00 THE AMOUNT TO BE RAISED

Over Forty Prominent Citizens to Serve on the Finance Committee

Other Committees Have Also Been Named

One of the first things to do, in order to make the Fourth of July Celebration a success, is to raise funds, and from now on Mr. Gammons and the finance committee will get busy. Every person in the city should contribute something, no matter how small for every little helps. The amount the committee desire to raise for the day is $4,000.

The committee who will assist Mr. Gammons in raising the funds includes:

Ward One—Charles C. Hearn, Jesse F. Curtis, George A. Sidelinger, George T. Magee, Theophilus King, William R. Thomas, Daniel J. Maloney, John D. McKay and Charles A. Ericson.

Ward Two—Eugene C. Hultman, H. E. Ricker, Joseph A. Dasha, Jacob Peterson, Hiram W. Phillips, N. DePanfilio, John W. McAnarney and Fred H. Smith.

Ward Three—Albert Nelson, Robert E. Foy, Walter E. Piper, John R. Richards, John L. Miller and Alexander Falconer.

Ward Four—William H. Teasdale, Edward J. Sandberg, James H. Elcock, James F. Burke, John Evans, John Faircloth.

Ward Five—S. F. Copeland, Albert W. Fay, Wendell H. Hull, Arthur B. Cassidy, Alexander W. Russell, James Duncan and Charles W. Bailey.

Ward Six—Frank E. Badger, James H. Cunningham, Harry W. Read, Herbert S. Barker, Charles W. Gill, John A. Duggan and W. F Cummings.

This committee will probably get to work immediately and the more money raised the better will be the entertainment that the committee can furnish for the day.

OTHER COMMITTEES.

Archie Briggs, who has charge of the water sports, will have as his assistants, Frank F. Crane, William Parker, Walter J. Coombs, Herbert W. Robbins and Joe Elcock.

Mr. Gifford's committee on field sports are: Charles W. Foster, Peter Sullivan, John J. Connors, Joe Elcock, W. H. Flynn, James E. Neary, Alexander Raleigh, George Maver, James Brogan, Harry T. Boyd, Chick LeClair, Theodore Hermanson, Walter McBirnie, Joe Clark, Mr. Trask, Morris Cohen and Archie H. Briggs.

The fireworks committee, headed by George H. Elcock, are Delcevare King, Charles C. Foster, Walter E. Piper, R. J. Teasdale, A. W. Fay, William Duggan, James E. Watson and William P. Taylor.

The publicity committee, to whom the general committee look to have what is going on spread before the citizens, are: A. L. LaBrecque, Frank F. Prescott, T. J. Collins, W. H. Cobb, Fred F. Green, G. T. Magee, L. J. McMaster, W. J. Parker, Mr. Strong, L. F R. Langelier, Harry P. Dowst, J. D. Smith E. A. Gisburne.

All of the committees, as announced at the meeting, are subject to revison, as it was not certain in al cases that the gentlemen named would serve.

Before the meeting adjourned it was voted to extend an invitation to the Central Labor Union and affiliated unions to cooperate with the general committee. The Central Labor union was also invited to send delegates to the general committee meeting to be held next Friday evening.

CONDUCTOR EGAN IS DISCHARGED

Judge Avery Finds Want of Probable Cause for Manslaughter

District Attorneys's Assistant Takes Exception

Want of probable cause to believe him guilty of manslaughter was the finding this morning by Judge Avery in the case of Conductor Robert J. Egan in causing the death of Rosco Hunt. The case which consumed two days in its hearing came up this morning for the court's finding.

In summing up the case, the court said what Egan did was unfortunate, yet not enough justification to hold him for manslaughter. It seemed to him, in view of the circumstances, that the men under the influence of liquor rode on the car and made more or less annoyance to the traveling public. On arrival at Quincy one of them struck him with a dress suit case and followed it up with a deliberate kick, and that Egan struck back. The blow did not cause death. Hunt had bags in both hands, and manner in which he fell caused his death. If it had been a blow that brought blood it would have been different. The court had a feeling that it was not necessary for the District Attorney to have appeared in the case, and that it would have been as well for the court to have taken the responsibility and made the finding, and let the district Attorney's office act afterward. The blow was not sufficient to cause injury, and was not delivered to cause injury, but given on the impulse of the moment.

Mr. Katzman of the District Attorney's office, said that he would fail in his duty to the Commonwealth, did not state that he had come to different conclusions than the court. He had tried hard to come to the conclusion, but was not able to find justification for the blow. Mr. Katzman claimed that Egan should have run away as he knew the condition of Hunt. There was no testimony that Egan was afraid of the man or would strike him again, which would have justified the blow. Egan turned instinctively and struck in a spirit of retaliation. If Hunt was about to follow him it would have been justified to protect himself. The assault had ceased and Egan was not justified to strike back. He did not take any steps to see if another blow was coming. He is either justified and should be discharged, or he was not justified and should be held for manslaughter. He felt that the blow was not justified.

Mr. Hall, counsel for Egan, said one thing has been ignored by the District Attorney. What was the effect on Egan. These two men, who had it in for him, stood back of him and he got a kick in the back. He turned and did what any true American would. Struck back. He was perfectly justified. He was rebelling an assault and not usipg undue force.

The court rendered its finding of want of probable cause to believe him guilty of manslaughter and ordered his discharge.

As Egan left the court room he was immediately surrounded by many of his friends and congratulated on his discharge.

It was intimated by the court the District Attorney could bring an indictment against Egan before the grand jury, but in view of his being discharged by the lower court it is very doubtful if such a course is taken.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

What is the matter with "Mayor Shea o. Quincy "for another year? Every one seems bound to send him to the legislature or congress. Those honors can come later but why hurry. Quincy needs her best at home these days.

Newspaper business is like no other in that it is hustle,bustle all the time, not one person but everybody. Then there are days when everything goes wrong no matter how well planned. Friday was one of the hard days at the Ledger office. IIt started well with lots of good copy not only of the Merchants meeting but considerable local newsy matter and editorials. The typesetting machine got cranky and at times refused to work at all so that when the hour arrived to go to press all the matter was not set. Then when the press started, the web of paper thought it the proper time to take its turn at being cranky and persisted in breaking but after a while the wheels revolved for the better and the Ledger was soon on the street not many minutes late and in good attractive form.

A reader of the Ledger said the other day that if it was desired to have a fairly quiet location for the proposed court house most of the locations on the main streets thought to be available would be too noisy. An ideal spot would be between two streets one fairly public and central and the other a quiet one, for instance the Faxon property to the west of the Coddington school combined with the Peter Turner estate on Faxon avenue, giving an entrance on both streets; the Faxon and Gill properties on Maple street next to the post office and through to Temple street or the south side of Temple street through to Foster street; on Washington street south of the Library through to Spear street. His suggestions seem good ones and worth investigating.

The location on Washington street, south of the Library seems an especially good one as we learn on good authority that the Crane family have in mind further improvement of the Library grounds by the addition of a large tract of land to the south. If this land is taken into the Library grounds the large area of land owned by the Wilson Tisdale estate would be an especially good and attractive place for the court building. It contains some 16000 feet, has good frontage and depth.

The location of the court building is a matter that should receive considerable attention and with the thought now given to civic centres and beauty spots, Quincy should get in line and combine beauty with convenience and utility.

"Mother's day" is a day that appeals to every one. Although the movement to set aside the second Sunday in May each year as "Mother's day" is of recent origin it has been taken up and is being observed in the east and the west, the north and the south, and promises to be world-wide in its observance. As Dr. John Wesley Hill of New York aptly expressed it, observe the day "in honor of the best mother that ever lived—your mother."

Some young men are far from home and possibly have not been as considerate of "mother" as they should; have neglected to write the letter that means so much; some perhaps seem to have entirely forgotten their obligation to one who has sacrificed much for them, to them especially "Mother's day" should appeal.

On Sunday it is hoped the white flower will be much in evidence and the mothers honored by the wearing. Let every man wear a white flower, write a letter to, or better still visit his mother if possible or remember her with a gift.

It was our pleasure on Friday to receive a fifteen minute call from Hon. Albert W. Donovan of Rockland, the speaker who was received with so much enthusiasm at the Merchants' meeting Thursday evening. His is a personality we wish we could always have with us but we doubt if Rockland could be induced to give him up. He is a living exponent of what he advocates; a live active force that must be an inspiration to all with whom he comes in contact. Although he hit up Quincy in his talk there was nothing to take offense at as the criticisms were honest and given in a broad fair-minded way that was beneficial and stimulating. He was convincing in his conclusions and it is hoped dug deep enough into our soil for the seed to take root and grow, branching out in the various ways suggested, and with all that there will be a growing together, a unity of thought and purpose, then it will surely be a better Quincy.

DRIFT OF OPINION

Now and then we hear people objecting to a "saner Fourth of July." "Let the boys have their fun," they argue. "We had ours." True enough, and in consequence of that fun there are many graves today. There are many people with maimed hands. There are many sightless. There are many in poverty whose property was destroyed by reckless celebrators. Because we were foolish must others go on being foolish too? In the city police headquarters on every "night before" doctors and reporters gathered and waited for the victims to be brought in; and it is only within a few years since the leaven of common sense began to work, that the victims failed to appear—torn, bloody, oftentimes shrieking in agony, having "enjoyed their fun." A saner Fourth dosen't mean a Quaker meeting. It doesn't mean an absence of noise and sport and a good time. It merely means an absence of murderous affairs that are calculated to kill and are fully expected by their manufacturers to kill occasionally. The modern movement looks to saving eyes and hands and life itself. And still people here and there object to any change—just as some are willing to take fullchance on catching coulds and suffering from pneumonia because of a refusal to dress sanely in winter.—Framingham News.

HANSON—COLE.

The announcement of the engagement of Fred Hanson of Brockton and Miss Emily J. Cole of Hancock street, South Braintree, has been an item of considerable interest in both localities. Born on the same day May 2, 1835 and classmates at school in Weymouth, friends and sweethearts in the old days it seems most romantic that after years of separation they are now drawn together and will spend the remainder of their lives together.

Mr. Hanson has a high standing in Brockton, is a dealer in tombstones and granite work of all kinds, and is one of the oldest business men in Brockton. He came from Weymouth where he was formerly a bookkeeper for many years. In 1861 he was called to the front to serve his country but was sent to Annapolis to do guard duty instead of going into battle service.

In 1896 and 1897 he represented the tenth or double district in the house of representatives. Being a veteran of the Civil war he is of course a member of the Brockton G. A. R. as was Mrs. Cole's other husbands. Mrs. Cole is a native of Braintree and has a large circle of friends who sincerely hope she may be very happy in her life with her husband and that they may enjoy many long years of good health and prosperity.

They were married Monday, May 2nd, the anniversary of their double birthday in Boston by Rev. Daniel W. Waldron, chaplain of the Massachusetts house of representatives and Boston city missionary. Rev. Mr. Waldron is a relative of Mrs. Hansons and has for years performed such services for the family acting in such a capacity about a month ago for a wel' known granddaughter.

They are enjoying a honeymoon trip and are to spend a portion of the time with relatives in New York and Springfield after which they will be located at the Hansom homestead at 238 Warren avenue, Brockton ,and their well wishers trust the coming years bring peace and plenty.

KING EDWARD VII PASSES AWAY

Prince of Wales Becomes King Automatically Immediately on Death of Father.

THE LATE KING EDWARD.

London, May 7.—King Edward VII, who returned to England from a vacation ten days ago, died at 11:45 o'clock last night in the presence of his family, after an illness of less than a week, which was serious hardly more than three days.

One of the last utterances attributed to King Edward was: "Well, it is all over; but I think I have done my duty."

He seemed then to have reached a full realization that his end was fast approaching.

The Prince of Wales succeeded to the crown immediately, according to the laws of the kingdom, without official ceremony. His first official act was to dispatch to the lord mayor the announcement of his father's death, in pursuance to custom. His telegram read:

"I am deeply grieved to inform you that my beloved father, the king, passed away peacefully at 11:45 tonight. George."

"May 6, 11:50 p. m.—His Majesty the King breathed his last at 11:45 tonight, in the presence of Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Royal, the Duchess of Fife, Princess Victoria and Princess Louise, the Duchess of Argyle.

(Signed) "Laking, Reid, Powell, Dawson."

Pneumonia the Probable Cause

Pneumonia, following bronchitis, is believed to have been the cause of death, but the doctors thus far have refused to make a statement. Some of the king's friends are convinced that worry over the critical political situation which confronted him, with sleepless nights, aggravated if it did not cause the fatal illness.

Besides the nearest relatives in England, the Duke of Fife and the Archbishop of Canterbury were in the death chamber. The king's brother, the Duke of Connaught, with his family, is at Suez, hastening home from Africa. The king's daughter, Queen Maud of Norway, will start for England today.

The intelligence that the end of King Edward's reign had come was not a surprise at the last. The people had been expecting to hear it at any hour since the evening's bulletin was posted at Buckingham palace and flashed throughout the kingdom. The capital received it without excitement, but sadly, for the king with his own people was unquestionably one of the most popular rulers in the world. They regarded him as one of the strongest forces making for the stability of the peace of the empire.

Within a few minutes after the death of the king, the home office was telegraphing the intelligence to the heads of other governments and the British diplomats and colonial offices throughout the world.

All who knew the king anticipated that his death would be sudden, and it would not have occasioned great surprise if it had occurred without warning at some social function, as a result of heart trouble. Almost to the end he refused to take to his bed, and was sitting up yesterday in a large chair, so the palace stories go, corroborating the description of him as an unruly patient, which Dr. Ott gave to a Vienna interviewer last evening.

KING EDWARD'S CAREER.

King Edward was born at Buckingham palace, Nov. 9, 1841, the eldest son of Victoria and Albert. He started out in life named only Abert Edward. Less than a month after his birth he was by patent created Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester. To these titles afterward were added a score or so others.

He was educated on lines laid down by the prince consort. Beng a German, the consort was at times in danger of over-educating his son. First he studied under private tutors. He later studied for a time at Edinburgh; later at Christ Church, Oxford, and also at Cambridge.

Then followed a period of travel in Europe and the east, followed by a trip to Canada and the United States in 1860. This latter tour was undertaken under the guidance of the Duke of Newcastle at the instance of the prince consort, who did not altogether approve of the sort of life the heir to the throne was living at home.

In America he was enthusiastically received; in fact, the tour was a triumphant one for the youth. Elaborate receptions were held in Canada and the United States as well. President Buchanan and his official family made him more than welcome. Like courtesies extended everywhere furnished the foundation for the liking he has always had for America and Americans.

Married to Danish Princess

After this tour, he visited Germany, Italy and the Holy Land, in 1862. The following year he was married to Alexandra, eldest daughter of Christian IX, King of Denmark. The year following his marriage the prince visited Denmark, Sweden and Russia. There were other trips to Egypt, Turkey, Holy Land, Greece and other Mediterranean countries, culminating with a tour of India, in 1875-6.

Six children were born to King Edward, three of whom are still living, the eldest and heir to the throne being George Frederick Ernest Albert, Duke of York and father of four children, three sons and a daughter. Other living children of the late king are the Duchess of Fife, Maud, Queen of King Haakon of Norway, and Victoria, Queen of Spain, is his niece.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.

As royal marriages go, that of the late king was a happy one. Anent the marriage of King Edward, it was not without romance. His queen mother, it has been related, had intended selecting a bride for her son from among one of the princely Teutonic families.

J. R. Pitman, professional coach, who is to take full charge of the production of Pinafore at Music hall on May 21 was for many years stage manager at the Castle Square theatre. The light operas given there so satisfactorily were under his personal direction, for in all of these the dialogue is an important part and requires as careful action as any regular drama. The few spectators allowed at the Pinafore rehearsals have been much interested in watching Mr. Pitman's methods of converting an inexperienced cast into a company of creditable actors. He has unbounded enthusiasm, and if the Quincy performance reaches a standard half as high as the one he sets for it, the opera will be well worth attending.

CODDINGTON REUNION

Alumni Gather at the New School Building

The Alumni of the Coddington school held its third annual reunion Friday evening in Coddington hall. This gathering was one of the most successful the association has held. Over seventy-five former students enjoyed a very delightful evening.

In the early part of the evening there was a reception to the matrons, Mrs. Bentley, Miss Whicher, Miss Taylor, Miss Underwood, Miss Colligan, Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Lovejoy, Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Cook. The ushers were Miss Clara Brown, Miss Ethel Cook, Miss Elizabeth Furnald, Miss Dorothy Darling, Miss Edith Lovejoy, Miss Daisey Brooks.

Darcy Curwen '06 called the meeting to order for business. W. H. Bentley, the principal of the school, was called upon to speak. After welcoming the alumni he spoke briefly in his interesting manner. Miss Daisy Brooks gave the report of the secretary and teasurer. A nomination committee including Miss Edwina Sweetland, Bruce Saville, Sherman Hayden, Jerry Moynihan was elected.

The play "The Straw Man" followed. The cast was: Dennis—Alden Blanchard. Florence—Mabel Lovejoy. Reta—Minnie Packard. Tracy—Edward Hayden. Gaston—Corliss Berry.

The presentation was very clever.

During the evening, between the different parts of the program, Miss Helen Connor furnished instrumental music. Miss Zita Pitts sang, and on the encore gave an exhibition of fancy dancing. The one act play "Jane's Legacy was presented. The cast included:

Jane Sampson	Mabel Lovejoy
"Bob," the husband	Harold Prout
Miss Baxter	Edith Fox
Martha	Edith Lovejoy
The Squire	Alden Blanchard
Mrs. Williamson	Mary L. Brown

The complications were depicted in an able manner. Refreshments were served.

The committee on arrangements for this successful occasion included: Darcy Curwen, chairman, Miss Clara Brown, Miss Ethel Cook, Miss Elizabeth Furnald, Miss Dorothy Darling, Miss Edith Lovejoy, Miss Daisey Brooks and Sidney Crane.

The committee on nominations reported:

President—Darcey Curwen.
Vice President—Harold Gould.
Secretary—Rachel Hardwick.
Treasurer—Dorothy Edwards.

For the entertainment committee—Jerry Monynihan, Margie Taylor, Bruce Saville, Sherman Hayden, Edwina Sweetland.

GREAT INTEREST IN "PINAFORE."

The Quincy Women's club has certainly made no mistake in planning a performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's light opera "H. M. S. Pinafore." The novelty of presenting an entire cast of ladies, for an audience of ladies only, is meeting the reward it deserves in the long list of subscribers. The committee expects to be able to present to every one attending the opera an elaborate souvenir program, for our up-to-date business men were not slow to see that a gathering of six or seven hundred women is unusual in any district, and they are eagerly grasping the opportunity of placing a choice advertisement in the hands of these hundreds of home makers. Aside from the many attractive details planned for the opera, interest naufrally centres in the cast of characters which includes: Mrs. Frank J. Moore as Josephine; Mrs. George H. Ryder, Buttercup; Mrs. Frank A. Page, Hebe; Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell, Ralph Rackstraw; Miss Alice Gertrude Coe, Sir Joseph Porter; Miss Annie Deane, Capt. Corcoran; Mrs. Frank A. Emery, Dick Deadeye; Mrs. Ernest V. Fitts, Bill Bobstay; Mrs. Oscar A. Blaisdell, Bob Becket; Mrs. George L. Badger and Mrs. Victor E. Miller, Sergeants of Marines.

Sailors—Mrs. Carroll E. Bates, Mrs. Horace G. Crocker, Mrs. James L. Edwards, Mrs. Jesse I. Litchfield, Mrs. Edward E. Miller, Mrs. Arthur W. Ryder, Mrs. Maurice P. Spillane, Miss M. Lillie Taber, Mrs. William O. Wellington, Mrs. Henry M. Wright and Mrs. Charles D. Young.

Female Relatives of Sir Joseph Porter, Mrs. William F. Cummings, Mrs. Fred E. Drake, Miss Norma C. Lowe, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Mrs. J. Francis Merrill, Mrs. W. G. Shaw, Mrs George A. Sidelinger and Mrs. R. R. Smith.

AT STATE HOUSE.

The adverse report of the committee on the Carr bill, that the Blue Hills reservation be kept in the natural condition, was sustained in the House on Friday. Representative Carr spoke for the bill alleging that the reservation is sand-papered down so finely now that its attractions for visitors is injured. Representative Wolcott defended the report. This was the bill fought by the West Quincy Improvement Association.

Quincy should also be interested in the bill reported Friday for a distribution of the railroad and telephone taxes among the communities where the right of way of railroads lies, and where the telephone subscribers exist. There are two dissenters to the bill.

This is another bill aimed at "tax-dodgers' paradises," on the same lines as the domestic corporation franchise tax bill, which has just gone through, and, like that, will benefit the cities greatly where the bulk of the telephone subscribers exist, and where great railroad yards are located, but the railroad sections will also benefit sparsely settled rural communities which have little else now than railroad tracks.

The present law provides for the distribution of these taxes in the communities where the stockholders reside, therefore the communities which would suffer most by the bill would be the "summer colonies" along the North and South shores, and certain wealthy suburbs like Brookline and Newton.

The Dean bill arrives at the new distribution in an indirect way. It provides for the taxation of the railroad's "right of way," which heretofore has always been exempt. This right of way is five rods wide, and constitutes pretty valuable real estate in places. This right of way will be taxed locally.

An order passed both branches yesterday directing the special committee to investigate the milk war to report within 10 days how much milk (including condensed) was sold in Boston from cold storage during the first week in May; how long such milk had been kept in storage; whether such milk is injurious to the public health, and what action, if any, has been taken by the state board of health to prevent the sale of such milk. The committee will hold daily session beginning Monday.

A large number of Savings Bank officials attended the hearing on Friday in opposition to the enactment of the bill drafted by the committee on investigation of the Southbridge Savings bank.

It is said that Senator Hultman and Representative Dean are ready to put up a strong opposition to the bill reported to allow classification of property for taxation.

METEOR STORM HITS STEAMER

Crew Has Strange Experience In Mediterranean Sea

ATTRIBUTED TO THE COMET

Myriads of Great Flaring Bodies Like Rockets Swept About, While Unusual Currents of Air Rushed Hither and Thtiher—Many Men Fall Prostrate to Deck—Washington to Get Report of Cruise

Boston, May 7.—Midway in the Mediterranean, between Algiers and Gibraltar, the tramp steamer St. Patrick, which arrived in Boston yesterday, ran full into a terrific rain of meteorites on April 2, which a hundred times threatened the ship and the lives of her crew.

The sky was swept as by myriads of huge rockets. Great flaring bodies, whose tails hissed over the seas for leagues, fell into the sea and lashed the waters to a fury.

Strange currents of air rushed hither and thither from all points of the compass. The air was filled with a deadly chill and the barometer rushed up and down.

Men shivered as perspiration broke from their bodies. They muttered and prayed and crossed themselves.

From time to time some of the crew fell silently to the decks. Some say it was from fear, but those who dropped said later that a strange gas had choked them.

Last night the crew of the St. Patrick were all well and happy after a record trip from Algiers. No damage was done the ship during her ordeal. But it was almost impossible to get any connected statement concerning the experience she had passed through.

When any of the crew started to talk about it they became so excited that practically all they would say was that they had expected to die.

A report of the ship's cruise, during which the comet has been sighted, will be sent to the department at Washington. Already the ship's story has atttracted great attention.

ADMIRAL M'CALLA DEAD

Naval Fighter Was Awarded Congressional Medals For Bravery

Santa Barbara, Cal., May 7.—Rear Admiral Bowman H. McCalla, U. S. N. (retired), died suddenly at his home in this city of apoplexy. He had not been ill and the attack was unexpected. His wife and three daughters were at his bedside. When Rear Admiral McCalla was retired on June 19, 1906, he came to Santa Barbara to pass his declining years, purchasing a beautiful home here.

During the Spanish-American war McCalla was awarded congressional medals for special meritorious service. He was born in Camden, N. J., in 1844, and entered the United States naval academy in 1861. He was graduated in 1864.

In the Spanish-American war he was commander of the Newark and took that ship from San Francisco to Manila.

All Public Courts In New York City Parks Will Be Open

New York, May 7.—Carrying out his ideas that New Yorkers get little exercise and need all the fresh air they can get on holidays, Park Commissioner Stover has announced that hereafter all the public tennis courts in the city parks will be open on Sunday. Heretofore most of them have been closed on that day.

There are 400 acres of courts in all the parks, 1200 courts in all. Statistics show that on fair Saturday afternoons they are occupied by from 25,000 to 40,000 players.

KING EDWARD

this indulgence was the winning of the Derby in 1896, and again in 1900. He was also a great dog fancier.

Cards were always the favorite game of the late sovereign. Fondness for the pasteboards and high stakes often caused him trouble. The English press was ever ready to add to this trouble by publishing rumors that he was losing princely fortunes. Chief of the scandals in which cards involved Albert Edward was the Tranby Croft baccarat affair, in which were also involved Sir Gordon Cumming, Mrs. Wilson and Lady Brooke—"the babbling Brooke" she came to be called because she gossiped so much that the affair became public. This brought Albert Edward into court and made no end of talk, both in England and America, in 1889.

Quarrel With a Duke

It was his unwillingness to abandon baccarat that caused a violent quarrel between Albert Edward and the Duke of Richmond, one of the most trusted advisers of the queen. The duke specified that there should be no baccarat at Welbeck Abbey during the race week, and when he discovered the prince and a party of friends playing there was a violent scene. The prince refused to stop playing and accepted an invitation to the home of an Australian millionaire, where he continued his play. The queen also forbade baccarat at Windsor during Ascot week, but so set on playing was the prince that he rented a cottage and continued his favorite sport.

As the Prince of Wales, Edward VII had a host of friends. Frank, loyal and warm-hearted he always was. He was typically the "good fellow," but he was a stickler for the prerogatives his relation to the throne demanded. He always insisted upon being addressed as Sir and his friends remembered never to speak until he first addressed them, and no subject was discussed that was not suggested by him.

He loved Paris. This caused no end of concern to those whose duty it was to guard him. He was fond of giving the slip to the detectives and hurrying across the channel, and when his flight was discovered the French police, as well as the English, were led a merry chase.

Felt Pulse of His People

He preferred a hired coach to a royal equippage and often managed to indulge this whim. Many times he strolled through the streets with the same freedom as an ordinary workman listening to the talk of the people—feeling the pulse of the men and women who were to become his subjects. It was this thorough knowledge of the people that made him the great king that he was.

King Edward for years had much to do with setting fashions for men. He was a lover of simplicity, which led to the introduction by him of the single-breasted frock coat for evening. This was his first failure. His military and public engagements demanded that he have a great wardrobe, the same as his nephew, Emperor Wilhelm of Germany.

Kept His Kingdom Clean

But all his light-hearted manner disappeared and this seeming easy-going disposition faded away when he was crowned king. His first speech, uttered soon after the coronation, is now a matter of history, but it is fitting that it should be repeated in connection with this article, for in it King Edward outlined a policy from which he never deviated as much as a hair-breadth.

"In undertaking the heavy load which now devolves upon me," said the king, "I am fully determined to be a constitutional sovereign in the strictest sense of the word, and as long as there is breath in my body to work for the good and amelioration of my people."

This he did. He avoided trouble. He kept his kingdom clean, and, while there may have been colonial questions from time to time, they were problems that are simply incident to the course of events in a great empire. The business of Great Britain and Ireland is not the business of a concern, nor of two or three small countries.

Tact, the simple name of diplomacy, may have won for King Edward the love of his people which now plunges them into a deep mourning of the heart, but it was only the tact of an intensely human soul—genuine in its love of peace and fellowship. It was only this that could have made the victory so complete and enduring.

STRONG TARIFF COMMISSION

Provided For In the Sundry Civil Appropriation

TAWNEY INTRODUCES MEASURE

Investigation as to Cost of Production Will Be World Wide and Require Services of Many Experts, For Which the Sum of $250,000 Is Provided—Can Furnish Congress With Data For Scientific Tariff

Washington, May 7.—Chairman Tawney of the house committee on appropriations has succeeded in working a pretty good tariff commission bill into the sundry civil bill. Tawney has worked like a beaver over this matter, deeming it not only of great importance to the party, but of some personal consequence to himself, as his own re-election from the insurgent state of Minnesota is none too certain.

In presenting the bill to the house Tawney called especial attention to the item of $250,000 to be used by the tariff board, and declared that the information to be gathered by this body of experts will do much to furnish congress with data on which a really scientific tariff can be based.

John C. Cobb of Boston has been much in Washington during the conferences held over the preparation of the feature of the bill. The bill takes a step in advance in expressely authorizing the appointment by the president of "a tariff board." It also provides specifically for the employment of experts and for "rent of offices in the District of Columbia," thus giving the tariff board and its employes a home of their own, should it be decided to establish headquarters outside the treasury building. While the bill places no limitation upon the size of the tariff board, it is the understanding that the present trio will be retained.

In referring to the present tariff board and the criticism of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, Tawney says: "There was more time given to the work of ascertaining the cost of production in preparing the Payne bill than there was in the preparation of the previous tariff bill, but the methods used in preparing all previous tariff bills had to be followed because none other was available. For this reason the rate of duty in some cases may not correctly represent the declared principle of Republican protection; that is, they may be more and they may be less than the difference in the cost of production. To this fact more than any other may be attributed all of the dissatisfaction with the Payne law.

"The information as to the cost of foreign production will be difficult to obtain. Our government has no power to compel the attendance of witnesses in foreign countries or to require foreign producers to exhibit their books to enable us to ascertain the cost of producing any foreign product. It will also be conceded that where the same article is produced in different countries the cost of production in the country where that cost is the least must govern in determining the rate of duty to be imposed upon that article from whatever country imported.

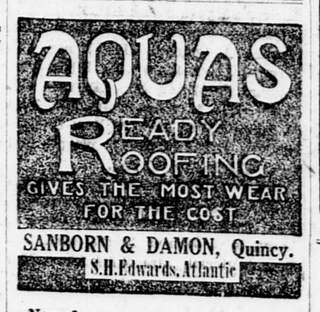

"It will be seen, therefore, that the work of obtaining accurate and reliable information as to the cost of production in foreign countries is world wide, a work, too, that will require a great many experts and a great deal of time. But when the information is once obtained by disinterested, competent agencies, it will be invaluable to the enactment of future tariff legislation upon the principle of Republican protection to American industries and American labor as declared by the last Republican national convention."

ALTITUTE OF 23,800 FEET

Reached by Kite Flown by Weather Observatory In Virginia

Washington, May 7.—The world's record for kite flights held by the weather bureau observatory at Mount Weather, Va., was exceeded by that observatory by about 700 feet.

Ten kites were used, carrying over nine miles of wire, and the head kite reached an altitude above sea level computed at 23,800 feet, at which point a temperature of 29 degrees below zero was recorded. This is the lowest temperature ever recorded by a kite-carried instrument.

Kidney disease advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells, or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the urine is dark, foul-smelling, irregular and attended with pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

Your townspeople recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the statement of this Quincy citizen.

P. J. Garrity, 367 Granite street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I suffered so severely from kidney disease that I could hardly get about. I was restless at night and could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained a heavy sediment at times. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. After I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

Regulations of Costume and Diet by Law

(Historical Paper No. 16.)

The observance of Christmas by our ancestors was considered a crime, and the penalty for keeping it, was the same as the penalty for playing at dice or cards, and the now popular amusement of dancing was frowned upon as tending to licentiousness and immoral conduct.

The General Court, always desiring to have a fatherly care over her subjects, concluded that a few sumptuary laws were required for the welfare of our good fathers and mothers, and that there should be no mistake or misunderstanding about the matter, they enacted a law to regulate their costume, and also to regulate their diet, by forbidding the use of cake or buns, excepting at burials, marriages or such like occasions; the wearing of all ornaments, gold, silver, or silk lace was forbidden, as well as hat bands, ruffs, also enabroidery or needle work, and the wearing of long hair was an abomination in the sight of God. This enactment was not very acceptable to the dry goods merchant or the fashionable dress maker of that day.

"The Court taking into consideration the great superfluous and unnecessary expense occasioned by reason of some newe and immodest fashion, as also the ordinary weareing of silver, golde, and silke laces, girdles, hatbands, etc., hath therefore ordered that noe person, either man or woman, shall hereafter make or buye any apparell, either woolen silk or lynnen, with any lace on it, silver, golde, silk or thread, under the penalty of forfeiture of such cloathes.

"Also, that noe person, either man or woman, shall make or buy any slashed cloathes, other than one slashe in each sleeve, and another in the backe, also, all cutt works, imbroidered or needle worke capps, bands, and rayles, are forbidden hereafter to be made and worne, under the aforesaid penalty, also, all golde or silver girdles, hattbands, belts, ruffs, beaver hatts, are prohibited to be bought and worn hereafter, under the aforesaid penalty.

"Moreover, it is agreed, if any man shall judge the wearing of any the forenamed particulars, newe fashions, or longe hair, or anything of the like nature, to be uncomely or prejudiciall to the common good, and the party offending reform not the same upon notice given him, that then the nexte Assistant, being informed thereof, shall have power to binde the party soe offending to answer it att the nexte Court."

The tailor was the fashionable dress maker of this period, as the ornamenting and trimming of ladies' dresses with gold and silver lace, had to be executed under his charge.

"Whereas there is much complaint of the excessive wearing of lace and other superfluities tending to little use or benefit, but to the nourishing of pride and exhausting of men's estates. It is ordered, that no taylor, or any other person whatsoever, shall hereafter sit any lace or points upon any garments, either linnen, woollen, or any other wearing clothes whatsoever, and that no person hereafter shall be imployed in making of any manner of lace, but such as they shall sell to such persons as shall and will transport the same out of this jurisdiction, who in such case, shall have liberty to buy the same. And that hereafter no garment shallbee made with short sleeves, whereby the nakedness of the arme may be discovered in the wearing thereof; and such as have garments already made with short sleeves shall not hereafter wear the same, unless they cover their armes to the wrist with linnen, or otherwise; and that hereafter no person whatsoever shall make any garments for woemen, or any of their sex, with sleeves more than half an ell wide in the widest place thereof, and so proportionable for bigger or smaller persons."

The stringency of these sumptuary laws created a broil between the Court and Church. The elders complained that some of their members had been too summarily dealt with for not observing the statute, and that the Court had exceeded its jurisdiction in enforcing its penalty on church members, believing that a little whitewashing was more oppropriate for their saintly members than the penalty of the law. The Court not to be put down, after paying due defference to the church, answered them by saying, that all persons of whatever quality or condition, should and would be punished for the non-observance of the statute.

"And whereas some have beene grieved that such excesses were presented to the Court, which concerned the members of the churche, before the parties had been dealt with at hoame, intimating thereby that the churches would, upon notice of those abuses in apparell have taken such course as would have reformed their members, and so have prevented the trouble of the Court.

"This Court hath, therefore, thought fitt, (in the great confidence it hath of the care and faithfulness of the churches,) to stay all proceedings upon the said presentment, in expectation that the officers and members of all the churches, haveing now cleare knowledge, both of the said disorder in apparell, and the resolution of the Court to attain a general reformation, will speedily and effectually proceed against all offenders in this kind, and that they will also (from observation of our proneness to follow new fashions, and to fall to excessive costliness in attire) keepe the more strict watch over all sorts for time to come, and this Court doth herefy intimate to all whom it may concerne, (of what quality or estate soever they may bee) that all such persons as, after all these admonitions and forbearances, shall obstinately persist in their excesse in this kind, shall be looked at as contemners of authority, and regardless of the publicke weale, and must expect to bee proceeded against by the strictest course of justice, as their offenses shall deserve."

The First Fork.

The first fork? The fork, as a matter of fact, did not appear as a table implement until the seventeenth century, though as early as the thirteenth century gold and silver ones were made for special purposes. The ordinary diner was only provided with a trencher, a napkin and a spoon. For knife he used his own, which he carried about, and, worse, there was no second trencher, no second spoon. When the several courses came along he exercised his ingenuity and mopped his trencher with his bread. His spoon—well, we ourselves lick postage stamps!—London Chronicle.

"OOM'S" HEART TREATMENT

Miss Hopp Gives Testimony Against the Alleged Hypnotist

New York, May 7.—Miss Zelia Hopp, in the West Side court, continued her story of how Pierre Bernard, whom she and Miss Gertrude Leo accuse of having held them in hypnotic thraldom, exercised his strange influence upon her. Bernard, or "Oom" as he was known in the alleged mystical order to which he belonged, is under $15,000 bail, Magistrate Breen refusing to entertain a motion to reduce the amount.

Miss Hopp said she went to see Bernard to get treatment for a heart affection which had troubled her since childhood. He had called at her home, she said, under the name of "Dr. Warren" and had told her he could help her.

On this representation, she said, she went to his apartment in West Seventy-fourth street with her married sister. After calling there several times he asked her to go to a flat in West One Hundred and Ninth street, where she stayed until she felt suddenly that she was released from his influence, and left the place.

FOILED IN ATTEMPT TO KILL A WOMAN

Maine Farm Hand Then Takes His Own Life by Shooting

Ross Corners, Me., May 7.—After trying to murder Mrs. Ada Pierce, with whom he had lived several years, Jesse Temple, 38 years old, committed suicide by shooting at his home here last evening.

Temple was jealous because of attentions being paid Mrs. Pierce by others and he had dragged her to the barn, saying he was going to kill her, when Sherman Young, a neighbor, interfered and managed to hold Temple's attention long enough for Mrs. Pierce to escape.

Temple then turned the revolver on himself and died about half an hour later. He was a farm laborer.

LARGE "MUSCLES" IN LEGS CAUSE ARREST

Chicago Manufacturer Is Held on Charge of Smuggling

New York, May 7.—Seemingly abnormal developments of the legs of Ferdinand Bante, a member of the firm of Bunte Bros., who own a large chocolate and candy manufacturing plant in Chicago, attracted the attention of customs inspectors when he stepped ashore from steamer Pennsylvania and led to his arrest on a charge of smuggling.

The inspectors decided that the bulging around the calves of his legs was not due to the working of muscles, and upon investigating learned that he had several watches and a quantity of jewelry valued at nearly $2000 tied there.

Bunte was taken before Commissioner Russ, who released him in $1000 bail for appearance before the federal grand jury May 17.

The Civic committee of the Quincy Women's club and Commissioner Bainbridge are replacing the trees on Coddington street which have not survived the elements and vandals. These trees were set out two years ago through the generosity of the Civic committee, and residents of the street and by the help of the city. It is hoped the effort at beautifying will some day result in a well shaded street.

—"If all weights and measures were standard and all packages full size, living would be somewhat cheaper," says an exchange. We wonder if this is really true, or if the subtle influences which determine prices do not after all in the long run balance the cutting in quantity which the package system of putting up goods appears to foster. It may be that the single man who gives short weight makes inordinate profits for a little while, but if every dealer resorts to the same expedient the real competition must be unchanged ,even if the basis of that particular competition is slightly altered. This in no way justifies the skimping of packages, but only suggests whether ,after all, it is actually profitable in the long run.—New Bedford Standard.

QUINCY HIGH WINS

The fast Brockton High baseball nine was defeated by Quincy yesterday. The score stood 2 to 1. This game was about the hardest one yet for the locals.

"Scrime" Rice made a fine commencement, fanning two men and Billy Manning got under Roland's fly. When Quincy's turn came at the bat Billy Manning got a base on balls. Then he reached third through an error of the third baseman. George Barry got first and stole second. Mel Chapman was hit in the arm, so all the bases were filled, but Allen struck out and Chapman flied out. Billy Manning crossed the home plate scoring the first run just before Barry was caught off second.

Barry made a great throw, the best this season, from centerfield to catcher, just in time to prevent Wardwell from scoring a run in the fifth inning.

The last of the seventh inning was exciting. Broodus Chapman knocked the sphere down in the hollow, getting to second. Soon afterward "Terry" Murphy drove another two bagger and gave an opportunity to cross the home plate.

The ninth was uneventful except for the manner in which the pitchers put out their men. In fact this game was a pitchers battle. "Scrime" held down the Brockton men in fine shape. Wardwell, the Brockton man, had a fine arm and gave some very clever pitching. The way in which the Quincy men got under the flies of the Brockton players was very commendable and showed the excellent form they have. Murphy at first base is doing great work. Bowman the Brockton first baseman put up a fine game. The only game which could compare at all with this was the one with South Boston on Patriot's day.

Tuesday the Abington nine visits here.

There promises to be a fierce contest May 24 when Quincy again meets Brockton in the Shoe city.

Wellington's Coolness.

The Duke of Wellington was one day sitting at his library table when the door opened and without any announcement in stalked a figure of singularly ill omen.

"Who are you?" asked the duke in his short and dry manner, looking up without the slightest change of countenance upon the intruder.

"I am Apollyon. I am sent here to kill you."

"Kill me? Very odd."

"I am Apollyon and must put you to death."

"'Bliged to do it today?"

"I am not told the day or the hour, but I must do my mission."

"Very inconvenient; very busy; great many letters to write. Call again or write me word. I'll be ready for you."

The duke then went on with his correspondence. The maniac, appalled probably by the stern, immovable old gentleman, backed out of the room and in half an hour was in an asylum.

When Women Rule the Wave.

"Captain, I have to report that the ship is sinking rapidly."

"I wish to goodness, Gertie, you wouldn't bother me so often. However, you may cut her stays, which will probably relieve her, and have the stewardess serve tea at once in the pink room."—Life.

YOUNG MAN CAUGHT IN MACHINERY

Sustained Serious Injuries Which Will Probably Prove Fatal

Was Employed at a Granite Polishing Mill

Henry Mattson, aged 16 years, of 21 Buckley street was seriously if not fatally injured this morning, shortly after 8 o'clock, at the polishing mill of the National Granite and Polishing Co. on Albertina street. The young man was at work about the machinery, and while attempting to shift a piece of belting his clothing was caught in the belt and the next instant he was being whirled about the shafting at a rapid rate. His agonizing cries brought his fellow workmen to his aid, and as soon as possible the machinery was stopped and the mangled body taken down. Every stitch of clothing was torn from him with the exception of his shoes.

Dr. W. J. McCauslin was called, and a hasty examination showed that both of the young man's legs had been broken, that his right arm was broken, and that besides severe injuries to his back that he was probably injured internally. Dr. McCauslin ordered his immediate removal to the City Hospital where he was taken in the police ambulance. His injuries are so severe that but slight hopes were entertained for his recovery.

DRUNKS ROUNDED-UP

One Sent to Jail and Three to State Farm

There was a general rounding up of drunks at East Weymouth on Sunday night, and as a result eight were lined up before Judge Avery in the district court this morning. The drunks were men who had spent Sunday at Nantasket and had drank more than was good for them. There has been considerable complaint by the residents of East Weymouth of these gangs, and Chief Fitzgerald determined to break up the habit. In court one of the offenders was sentenced to three months in the house of correction, three were sent to the State farm, three were fined $10 each, and the eighth man had his case continued on probation until July 1 on payment of $1.45 costs. One man arrested for being a tramp had his case continued on probation until May 18.

Three Quincy drunks were also assessed $10 each.

—By the will of Belinda Downing of Hyde Park, her estate, valued at $45,000 will ultimately be divided ejually among the Kings' Daughters and Sons home of Pondville, Mass., the N. E. Home for Little Wanderers and the Calitha Crane Maternal home both of Boston.

BRIEFS

Miss Helen Gavin has been appointed as clerk in the office of the Overseer of the Poor. The appointment was made under the civil service rules.

Sunday morning gave promise of being a beautiful day. The weather was mild and pleasant until shortly after noon when showers rather put on a damper.

The Fourth of July executive committee will hold another meeting next Friday evening. The time is very short and as it is hoped to make the celebration a success a large amount of work will be necessary for the several committees.

While the work of putting in the new turnout on Washington street has been in progress Washington street between Pond and Mill streets has been closed to travel by teams. The job will probably be completed this week.

The Quincy Anti-Tuberculosis society announce that the tuberculosis camp off Quincy avenue is now ready for public inspection, and the public are invited to visit the camp. The local physicians will also be notified today that the camp is ready to receive patients.

Mayor Shea advertised Saturday for bids for furnishing the city with an automobile ambulance and police patrol wagon. George Cahill the driver of the present patrol wagon has been receiving instructions in running an automobile so that when the new wagon arrives he will be able to operate it.

THE AMAZONS A SUCCESS

Large Audience Pleased with High School Play

"The Amazons," a three-act play, was presented Saturday evening in High school hall before a large audience. The applause which greeted the players gave full evidence of the manner in which the play was received. A particularly happy choice was made of the cast of characters which included:

Barrington, Viscount Litterly
William C. Northrop

Galfred, Earl of Tweenwayes,
Roy L. Sidelinger

Andre, Count de Grival
Leon D. Browne

Rev. Roger Minchin,
Harry P. Levowich

Fitton, (gamekeeper)
Charles C. Hearn

Miriam, Marchioness of Castlejordan
Isabel K. Thomas

Her Daughters:

Lady Noeline Belturbet Margaret Hall

Lady Wilhelmina Belturbet
Anna D. Larkin

Lady Thomasin Belturbet
Gladys L. Bain

"Sergeant" Shuter Sarah M. Hale

Each part was performed with excellence. William C. Northrop, as Viscount, carried his part with an ease which betokens natural ability. The Earl impersonated by Roy L. Sidelinger, was admirably presented as a typical Englishman with a long and noble family tree behind him. Leon D. Browne brought out the humor of his part in an irresistable manner. His acting was perhaps the most striking. His gestures and expressions spoke volumes. Harry P. Levowich did full justice to his part. Charles Hearn was an ideal gamekeeper and he presented his part quite true to life.

Isabel K. Thomas portrayed the part of the Marchioness in a very pleasing manner. The three daughters, or "boys" as the Marchioness was wont to call them, proved they still had very feminine natures. The part of "Noel" was cleverly taken by Margaret Hail. Anna D. Larkin as "Willie" was presented in an excellent manner. Gladys L. Bain as "Tommy" gave probably the best acting and most capable interpretation of her part. "Sergeant" Shuter caused paroxysms of laughter whenever she was on the stage. "The Amazons" was one of the most amusing comedies ever presented at the school.

The patronesses for the play were: Mrs. A. Armstrong, Mrs. C. M. Bryant, Mrs. E. E. Jameson, Mrs. M. Brown, Mrs. E. E. Jameson, Mrs. M. Churchill, Mrs. F. H. Corey, Mrs. C. R. Safford, Mrs. P B Blackmur, Mrs. C. E. Hearn, Mrs. J. M. Sheahan, Mrs. George Pfaffmann, Mrs. E. H. Bushnell, Mrs. J. H. Heaney, Mrs. H. I. Hall, Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Mrs. A. L. Barbour, Mrs. W. H. Bentley, Miss Catherine Shea, Mrs. Frank Patch.

The ushers were: Alfred Hanson, Charles H. Kendall, Daniel Sullivan, William Murphy, Lewis Coombs, Phillips Hardy, Clarence Armstrong, Reginall Sprague, George Holteen Ralph Ford, Forrest Royal, Harold Miller and Winthrop Safford. The orchestra, which furnished some excellent music was composed of: Mr. Clarence Fouche, director, Theodore H. Corey, Vernon Scott Richard Roche, Roger Bates, W. A. Clark, Charles H. Sayward, Jr., and Harry B. Smith.

After the play bouquests were presented to Miss Mary Brown, who so successfully coached the play, and the members of the cast.

WENT TO SEA IN A PUNT

Reckless Adventure of Young Atlantic Boy

According to the morning papers, Nelson M. Cook of 47 Billings street, and aged 11 years, had quite an experience Sunday when he put from Neponset in a punt which he and his grandfather and brother had built. He was blown about the harbor and finally landed high and dry on Governors island none the worse for his experience. Once having started from Neponset, the gale carried him along at a great speed.

The boy was in no ways frightened, saying that his father was a sea captain. Sunday morning he started for Sunday school but instead of going there he went to Neponset and took out his flat bottom punt. He had two oars and a leg of mutton sail. This sail he spread on a rake handle which he had improvised as a mast. Once out into the river the wind took him along at a fast speed and with a canoe paddle as a rudder he guided the craft. He was unable to land as the wind and tide took him out. The boy said that he had great sport and that he had nothing to be afraid of. When he landed at Governors island he was cared for by a party of excursionists, who, after learning his story gave him some chowder and then took him to South Boston when the Quincy police were notified. Later the boy was taken home by his mother.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Anyway, the first installation of strawberry shortcake escaped the blizzard.

A great many political forecasts necessarily read like experiments in mind reading.

If the House isn't careful it will get to be as extensive a producer of Chataqua lecturers as the Senate.

Now that they've begun to investigate the business methods of universities, the muck-rakers will have another inning.

There is no doubt about the earnestness and sincerity of President Taft. He means to do right, and is honest in whatever he does.

As there is likely to be a sad shortage of cotton seed this year, the country may be obliged to worry along with olive oil for salad dressing.

The Mansfield Board of Trade has adopted a very pleasant and original slogan for its 1915 movement. It is: "A better Mansfield to look at, a better Mansfield to live in." The slogan of Somerville is: "The extermination of mosquitoes in stagmant pools." The slogan of the Boston 1915 committee is: "A safer and more sane celebration of the Fourth of July." What is Quincy's?

No Norfolk county receives a very small proportion this year of the appropriation of $378,416.66 for State highways. Just $5,100 of this will be expended in this county, less than two per cent. Plymouth county will benefit to the extent of $56,150.00, generous sums being expended in Lakeville, Marshfield, Scituate, Plymouth, Halifax, Wareham and other towns. In Norfolk county the towns benefited are Weymouth, Norfolk and Millis.

The wealthy bankers of the country are using the Democrats in Congress as their principle weapon for the defeat of the Postal Savings Bank Bill. A law to establish Postal Savings Banks will be one of the most advanced steps this country ever took, and President Taft deserves the deepest gratitude from this country in his efforts to establish these Banks so that the man with a small sum of money can safely deposit that in the hands of the Government, where he will know it is safe, and at the same time draw a small percent interest. This is much better than wrapping it up in an old stocking or biding it in the fire-place. Every country in Europe has established these Banks, and they have proven an unqualified blessing, as it keeps money from being hoarded, and the same is thereby used in the commerce of the country at all times.

DRIFT OF OPINION

"The milk producers have a just cause—their demands are fair—only for enough to make a living profit on the business. They have the sympathy of most of the consumers in Boston, and if their brother farmers will stand with them and not sell the milk that will make up for the dificency created by the action of the producers, they must win. The milk business has come to a point where something must be done if those engaged in it are to continue to make milk, and they are to be congratulated on their present firm stand. —J. Lewis Ellsworth, secretary of State Board of Agriculture.

PLANS OF CHILD CONFERENCE.

NATIONAL SOCIETY ORGANIZED

Workers In Different but Allied Fields Will Be Brought Together at Big Meeting In Worcester, Mass.—Organization and Increased Efficiency Demanded.

The second general meeting of the National Child Conference For Research and Welfare is being planned for the last days of June and early July. This meeting will be at Worcester, Mass., where the conference came into existence nearly a year ago. Leaders in various forms of effort for the betterment of juvenile citizens will address the sessions. The conference will last five days. This organization aims to be a central clearing house for information and for definite action for the welfare of children in all departments. Instead of taking some one phase of child nature, such as gardening or playgrounds or health, the conference regards the coming citizen as a unit and attends to the unit's needs in their relation to one another and to the community.

Speaking on this peculiarity of the organization, Henry S. Curtis, the secretary, said that thirty-three child helping organizations were represented at the first meeting in July, 1909.

"It is expected that there will be a still more general representation this year," he added. "At these meetings matters of general interest are discussed and methods that might apply to different fields are considered. It is the purpose of the conference to bring the different organizations closer together, so that there may be less wasted and misguided effort.

"We all know the results of organization in the commercial world and the increased business efficiency that follows. We want to secure some such results for philanthropic movements. We want to make it easy for various kinds of social workers in different but allied fields to become acquainted with each other, with each other's troubles and methods, and to provide them with a central source of information and assistance when needed.

Plan For Centralization.

"Further, this centralizing idea is going to offer the general public an easy way to keep in touch with progress in the whole field. In these busy days not many men or women have time to look into the work of hundreds of organizations scattered all over the United States. But when we get a central clearing house—call it a 'philanthropy trust' if you like—then any person can find out with not much trouble what is being done in any given line of effort."

Another benefit aimed at in this unity of purpose is the bringing together of the scientific students and the practical workers. The theorists and the field workers have not always advanced in step. The conference intends to assist each class to understand the other and thus benefit the general purpose for which both are striving by different but equally important methods. The Child Conference has its eyes fixed on Washington and wants some day to secure a federal children's bureau. Resolutions have already been adopted favoring bills before congress for that purpose.

"The time has come, in the opinion of this conference," a last year's resolution ran, "when all efforts for the amelioration of the conditions of childhood of a charitable and philanthropic nature should be based upon and so far as practicable guided by the results of scientific child study, and only thus may the various lines be given a more scientific and workers a more professional character."

In other words, this organization intends to kill off a lot of haphazard work that has been going on with the avowed purpose of helping children and substitute work that is more intelligently directed and more beneficial to those who do it, to those who are the subjects and likewise to those who support it by money or personal interest.

A National Organization.

Dr. G. Stanley Hall, president of Clark university, who is also president of the Child Conference, approves this sort of conservation of organized energy. There is "a crying need to correlate" the societies of the country, says he. "We could present an interesting list of overlapping and lack of co-ordination. Some committee of a general scope which would not be local or connected with any one institution and which could also comprise and make contact with and have every one of the child welfare societies represented on it—that is the thing that we chiefly desire."

To get at its work the Child Conference has established a national organization, which will meet in Worcester, Mass., June 28 to July 2, inclusive. It is planned to have local conferences in various centers throughout the United States which will attend to unifying local organizations and interests for local purposes. A start has already been made in this direction. A local conference has been organized in Worcester.

SPENDING TOO MUCH TIME IN TRAVELING

What Democrats Think About Jaunts of President Taft

Washington, May 9.—President Taft's journeying about the country is to be made the subject of debate in the house when the sundry civil bill comes up for consideration in that body.

The measure contains a provision appropriating $25,000 to defray the president's traveling expenses. Under ordinary circumstances this amount would not become available until July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year. At the request of Mr. Carpenter, the president's secretary, the appropriation is to "become immediately available."

Democrats will oppose this sundry civil item, using this provision in a partisan way to inform the country that the president spends too little time in Washington. It will be charged that Mr. Taft has spent more time away from Washington proportionately than any other president.

"UNCLE JOE" IS 74

Hatchet Is Laid Aside In House on Birthday of Speaker

Washington, May 9.—Speaker Cannon's rooms across the corridor from the floor of the house were gay with flowers, and all day he smilingly received congratulations on his 74th birthday. The Illinois delegation presented him with a bouquet of seventy-four American Beauty roses.

Representative Rodenberg of Illinois presented to Miss Cannon a bust portrait of the speaker, painted by an East St. Louis artist. It was the gift of twenty residents of that place, whom Rodenberg said included both Republicans and Democrats.

Champ Clark directed the attention of the house to the fact that it was Cannon's birthday in a brief address. He said the speaker owed one duty to the public, which was to write a book of his reminiscences. In closing Clark wished the speaker "prosperity, happiness and length of days." Both Democrats and Republicans arose and applauded the speech.

LEAPS OVER BRIDGE RAIL

Autoist Becomes Suddenly Crazed and Gives Battle to Rescuers

Newburyport, Mass., May 9.—John E. Glidden of Beverly suddenly went insane while in an auto half way across a long bridge over the Merrimack river, threw off his hat and coat and valuted over the rail into the water below, while his brother and sister-in-law, dazed by the sudden frenzy, looked on in bewilderment.

The river is fifty feet deep where Glidden struck. A motor boat coming up the river saw him strike and headed for him. When they attempted to pull him in, he fought savagely against rescue, and it was only because he was weakened by his immersion that he was finally saved.

Glidden was taken to the Homeopathic hospital, where it was said he was suffering from nervous prostration brought on by overwork. He is employed in the inventors' department of the United Shoe Machinery department in Beverly.

LONG-DISTANCE MILK

Product Is Many Hours Old Before It Reaches Boston Contractors

Boston, May 9.—One of the strongest proofs of the claim of the milk producers that the Boston contractors are having difficulty in securing sufficient milk with which to supply their customers each day is that fact that cars of milk are daily being received from distant points, some of which are nearly twenty-four hours in transit.

The farthest point from which milk has come during the past week is Gouverneur, N. Y., 375 miles from Boston. The trip requires at least twenty hours, and because of delays the trip often consumes more time. During the trip it is necessary to ice the milk two or three times in order to keep it fresh for delivery in Boston.

Link confessed that he got $1000 for his Lorimer vote and $900 out of the "jackpot" later split up at St. Louis.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

THE COURT HOUSE SITE.

Editor Ledger:

Noting a few months ago an advertisement in your paper of the Tisdale property on Washington street, consisting of houses and stables opposite Foster street, and learning that it is still for sale at a reasonable figure, it seems to me that it is just the place for the proposed new Court building. It is a large tract, good location central and convenient and I doubt if a better lot could be secured.

An Observer.

CAPT. GOW ENDORSED.

Editor of Quincy Daily Ledger:

Your suggestion as to the selection of Captain John L. Gow to fill the position, now vacant, upon our School board is an especially good one. Captain Gow is eminently fitted, in all respects, to fill such a position with credit to himself and benefit to our city. He has been an instructor himself for many years, and being now a retired officer of the navy, is in a better position to give his time and services than many an other. He has always been interested in all matters concerning our city, especially along educational lines, and intends making Quincy his permanent residence. I know of no better selection for the position than Captain Gow, a man of wide experience in educational matters, a thorough and courteous gentleman, whom all who know honor and respect. I should be glad to hear of his appointment and only hope that he may accept such a position were it offered him.

C. THEO. HARDWICK.

THRIFT AMONG WORKING WOMEN.

Although about forty-five per cent of money deposited last year in Massachusetts savings banks stands to the credit of women it is well known to social workers that large numbers of women wage earners still do not realize the importance of preparing against the inevitable contingencies of life. The first number of the little Savings Insurance bulletin which is to be issued regularly by the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League contains an interesting statement regarding some investigations among women who earn their living. It seems that under the direction of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, Boston, and the cooperation of Miss Susan Kingsbury, Miss Davida French has just completed a year's work for Savings Bank Insurance, with special reference to the attitude towards thrift of the working women. A few conclusions are here summarized:—

A general apathy, because woman's inherent sense of dependence upon man is seldom outgrown; with young women there is always the expectation of marriage, and work is usually only a makeshift until the man appears.

A normal class of settlement workers was formed, and this class was instructed in the principles of Savings Bank Insurance by Robertson G. Hunter, who at that time was State Actuary.

Thirteen hundred interviews were held with girls at work in certain industries largely employing women. The interviews showed:—

That the grade of industry rather than the wage and age makes saving seem possible.

That 47 per cent have life insurance of some kind, but that these policies are usually carried by the parents.

That the seasonal character of their work and the custom of turning all income into the family exchequer prevent many from saving.

That endowment is the form that appeals most forcibly to woman.

A Women's branch of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance league has been formed, with Mrs. Glendower Evans of Boston at the head, to carry on an educational work in behalf of savings and insurance among working women.

COUNTRYSIDE LAID WASTE FOR MILES

Fifteen Persons Killed In Blowing Up of Powder Plant

Ottawa, May 9.—An explosion which last evening wrecked the General Explosive company's plant, situated four miles from this city, killed fifteen persons and injured fifty others.

The force of the explosion was terrific. The country for miles around was laid waste and many small dwellings in the city of Hull, on the side nearest the scene of the explosion, were flattened to the ground.

A baseball game was in progress a short distance from the powder works. The teams were playing the last inning, and when a fire was seen in one of the small buildings of the powder plant, the crowd began to swarm up the hill to get a better view of the blaze.

Warning of the danger came to the onlooookers in two minor explosions soon after the fire got well under way.

When the main magazine exploded there were two stunning detonations. Everything within a radius of a mile and a half was torn and shattered.

STILL "KILLING SNAKES"

Ballinger Will Drop Subordinates Until He Has Loyal Support

Washington, May 9.—Secretary Ballinger, testifying before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation committee, served notice that if he continued as the head of the interior department there was going to be some more "snake killing" and that it would be kept up until the last snake was dead.

Attorney Brandeis, who has been cross-examining the secretary, wanted to know just who was to be dropped from the service, but Ballinger said the enumeration would occur in good time.

"If I am to continue to conduct the affairs of the department," said the secretary, "it will be with the loyal support of every man in the department."

PUBLICITY BILL AMENDED

Contributions Are Not to Be Published Until After Election

Washington, May 9.—Representative McCall's campaign publicity bill, changed in a very important particular, was reported to the senate by the committee on privileges and elections.

As introduced by McCall and as passed by the house, the bill provided that campaign contributions be made public fifteen days before the election. The senate committee struck out this provision so that the publication shall be made after election.

Death List of Fifteen Hundred

San Jose, C. R., May 9.—The dead at Cartago now number no less than 1500. The city was destroyed by an earthquake which lasted four seconds. It was a tremendous movement, which followed a few minor shocks.

Scarlet Fever Down to Normal

Boston, May 9.—The returns of cases of scarlet fever reported yesterday to the Boston board of health show an abatement in the wave of disease. Only thirteen cases were reported, which is a return to normal figures.

—Many articles heretofore sold by number or measure are now required by law to be sold by weight. Continuing along this line, a bill has just been introduced in Congress providing for the sale of eggs by weight instead of by the dozen. This is an entirely reasonable and sensible proposition, as a dozen large eggs are worth more than the same number of small ones, and it will give the hens producing the larger eggs the benefit of the greater weight. The proposition should command the approval of all housekeepers and heads of families.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Three Points Emphasized Relative to Mothers' Day

HALL PLACE M. E.

The subject of the morning service at the Hall Place M. E. church was "Greetings to mother," the text being taken from Romans 16-13—"Salute Rufus, chosen in the Lord, and his mother and mine." The pastor, Rev. Carl H. Raupach, drew particular attention to the manner in which Paul spoke of the mother of Rufus, remembering doubtless, all her kindness and love and sympathy for him in his work and causing him to say not only "his mother" but to add and "mine." He mentioned many of the eminent men in history who attributed their success in life to their mother and also the women who have been noted for their purity and uprightness and the important part they have played in influencing their children toward high and holy things.

In speaking of "Mothers Day" itself and its utility, he emphasized three points. It is a memorial to the splendid and glorious work of the mothers of the land, both in individual homes and in national life. It is an obligation to the mothers who still live, and the pastor pleaded for greater respect and higher honor for and towards the mothers. The third point was, that the day suggested the responsibility that rests upon the motherhood of our land in being careful of their influence and example upon the younger generations.

In closing he referred to the greetings that were yet to come when the mothers who had long since gone to the glory land would be the first to greet those who have been faithful in the Christian life here below.

Sunday school was held at the close of the morning service. The Juniors met at 3 P. M. in the vestry. John Pearce led the Epworth League at 6.15 on "The Spiritual Birthday."

At the evening service the text was taken from the 19th chapter of Revelation, a part of the 12th verse, "And on his head were many crowns," the subject for the evening being "The crowned king." The pastor emphasized the importance of crowning Christ as the King of Kings and Lord of Lords in our own lives.

The Ladies Aid will meet on Wednesday evening.

Prayer meeting on Friday evening at 7.30.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther, preached morning and evening on Sunday. The subject of the morning was, "The death of the righteous" Num. 23-10. Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his. After setting forth the beauty of the righteous life, the pastor gave the warning that all who die in sin shall have part in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone.

In order to die right, we must live right. A death bed repentance is very unsatisfactory. It is good to save a soul but better to save a soul plus a life.

The evening subject was: "The Psalmist's noble act and supreme confidence"—Ps. 16:8. I have set the Lord always before me. Christ was emphasized as the great ideal for all men to follow. If all follow Him there would be no sorrow and no heartaches. With emphasis Mr. Walther made the statement that the more you make of Christ the more he will make of you.

The Christian Endeavor meeting was led by Miss Ethel Hatfield; subject, "The Christian Graces." Mrs. Estes added much to the meeting by singing two solos. Mrs. Estes possesses a beautiful voice and will always be welcomed by the young people.

Seldon A. Nickerson will lead the prayer meeting at Montclair on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Dicey.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

"Each person in the world has a mission to perform" declared Rev. Carl G. Horst in the morning sermon at the Wollaston Unitarian church "and each person some specific work which he can do better than any other person. A definite aim in life is necessary to any large measure of success, the weak are made strong by concentration. A man going through life with no determined purpose is like a splendid ship, anchored at the wharf, making no voyage and simply going to waste. Success is the making of character, the building up of qualities of mind and heart that shall endure beyond the life that now is. High thought, noble aspiration and deep feeling are possible in the humblest surroundings and a man must cultivate these qualities if he does not wish to enter into another life a bankrupt. Man's standard of success need not be a comparison of his achievements with those of others, but an earnest effort to rise to the level of his own highest ideals. The question we should ask ourselves and each other, is not "What are you doing?" but "What are you?" Not "How have you made your fortune?" but "What has fortune-making made of you?"

The annual meeting of the Earnest Workers Lend-a-Hand club will be held at the home of Miss Ruth Jones, 14 Elmwood avenue on Tuesday at 4 P. M.

The next meeting of the Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches will be held in the Wollaston Unitarian church Wednesday, June 8.

The May meetings of the American Unitarian Association and Allied Societies begin Sunday May 22, and close with the May festival on Friday, the 27th. This church should be well represented at all the meetings.

The installation of the Rev. Charles W. Casson as minister of the Third Religious Society in Dorchester occurs Friday, May 13, at 7.45 P. M.

LOST BOY.

Word was received by the police on Sunday that a five-year-old boy answering to the name of Joseph Perry had become lost at Squantum. The boy, who lived with his parents at Savin Hill, went to Squantum with them to spend the day. In some way he became lost, and a search of Squantum not bringing him to view, a party was organized and a strict search made without avail. It appears, however, that the boy became tired of Squantum and went home where he had been several hours when his parents returned from their search.

SERIOUS RUNAWAY.

Two young children had a narrow escape from serious injury at Quincy Point Saturday afternoon in a runaway. The children were John Donovan of Watson street, and Mildred Hellickson, the 4-year-old daughter of John Hellickson of the same street. The two children, who were playmates, climbed onto the wagon of Mr. Donovan, which had been left standing in the street while he was paying off his men. As they climbed into the wagon the horse began to back and they began to scream. This caused the horse to run. Before any of the people in the vicinity could grab the horse he was going over Chubbuck street at good speed. From Chubbuck street the horse turned into South street which at this time is very rough and full of broken stones as it is being rebuilt. As a consequence of going over this piece of rough road on the run both children were thrown out. The Donovan boy had his left arm broken above the elbow, and the Hellickson girl received a bad cut on the head. The injured children were attended by Dr. W. J. Middleton who said that the cut on the girls head was not a serious one. The horse was stopped near the corner of South and North streets.

CHOIR REUNION.

A surprise party wa stendered to Mr. and Mrs. George Davey of No. 68 Albertina street on Friday night, May 6, by the former members of Christ church choir. During the evening recitations and songs were rendered including a duet by Arthur Peverly and George Hansop, entitled "Call me early mother dear." A recitation by William Tarbox entitled "My turn is bound to come," Songs by Albert Smith, Charles Vanner and George Davey. During the evening Wendell Luce, the former choirmaster presented Mr. and Mrs. Davey with a beautiful clock on behalf of those present. An enjoyable evening was spent and the boys left for home at a late hour promising to hold another reunion on the event of one of the members entering the holy bonds of matrimony.

DESK PRESENTED.

Some fifty or more of the many friends of Patrick Tangney of Arthur street tendered him a surprise party Saturday evening at his home. The evening proved to be one of enjoyment to all present, games, music and refreshments being on the evening's program. During the evening, Mr. Tangney, who is a well known granite manufacturer, was presented with a handsome roll top desk, the presentation speech being made by James F. Burke. Mr. Tangney responded and thanked his friends for the handsome and useful present.

MORE PERIODICALS.

The increasing circulation continues at our Public Library late into the spring. From the main hall 618 more volumes were loaned during the month of April than in April of 1909, and from the children's room the increase was 24. The total increase of books issued for home use this year over the first four months of last year is 2,343.

Duplicate copies have been added to many of the already large magazine list, and the current number of the following may now be found in the reading room:—Harpers monthly, the Century, Altantic, New England, Nation, Outing, Illustrated London News Worlds Work, School Arts Book, Scientific American and Supplement, Ladies' Home Journal, American Magazine, McClures, Scribner's Life, Punch and Everybody's Magazine. The St. Nicholas is also to be found both in the main hall and the children's room. The current number of the Nation, Illustrated London News, Life, Punch, and School Arts Books do not circulate, but the preceding numbers may be had as usual.

Getting Into Moral Debt.

Philip D. Armour, millionaire and philanthropist, continually warned young men against getting into debt. He loved free men and despised slaves. When asked if he admired a certain brilliant orator he said: "He may have a superb voice and fine presence, but can't you hear the rattle of his chain? That man is not free. He is under moral obligations that demoralize him. He is not speaking the deepest thing in his soul, and I haven't time to hear any slave talk. I want a man to be just as free as I am."

On another occasion he said: "Don't get into debt—I mean moral debt. It is bad enough to get into debt financially. There goes a young man who is mortgaged. That young man is legging it along with a debt, and it will take twice as much power to get him along as the man without a debt. There are other debts and obligations that are embarrassing in their entanglements. Don't get into debt morally, my boy; don't get into debt so that you may not exercise your freedom to its limits."

All Is Not Lion That Roars.

A negro was arrested for stealing coal and employed a lawyer of loud oratorical voice to defend him in a justice court.

"That lawyer could roar like a lion," the negro said. "I thought he was going to talk that judge off the bench and that jury out of the box. I got one continuance and hurried up to burn all that coal and hide the evidence. Then came the day of my trial. That roarin' lawyer went up and whispered to the judge. Then he came back and whispered to me:

"'You better send that coal back or you'll go to jail.'"—Kansas City Star.

WESTON'S GREAT HIKE.

Winner of Transcontinental Walk Tells Some of His Experiences.

Edward Payson Weston, the famous pedestrian who recently started to walk from Los Angeles, Cal., to New York in less than ninety days, was happy at completing his walk thirteen days ahead of schedule. In telling of some of his experiences Mr. Weston said:

"People were good to me all along the way. I can't say where they were the most hospitable. But I enjoyed the hospitality the most down in New York state. I suppose it was because I felt that the trip was about over and that I was back among my own people. They would meet me in the middle of the night at some little old farmhouse out in the country with apple pie and baked chicken and plum jam. I weakened only once. I got excited or lost my head or something up near Syracuse and went on a regular clam broth and asparagus debauch. You know if there is anything I specially like it's clam broth and asparagus. I only eat one meal a day when I'm walking, and the rest of the time I drink malted milk, and when they brought out this here clam broth and asparagus—well, I just forgot everything, and, my, I was sick afterward!

"President Ripley of the Santa Fe was certainly nice to me. Everybody on that road was fine. I walked on that Santa Fe track all the way to Chicago, and, do you know, they scheduled me and ran me over the road same as a special train. At every station the agent would come out and give me a bunch of orders, and all the train conductors were given orders where they would pass me or sidetrack for me. Some of those conductors and engineers didn't know about me, and when they would get orders to sidetrack for me to go by they would think I was an engine and nine Pullmans. After they would wait awhile and finally nothing would go by but a little gray haired old rooster who was hoofing it all alone across the continent they'd pretty near have a fit. But they never swore. No, siree! I walked over 2,500 miles on that railroad and I never heard a cuss word.

"And all kinds of cranks waylaid me. One woman came out in New York state, and she said, 'Brother, do you know every step is taking you nearer to eternity?' And I says, 'I don't care just so I get to that etarnal city of Utica.' And once a man grabbed me and said, 'Brother, the way of the transgressor is hard.' And it was rainy and cold, and I was hungry and mad, and I said, 'You git away or this old transgressor is going to break this lantern on your noodle!' And you ought to see him run. Yes, I'm glad my walk's over because I made good. I have shown the American people that about the finest exercise in the world is this thing of walking."

OLD BLACK MAMMY STATUE.

National Memorial Planned For Negresses of the South.

The organization of Texas citizens at Galveston having charge of the movement to erect a monument to the "old black mammy of the south" has decided to make it a national tribute. This was determined the other day because of pleas from prominent men all over the United States.

It has practically been decided to raise the fund by public subscription and to erect the monument, of marble, in Washington. It was originally planned to erect it in Galveston with funds subscribed by citizens of Texas. It is contemplated to raise about $1,000,000 and perhaps limit individual subscriptions to $1, although offers have been made by men to contribute $500 to $1,000 each to such a fund.

T. J. Groce, president of the Galveston National bank, is chairman of the organization. Colonel W. L. Moody, banker and cotton broker, and other leading citizens of Texas are identified with the movement. Artists are sending in designs for figures for the monument.

It is planned to elect a joint committee composed of representative men from at least every southern state to have charge of the project.

A BLUE ROSE.

Tint Horticulturists Have Long Sought Is Produced In Morristown, N. J.

A genuine blue rose, something for which horticulturists have long striven in vain, is said to be the achievement of Professor Elwyn Waller of Franklin place, Morristown, N. J.

The flower, which opened recently, has a purplish pink shade, which later develops into a brilliant steel blue. It is claimed that from this flower will be developed one of the cornflower shade. The rose exhibited by Professor Waller is a seedling of the ordinary Crimson Rambler, many of the qualities of which it displays.

Put Bleachers to Odd Use.

Football bleachers will be used as a fire escape at the northern Baptist convention to be held at the University of Chicago from May 6 to 13. The meetings are to be in the Bartlett gymnasium, which has been condemned as a convention hall by the city building department. Two sections of the bleachers have been moved back almost to the gymnasium, and a platform will bridge the gap between. Ten windows fifty feet above the earth will be converted into doors leading to the platform. Three thousand delegates will attend the convention.

SENTENCED TO JAIL.

Thomas F. Grignon was arrested on Friday by Officer Goodhue as he left the Concord Reformatory where he has been confined for the past eighteen months, for uttering a forged check at Salem. The warrant charged him with the larceny of something like $40 from Abbott & Millers express in 1908.

Grignon at that time was a driver for this express. He drove the Wollaston team, and on the morning in question drove to Wollaston where he abandoned his team and skipped with what money he could gather in. He has not been seen since but shortly after he was sentenced at Salem.

Five years ago he also did time for assault on two girls on Newport avenue. At that time there was considerable excitement in Quincy owing to the appearance of Jack the hugger and after his arrest it was believed he was the man. Saturday morning he was sentenced to six months in Dedham jail. He appealed.

KING EDWARD'S RESTING PLACE

Will Be In Albert Chapel, Beside Body of His Son

PUBLIC MAY VIEW REMAINS

Personal Wishes of Royal Family Waived and Body Will Lie In State Before Funeral, Which Will Be Held on May 20—Salvation Army Services Outside Palace—George V Is Proclaimed King, the New Ruler Taking Oath Before Privy Council While Ministers and Lords Swear Allegiance—Promises to Uphold Standard Set by Father

London, May 9.—The tomb of Edward VII will be beneath the Albert Memorial chapel at Windsor, where the body of his eldest son, the Duke of Clarence, has a sepulchre. The obsequies probably will be held on May 20.

Before the funeral, it has practically been decided, the body of the king will lie in state in Westminster hall, under the houses of parliament. Before being taken to Westminster, the body will lie in state in the throne room in Buckingham palace.

King Edward's casket will be fashioned out of oak grown in the royal forest at Windsor. It will first be lowered to the vault beneath the chapel floor of St. James' chapel, Windsor castle. Afterward, when the permanent tomb has been prepared, it will be removed to Albert chapel.

Queen Alexandra and King George conferred with various officers of the state and household, concerning the funeral arrangements, after holding service in the Royal chapel at Buckingham palace, which the late king always attended when in residence there.

The members of the royal family, it is believed, would prefer that there should be no lying in state, but it was represented to them that the wishes of the people were so strongly for this that they were willing to waive their personal inclinations.

King Edward still lies in the bed where he died, clothed only in night clothes, with his hands crossed on his breast. Queen Alexandra visits the chamber frequently, appearing greatly worn and tired. King George and Queen Mary spent most of the day with her. After chapel the family again looked upon the body for a few minutes.

An impressive incident Sunday afternooon illustrated Queen Alexandra's desire to show consideration for British subjects of every class. General Booth sent a message that the Salvation Army wished to show honor to Edward VII by holding a service before the palace, and Alexandra gave permission. At 4 o'clock a large band, wearing red jerseys and carrying silver instruments and banners with scarfs of crepe, pushed through the crowd to the palace. The big iron gates were opened and the band formed a circle under the windows.

First they knelt, while the leader prayed, and then they sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Abide With Me," and "Angels Ever Bright and Fair." Finally they marched out singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

The blinds were closely drawn, but the attendants say that Queen Alexandra left her apartments with Princess Victoria and her ladies in waiting and listened to the singing from behind them.

The streets are filled with people, but there is little mourning as yet. The draping of the houses will begin today.

All political discussion foreshadows a truce and the shelving indefinitely of the struggle between the house of commons and the house of lords. The Bishop of Worcester, preaching in the cathedral, said that patriotism and chivalry demanded that contentious questions be put aside by the statesmen of all parties for a year at least.

The house of commons will meet on Wednesday, when Speaker Lowther returns, to receive the address from the throne. Premier Asquith and A. J. Balfour, leader of the opposition, will reply.

According to a circular issued from Marlborough house the designation of the new queen will be Queen Mary. The role she will play at the new court has been the subject of considerable speculation. As Prince and Princess of Wales, the new king and queen lived such comparatively retired lives that it is difficult to form an opinion, but it is almost safe to assume that the court will be far less brilliant than it was under King Edward.

NEW RULER PROCLAIMED

Brilliant Function Is Held In Throne Room by Privy Council

King George V was proclaimed Saturday afternoon. The proclamation was approved by the privy council at 4 o'clock. The new monarch was given the title of King George V.

With this ceremony and in his 45th year, the second son born to King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra becomes the ruler of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas, King, Defender of the Faith and Emperor of India.

The meeting of the privy council was a brilliant function. The king wore the uniform of an admiral and was surrounded by a large gathering of councillors, all in levee dress and wearing the ribbons of their orders. The lord mayor of the corporation was in his robes of office.

The councillors having acquainted the king with the completion of the proclamation, he entered the council chamber and signed the proclamation, after which he confirmed in their offices those who had held appointments under his father at the time of the king's death.

King George delivered a brief but earnest address. He exhibited deep emotion as he announced his determination to endeavor, under the guidance of God, to maintain the high traditions of the British court and to fulfill to the best of his abilities the great trust reposed in him.

The lord chancellor, Lord Loreborn, administered the oath to the king and, following the custom, the cabinet ministers swore allegiance to the new sovereign, at the same time tendering their seals of office, which the king returned.

The ministers kissed the king's hand. The councillors upon being reappointed in turn took the oath of allegiance and kissed the king's hand. This concluded the business of the council and the king retired.

The king left St. James palace on his return to Marlborough House at 5 o'clock, having been absent for the ceremony just one hour. The marked lack of display in the conduct of the new monarch was striking. A single carriage occupied by the sovereign and attended by two royal equerries was driven to and from St. James palace. There was no military escort, and the only decoration which the monarch wore was the Order of the Garter.

In fact the lord mayor and the city aldermen furnished the most spectacular element of the ceremony While his father was signing the proclamation the young Prince of Wales stood on a temporary scaffolding behind the wall at Marlborough House and eagerly watched such of the proceedings as came into his view.

Both houses of parliament assembled in accordance with the ancient statute providing that they shall meet on the demise of the sovereign. The session of the house of commons was purely formal and lasted only a few minutes.

In the house of lords, Lord Loreburn, lord high chancellor, took the oath of allegiance to King George V, and the some fifty peers who were present followed suit.

A farewell salute for the late monarch of sixty-eight minute guns, one for each year of his age, was fired at St. James' park. The salute was so timed as to be concluded with the close of the formalities in connection with the proclamation of the succession of King George.

TORPEDO BOATS' FAST TIME

Occupy but Two Days In Steaming From Charleston to Boston

Boston, May 9.—Torpedo boat destroyers Smith, Lamson and Preston, three of the five fastest warships of any navy afloat, have arrived at the Charlestown navy yard from Charleston. The speed of the boats was shown from the fact that they came direct from Charleston without stop and that the time for the trip, two days, is almost unprecedented in history.

All have made more than 30 knots an hour in general trials and as high as 35 knots on various tests.

Death of Byrnes, One of the Best Known Detectives

HE SUCCUMBS TO INDIGESTION

New York, May 9.—Thomas F. Byrnes, formerly superintendent of police of the city of New York, but more famous the world over for his work in the detective bureau, died at his home from chronic indigestion, after an illness of more than two years. He was 66 years old and leaves a wife and five daughters.

It was Byrnes who first drew the dead-line in the financial district, below which no "crook" was allowed to stray, on penalty of instant arrest. His many successes in unravelling baffling crimes made him perhaps the best known detective of his generation.

Byrnes was born in Ireland, but came to this country very young. He joined the police force early and rose rapidly; at 28 he was a captain. Eight years later he won promotion to the rank of chief inspector and was assigned the task of reorganizing the detective bureau, by his persistence and skill in breaking up a notorious gang of burglars who had looted the Manhattan Savings bank of $3,000,000.

On the day of his appointment he announced the dead-line, at Fulton street, just above the offices of Jay Gould, who later became his close friend and with other shrewd advisers helped him to make a fortune in Wall street. This, he testified before the Lexow committee, had in 1894 reached $350,000. Only a week ago he transferred to his wife real estate valued at $550,000.

In the detective bureau Byrnes ruled supreme. He hewed out all deadwood, brought in his own men, and kept them working. Arrests became more numerous and sentences heavier. During his term the aggregate of sentences imposed on prisoners arrested at his direction reached 10,000 years.

When, however, he rose to be superintendent his desire to rule the whole force as autocratically as he had ruled his own department brought him in constant conflict with his superiors on the police board. He sought Albany for special legislation, which embroiled him still further with the board and brought down severe criticism upon him from outsiders. Then followed the Lexow investigation, which, although it did not smirch him personally, revealed that corruption under his rule had been widespread in the police force.

Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, then at the height of his activity as an investigator and critic of municipal affairs, turned on him savagely. Byrnes retorted with a famous interview, which was widely published and caused a perfect tornado of further criticism. Byrnes would not retract. Instead, he resigned from the force.

Cook in Comfort
You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.
Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking — none in outside heating.
New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove
entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat — no smell — no smoke.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Why? Because The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is scientifically and practically perfect. You cannot use too much wick—it is automatically controlled. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple. One wipe with a cloth cleans it—consequently there is no smell.
The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is wonderful for year-round use, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.
It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot.
It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

Political Science Association Publishes an Analysis of the Causes :: :: :: ::

Need of Short Ballot if People Instead of Politicians Are to Control :: :: :: ::

BALTIMORE, May 7.—We do not now have democratic government in the United States because the citizens are swamped with more political duties than they can or will perform, and we shall never attain democratic government till we get the "short ballot." This was the theme of a brilliant discussion at the last meeting of the American Political Science association in New York, participated in by college professors and leading writers of political reform, with A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard, in the chair. The nucleus of the discussion was furnished by a paper entitled "Need of Simplification In the Methods of Popular Control of Government." This paper was approved by all present and has now for the first time become accessible to the public through its publication in the annual volume of the proceedings of the association. The following are significant extracts:

The theory of an election is somewhat as follows: It is known that on a certain day the people are to select an officer to perform on their behalf certain duties and to hold certain powers. The office is made desirable by reason of the salary and honor and power attached to it. Various aspirants for the place come before the public by one method or another, make known their qualifications for the office, explain the policies which they desire to put into effect through the power attached to that office, and the voters go to the polls on election day and indicate on the ballot which of the aspirants they prefer.

This process constitutes an election as fondly imagined by those who first framed our various constitutions and charters. This idea of an election is perfectly sound and perfectly practical. It has, however, certain distinct limitations based on familiar facts of human nature, and in the United States these limitations have been stupidly overstepped.

The Limitations of Control by Election

The theory of an election as outlined presupposes that the voter is to have an opportunity to get some kind of acquaintance with the claims of the various aspirants for the office. If he fails to do this it is inevitable that his vote will be unintelligent and easily controlled by those who have a special and private interest in the election.

If the voter in a large community is to know the candidates it is necessary that the latter secure a proper amount of publicity so that each candidate shall become in the mind of the voter a definite mental picture—a picture so definite that the voter will develop a preference based on adequate information. It must be evident that there is a limit to the number of elections which can be held simultaneously without blurring these mental pictures. Any man must admit that it would not be practicable to hold 100 real elections on one day. No voter could remember several hundred candidates, even if he tried to do so in systematic fashion, and a system which put the names of several hundred candidates for a hundred offices upon the ballot without the aid of some guide or trademark label would result in confusion, out of which would emerge as victors not the candidates who were most successful in getting votes, but those who were least *un*successful. It would be like letting school children vote, and the result would have no significance as an expression of opinion.

The same condition will be true of a ballot which has much less than 100 places to be filled. It will be true, in part at least, at any election where a nonpartisan ballot would be impracticable.

Take the ballot you voted at the last election. Cut it up with a pair of shears and paste it together with the party labels eliminated, so that for the office of county clerk, for instance, you will be compelled to choose between Smith and Jones and Robinson. If on looking over this ballot you find that you are lost without the party label to guide you, that your vote for certain offices was without knowledge or intelligence, to that extent you will know you have not been exercising control, but have by a kind of proxy-giving delegated your share of the control of those offices to some one else.

A voter who votes blindly is being bossed. Very few voters, even the illiterate, vote a ballot entirely blindly. Even the Italian street digger probably has certain reasons for supporting A. or B. for governor, but every American citizen, with the exception of the professional politicians, votes blindly on certain parts of his ballot and is to that extent being bossed.

The Phenomenon of "Apathy."

The wide acceptance of bossism is commonly denounced as "apathy" or "indifference," and people say "the citizens are asleep and only the politicians are awake." It is an ancient libel. American citizens are as a whole no more naturally apathetic than the citizens of any other democratic nation. If the burghers of Glasgow were brought in a body to Philadelphia and compelled to hold a few elections under the present Philadelphia system they would get the same kind of government that the Philadelphians are now getting for themselves. And likewise if the people of Philadelphia were transferred to Glasgow the government of that city would continue to be one of the best in the world year after year and election after election. Human nature is the same in Philadelphia and Glasgow.

Apathy, indifference, are relative, depending entirely upon how much is demanded. Suppose, for instance, there were but one polling place for an entire city, so that the citizens must travel considerable distances on election day in order to cast their votes. Immediately we should confront the phenomenon of a decreased vote—more "apathy" as compared with the present condition, where there is a polling place at every barber shop.

Suppose we put the polling place ten miles out of town on the top of a mountain, so that every citizen had to go out and scramble all day to get there—we should have a still smaller vote. Most of the citizens would stay in town and attend to their own business, and the reformers would say in disgust, "The citizens are supremely apathetic and indifferent and won't do their duty." Yet the people of the town are the same people all the time—no more really apathetic than when the full vote turned out on election day under the other conditions.

That is what I mean by saying that apathy is relative, depending entirely upon how much is required.

The Profession of Citizenship.

We have made citizenship even more inaccessible to the people than I have described when I put the polling place on the mountain top. If you and I could, by walking ten miles and climbing a mountain once a year, become effective participants in politics it is not at all unlikely that we would make the effort. But we have a system of politics so elaborate by reason of the multiplicity of elective offices that citizenship has come to be considered a separate profession. That is the very climax of inaccessibility; it removes citizenship to a distance equivalent to a year's journey.

Every citizen knows that, reformers to the contrary, little is gained in the effectiveness of the citizen by attendance at caucuses and primaries. A citizen must become so familiar with political workings, so strenuous in his opinions and in his political activity, that he becomes a member of the little conclave that meets previous to the caucuses to set the tables for the electorate, before he begins to exercise any real control over the business of nomination and election. He can do that only at the serious sacrifice of other business. In consequence the men who become and remain effective politicians are either men who find in politics satisfactory remuneration or else the leisure class, including millionaires and tramps.

The hope of America does not lie with any such class as this, but rather with the men whose time is too valuable to permit them to go into politics. When we make politics a profession we automatically exclude 95 per cent of the voters—the great unbribable mass of the community. To restore control to 100 per cent of the people, to secure democracy in place of government by politicians, we must so simplify politics that it will no longer constitute a separate profession. We must simplify it until a busy man can in his scanty spare time become sufficiently versed in its mysteries to become effective.

To simplify politics means that we must strive to approach our ideal of an election, where the candidates come forward, to get a full hearing and each voter selects his favorite and has a reason.

The "Short Ballot."

One test of practicability is the need for a "ticket" or a "label" to guide the voter, and when we call for the selection of ten, twenty or thirty officials on one day we find that the people begin to vote by tickets, by party labels instead of by men, giving themselves over blindly to the guidance of politicians.

But it is certainly possible to elect one man on one day in ideal fashion. Experience has demonstrated that beyond a doubt. The experience of certain western cities that are governed by commissions of five elected on a nonpartisan ballot shows that the average citizen can manage to select five separate favorite candidates without the aid of a ticket. Whether the exact limit is five or six or seven is, of course, a matter that cannot be exactly demonstrated. But tickets have been used at times in some of those cities, showing that five is at least near the border line.

Accessibility thus attained is not enough, however. The people will not inevitably participate even if they can. Having led our horse to water, we must get him to drink. For instance, suppose we elected a county clerk and no one else at a given election. There is an ideally short ballot—just a single place to be filled—a perfectly "accessible" bit of politics. Yet the ballot on that occasion would fail to gather the judgment of the people just as surely as if the county clerk were lost in a crowd of other minor officials at the bottom of a long ballot. The people with a few exceptions would not go to the polls or pay any attention to the matter, for the share of each voter in the matter of the county clerkship is too insignificant to deserve attention. The electorate shrugs its big shoulders and flatly declines to be bothered.

So we face the problem of devising a system in which the people not only can participate, but will participate. The importance of the election must reach the consciousness of every voter. The way to bring this about is not by exhortation and prayer, but by giving real importance to the position that is to be filled so as to make it naturally conspicuous. For instance, the office of state assemblyman in New York is among the neglected positions. In actual practice this is now an appointive position—appointive by some self established and irresponsible coterie of local politicians. Even in the off years, when the assemblyman is sometimes the only place on the ballot, experience shows that the people do not take control. The place cannot, of course, be made appointive by any other elective officer. The proper alternative is to increase the importance of the office. At present the assemblyman is a mere one one-hundred-and-fiftieth of one-half of a legislature, whose actions are closely circumscribed by the constitution and subject to the veto of the governor. Suppose that, following the experience of the cities, we substitute one chamber for the present bicameral system and triple the size of the districts. Each assemblyman would then be six times as important and, with his increased capacity for good or ill, would attract more criticism, more popular examination. If the people still fail to get excited over that office cut the size of the assembly in half again, thrusting upon twenty-five men the responsibility of all legislation for a great state. And surely then, if not before, the office will reach a pinnacle of light where the whole electorate will see it and feel concerned about it and where it will be beyond the grasp of the politicians.

The Limitations of Democracy.

And so we have two practical limitations to our ideal of an election:

First.—The number of officials to be elected at any one time must be limited to five or less; and,

Second.—The elective offices must be limited to those that are of such importance and character that the people will consent to exert themselves to make the selection themselves.

In building a democracy everything else must be warped to fit these fundamental limitations, for these are the limitations of the people themselves. We cannot wait for human nature to change; we must order our institutions to fit human nature. There is no hope in putting a square collar on our horse and then condemning the horse for failure to grow a square neck. Accordingly, while it may seem desirable to have a state treasurer elected so as to secure independent audit of accounts, we must secure protection in some different way if it is found in practice that the people do not select the state treasurer for themselves.

It may seem desirable in a city for various reasons to have a large council elected at large, but that plan with all its advantages must be rejected on account of the supreme and unalterable disadvantage that in practice the real selecting under those conditions is not done by the voters.

No matter how many reasons may be advocated for having all county officials independently elected, those reasons cannot stand against the overwhelmingly and unalterable disadvantage that those offices make so little appeal to the popular imagination that the public in practice ignores them and leaves the selection of those officials to be settled without supervision by anybody who volunteers. Deplore such wanton carelessness if you will, but the public is too big to be spanked.

The Success of "the Short Ballot."

The fact that Great Britain, most of Canada and other foreign democracies recognize the inert clumsiness of the electorate and call for only the simplest popular participation is a big enough difference to account for their relative success. It is the acceptance of the same principle that explains the success of the new notion of governing American cities by small boards or "commissions." And until our politics is simplified in deference to the human limitations of the electorate in our states, counties and cities the American people can never really control their government.

Many a reformer will disagree with this and cite the effective rush to arms that has been made by the people under present conditions on this or that happy occasion as showing the people can control now if they want to, but there is always the relapse, as the reformer himself will confess. On such occasions an abnormal condition of public activity has been created, usually through the means of great and costly stimulation. Being abnormal, it cannot persist indefinitely, and either through the ceasing of the stimulus or the failure of the old stimulus to stimulate any longer, we have the inevitable reversion to normal conditions.

The need of simplification in our methods of popular control of government is based on nothing less than the necessity for getting something that in actual operation will prove practical.

When we have by sufficient study and experiment along these lines arrived at a point where the electorate votes only for men it knows, we shall have real popular control, real democracy and government that more accurately responds to public opinion.

"HIGH PRIEST OOM" IS HELD

Court Finds Charge of Seduction Fully Sustained

BAIL CONTINUED AT $15,000

Judge Severely Scores "Omnipotent" Leader of Tantrik Order of Worship and Girl's Sister Creates a Scene—Witness Says Accused Posed as a God—Signed Her Name In Own Blood on Roster of the Order

New York, May 9.—"Oom the Omnipotent," alias Peter Coon, alias Pierre Barnard, high priest of the Tantrik Order of Worship, was held in $15,000 for trial in the court of general sessions on charges of seduction under promise to marry.

"I find that the charge has been fully sustained," said Magistrate Breen at the close of the preliminary hearing. This girl (Gertrude Leo of Seattle, one of the two complainants) has been inveigled into a den of iniquity. She has been murdered, I say, in every respect save physical murder, and I shall not reduce the bail I fixed when I first read the complaint and before the testimony showed the dangerous character of this man and his practices."

The testimony of Miss Leo went into details which made the girl's sister, Mrs. Edward H. Miller, who introduced her to Oom in good faith, believing that he could restore her health, weep with rage and shame as she listened. During cross-examination she grew so beside herself that she made a motion to hurl a glass of water at the head of counsel for the defense. Court attendants led her from the room, and she apologized when she re-entered.

"I am not a real man," Gerutrude Leo testified Oom told her. "I am a god, but I have condescended to put on the habit of a man that I may perform the duties of a yogi and reveal ture religion to the elect in America."

The girl listened, fascinated. "All priests," she swore, Oom continued, "have nautch girls. In my sacred capacity I cannot marry, but our nautch girls serve us as wives. It is the duty of the priest to give the nautch girl all the world's best goods. She is looked upon as sacred."

Gertrude Leo consented to become a sacred nautch girl, she testified, believing in Oom's godhead. She jabbed a steel pen into the palm of her left hand and wrote her name in blood on the roster of the order.

"I both feared and loved him," she swore. "He made me believe he could communicate with priests of the order all over the world, who would sit in counsel at his complaint and take away my mind if I did not obey him. I complained but I submitted."

The girl described the rites of the order, which were based, she said, on sex worship, as they were practised in the large room, where, on the night of the raid, the police found a class of men and women, each in a separate square of a great oriental rug, gyrating "toward perfection," it was explained.

Testimony was that the order of Tantrik worship is widely spread in America and that the international journal of the order has several thousand subscribers, who pay $2 each annually.

Throat Specialist Compels Roosevelt to Spend Sunday Indoors

Stockholm, May 9.—Former President Roosevelt shortened his program Sunday even more than it had already been abbreviated by King Edward's death, because of the hoarseness from which he suffered, due to a slight attack of bronchitis.

A throat specialist visited the palace twice Sunday and said that Roosevelt should stay indoors, the weather being blustery and rainy.

Mr. Roosevelt intended to make a speech at the National museum before the students and the massed singing societies, but gave this up, and instead bowed from a balcony to the students and singers who gathered in the street below and sang selections.

The ship was swarming with men and women and many little children, none of whom disembarked.

BRIEFS

Mrs. John Quincy Adams of this city was one of the partners of King Edward at the Renfrew ball given in his honor when as the Prince of Wales he visited this country and was entertained in Boston.

The "Cottage Girls" some of the most popular young ladies of the Quincy Point district entertain their many friends at a May party and dance in Electa hall on Monday evening, May 23d.

James C. Bates of Wollaston is secretary of the Massachusetts lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Boston, which on May 16 will observe its 140th anniversary. He held the same position when the lodge celebrated its 125th anniversary.

A birthday party was given to Miss Lillian Johnston at her home on Adams street, East Milton, on Saturday night. A large number of friends were present, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Miss Johnson was presented with a beautiful necklace.

MOTHERS' DAY OBSERVANCE.

Aid Promised by Women For Starting General Uplift Movement.

Co-operation in the "mothers' day" program suggested by Governor Deneen of Illinois in his recent proclamation naming Sunday, May 8, is promised by the Illinois Congress of Mothers, 10,000 strong, and similar celebrations in other states are being urged by the 500,000 women connected with the national congress.

"By a general observance of a special day we hope to start a general uplift movement," said Mrs. Edgar A. Hall, publicity chairman of the national organization, the other day. "We now publish a monthly magazine called the Child's Welfare, and in it there is an appeal to all mothers to urge special sermons in all the churches.

"The union of mothers of every race and creed is growing closer constantly. Even in Texas I find that no less than 800 clubs have sprung up during the last two years, and the numbers of women interested in some of the states far pass Illinois' 10,000."

Mrs. Hall says that the national organization has associated with it the societies in Mexico, Bolivia, Cuba and other foreign countries and that greater expansion probably will be announced at the Denver convention in June. An international convention is to be held at Washington next year.

The women are interested particularly in the better education of children to fit them for family responsibilities. One method is that outlined in Governor Deneen's proclamation—sermons from the church pulpits directed at the parents and also giving suggestions to the children. The other is a course in the public schools, compulsory for all, teaching the boys and girls the demands and responsibilities of parenthood. It is urged also that every church organize a motherhood society.

—The railroads are experimenting successfully with smoke consuming devices for locomotives, we read. Everybody fervently hopes so. If the railroads would also experiment successfully with spark-arresting locomotives also, foresters and railroads too would feel a bit easier and a tremendous waste averted.—Spencer Leader.

RAMBLERS VICTORIOUS

Shut Out the Monarchs from Winthrop

The Monarchs of Winthrop were shut out on Saturday by the Ramblers of this city, but the score was close, 2 to 0. The game from start to finish was a fast one. By quick work the Ramblers got a man to third in the first inning, and a hit brought in a run. In the third Manning hit safely and stole second. Bacchus Chapman came to the rescue with a timely single and the second and last run was scored. Mil Chapman did the twirling and made good. Manning and O'Brien excelled at the bat, Bell getting a two bagger.

MAKARIA DEFEATED.

A closely contested game was played by the Quincy All-Stars and the Makaria on Saturday, resulting in a 2 to 1 victory for the All-Stars, which was composed of Atlantic and Quincy players. The victors had as a battery Canovan and Duggan, which was very effective. For Makaria Bates, Michael and Artis were the battery,

SHIPYARD MEN WIN

Defeat Team from the Y. M. C. A. Dormitory

The baseball team of the Hull Drafting office of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. defeated the Y. M. C. A. dormitory team in a fast and interesting game at Merrymount lower field Saturday afternoon by a 12-6 score.

The draftsmen showed a vast improvement in all departments over their previous form, and put the game on ice from the start. A total of seven timely hits coupled with fast base running and a brace of free passes by Physical Director Gifford spelled defeat for the Y. M. C. A. men.

Jordan featured in the Hull team's playing with a timely single and a homer with the bases filled besides having two stolen bases chalked up. Capt. Gifford led for the Y. M. C. A., scoring one of the two lonely hits secured by his team, a four sacker in the opening inning. Hull played a heady game at first.

Batteries for the Hull team, Floyd and Jordan and for the Y. M. C. A. Gifford and Littlefield.

The Y. M. C. A. team was greatly weakened by the absence of several star tossers from its line up, but hope to turn the tables when the return game is played off.

—Columns have been written in eulogy of the late Mark Twain, but a single paragraph from the Springfield Republican tells the whole story: "The record of Samuel Clemens is that, being a true, honest, sincere and faithful friend, he was also a man of rare genius, which he exercised with honor in literature and life and so took rank as one of the chief citizens of America."—Milford Gazette.

HOME RUNS WERE LOST

Did Not Save the Day for the Quincys

Two home runs by Lonergan should have won a victory for the Quincys at Attleboro on Saturday, bnt the first two innings were fatal to the Granite City boys, eight runs being scored against them in the first, and three in the second. After the second the visitors scored as many runs as the home team. Lonergan of Quincy made three safe hits, two of them home runs, and crossed the plate four time; Duggan also had three safe hits, one of them a two bagger. Otherwise Quincy was weak. Hall, Smith and Bjorkland were in the box for Quincy.

YACHTING SEASON

Opened by Wollaston Club with a Vaudeville

The yachting season of the Wollaston Yacht club was formally opened Saturday evening with a supper and entertainment at the club house on Wollaston beach. The occasion was one that drew out a large attendance of members and a grand good time resulted. The evening opened at 7 o'clock with a supper that was served in the hall, that was pronounced excellent by all. This over, the commodore briefly outlined the events of the coming season and then introduced Frank Taylor as master of ceremonies. Mr. Taylor had arranged an entertainment that was particularly pleasing.

Chick Fox was the chief of the entertainers, and he was assisted by a quartette of well known vaudeville artists. Miss Andrews presided at the piano and the program included Dutch and Irish specialties by E. Stanley Nichols and Joe Roth, vocal solos by Miss Champly, Mrs. Muller and Miss Marie Ford, and selections by a ladies' orchestra. The entertainment was of nearly two hours' duration, and was greatly enjoyed by all, and if the coming season is as much of a success as was the opening night there is much pleasure in store for the members before next fall.

SPORTING NOTES.

Eleven events were run on Saturday by the Old Colony Gentlemen's Driving club at South Weymouth. Roy K. India Pani and Young Bayard did heats in 1.11 1-2 ,the best of the day. In Class B, Altro L. took two of three heats from King Bruce and Willie J.

Abington High will be here tomorrow for a game with Quincy High.

BASEBALL A LOTTERY, SAYS TIM MURNANE.

"Baseball is a lottery," spiels Sir Timothy Murnane, "where luck plays a very important part, yet the club with the capable scouts and aggressive presidents will forge to the front and finally land the big rakeoff. Baseball is little different from any other business requiring brain and push.

"The shrewd club owner with the big bank roll, the capable scouts and the first class manager is bound to forge to the front.

"All he has to do is to 'loosen up.'"

Murnane criticises the Giants for not "scouring" the country for the rising young players. The annual profits of the New York club are $300,000, yet Brush and McGraw are mostly depending on veterans.

"No man living has anything on McGraw in handling ball players," concludes Sir Timothy, "but in gathering clever young talent he is a practical failure."

With millions behind him John I. Taylor of the Boston Americans did "scour" the country for youngsters. Result: He has one of the best teams in the leagues. Money makes the mare go.

RACE THROUGH THE RAPIDS.

Unique Event on Niagara to Be Held Sept. 17.

Saturday, Sept. 17, has been fixed as the time for the power boat race through Whirlpool rapids, Niagara river, for the John A. Penton $500 gold cup and Power Boating's cash prize of $1,000. Already some twenty contestants have signified their intention of entering, and a half dozen boats have been named.

The committee in charge at a recent meeting in Buffalo decided that open boats shall not be allowed to compete. The committee thinks the element of danger too great for an open craft, and as this is a test of reliability and not of daring as many elements of danger as possible have been eliminated.

No restriction will be placed upon the number of crew. Contestants shall be started away at intervals of not less than ten minutes. The boat finishing the prescribed course under her own power in the shortest time will be declared the winner.

The course shall be from the Maid of the Mist landing on the Canadian side or some point above the bridges, as may be decided later, down to and around a turn about one-half mile below Queenston dock, thence to Pitz's dock at Lewiston.

TWO FAITHFUL PITCHERS.

Pittsburg Has Valuable Pair In Phillippe and Leever.

Sam Leever and "Deacon" Phillippe have won 339 out of 522 games for the Pittsburgs during their careers with that club. During the time they have been with Fred Clarke their work has been faithfully performed. Only recently they demonstrated their loyalty to Captain Fred. At St. Louis the Pirates were forced to play the Cardinals while rain and snow fell in inclement combinations.

Clarke didn't want to take a chance on ruining either Adams or Camnitz for life, so he asked for volunteers to pitch the game. Leever and Phillippe were the ones to answer the call. Leever was chosen, and he went in and won.

DIAMOND CHIRPS.

Ty Cobb has offered to wager that he will not be "chased" by an umpire this year.

Outfielder Ray Demmitt, who was a Highlander for one year, is doing pretty well with the stick for the St. Louis Americans.

Pitcher Summers of Detroit is a vegetarian. This season he will propel the pellet on energy extracted from vegetables and fruit.

Outfielder Wheat of Brooklyn batted .304 for twenty-six games last year, and his hitting so far this year indicates that he is no false alarm.

Pitcher Pfeister of the Cubs has just purchased an automobile. He wouldn't wait until next fall, when the leading batsman of the league will be awarded a machine gratis.

Captain Harry Lord of the Boston Americans has signed a three year contract with President John I. Taylor. Tris Speaker has also attached his name to a two year contract.

A Faithful Servant.

Carlyle told once of a lawsuit pending in Scotland affecting the succession to a great estate of which he had known something. The case depended on a family secret known only to one old servant, who refused to reveal it. A kirk minister was sent to tell her she must speak on peril of her soul. "Peril of my saul!" she said. "And would ye put the honor of an auld Scottish family in competition with the saul of a poor creature like me?"

Base gains are the same as losses.—Hesiod.

MAJORITY VOTE OF ALL MEMBERS

Necessary at Joint Convention to Fill Vacancy on School Committee

Convention Has Been Called for Next Week

The question has been asked as to what the method of procedure will be at the joint convention of the City Council and School Committee next Monday evening when the vacancy on the school board will be filled. The last similar convention was held in June, 1904, to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Mabel E. Adams the member from Ward Three.

At that time it was necessary to hold two conventions, as the first was declared illegal, on account of the number of votes it was declared were necessary to elect.

At the second convention, held a week later, the convention was called to order by the president of the Council, and Col. Charles H. Porter, then chairman of the School Committee was elected chairman of the convention, and the clerk of the Council as clerk.

All present entitled to vote were requested to rise while they were counted by the clerk. Several nominations were then made and the convention proceeded to elect by ballot. But one ballot was necessary as John L. Miller received the necessary vote, which was a majority of all the members of the two bodies.

PETERSON'S SUGGESTIONS

BETTER FOOD

Take, for instance, Boiled Ham. Most dealers sell a Boiled Ham that is simply Pickled. Our Boiled Hams are Smoked. (You can see the difference in cost.)

The price here is the same as other dealers charge, but ours have the flavor of real Ham.

Our own customers appreciate it and we have to buy Boiled Ham by the crate.

WILL SENATE AMEND?

Committee Reported No Change in Battleship Program

It is reported that the National senate made no change in the program of the construction of two battleships, in its roport on Monday of the naval appropriation bill, The amount, however, was increased in some items about $3,000,000. As the bill passed the house it stipulated that contracts for warships should be awarded only to shipyards working an eight-hour day.

The increase made by the senate committee are as follows: For pay of the navy $296,943, bureau of navigation $151,840, public works $256,600, bureau of medicine and surgery $6000, naval academy $62,948; increase of the navy $2,425,000.

A decrease of $258,000 was made in the items for public works, yards and docks.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy has intimated that it cannot submit a bid for the new battleships if the eight-hour provision remains in the bill. All the shipyards are working either nine or ten hours.

A POPULAR MESSENGER.

The late Francis Lowell Pratt, a native of Quincy, who for 27 years was city messenger of Cambridge, was eulogized on Monday evening at City Hall in that city, when his portrait in oil was presented to the city. Prominent citizens took part in the program, also the Duth quartet, the Schubert male quartet, and soloists. The portrait will be hung at the second landing of the main staircase in City Hall.

ARGENTINE CONTRACT.

A Washington dispatch to a Boston paper says: An American shipbuilding firm will receive the contract for building a vessel for use by the Argentine government in the Antarctic. The legation at Buenos Ayres, in communicating this information, says that in competition with three foreign firms, one French, one Scotch and one German, the contract was awarded to a Maine yard. The ship is to be similar to the Roosevelt, used by ePary in his Arctic exploration, and is to cost $150,000 gold.

COMMANDERY OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

Members of South Shore Commandery Vote to Move from Weymouth to Quincy

Decision Must, However, be Approved by Grand Commandery

It is probable that the asylum of South Shore Commandery, Knights Templar, which has been located at East Weymouth ever since its institution will be located in Quincy in the near future. South Shore commandery was instituted in June, 1870, at East Weymouth, and its asylum has been located in the Masonic building.

The growth of the commandery during the past few years has been from Quincy and Wollaston. In fact about eighty percent of the new sir knights in recent years have been from these two sections, the balance coming from the Weymouths, Braintree and Hingham. The present membership is upwards of 300; about seventy-five percent of which is from Quincy.

Several attempts have been made to have the asylum moved to Quincy during the past, but in every case the Weymouth members have rallied their forces and the attempt has been killed. The question of moving came up again at the meeting of the commandery Monday evening and as a result there was a large attendance of sir knights.

When the question came to a vote 96 voted to remain in Weymouth and 127 to move to Quincy. There was great rejoicing among the Quincy members when the vote was announced. Before the vote can be carried into effect, however, it must be approved by the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Should the grand commandery decide that the asylum remain in Weymouth it is more than probable that an application for a charter for a commandery in Quincy will be made.

In addition to the Quincy members of South Shore commandery there are many Knights Templars residing in Quincy who are members of other commanderies, who would become affiliated with the commandery were it moved to Quincy. The present commander of the commandery is A. W. Burr of Hingham.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The railroad bill in the Senate is traveling on a freight schedule.

The latest style in overcoats is to wear them longer than usual.

The harmony cold wave has now struck New York city politics.

The petty grafter in the New York city administration has no chance to escape from Mayor Gaynor's net.

Mark Twain died worth a million, or so, it is said. It is just as well to bear in mind, more over, that Mark never made any of his money by whining.

Senator Clapp insists that he cannot be read out of the Republican party by anybody. In fact, this game of Clapp in and Clapp out does not appeal to the Senator at all.

Every little while the Ledger feels called upon to caution housekeepers against opening their doors to strangers and especially to instruct members of their household against letting them in. It is much better to run the risk of offending a friend by refusing admittance when away from home than to give a stranger the run of the house as was the case last week at a house on Elm street.

The lady was out and the maid answering the bell found a good looking woman at the door who asked if Mrs. —— was at home. On being told she was away and would not be home until later, she expressed regret and finally decided to enter and wait for her. The maid admitted her reluctantly and decided to keep an eye on her but, was called to the back door. On her return the woman was not in the parlor. Going up stairs she found her at a bureau. The maid asked what she was doing and then fled in fright. The woman disappeared from the house and no valuables were missed but the experience is unpleasant never-the-less. It is thought the stranger was a man in woman's clothes.

Bar your house to every one not known personally is a safe rule to follow.

KING GEORGE PROCLAIMED

His Succession to the Throne Officially Announced

FRIARY COURT CEREMONY

Occurs Just as Has Been Done For Centuries Past—Heralds and Attendants Proceed to Three Other Civic Centres and Perform Similar Duties—New King and Queen Watch Proceedings From Window In Marlborough House

London, May 10.—George V is now indeed King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas, defender of the faith and Emperor of India, for he was proclaimed to be such at four civic centres of the metropolis Monday while the heralds blew their trumpets and the Coldstream Guards' band played "God Save the King," and great throngs witnessed the ancient ceremony.

The first proclamation ceremony was in Friary court of the ancient Tudor palace of St. James', where for centuries the Kings of England have been proclaimed, just as George V was proclaimed.

The court was filled with Guardsmen with their officers and colors. The officers of all the regiments wore crepe bands on their left arms and the colors were drawn with crepe streamers. The royal standards at St. James' and at Marlborough House, just across the narrow street, fluttered in the cold wind from a top staff. Only the royal standard at Buckingham palace, where Edward VII lies dead, floated at half-mast.

The ceremony in Friary court was full of color. The Americans present found that it realized the tales of kings, queens and princes which they had read in the fairy books and in history during their youth.

After the reading of the proclamation by the heralds there was a fanfare of trumpets and the band of the Coldstream Guards played "God Save the King."

King and Queen Watch Ceremony

The tall red brick fence enclosing Marlborough House, which bounds a narrow road separating the modern Marlborough House from the palace, was quite as interesting as Friary court, for on a platform behind the wall, their blonde heads visible above the wall, stood the children of King George and Queen Mary, the new Duke of Cornwall, Princess Mary and Princes Albert and George. The king and queen were not visible to the public, but they watched the ceremony from a window of Marlborough House overlooking Friary court.

After the ceremony at St. James' palace the heraldic officers, escorted by mounted guardsmen in glittering helmets and cuirasses, the officers with flowing scarlet cloaks, proceeded to Charing Cross, where the proclamation was again read with a fanfare of trumpets and the ceremony concluded with the band playing the national anthem.

After the heraldic proclamation ceremony had been repeated at Charing Cross the procession proceeded through the Strand to the Griffin monument at Temple Bar, which marks the boundary between the royal city of Westminster and the free city of London. The heraldic officers were headed by a guard of household cavalry as they approached the boundary of the ancient free city, across which the sovereigns or their soldiers cannot cross without the consent of the freemen of the city of London, their lord mayor, aldermen, city marshal and other authorities.

Given Freedom of City

There was a scarlet cord stretched across the street at Temple Bar, to signalize the real barrier of old. When the king's heraldic messengers arrived the city marshal stopped their progress and shouted: "Halt! Who goes there?"

The pursuivant huskily replied: "The officers of arms, who demand entrance to the city to proclaim his royal majesty's accession."

The city marshal then ceremoniously broke the news to the lord mayor, who ungrudgingly consented to permit Rouge Dragon to cross the boundary and enter the free city and hand the proclamation to the lord mayor and privy council.

The lord mayor, having in behalf of the city accepted George V as the lawful and righteous sovereign and read the proclamation, shouted: "God save the king!" The band played the national anthem and the crowd shouted: "God save the king!" with their heads bared.

The Rouge Dragon and the lord mayor then peacefully rode side by side, followed by the heralds, to the Royal Exchange. The heralds stood on the steps of the exchange. There the huge parchment proclamation was again read, there was another fanfare of trumpets, the bands played the national anthem and every head was bared while the people gave a resounding shout of "God save the king" at the end of the ceremony.

Sir John Knill, the lord mayor, then gave a luncheon to the heralds and other dignitaries at the mansion house and drank a toast to King George V from the balcony.

When the proclamations were read at the points mentioned, batteries at St. James' park and the Tower of London fired royal salutes of forty-one guns. After the proclamation had been read flags everywhere except at Buckingham palace were raised to full mast, for while Edward is dead George lives and now officially reigns.

George V was proclaimed as king nearly everywhere in the provinces.

Funeral on May 20

It is announced officially that the funeral will take place on May 20 from St. George's chapel in Windsor. The lying in state will be at Westminster hall on the 17th, 18th and 19th.

While the body of the late sovereign is at Westminster hall it will be guarded day and night by officers of various regiments.

A number of intimate friends of the late King Edward and prominent politicians, as well as all the members of King George V's household, were allowed a last look at the dead sovereign yesterday afternoon.

JOKERS' PREDICTION CAUSES BAD SCARE

Panamans Lose Night's Sleep, Fearing Great Disaster

Panama, May 10.—The Panama public was made nervous by reports of the earthquake devastations in Costa Rica, and when the word was passed along Sunday evening that seismologists had predicted that Panama would be shaken by an earthquake during the night and the city of Colon disappear beneath a tidal wave, panic prevailed.

The alarm spread from this city to Ancon and Colon. Many persons fled into the country, and those who stayed in the towns camped in the streets and parks. Many spent the hours in prayer.

When morning broke with no harm having been done them, the people realized that they had been hoaxed and the police got after the jokers. The latter were locked up.

CARTAGO'S DEATH LIST

It Is Now Believed That It Will Exceed Fifteen Hundred

San Jose, C. R., May 10.—More than 800 bodies have been taken from the ruins of the houses which were overthrown in the earthquake last Wednesday evening at Cartago. The estimate of deaths places the number at 1500, but it is possible that this will be exceeded.

Large forces, which have gone to Cartago from San Jose and other points, are now engaged in the work of rescue, and even yesterday several living persons were taken from under the pile of stones and timbers where dwelling houses once stood. Since the disaster scores have died from their injuries.

Rome, May 10.—Mgr. Bevilacqua has discovered a diary in the archives of the cathedral at Viterbo containing an entry date April 5, 1066, recording the appearance of a comet. Simple Transaction.

"I like de 'pearance o' dat turkey mighty well," said Mr. Johnson after a long and wistful study of the bird. The dusky marketman seemed strangely deaf.

"How could I— What arrangements could a pusson make dat wanted to buy dat turkey?" Mr. Johnson asked after a pause.

"Easy terms 'nough," said the marketman briskly. "You get him by means o' a note o' hand."

"A note o' hand," repeated Mr. Johnson, brightening up at once. "Do you mean I writes it out and pays some time when"— But his hope in this glorious prospect was rudely shattered by the marketman.

"A note o' hand means in dis case," he said, with disheartening clearness, "dat you hands me a two dollar note, Mr. Johnson, and I hands you de turkey in response to dat note."

NICARAGUAN PLEA FOR AID

Political Conditions Are Declared to Be Terrible

IS TIME FOR INTERVENTION

Representative Citizens Declare That Only Strong and Impartial Arm of United States Can Preserve National Dignity In Country Which Has Had Only Sham Elections For Twenty Years—One Ray of Hope

New York, May 10.—There has been sent to John Barrett, director of the International Bureau of American Republics, an appeal received here from Nicaragua for transmission to Washington, wherein the United States is asked to intervene at once in the affairs of the republic.

The document sets forth as the reasons for the asking for intervention the prospective absolute commercial ruin of the country if the internecine strife continues, and the dictatorial rule of President Madriz, against whom the accusation is made that he is following the same policy of lawlessness and oppression that was practiced by his predecessor, Zelaya, who placed him in power.

The appeal says that only the United States can restore Nicaragua's political equilibrium, and the suggestion is made that it be done by the landing of troops and the supervision of honest elections, as was done in Cuba and Panama. These plans, says the appeal, which Barrett is asked to lay before the United States government, meet with the endorsement of 90 percent of the country's landholders. After outlining the terrible conditions in Nicaragua the statement says:

"Though past endurance, were this condition of things merely transient the people would submit patiently, and even hopefully, but we are made to feel that it has been erected into a permanent system of government. As long as the authorities are either unwilling or unable to protect the people they have to fall back upon revolution as a last recourse. Experience has taught us that no change for the better can be expected from an election upon the close of a presidential term, as elections are and have been sham for the last twenty years."

As to intervention by the United States the appealing Nicaraguans say:

"It has long been evident to us that only the strong and impartial arm of the United States can ever reduce this quarrelsome state to that condition of mind and national dignity without which no country can ever hope to preserve its integrity.

"Now, granting that you will condescend to intervene more effectively that you have done up to the present time, and also granting that we can never hope to have a free and fair election, then you must either quit the whole proposition or else put a true and decent man at the helm, and with your moral support let him go on with the elections. Or you can go still further: Land troops, take control of the situation and then supervise an election like you did at Panama and Cuba.

"These plans meet with the unqualified indorsement of all representative men (about 90 percent of the land owners and capitalists), with the exception, of course, of the ones at present in power, among whom, by the way, the men of standing are greatly in the minority. The country is not blind to the reasons they have to oppose such a just and equitable arrangement."

Long Words.

While our language does not contain such long words as are found in some other tongues nor so many words of unusual length, still we have several that are awkwardly long for conversational purposes. We have "philoprogenitiveness," with twenty letters; "interconvertibilities," with twenty-one; "intercommunicabilities," with twenty-two; "disproportionableness," with twenty-three, and "transsubstantiationalists" and "contradistinguishability," each containing twenty-four letters. An effective little word is "synacategorematic," as it manages to compress eight syllables into seventeen letters.

The longest monosyllables contain nine letters, and there are four examples: "splotched," "squelched," "strengths" and "stretched."—New York Tribune.

For Hiram Cronk Memorial.

Mrs. C. L. Morehouse of 304 West Thirtieth street, New York, has undertaken the collection of funds to erect a monument in memory of Hiram Cronk, the last survivor of the war of 1812, who died five years ago at the age of 105 at Ava, N. Y., and was buried with military honors in Cypress Hills cemetery, Brooklyn.

Westminster Abbey.

The full legal title of Westminster abbey is "the Collegiate Church of St. Peter, Westminster." Very few people have heard the famous burial place so designated. A collegiate church, as distinguished from a parish church, is one that is administered by a "college" of priests instead of an individual rector or vicar.—Westminster Gazette.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Electrification of Railroads to Go to Commission

The committee on metropolitan affairs of the Legislature will report the resolve providing that the "Big Four "commission, composed of the railroad, harbor and land, Boston transit and metropolitan park commissions, prepare a bill providing for electrification of the railroads entering Boston and submit the bill to the legislature of 1911. In the bill the commission is to report the time within which the railroads shall have to change from steam to electricity.

By a vote of 92 to 82 the House ordered to a third reading on Monday the bill to require vehicles to carry lights at night on public highways and bridges.

The House went on record in favor of both amendments to the constitution relative to land takings and voting machines.

The Senate passed a bill to authorize the State Highways commission to expend 20 per cent of the fees from automobiles in the maintenance of town and county ways.

The bill to revise the city charter of Beverly was also passed by the Senate.

Governor Draper allowed the veterans' hearing bill to become a law without his signature. This bill allows any veteran employed by the state or any city or town, in case of removal, transfer or suspension, to demand a hearing before an especially designated board. If a State employee he shall appear before the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration; if a town employee, before the selectmen, and if a city employee, before the Board of Aldermen, but where there is no Board of Aldermen (as in the city of Quincy,) then before the City Council.

HOUSE LOTS IN ATLANTIC.

A portion of the Pope estate in Atlantic is being offered, in this issue, for sale in house lots, some 80 odd lots, bordering on the Quincy shore boulevard and beach, commanding a fine view of the entire Quincy bay. This property will be sold restricted to one family houses only and as the owners live on the property, naturally they will endeavor to improve it and keep it, as at present,— a first class American neighborhood. As this is easy of access to the station and Atlantic is so near Boston, 13 minutes, lots in so pleasant a locality should find a ready sale.

QUARRY ACCIDENT.

Olas Jacobson of 22 Clark avenue, a quarryman employed at the quarry of J. S. Swingle met with a painful accident Monday afternoon. He was at work helping to load a stone team when one of the heavy blocks of granite fell over onto him crushing him against another block of granite. He suffered a fracture of the right ankle. The police ambulance was called and he was removed to the City Hospital.

LIQUOR SHIPMENTS.

Two inspectors from Station 2 of the Boston police department were in Quincy on Monday looking up the alleged illegal shipment by a Boston liquor dealer of liquor to Quincy. As a result of their investigation a well known Boston liquor dealer, said to be F. Cochrane & Co., of 6 Congress square, will be brought into court in Boston on two complaints for shipping liquor to a no-license town not properly marked. The packages in question came by Murphy's express and by Abbott & Miller's express, and were seized by Officer Goodhue.

STONE CUTTER MAYOR

Ready to Do Private Business at City Hall

Charles J. French, mayor of Concord, N. H., who was a former Quincy boy, was the subject of a special article in Sunday's Boston Post. Mr. French, who is known as the "stone cutter mayor," came into the limelight by reason of a business card which he has recently sent out. The card reads as follows:—

"Don't throw away a chance to make money—If you contemplate purchasing a monument, tablet or headstone of any description, I shall be pleased to call upon you at your own convenience, or you may call upon me at my office (City hall) if you so chose, and talk the subject over. Inscriptions on monuments in any cemetery a specialty. Charles J. French, with 35 years' experience in the granite business. Dealer in all kinds of granite that the trade may desire. City Hall, Concord, N. H."

In an interview, Mayor French is quoted as saying "I work at my trade of stone cutting regularly every morning and attend to the affairs of the city in the afternoon, because the salary paid the mayor here is so small that a man must have some outside source of income. It is the only way of earning enough to live on."

The move to have customers call at his office in City Hall, if they wish to transact private business with him, has fanned to a fever heat a growing sentiment which has been stirred up by the mayors independent manner of life.

The salary of the Mayor of Concord is said to be $1,000 per year, the same as in Quincy. As stated above Mayor French is a Quincy boy. He was born in West Quincy, and after leaving school learned the trade of a stone cutter, at which he worked a number of years before shaking the dust of Quincy from his feet. He is well known among the older residents of West Quincy.

What a great hue and cry would go up in Quincy if Mayor Shea, who is in the granite paving business, should send out a card announcing that he could be seen by customers in his little 10 by 10 office every afternoon, in regard to the sale of paving blocks. Mayor Shea, however, is fortunate enough to have a sister to look after his business while he is attending to the affairs of the city at City Hall.

SUNDAY SERVICES

WOLLASTON METHODIST.

"The true source of strength" was the subject of Rev. Wesley Wiggin's sermon at the Wollaston Methodist church on Sunday. He spoke of the need of strength commensurate with the task to be accomplished. He said if we were to live a life in harmony with God; if we were to build the highest type of life and develop the strongest type of character, we must seek divine help.

Religion is not that which makes life hard to live. Religion is freedom, largeness of liberty, development of life. To wait upon God is to recognize the Eternal goodness of God; to acknowledge our dependence upon Him. "They that wait upon God shall renew their strength; they shall mount up on wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint."

In closing he said we should wait upon God by prayer, by consecration, by loyal service. He urged all to seek divine strength that they might be prepared for service.

The Sunday school in charge of J. A. Sedgwick had a large attendance. At the conclusion of the lesson W. C. Sanders spoke on the crime resulting from intoxicating drinks. S. A. Kay spoke on the moderate drinker and F. G. Bennett told of the effect of drink in the home life, illustrating his remarks by an object lesson. The primary department, under Mrs. George Crothers, made a fine record in attendance.

Miss Rena M. Chamberlin has charge of the junior league. The Epworth league was in charge of Miss Bertha Teed. The subject was:—"Look up, and lift up."

Walter Sutermeister took charge of the praise service. Misses Mary Cleveland and Florence Bennett rendered a duet at 7 o'clock after a praise service led by the choir of young people, the pastor preached from the words, "What think ye of Christ."

PLANS FOR LAUNCHING

The Sterrett an Ocean Going Destroyer

Preparations for the launch of the torpedo boat destroyer Sterrett at the Fore River shipyard Thursday morning are practically completed. The vessel will be launched at 11.30, and will be christened by Miss Dorothy Rosalie Gittings of Baltimore, a daughter of a prominent banker of that city, and a direct descendant of Commodore Sterrett, for whom the vessel is named. Miss Gittings and the Baltimore party will arrive in Boston on Wednesday, and will make their headquarters at the Vendome.

Thursday morning they will come to the Fore River on a special train that will leave the South Station at 10 o'clock. This train will be run directly to the Fore River yards. Immediately after the launch a lunch will be served in the mold loft, where there will be some speaking.

The Sterrett is a sister ship of the Perkins launched last month. She is 293 feet, 10 1-2 inches overall, and 26 feet 4 1-2 inches moulded breadth. Her battery will consist of five 3-inch guns, three 45 c-m torpedo tubes on deck, and two .30 calibre automatic guns.

The Sterrett like her sister ship, is notable in being the pioneer of a new enlarged type of ocean going destroyers capable of keeping at sea with the battle fleet, and it is interesting to note that since these vessels were designed the first class naval powers have followed suit in laying down vessels of similar type.

Her motive power will be two Curtis reversible marine turbines, capable of developing 6,000 horse power each, at about 600 revolutions, and will give the vessel a speed of 29 1-2 knots per hour.

The vessel is flush decked, fore and aft, with a topgallant forecastle giving a high platform for the forward gun with a good height for conning tower and steering station, while contributing to the seagoing qualities of the ship.

The captain's and officers' staterooms, wardrooms and conveniences are arranged in the forecastle while on berth deck immediately below these are quarters for part of the petty officers and crew, the remainder being berthed aft.

BOSTON OBJECTS.

The city council of Boston went on record on Monday as opposed to the passage of house bill 1624, which provides for the establishment at Somerville of a new bathhouse to be paid for and constructed under the direction of the metropolitan park commission. The council further instructed its committee on legislative matters to go before the legislature and protest against the bill.

IMPORTANT MEN RALLY TO SHORT BALLOT MOVEMENT.

New Plan of Political Reform Finds Favor—To End Complexity of Politics.

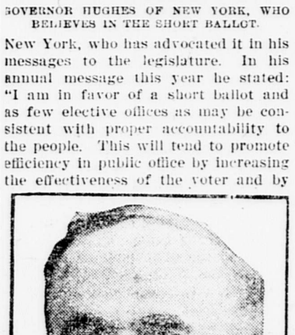

The short ballot movement, which proposes to solve the difficulties of popular government by reducing the number of elective offices to a point where political machines will be unnecessary, is spreading with great rapidity and has now enlisted the support of leading students of political reform all over the country. Its slogan is, "The long ballot is the politician's ballot; the short ballot is the people's ballot."

The best known advocate of the short ballot is Governor Hughes of

GOVERNOR HUGHES OF NEW YORK, WHO BELIEVES IN THE SHORT BALLOT.

New York, who has advocated it in his messages to the legislature. In his annual message this year he stated: "I am in favor of a short ballot and as few elective offices as may be consistent with proper accountability to the people. This will tend to promote efficiency in public office by increasing the effectiveness of the voter and by diminishing the opportunities of political manipulators, who take advantage of the multiplicity of elective offices to perfect schemes at the public expense."

Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, is also prominently on record in support of the short ballot. At the last good government conference he said: "The short ballot—a few elective offices instead of a bewildering multitude—why, that is absolutely the gist of all constructive reform, the only way to get rid of bosses and machines. Every patriot will wish the short ballot organization success."

Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, whose "Beast and the Jungle" has stirred the whole country with its exposure of Colorado politics, is emphatic in support of this doctrine.

"The present absurdly long ballots," says Judge Lindsey, "give the people more work than the people can perform. Popular opinion cannot work effectively on more than a few subjects at a time. To submit to the people a great mass of questions, most of which are relatively unimportant, is giving the people a power which they cannot effectively utilize. In consequence they are forced to delegate their power to political machines with all the opportunities for corruption and manipulations that are involved in such a distribution of functions. The long ballot, together with the elaborate 'extra legal' political machinery that is necessary to make it work, constitutes the greater part of the jungle of which I have been writing.

"The short ballot plan proposes to substitute an open sunlit plain for the present darksome jungle."

The Drummer's Sermon.

"Certainly I will make a few remarks," says the cigar salesman who, because of his solemn garb, has been mistaken for a man of the cloth. Ascending the platform, he says:

"Men are much like cigars. Often you cannot tell by the wrapper what the filler is. Sometimes a good old stogy is more popular than an imported celebrity. Some men are all right in the showcase on display, but are great disappointments when you get them home. No matter how fine a man is, eventually he meets his match. A two-fer often puts on as many airs as a fifty-center. Some men never get to the front at all except during campaigns. Some are very fancy outside and are selected for presents. Others have a rough exterior, but spread cheer and comfort about them because of what is inside. But all men, as all cigars, good or bad, two-fers, stogies or rich or poor, come to ashes at the last."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Cause For Rejoicing.

"Here," said the disgruntled actor, "I don't want this part. If I play it I'll have to die in the first act."

"Well," replied the manager, "what are you kicking about? You die a natural death, don't you? If you got a chance to come on in the second act you'd get killed."—Chicago Record Herald.

HAPPY WOMEN

Plenty of Them in Quincy, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Quincy reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. George L. Nott, 99 North Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have every reason for holding a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled a great deal by headaches and dizzy spells which were so scaere at times that I had to grasp something for support to keep from falling. My sight was also affected, spots often appearing before me and my back ached intensely. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. I was helped from the first and after I had taken the contents of five boxes, I was cured. Other members of my family have used this remedy with equally good results."

Collecting an Old Debt.

The other day the manager of a furniture house in town asked one of his star salesmen to collect a bill of long standing, for which the regular collector had been unable to get cash. The manager told his man to threaten a lawsuit if necessary. The salesman said he would collect it without that and went to the delinquent's office. He put the bill in the band of his derby hat, and with the hat held nonchalantly in his left hand he strolled into the inner shrine. The man at the desk looked at him inquiringly and then glanced down at the conspicuous bill.

"Well, what is it?" he asked.

"Pardon me," said the salesman in his best manner, "but could you tell me is Mr. Jones dead?"

"Why, no! I'm Mr. Jones."

"Thank you. That's all I wanted to know," said the salesman and walked abruptly from the room.

Next day a check came for the amount.—New York Sun.

—Not only among Harvard students, but among the thousands of attendants of football, and other games in the stadium at Cambridge, the prospect of a new bridge over the Charles river will be of especial interest. The old wooden bridge has long been wholly inadequate to accommodate the crowds of people who witness the stadium games, and two years ago, it was announced that a Harvard graduate had offered to give $300,000 for a new bridge. Objections on the part of the war department and some property owners have kept the matter in abeyance ,and the name of the donor has been withheld. It is understood that these objections have now been overcome, and with the prospect of an early beginning of the work, it is announced that Larz Anderson of Brookline, of the class of '88 is the donor.—Milford Gazette.

BIG STRIKE HEADED OFF

Peace Likely to Reign For Long Period In Lynn Shoe Shops

Lynn, Mass., May 10.—With the settlement of the differences between the striking stock-fitters and the shoe concern of Seymour & Jackson and an agreement made by the A. M. Creighton company to submit to arbitration all labor disputes that may arise with its 1500 employes, the danger of a widespread strike on the part of the Lynn shoe operatives is regarded as practically over.

While the granting of the new wage scale demanded by the stock-fitters secures them a relative increase in pay of 20 percent, the shoe manufacturers will be no worse off under the new scale, for the reason that the increase granted the men represents what was formerly the contractors' profit. Under the new agreement the contract system has been abolished.

The agreement of the A. M. Creighton company to submit all differences to arbitration for one year is regarded by the union leaders with satisfaction, as in the past the Creighton company has persistently refused to recognize the unions.

Coffin Had Been Trusted Town Treasurer For Thirteen Years

Newburyport, Mass., May 10.—John F. Caskey, the expert accountant, who has been examining the books of the late Samuel F. Coffin, who died suddenly about six weeks ago, after serving as treasurer of the town of Nest Newbury for thirteen years, has reported to the board of selectmen that Coffin's account shows $5,014.33 is missing.

All of the money was taken by Coffin from the town during the past year, a number of checks made payable to himself having been drawn on the Merrimac National bank of Haverhill.

Coffin died suddenly from pneumonia. He was popular in West Newbury, having been elected town treasurer year after year. Although a Democrat he was the representative from the West Newbury, nominally a Republican district, to the general court.

HOUSEKEEPER AND BUTLER MURDERED

Daylight Crime of Robbers In Home of a New York Doctor

New York, May 10.—Evidently the victims of burglars, Charles W. Weman, a Hindoo butler, and Margaret Meshan, an aged housekeeper, were found murdered last night in the residence of Dr. Mott D. Cannon.

The two were killed some time between 2:30 and 5:45 o'clock in the afternoon, during the physician's absence. Returning, Cannon discovered the bodies. The butler, who was 25 years old, was shot through the mouth from the right cheek. There was another wound on his forehead and one on the back of his neck. The last two, the police say, were apparently inflicted with a jimmy.

The old housekeeper had an ugly bullet wound in the back of her head, and was beaten with a jimmy or some other blunt instrument.

Examination of the physician's study showed that the top drawer of a bureau was "jimmied" open and $100 in bills, $100 in silver and several valuable gold stickpins were taken.

The housekeeper had been in Cannon's employ for forty years. The Hindoo entered the physician's service only last Saturday.

SIDELIGHT ON THAW TRIAL

Delmas Was to Get the Glory While Gleason Did the Work

Pittsburg, May 10.—Referee in Bankruptcy Blair held hearings upon the claims against the bankrupt estate of Harry K. Thaw, to which exceptions have been filed by Thaw's trustees.

During the hearing some inside details of the first trial of the slayer of Stanford White were brought out by John B. Gleason of New York, who was formerly counsel for Thaw, and who is defending his claim of $60,000 for alleged fees due him.

Gleason, during his statement to the referee, said that by agreement between Thaw and himself, he was to receive "twice as much money as Attorney Delmas," as "Delmas was to get the glory of the trial, while Gleason did the work." The hearings will consume several days.

Bigamy and Theft Alleged

Fitchburg, Mass., May 10.—The police have received from Pittsfield a warrant for Charles W. Boss is now in jail here on a charge of larceny.

Trolleymen Reject Wage Scale

AIRSHIP OF THE NEAR FUTURE.

What Two Authorities Think It Will Be Like.

HUGE MODEL OF COMFORT.

Will Resemble a Flying Fish and Be Capable, It Is Claimed, of Traveling Seventy-five Miles an Hour—To Carry About 150 Passengers and Crew of Fortytwo Men.

The most recent developments in Germany's efforts to reduce air navigation to a science and the plans for the transatlantic voyage above the clouds proposed for about the middle of May by the German aeronaut Dr. Gans-Fabrice, lately president of the Frankfort Aeronautical exposition, and Joseph Brucker of Berlin in two dirigibles are discussed by T. R. MacMechen and Carl Dienstbach, two authors of works on airships and dirigibles, in the May Century, and the airship of the near future is described in part as follows:

From the standard of present development the airship of 1915 may be conceived as having a hull of rigid construction, 1,000 feet long and 80 feet beam, with accommodations for 125 to 150 passengers and a crew of 42 men.

The new air liner will resemble a submarine or, rather, a flying fish. All its parts will be compactly built into the hull. Its underbody, 800 feet long, 12 feet wide and 9 feet high, will extend between the elbows fore and aft where the hull begins to curve toward its pointed bow and stern. The underbody will hold seven passengers and eight operating sections, after the fashion of a compartment sleeping car. A continuous passageway will extend from end to end.

All Cooking by Electricity.

Below the bridge will be a hatchway to the main passage in the forward underbody of the ship, where there is a companionway which is the ship's portal. Abaft of this will be the captain's cabin. To starboard will begin the main passage and staterooms, with all doors opening on the passage. Next to the captain's quarters, in sequence, will be officers' and engineers' staterooms, officers' wardroom and mess, the barber shop, the first motor compartment, the toilet room, passengers' staterooms, passengers' living quarters, a central lounging, reading and dining saloon the width of the ship. At the stern will be the steward's quarters, where all cooking will be by electricity. Meals will be served in each saloon, the pantry service being operated by escalator passing through the "hold," which will be attached to the airship's entire underbody. Table service will be delivered through a trap in the saloon floor. Telephone and electric annunciators will connect each section with the steward's quarters.

All bed covering will be of the lightest weights, because elektron heaters carrying the hot exhaust of the motors will keep the temperature automatically even while flying at frigid altitudes. When flying low in the tropics the airship may be perfectly cooled by ventilation. Only hand baggage will be permitted for the quick passage.

The sides of the "hold," or tunnel, five feet high and eight feet wide, will be lined with continuous tanking, containing gasoline fuel, to be forced upward into the engine rooms as needed. The outside of the "hold" will serve as the airship's rounded keel and will enable the craft to float on water. Elastic buffers for landing will be fixed under each engine section.

The eight motor compartments will each be equipped with one 200 horsepower motor, transmitting energy by short steel belts in flattened tubes to one propeller on the same side of the hull and to auxiliary engines operating pumps that will control the gas chambers, withdrawing expanding gas and condensing it into the airship's tubular frame. They will also drive powerful fans for ventilating the air spaces of the hull and the living quarters.

"Boats" to Be Carried.

The top of the hull, now the Zeppelin's observatory, will become a long "hurricane deck" of thin, light planking, with side rails. Here will be kept "service" implements, two slender masts carrying the "wireless" antennae and the yellow "top lights," observatories for cloud triangulation and taking the altitude of stars, searchlights, kite winch and the airship's "boats," two small, swift aeroplane "scouts," one fore, the other aft, with ample space for launching and alighting. The deck will be reached by small winding openwork stairs through the hull. The hull will be divided into twenty gas tight compartments for sustaining the airship in space. Along the port and starboard sides five seats of curved aeroplane surfaces will help to lift and support the airship or steer it up and down. They will be "stepped" to avoid interference. Between them will be eight propellers, four on each side, at alternating levels along the hull.

"It is believed that within five years such an air liner will be capable of traveling seventy-five miles an hour ordinarily and often 120 miles in the upper levels.

TAFT IN NEW JERSEY

Talks on Pending Legislation and Delays on Two Statehood Bills

Passaic, N. J., May 10.—President Taft, speaking last night at the board of trade banquet, reviewed legislative measures pending before congress, and especially emphasized his desire that the injunction act, the postal savings bank and the interstate commerce acts pass this session, claiming that the latter bill in its present form has not been so terribly damaged as reports indicated.

In commenting on the delay over the bill to make Arizona and New Mexico states, the president acknowledged that there was "hesitation" on the part of the Republicans in the senate in passing a bill which is "likely to add four Democrats to the senate."

"Or if not Democrats," he added, in taking what was regarded as reference to some insurgents, "Republicans of that radical type that are entirely out of sympathy with the more conservative notions of the east."

The Voracious Cormorant.

How a cormorant dives for sea trout and gets them is told by a writer: "I had the cormorant under observation only for the space of four or five minutes, and during that short period it had captured four sea trout, all of considerable size. After being under water for a few seconds the bird would reappear with a sea trout wriggling in its bill. But in spite of the victim's desperate efforts to escape it was deftly swallowed, and after a few gulps the cormorant would resume its fishing operations. One of the sea trout gave it considerable trouble, however, for the fish struggled violently for some moments, but was deftly placed so that its head pointed down its captor's throat, and thus its own struggles assisted the bird to swallow it. After a time the cormorant raised itself in the water, flapping its wings vigorously, as though to help it pack away its heavy repast, and then rose heavily and wing its way upstream."

A Legend of February.

Here is the pretty legend which tells why February has only twenty-eight or twenty-nine days. Long ago, they say, February was a gambler, and he was so unlucky that he soon lost all his money. Like other gamblers, he tried to recover it, and he said to his companions that if they would lend him some money he would give them as security one of his days. January and March, who were naturally associated with him more often than any of the other months, accepted his offer, and as poor February soon lost the money which he had borrowed each of them acquired one of his days. That is why January and March have each thirty-one days and February has only twenty-eight in ordinary and twenty-nine in leap years.

Ruse That Worked.

Roundsman—How did you keep all of those girls from rushing out of the moving picture show when the lights went out? Policeman—It was dead easy. When they started to rush I said: "That's right! Old ladies first!" And the way they held back was a caution.—Chicago News.

The Girl With the Birthmark

A Curious Experience While Momentarily Unconscious.

By F. A. MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I was standing on sand and could hear the plash of waves, but could see nothing about me, for I was enveloped in mist. A rocking sensation made me doubt whether I was ashore or on the water. Another singular feature was a faint singing of birds—so faint, indeed, that I doubted whether I heard birds or a ringing in my ears. There were occasional voices about me, having a mellow sound, as if spoken on a quiet day after a fall of snow or on a balmy morning when the air is full of moisture.

While I was wondering where I was and how I happened to be there a girl came out of the mist and stood before me. She seemed as much surprised to see me as I was to see her. Her face was that of a saint—fair complexion, hair and eyes. There was but one blemish—a small red birthmark, shaped like a rose leaf, on her neck. It was rather an imperfection than a blemish.

"Where are we?" I asked.

"I don't know," she replied.

"I hear the sound of waves."

"Then we must be on the seashore."

"And birds singing."

"That would indicate that the beach is lined by woods."

"Wherever we are, we were evidently sent for each other."

"It would seem so." She lowered her eyes.

"You were certainly sent to be with me. What would become of me alone in this dense mist without the power to find my way out of it ? With you I shall be happy even here. You are very lovely."

"You do not say beautiful."

"But you are beautiful."

"No; I can't be that."

"Why?"

"Because of this." She put a finger on the birthmark.

"Do you know," I said after a brief pause, "that I like you so well as you are that I would not have even that changed?"

"How good of you to say that! You say it to make me feel less dissatisfied on account of my defect. You do not mean it."

Suddenly the mist was gone. It did not melt away; it vanished. We were standing upon a beautiful bay. For miles on either hand the beach curved in a semicircle. Back of us the shore rose till it mingled with mountains. The waters of the bay were of different colors. Near us, where it was shallow, it was a pale green, beyond a deep blue and beyond that silver. On this silver an island rested, rising from its base to a height on which the sun shone golden. We stood looking out at the view. I was entranced, and, turning my eyes upon my companion, I saw that she was equally wrapt.

"I feel," I said, "that I must go out on the bosom of that sea."

"There is a boat," she replied, "chained to a stake."

Lowering my eyes to the verge. I saw a skiff rising and falling with the languid swells.

The next scene of which I was cognizant or at least remember now was pulling along under great cliffs that formed the island.

"There is a cave," said my companion, "with a waterway for an entrance."

Turning the boat, I pulled for the cave. The rocky roof over the waterway just grazed our heads as we made the entrance. Inside we found ourselves within a cavern, its roof hung with stalactites. The light coming from the entrance tinged the vaulted roof with ever changing colors. Now it was a blood red, now a pale blue, now sea green, now white.

"It is from the changing of the waters outside," I said. "A changing sky changes the bay, and the changing bay changes the hues in here."

"It is all change," she said sadly "I wish something in the world were fixed."

I dropped my oars and, seating myself beside her, took her in my arms.

"I wish this would never change," I said, "for I have found my love." I kissed her. She put her arms about me, and it seemed to me that I had thrown off something that had troubled me, some great evil that had overhung me, and I had passed to a convalescence of perfect happiness.

Alas, while supremely happy in this companionship, I felt my love slipping through my arms and saw her floating over the surface of the water toward the mouth of the cavern. At that moment both the water and its rocky dome were a pale blue. They tinged her garments with the same hue. She looked back at me with an expression of indescribable melancholy. I called to her not to leave me, but she floated on, passed out through the mouth of the cavern and was gone.

I seized the oars to follow and, dashing under the low arch that separated me from the outside, in another moment was under the greater vault of the heavens.

All was serene as when we entered the cavern, but my love had vanished.

Then came a sensation of being tossed to and fro, up and down, as though I were on a stormy sea. It was merely a consciousness of feeling. There was no communication with the outside world. There were voices in the air. What they said I did not know. There were also sounds of invisible people passing and the occasional opening and closing of a door.

Next I was lying on a lounge looking out of an open window. The air was clear as crystal. Before me rose a range of snow capped mountains. Over them was a white cloud. But was it a cloud? No. It was a peak far above its fellows, with a strip of cloud beneath it that gave it the appearance of a peak. How high it was! It seemed to mingle with the heavens' blue. I arose and went to the window to get a better view of its summit. When I leaned out and looked up at it it seemed higher, higher, all the while higher. My brain began to whirl. I returned to my lounge. I was weak and languid.

While I was recovering from my giddiness a door opened and my lost love came into the room. At first she looked anxious, then smiled.

For a moment I was in doubt if it were really she. It did not appear that she was changed, but that I looked at her through different eyes from before. Her figure did not face me, but she was looking at me sidewise. I was troubled. I longed for her, she was with me, but I was not sure she was the same person. While I gazed in perplexity she turned, and I saw the birthmark on her neck. Then she came to me, seemingly wading through water, and took my hand. I drew her down beside me and said reproachfully:

"Why did you leave me?"

"I couldn't help it. It was fate. Everything changes in this world."

It did not occur to me that this was a vague answer. At any rate, I was satisfied with it.

"Are you going away again?" I asked.

"No, not now; some day."

"When will that be?"

"A long, long while from now."

"And will you love me until this separation comes?"

"I will love you always, here and where I go."

"I will go with you. You shall not go without me."

Then hand in hand we were climbing the mountain I had seen from the window. We seemed to be ascending as if bouyed by wings. Eager to reach that cloudlike summit I had seen, we pressed on and on, but whenever I looked up to see if we neared it we were as far below as before. Turning to look back, the houses beneath appeared like ant hills. Then I felt the snow slowly moving beneath me.

"It is an avalanche!" I exclaimed.

We were turned toward the valley and hand in hand slid down the mountain. Though we moved with accelerated pace, we kept our feet. We were like two gulls soaring, then, turning their wings aslant, sailing down an aerial incline. Suddenly the snow before us began to pile up against the base of a cliff. We lost our balance and, head downward, I felt tons of snow piling on top of me.

"No bones broken," I heard a voice say close beside me. "If there's no internal injury he will be all right."

I opened my eyes. I was lying on hard snow, while people stood about me, all looking very anxious. One of them, a girl, stood gazing down upon me with a pair of mild eyes in which there was a world of sympathy. There must have been something in my glance to affect her, for she lowered her eyes, blushed and turned away. As she did so she exposed one side of her neck. It bore a birthmark shaped like a rose leaf.

"What's the matter?" I asked.

"Matter! Why, you have fallen twenty feet from the ledge up there."

I remembered passing over a ledge, but I didn't remember anything else.

"How long have I been unconscious?" I asked.

"You fell this very minute. Here; take a little of this."

A party of tourists happened to be passing when I fell and among them a doctor. From where I lay I could see the Alpine peak Jungfrau. I had been looking at it during the period of my unconsciousness, which might have been an infinitesimally small fraction of time. I had seen the girl with a birthmark only during the same space of time.

They wished to assist me to the hotel just below, at Sheidig, but I concluded to try my legs. The doctor gave me his hand, and I got on my feet. One of the tourists who stood about me volunteered to go with me, but I got on fairly well without his assistance.

What I have recorded is the beginning of a love story; but, though I have no objection to telling a dream, I shrink from giving the thoughts and feelings of myself and the lady of my love. I was less interested in discovering whether I had displaced any of my internal parts than getting on the track of the girl with a birthmark. I missed her at Sheidig, but saw her the next evening at the Kursall (casino) at Interlaken, sipping a lemonade. I dogged her footsteps for days before I succeeded in corralling her—that is, before I could find her lighted, so to speak, and I could get a mutual acquaintance to introduce me. I finally cornered her on the Rigo, near Lucerne, and, as luck would have it, my friend Jim Thompson was there, too, and was acquainted with her.

I expected under the influence of my dream that I should have as easy a time getting her as I had during that long drawn out infinitesimally short period. Instead, I had a real woman to deal with and not a creation of my own fancy.

There was no dream for her. I was to her an ordinary personage with whom neither dreams nor romance had anything to do. I was obliged to lay siege to her heart and advance by regular approaches. I made very slow progress. Nevertheless by persistance I finally conquered, and it was not till then that I told her this story.

GOVERNOR GILLETT

Says It Is Not Up to Him to Prevent Fight

"LET THE FIGHT GO ON"

Governor Gillett Says People Want the Jeffries-Johnson Scrap

New York, May 10.—Governor Gillett of California arrived here and reiterated his declaration that he would not interfere with the Jeffries-Johnson fight, to take place on July 4.

"Let the fight go on," he said when asked if the protests from clergymen all over the nation would influence him. "The people want it, so why should we stop it? It isn't up to me to do anything."

TO ELIMINATE MIDDLEMAN

Farmers Organize to Aid In Cutting the Cost of Living

St. Louis, May 10.—The American Co-operative union, the purpose of which is to aid in the crusade against high prices, was organized by farmers who attended the national rally here. The organization was perfected secretly Thursday and announced yesterday.

The union is to be incorporated for $1,000,000 and branches will be opened in every large city in the United States, it is announced. The plan provides for the absolute elimination of the middleman in the sale of farm products.

WANTS CONGRESS TO AVOID SUGAR PROBE

President Taft Considers It Inexpedient at This Time

Washington, May 10.—President Taft sent a special message to the house of representatives to tell why he considers a congressional investigation of the sugar frauds in the customs service inexpedient.

It is because "a congressional investigation at this time would embarrass the executive department in the continuance and completion of the investigation of the appraisers and other officers of the customs services."

The president's reply was to a resolution passed in the house on April 14, calling upon him to state his reasons for not wishing a congressional investigation, as he had intimated in his message at the opening of the session.

UNEASINESS IN CHANG-SHA

Destruction of Foreigners and Native Christians Called For

Chang-Sha, China, May 10.—The general uneasiness has been greatly increased here in consequence of the appearance of a large number of posters, unsigned, demanding the destruction of foreigners and native Christians, and setting May 29 as the date for a general anti-Manchu uprising.

Government officials have destroyed the posters, and the city is being strongly patrolled. The agitators are holding secret meetings, but it is believed that the presence of foreign gunboats here will act as a check to the movement.

BENSON DROPS DEAD

Millionaire Convicted of Land Frauds Dies Just After Leaving Jail

San Francisco, May 10.—Less than twenty-four hours after his discharge from the Alameda jail, where he had served a year's sentence for land frauds, John A. Benson, a Contra Costa county millionaire, dropped dead while motoring to his ranch near San Ramon.

The case in which Benson was convicted was one of the longest and hardest fought on record. The trial and the investigation which preceded it cost the government no less than $200,000, of which $60,000 was especially appropriated by congress.

Governor's Veto Is Upheld

Boston, May 10.—Governor Draper's first veto was sustained in the house by a vote of 158 to 42, the veto being upon the bill which gives militia men in the employ of cities and towns a right to have their regular pay while on duty.

RESPECT FOR NEW TARIFF

Difficult to Inspire In Minds of Hoosiers

WATSON CREATES A STIR

Writes to Hundreds of Republicans In Indiana Urging Election of State Ticket, but Omits to Mention Anything In Support of Beveridge, Who Is Opposed to Payne-Aldrich Law—Difficult Contest Anticipated

Indianapolis, May 10.—James E. Watson, former whip of the house, right hand man to Speaker Cannon and one of the chief defenders of the present tariff law, has sent letters to 300 Indiana Republicans inquiring into conditions as they relate to the Republican party. The situation is more interesting because Watson is an advocate of the Payne tariff bill, while Senator Beveridge, who is to be the issue in Republican politics in the state, is opposed to the law.

It is said that one of the chief inquiries Watson made related to the manner in which Beveridge's state convention speech was received in this state by Republicans, particularly that part relating to the tariff. It is asserted that Watson has received answers to all the letters, and that, taking these letters as a basis, he has decided that it will be very difficult to inspire respect for the Payne law in the minds of the people, and that he has written to some of his friends in the state that there seems to be much trouble ahead.

Friends of Beveridge who have scanned one of these letters fail to gather from it much hope that Watson will lend his efforts to the selection of a legislature which will return Beveridge to the senate. It is noticeable that Watson says he hopes to see the state ticket elected, but says nothing whatever about the chances of Beveridge.

Waston has written to certain candidates on the state ticket proffering his aid to them, but, so far as known, he has written no such letter to Beveridge. Of course all this brings up the old story that when Beveridge campaigned in Indiana he had little to say in his speeches about Watson, who at that time was the candidate of the Republicans for governor.

At the state committee headquarters the suggestion that Beveridge probably would not be willing to admit that Republicanism and not the tariff shall be the issue in the coming campaign brought the statement that the state committee is the committee of the Republican party and not the committee of Beveridge.

With no mention of the liquor question in the Republican state platform and a declaration in the Democratic platform for city and township local option, which means the repeal of the county option law, the Indiana Anti-Saloon league realizes that it will meet a difficult proposition in its efforts to save the county option law from repeal in the next session of the legislature.

The Code of Slang.

It is rather a clever notion in a recent story to make two Americans communicate with each other by means of slang in a Central American republic at a time when all telegrams are carefully inspected. If they used Spanish, that, of course, would be immediately understood. If they used English the officials would find some one to translate it. As they had no cipher code prepared in advance, they could not resort to it. Consequently the first American telegraphs to the other American in "the great and potent code of slang." Here is a telegram which slipped through the fingers of the curious Central American officials:

"His nibs skedaddled yesterday per jack rabbit line with all the coin in the kitty and the bundle of muslin he's spoony about. The boodle is six figures short. Our crowd in good shape, but we need the spondulics. You collar it. The main guy and the dry goods are headed for the briny. You know what to do. Bob."—Bookman.

CHANGES IN NORTH DAKOTA

The Two Bow Sponsons Are Being Removed

Every day last week says the Globe the Boston navy yard was thronged with visitors. Old sailors and men who fought in the navy during the rebellion walked about and said all was fine. But they again looked over the old Constitution and the almost equally famous old receiving ship Wabash, still unconvinced that the modern battleship is such a very great improvement.

The attention of all visitors was bestowed on the new battleship North Dakota built at Quincy. The monster craft is nearly twice the size of the battleships Illinois and Missouri lying close by and more than 12 times as heavy as the old Constitution, which is at an adjacent wharf.

The North Dakota is in the new dry-dock at the yard which affords all visitors an opportunity of seeing every portion of the hull and the advanced lines upon which the monster is built.

And all who visit the dock receive an object lesson in how "Uncle Sam" keeps his naval ships up to the minute in efficiency. Although the mammoth ship is new and was turned over to the government but a month or so ago, already changes to improve her speed are being made.

When the big ship was delivered at the yard last month she had two bow sponsons, with a five-inch rapid fire gun in each pointed forward. The sponsons are being removed and and the bow will soon present an unbroken surface. It was decided that the sponsons interfered with the highest possible speed. Some of the officers and experts also believed that the sponsons, with their open ports, furnished an undesirable weak spot forward.

MOODIE—ADAMS.

Frederick John Moodie of Quincy and Miss Helen Marion Adams of Brockton were united in marriage at 37 Herrod avenue Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, Rev. A. T. Ringold, pastor of the North Baptist church, performed the ceremony. The single ring service was used. The young couple will make their home at 45 May avenue Brockton. The bride was attired in a dainty suit of brown broadcloth. They were unattended. —Enterprise.

—Talk war long enough, and you will get war; it will come up over the blandest horizon of international unity and peace. But put it into the mind of your own people, and it will communicate itself to the mind of other people. Stage another nation in the role of assailant, and sooner or later it will accept the role. Get popular sentiment on both sides straining and suspicious, and it will force the hands of Government anxious to keep the peace. Nowadays peoples make wars, not Governments. Public sentiment holds the sword. What a crime it is, in pure wantoness, to whet and brandish it!—New York World.

UMPIRES BELIEVE WHAT CLYDE MILAN SAYS.

Clyde Milan, the Washington American's clever outfielder, is one of the few players in whom the umpires have implicit confidence. This was illustrated in the sixth inning of a recent game with New York. Milan was barely touched by a pitched ball and ran down to first. The New York players protested. Evans called Milan back to the plate, and, thinking that Evans was not going to allow his claim of having been hit, Milan started to pick up his bat.

"Did that ball hit you, Clyde?" inquired Umpire Evans.

"Yes; it just touched my shirt," was the reply.

"Well, then, take your base," ordered Evans.

JEFF CAN'T COME BACK.

So Says Billy Delaney, His Old Manager.

Billy Delaney, the veteran manager and the man who made Jeffries the heavyweight champion of the world, does not believe that the big fellow can come back. Although he has not seen Jeffries in his recent workouts, he has watched his movements very closely since the former champion started out on his theatrical tour, and now Delaney has about come to the conclusion that Jeff has bitten off a larger hunk than he can chew.

"Those severe sweating spells are bad for the big fellow, and, in my opinion, they show signs of internal weakness," said Delaney. "Jeffries never can come back and fight if he stiffens up and sweats, fails to respond to rubbing and treatment, as they tell me he does. It's too much to think that a man of his build can stay out of the game for five years and then expect to come on and regain his lost speed. I may be mistaken, but I have had forty years of experience with the best of them, and I can't see where Jeff is an exception.

"This statement coming from me may not be taken seriously by men who know that Jeff and I have split up, but nevertheless I am giving my candid opinion of the big fellow. When I had him he was like a bull, and he never stiffened up. His perspiration was natural, and his excess weight always came off slowly, but surely. He never worried while in training camp. He was a hard man to manage, but what I said generally went, although I used to have many a tough old time trying to make him do as I wanted.

"I have not seen Jeff in training, and I don't want to. We have parted forever."

WELSH FEELS CONFIDENT.

Britain Believes He Will Have No Trouble Defeating McFarland.

Freddie Welsh, England's lightweight champion, is so confident of defeating Packey McFarland of Chicago at the National Sporting club of London the night of May 30 that he has announced his intention of meeting young Josephs, the British welterweight champion, in a bout for the latter's title. As a matter of fact Welsh has already laid claim to the welterweight title for the reason that he whipped Josephs in eleven rounds at Mountain Ash, in Wales, last July. Josephs was not the welterweight champion at that time, and, besides, Welsh won on a foul. Since then Josephs has beaten the recognized title holder, while Welsh has secured clear right to be called lightweight champion, having received Lord Lonsdale's belt.

FUTURE SPORT EVENTS

Syracuse crews will go to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 9.

The annual New York shoot will be held in Syracuse, N. Y., June 7 to 10.

An agreement has been entered into between the Amateur Rowing association of England and the Russian Rowing association.

Cincinnati will have a regatta, including motorboat races, on the Ohio river this summer. Prizes of $2,000 will be given for the motor races.

Nat Butler, the old bicycle racer, will make his first appearance as a professional aviator at the big meet to be held at Atlantic City from June 30 to July 10.

The Harlem regatta committee of New York city has appointed a committee to arrange the handicaps for a senior single sculls handicap event over a one and one-quarter mile course for the May 30 regatta. The scullers will be given a time handicap.

FORTUNES WILL BE BET ON BIG MILL.

As a betting proposition the forthcoming fight between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson will probably be without equal in the history of the sporting world. Counting the wagers that are being made in this country, as well as the hundreds of thousands of dollars that will be staked on the outcome in other quarters of the globe, it is estimated that between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 all told will change hands.

It is indeed good news to learn that Randolph is slowly awaking from a long winter's sleep and gradually getting into line for a strenuous season of baseball. That movement on foot to stamp out organized cheering at one of our leading colleges is causing no end of discussion. Personally I fail to see any harm in having cheer leaders and organized cheering for it inspires athletes to do better work and should continue. Of course there is such a thing as over-doing the thing but I do not think this is so in this case. There is no need of bringing the lecture room to the diamond or gridiron and I hope cheering is allowed to stay.

I understand Quincy High school baseball nine are anxiously awaiting the arrival of Friday, June 3, when they entertain Lynn English High school nine. The reason is because they want to face Ray Davis, the boy who recently upset all school records. I understand that I was elected to the position of official scorer for the Quincy Old Colony baseball club at the last meeting. While it has been said it is impossible for an official scorer to make friends of the players I will strive to be an exception, but I realize the hard looks I am going to get from pitchers for scoring a hit and from fielders for scoring an error. But I'll do the best I can.

It is to be hoped that the executive committee on the Fourth of July celebration will favor the committee on sports and athletics with a substantial appropriation. C. M. Rucker Says Intuition Is Needed For Success In Baseball.

FAST THINKING WHAT COUNTS

Brooklyn's Star Southpaw Twirler Points Out Why Many Players Succeed or Fail When They Get Trial In Fast Company.

No. V.

By NAP RUCKER.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

A young pitcher may come into the big leagues from a minor club with a great record. He may have good curves, fair control and great speed. Many people are under the impression that this is all that is needed to keep the recruit in fast company. This is not so, however. The youngster may possess all these qualities and yet may not be fit for fast company, and he is quickly sent back to where he came from. It is the little things that count the most for the twirler in the big leagues. For instance, here are a few: A pitcher must know how to stand when a runner reaches first. He must learn how to use his shoulders in making a quick movement as if to throw to first when shooting the ball up to the next batter. This little act will serve to make the runner keep on the jump, not knowing just what is going to happen.

base on everything hit in the direction of right field, whether it be foul or fair. And yet how many players ever go over to cover the bag? A twirler who is in the habit of running over to cover first sack whenever a ball is hit in the right field direction is of great value to a team in every game played. The matter of learning to cover the initial sack on the pitch is easy. All the twirler must do when delivering the ball is to slightly incline his body in the direction of first corner, and in the swing with the ball he gets a fairly good start in the desired direction.

Every now and then the fans read of "boneheads" in baseball. The reason for this is that they do not possess a subconscious mind. Many times there are plays on the diamond which the player must as soon as the ball is hit know exactly what to do. His hands and feet must be ready to act with his mind. Many persons call this instinct, but it is nothing else, however, than the inner mind. In this advanced day of the game ball tossers must think and do so rapidly. They must also possess an inner mind. Could a manager have on his team nine such men he would come close to owning a pennant winning team.

How many times have you read about the wonderful curves that some young pitcher has, and just as soon as the season lengthens how little do you hear of him! A pitcher with freak ball and curves does not last very long in the big leagues.

In the first place, throwing that kind of balls all the time is so hard on the muscles of the arm that one cannot stand the strain very long, and, secondly, in time the batters are bound to get wise to curves and then bat them all over the diamond.

My advice to young men who aspire to success as pitchers is to learn how to throw a straight ball with unerring accuracy, either very fast, very slow or halfway between, as the occasion demands.

I've found that my most effective ball is a high, swift, straight shoot, cutting the inside corner of the plate. Of course this should be varied occasionally with a slow teaser, and in a tight pinch a curve or a slow drop will do no harm. Just make it a point to see how many batters make a safe hit off a ball that comes in swift on the level and close to the shoulders.

GRAND RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENT

Waiting List of Nearly One Hundred for Membership

Tuesday was an ideal day for the closing of the season of the Quincy Women's club. The clubhouse was attractive with bouquets of tulips and as the members gathered a spirit of comradeship and good cheer permeated every corner. The rounding out of its first five years finds the club still with, as one member aptly expresses it, "a great capacity for work." There is a strong feeling of neighborliness and the Club is proving a great factor in all movements for the good of the city; identified in philanthropic, educational and civic improvements.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, president called the meeting together and the monthly re ports were given. Among the announcements by chairmen were: Mrs. Tenney for the Arts and Crafts of an exhibit after the meeting of the work of the classes in that department; of Mrs. Conway for the Exchange of the closing of the Exchange at Shaw's store after Saturday May 14 and of a candy sale at the performance of Pinafore May 21; of Mrs. Doble of the operetta of Pinafore and that members could secure seats if they had not already done so.

Mrs. Gurney, Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and Mrs. W. W. Whitcher were elected delegates to attend the Federation meeting at Lynn June 6 and 7. It was hoped also other members would try to attend. Tickets could be had of corresponding secretary.

It was with general regret that the resignation of Mrs. Walter E. Blanchard as treasurer was received, ill health causing her to relinquish her duties. It was voted to send a letter of appreciation of her services and regret at her resignation. It was also voted to ratify any action of the executive board in filling the vacancy.

At the close of the monthly business before taking up the annual reports a pleasing musical program was given, Mrs. Mary Hastings Slade singing a group of songs accompanied at the piano by Miss Weeden of Somerville. She sang Lungi dal Caro bene (Where two that loved are parted) by Secchi, Nymphs et Sylvains, by Bemberg and The Guardian Angel by Liza Lehmann. She sang so delightfully that club members were persistent in their encores, being rewarded by another song equally pleasing.

Mrs. Wilson Marsh spoke of department work and the system of card cataloging and hoped members with a preference for any special department would send their names to her that each might become a working force in the club.

Mrs. Whitcher announced a Visiting Nurses conference at the clubhouse on June 15 when Emily C. Fisher of Norwood and others would speak of the work.

The annual reports will be found under club news. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop moved the reports be accepted and spoke words of appreciation of the work done by club members as shown by the reports. Other votes of appreciation were passed after which the meeting adjourned to enjoy an hour of social chat before separating for the summer. The hostesses Mrs. Frank Emery, Mrs. Ralph Hobbs and Mrs. Charles Cherrington had prepared refreshments of punch, sandwiches and cake. Servers of punch were Mrs. Herbert Pinkham Mrs. Harry W. Reed and Mrs. Mark Read, and those to assist were club members whose names began with P. or R.

AFTER THIRTY-THREE YEARS.

Sister Josephine of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, a daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Bean of Franklin street, is in town today, on a visit to her mother whom she has not seen for 33 years. Sister Josephine joined the order in 1877, and was immediately sent to San Francisco. From there she went to Virginia City, Nevada, thence to Chicago, at all times being attached to the music teaching staff, as she is an accomplished musician. From Chicago she was sent to St. Louis where she was attached to the clerical department of the Mullamphy hospital. She has now been missioned to the St. Mary's Infant Asylum at Dorchester. She arrived in Boston on Tuesday evening and was met by her brothuer, Edward L. Bean, and her nephew, Leo J. McMaster, who by the way she had never before seen. The greeting between brother and sister was an affectionate one, but not more so than was the greeting between mother and daughter today after a lapse of 33 years.

CIVIC CLEANLINESS

Civic League Learn How to Accomplish It

"Civic cleanliness" was the subject on Tuesday evening at the meeting of the Civis League. It was ladies' night and a banquet was served by a Boston caterer at 7 7 o'clock to about fifty ladies and gentlemen, including Mayor Shea, Commissioner Bainbridge, Henry M. Faxon and others.

Edward T. Hartman, secretary of the Massachusetts Civic League, was the speaker of the evening, and as he has been making a study of town improvement for several years, he gave expert advice. Although Quincy came in for considerable critisim, his statement that no city had more natural advantages was encouraging.

Towns, he said, were as varied as individuals. The tendency was to rest on our oars, but Quincy should adopt modern methods and seek the solution of the problem. It was important at the outset to assimulate the immigrants. To get them interested that they may become good citizens. Towns should decide what is to be their ultimate purpose; whether a factory town, a town for foreigners, or a town of beautiful homes. Quincy with its large area might have all these, but factories should be confined to certain sections. The city has no reason to feel discouraged, as it has all the natural advantages to be desired.

RETAIL CLERKS ORGANIZE

Members Will Receive Sick and Death Benefits

The men of the city employed as retail clerks met at Johnson building on Tuesday evening and organized a union. C. W. Hanscom, of the American Federation of Labor, presided, and Frank J. Keinnan, secretary-treasurer of the New England district council told of the advantages of organization. Among these were sick and death benefits. These officers were elected:

President—Richard Morrisson.
First Vice President—Frank Freeman.
Second Vice President—Henry Hurley.
Secretary - Treasurer—Lee Nason.
Advocate Agent—B. R. McQueen.
Recorder—A. C. Bean.
Guardian—Wallace Cady.
Guide—Howard Olson.
Finance Committee and Trustees—John Duggan, W. H. Collins and Arthur DeCoste.

The next meeting will be at A. O. H. hall Tuesday evening, May 17.

Harry's rabbit got out of its hutch and disappeared for a week, and at last crept home without its tail to die. Harry cried bitterly over his dead tailess rabbit.

George tried to comfort him: "Don't cry, Harry dear; don't cry. It's ony the body you see! The tail has gone to heaven."

NEW OFFCE BUILDING

Fore River Company to Erect One of Reenforced Concerte

Work has been commenced by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company making preparations to build a new office building. It will be fully sixty per cent. larger than the present office building, and will be located just north on Howard street. It will be constructed of re-enforced concrete. The original office building was built at East Braintree and was floated down the river and moved to its present site. Since then two wings have been built, yet it is still inadequate to accommodate the various officers connected with the company.

Tonight at the Y. M. C. A., the one-act farce, "Looking for More," and the two-act play "Two Strikes" is the attraction. Lots of hardwork has been put in and a large attendance is expected. These two plays are under the coaching of Mrs. Isabelle Davis and this fact alone guarantees success. The profits of the evening are to be used for equipping a baseball team of older fellows. Don't miss helping the fellows out.

350,000 QUARTS ARE DIVERTED EACH DAY

Farmers Firm In Refusal to Ship Milk to Boston

Boston, May 11.—A co-operative milk depot in Boston, supplied and operated by the producers themselves, was advocated by the farmers who testified before the legislative committee at the hearing in the state house.

These men quoted figures and argued from the experience gained in their years of dairy business that such a scheme would be practicable if the legislature will compel the railroads to treat the milk producers on the same basis as the contractors. It was promised that Boston would get fresher milk than at present.

The farmers are still firm in their refusal to ship any more milk to this city until their demands for a higher price during the summer months has been granted.

On a conservative estimate it is claimed that the New England producers are now diverting into other channels some 350,000 quarts of milk daily.

INSURGENTS AID REGULARS

Railroad Measure Passed In House by Vote of 200 to 126

MANN AMENDMENT DEFEATED

Republicans of Three New England States Vote With Democrats Against Restoring Section Authorizing Mergers—Motion to Recommit Also Beaten—Bill Runs Wild In Senate, Where Many Speeches Are Due

Washington, May 11.—The house passed the administration railroad bill as amended in the committee of the whole by a vote of 200 to 126. The surprisingly heavy vote in support of the measure was due to the fact that all of the insurgents lined up with the house organization at the last moment, as did twelve Democrats.

The final vote of the bill was not taken until Chairman Mann had been defeated in an effort to restore section 12, authorizing mergers under certain limitations, and after the Democrats had failed in their effort to have the bill recommitted to the committee with instructions to strike out the section creating a court of commerce.

The Mann amendment was defeated by a vote of 169 to 160. The defeat of Mann's proposition was due entirely to the votes of the Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island Republicans, nearly all of whom voted with the Democrats. Only a few of the insurgents voted with the Democrats.

After the Mann amendment had been disposed of Representative Adamson (Ga.) moved to recommit the bill to the committee with instructions, the most important feature of the instructions being the elimination of the court of commerce. On this motion Adamson moved the previous question.

Mr. Adamson's motion to recommit to the committee was defeated by a vote of 176 to 157. On this proposition the insurgents were badly split. After the Adamson amendment had been disposed of Mann moved the previous question on the bill as reported from the committee of the whole and the bill was passed by a vote of 200 to 126.

Proposition to Change Form of Oath by King of Great Britain

BILL IS FRAMED BY CABINET

Will Probably Be Favored by Majority of Members of Parliament, Though Opposed by Orangemen and Extreme Protestants—Royalty Will Be Well Represented at Funeral of King Edward—Message to Nation From Alexandra

London, May 11.—John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish parliamentary party, has written to Premier Asquith, reminding him of the favorable expressions, when recently the question was raised in parliament by the Duke of Norfolk, of abolishing from the declaration which the monarch must make before a new parliament of the ancient words "abjuring the Church of Rome" which, Redmond declares, are most offensive to all Catholics.

The cabinet has decided to introduce a bill amending the declaration of the king, wherein he asserts his disbelief in the substantiation and adoration of the virgin and saints, and that he makes declaration without mental reservation or dispensation from the pope or other authority.

For the declaration that the foregoing doctrines and the mass "are superstitious and idolatrous" it is proposed to substitute the words "are contrary to my belief" and to omit reference to the pope.

The majority of the members of parliament are believed to favor these changes, but the Orangemen and Extreme Protestants will oppose them. The Catholics wish the entire declaration abolished, but the law officers of the crown consider such a safeguard against a Catholic monarch necessary.

The bill is expected to receive the unanimous endorsement of the government and become a law.

Extensive preparations are being made at the castle for the accommodation of foreign royal families who will attend the funeral.

It is considered possible here that former President Roosevelt may be the special representative of the United States to King Edward's funeral. France probably will be represented by former President Loubet, although there is talk that President Fallieres may come. Emperor William will be here, as will also the Kings of Greece, Spain, Portugal, Denmark, Norway, Belgium and Bulgaria and the heirs to the thrones of Austria, Italy, Turkey, Sweden and Roumania. Prince Fushimi, now in London, will represent Japan, Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, younger brother of Emperor Nicholas, will represent Russia, while Holland's representative will be Prince Henry.

The country is now beginning to resume its normal life, the king's earnest desire being that, except on the day of the funeral, the national mourning should inflict no unnecessary sacrifices upon the people.

TO LET THE PEOPLE SELECT SENATORS

Bay State House Adopts Resolution by Vote of 116 to 110

Boston, May 11.—By a vote of 116 to 110 the house of representatives adopted the Riley resolution for the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people. The resolution now goes to the senate.

The resolution demands that congress call a constitutional convention which shall amend the constitution so that senators may be elected by popular vote. The convention method obviates the need of having the United States senate vote on the method in which senators shall be elected, because the convention's acts become law upon approval by the states.

Twenty-eight states have already adopted resolutions similar to the Riley order. Only thirty-one are needed to call the convention.

WRITTEN ON OCEAN'S BED

Letter Begs Mikado's Pardon For Loss of Japanese Submarine

Victoria, B. C., May 11.—When Commander Sakuma and his fourteen men were dying under the sea on submarine No. 6, during the Japanese navy maneuvers off Kure, on April 15, the commander wrote a letter to the emperor, begging forgiveness for the loss of the vessel, and commending the officers and men.

The letter was found after the submarine had been raised, and the portions made public were brought here by the steamer Aymeric.

The End In View.

QUINCY-WOMEN'S CLUB.

Following are the annual reports of the officers and chairmen of the Quincy Women's club:

RECORDING SECRETARY.

During the past year the Quincy Women's Club has held fourteen regular meetings and seventeen meetings of the Executive Board, fourteen full meetings and three informal meetings. Only once was there no quorum and that was on a morning when the weather was particularly inclement. The average attendance at the Board meetings has been sixteen. At the Club meetings the attendance has been very large. The musicale crowded the house to overflowing and at even the smallest meeting, when the weather was bad, the attendance was very fair. This shows that a large number of the club members have an active interest in the club and enjoy the meetings. Of course the club has not grown in numbers because the capacity of the club house will not allow it to do so, but it might have increased its membership if there had been room. I think the club has entertained a larger number of guests this year than ever before, showing that our meetings have been attractive to others besides club members.

It is a fact worthy of note that our President, Mrs. Gurney, has presided at every meeting both of the club and of the Board this year.

The growth of the club is not indicated by numbers alone. The club has not only supported all the committees of other years, but has organized these committees into departments and created some new ones. Each department has its own secretary and treasurer, and holds regular meetings; there is also at least one meeting (during the year) (of each department) to which all the members interested in that department are invited. Thus the interest in the department work is spread throughout the club. One new committee this year is that of the custodian. This committee consisting of one member from each ward of the city has made itmuch easier for the club member to obtain guest tickets and has handled all matters pertaining to guests in such a systematic way that it has been more satisfactory to the club.

Another new department formed this year is the Home Economics department. As the chairman of that department will tell in detail what it has done, I will only say that the club is justly pround of this new branch of its work.

Perhaps the largest experiment of the year is the Girls' club formed by the Philanthropy committee. The chairman of that committee, Miss Turner, who conceived the idea of this club and put it into execution, certainly deserves the thanks of the club for this service if for no other.

One of the few things to be regretted this year is the resignation of Miss Turner from the Philanthropy committee because of her long absence from the country..

In comparing the work of this club with that of others round about, one is struck with the fact that this club, although only five years old, has more departments and is doing more work than almost any other club, even when clubs much older are taken into account. This capacity for work shows that the club is a healthy, growing body. Were it not so, it might have the names of all these departments on its year book but the reports of these departments on its year book but the reports of these departments would not show the results which we have no doubt will be shown later in the afternoon.

But "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." The club has been mindfull of this wise saying and has not failed to entertain its members with a program both varied and interesting. Both the State and the General Federation of Women's clubs are urging individual clubs to maintain a high standard for their programs. In consideration of this our club certainly need not blush when recalling the program of the past year. Almost all the names upon it are known throughout the state and some in a much wider area. Many of the meetings have been instructive, some only entertaining, but all interesting. Three deserve special mention—the Musicale in January, the lecture by Henry Turner Bailey, and the reading by Marion Craig Wentworth.

The social teas at the close of some of the meetings have been both enjoyable and helpful. They have been helpful because they make the members known to each other. It has been said frequently that one way in which this club can benefit the city of Quincy is by drawing the women from the different sections of the city together and thus breaking down the Ward boundaries which have been to a certain extent barriers between them. It would seem, therefore, that anything which would promote social intercourse in this club would be but carrying out the ideal with which it was started, viz. that it become an organized centre for united thought and action in social, literary and humanitarian work.

We have spoken of the social and literary side. That the humanitarian side has not been forgotten is shown not only by our department work but also by the vote of the whole club to give $300 to build a shack at the Tuberculosis camp. The club was happy in receiving two very generous gifts towards this sum—$100 from Mrs. W. Morton and $106 from Miss Turner from a fund which she held in trust.

During the five years of its existence the club has grown very rapidly and its work has branched out in all directions. This of course has given rise to new conditions. It seemed wise therefore this year to revise the By-Laws to fit these conditions. This has lately been done and the new By-Laws will soon be in the hands of the members.

The club has this year turned two mile stones in its life—it has completed its fifth year and is about to renew the lease which gives to it this beautiful club home; and it is also about to join a still larger body of workers—the General Federation of Women's Clubs. The renewal of the lease makes one feel that our past must have in a measure at least fulfilled the expectations of the Brackett Charitable Trust and justified their faith in us; and the joining the General Federation gives us the hope that our future, while it may not have many more opportunities for usefulness than we already have, yet it may by this means so widen our horizon that we shall get broader views because we have a larger field of vision.

Isabella Foote Pinkham.

CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

During the past year, the actual work devolving upon this office has necessitated the writing of forty letters notifying members on the waiting list of an opportunity to qualify thirty-five letters of invitation to officers of other clubs for Reciprocity Day, forty letters of varying import, conveying official thanks, or sympathy, or a record of business ,this making 115 letters in all; dating and addressing 300 printed postals for executive board meetings, writing twenty-five postals announcing the first club meeting of the season to new members; compiling membership list and club notes for the year book; distributing year books to members at the first club meeting, and later sending 200 by mail; making out and mailing 175 yearly bills; writing fourteen articles for the Boston Saturday Transcript, two articles for Quincy Daily Ledger; filing and recording 81 applications for membership and presenting same to executive board to be voted upon. The mailing list as it now stands numbers 81, and beside these sixteen names have been used to fill vacancies, the list having included 97 names in all. The fact that members who sent in applications last year in March and April were able

NOW IS THE TIME

To Continue Improvements About Public Library

Editor Daily Ledger:

The whole people of Quincy are now thoroughly in earnest, and alive with the desire to put our city in the front rank of a go-ahead, up-to-date policy of improving in every way for the future.

The City Council have voted $4500, the assessed value of the property of the Insurance Company, showing a very generous disposition on their part to in some way help beautify the Public Library grounds that the Crane family have so lavishly and liberally bestowed upon us.

Now, I am positive that the Insurance Company do not wish to sell, as they have occupied that location from very first, and their local income is but a very small part of their business. Still their directors are very loyal to our city, and I believe will make some sacrifice.

I feel that $4,500 will not be considered sufficient, but let the directors and "City Fathers" get together, the sooner the better, and make some arrangement whereby we can get the land for that amount, giving the company a reasonable time to move off the building, which, of course, is of no use to us.

The entire population of our city are interested in our magnificent Library, watching the accessions to its grounds from time to time, making one of the most beautiful spots in any town that I know of.

MUST HAVE THAT CORNER

So Said Mr. Hartman at Civic League Banquet

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

At a meeting of the Civic League of Quincy last evening, by a body of representative ladies and gentlemen, attention was called in a most forceful manner to the effort now being made by the city to purchase the corner lot owned by the Quincy Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Mr. Hartman, a stranger in Quincy paid a high tribute to the beauty of the Library ,and grounds about it, and emphasized the feeling expressed by all who pass this point that the city MUST HAVE THAT CORNER, and so complete the highly artistic egect of an already splendid piece of public property.

I would urge ,through your paper that the directors of the Quincy Mutual Co. recognize the large expression of public approval already evidenced ,and the apparent readiness of the city authorities to do the right thing by cooperating at once in the largest way possible for the sake of the thing itself and for the civic pride which is daily growing in us all.

Let the Quincy Mutual and the city get together immediately and they will receive the earnest approval and thanks of all public spirited citizens.

Ernest G. Gay.

STRAWBERRY POP.

A strawberry pop was the attraction at the vestry of the Wollaston Methodist church on Tuesday evening and was attended by a large number. Small tables prettily decorated were distributed through the vestry where strawberries, ice cream and other dainties were served by the following committee of young ladies: Miss Nettie Crittenden, chairman, Miss Mary Cleveland, Miss Bessie Wilbur, Miss Florence Bennett, Miss Augusta Wilbur and Miss Bertha Teed. The entertainment in charge of Mrs. George Crothers, consisted of readings by Miss May of Boston and vocal solos by Orville Estes of Wollaston. At intervals during the evening selections by Estes' orchestra were enjoyed.

TODAY'S COURT.

—It may not be generally known that census enumerators are subject to a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment if they reveal any of the secrets confided to their keeping. Notwithstanding this severe penalty, a number of women dared take the risk.—Athol Chroncle.

By the aid of the stereopticon, Mr. Hartman showed views of dumps in different cities, and included some at Atlantic, Wollaston and Quincy, pointing out what we might come to. He also showed changes accomplished. Unregulated dumps, he said was one of Quincy's bad features. Boston, even in its Back Bay section, also has many of these nuisances.

Quincy should make more rapid progress in securing permanent sidewalks. Put them in first where most needed.

Children should be enlisted to help in the work of keeping the streets clean, and when interested, their influence will reach out to the homes. "Clean-up day" has become epidemic, and much is being accomplished. He was glad to see the Women's Clubs interested. The home garden movement was also commendable, as in Cleveland.

Quincy should develop a civic centre, and it had ideal possibilities about the Thomas Crane Public Library. It was unfortunate that the building was not nearer the centre of the lot, but that little building at the corner of Coddington street should first be removed. The new Court House should be in this vicinity, and Quincy may soon need a new City Hall. A picture of the Nightingale corner was shown which he said should be obliterated. Some streets should be laid out anew before Quincy became a real city.

Then Quincy should have some new railroad stations. Should I be deposited late at night at the Quincy Adams station, and told I must live nearby, I believe I should commit suicide. The situation was not much better at West Quincy, and the other stations were nothing to be proud of. Ideal and bad depot surroundings were shown in other cities. Trees should be developed in the city, and wires should be buried.

Public buildings have an influence and it is important that they be attractive. There was no excuse for conditions as they exist in the rear of the High school, or in the rear of the Coddington school, which were pictured. Parks, playgrounds and home gardens should be developed.

Get after the billboards. They breed dirt, as well as mar the landscape. One at Quincy Adams was shown. As Quincy is successful in all these improvements it will become bigger and better, and more beautiful and healthier.

COMMITTEES NAMED.

Commissioner Bainbridge was invited to say a few words on sidewalks. He favored tar concrete walks which would cost without edgestone 50 to 60 cents per foot.

Upon motion of W. G. Shaw the following committee was appointed to act with the Civic Betterment committee of the Quincy Women's Club in a crusade against dumps, unsightly and unhealthy places: Frank F. Prescott, George A. Sidelinger, Robert E. Foy and C. N. Godfrey.

Upon motion of H. M. Faxon it was voted that a committee of five be appointed to cooperate with our city government in developing a plan for permanent sidewalk construction. The committee includes Frank W. Crane, Eugene R. Stone, Henry M. Faxon, H. G. Smith and George Taylor.

Rev. Dr. Hardy endorsed the address of the speaker of the evening and urged the adoption of a general plan for city development, and suggested that the council of the league take up the work. It was so voted, and the meeting adjourned.

to enter the club at once, and that those who have sent applications this year in March and April will have to wait two years, and perhaps three, for an opportunity to enter, seems to me a very forceful argument that interest in the club is at a higher point today than ever before. In former years, the short waiting list has made it possible for members to drop out one year and return the next if they chose, by simply giving notice that they wished to re-enter. This has given rise to the impression that former members take precedence of those on the waiting list in entering the club; but the rule has never been so and it will be necessary for members resigning this year to have their names put upon the waiting list at once, if they have any idea they may wish to resume membership within three years. Because the greatest philanthropy of the club work is the club itself, the bringing together of representative women from all parts of the city, and because it is impossible to enlarge the membership with the present accommodations, it would seem that the waiting list members should receive special privileges not accorded to others, as has been begun during the past year, and that they should be made to feel, in every way possible, an incorporate part of this great work.

Irene Chipman Tirrell.

ART AND LITERATURE.

Our class of six lessons in Current Events with one hundred and thirty-one members, began Thursday, November 11, 1909, and ended April 14, 1910, with a social hour and reception to Mrs. Ward.

November nineteenth we gave a "Beatrice Herford" recital at First church chapel to a large audience, which was a social and financial success.

Jan. 12th was Gentlemen's night at the club house, free to members with friends at which Mr. Thomas A. Watson of Braintree entertained with a Shakespearean reading and by whose generosity we were enabled to donate tewnty-five dollars to the Pond Home for the Aged.

April twelfth, our regular club date, a "Paul Laurence Dunbar" recital was given at the club house by Miss Mildred Sheldon Bass assisted by the Misses Turner in negro melodies with banjo accompaniment.

Our committee also arranged for three groups of members to visit the Art Museum, Boston, and contributed five dollars toward the expense of the Children's Easter party and a small sum for the Art collection for the Quincy schools.

All our work has proved financially successful and the committee have a small balance for another season.

Elsie Russell Bickford, Chairman.

ARTS AND CRAFTS.

We women fully realize that the daily routine of our lives is marked out for us by circumstances and environment, but we realize as well that with judicious planning a certain margin of time may be secured for our personal use.

Howard Griggs assures us that this "margin of time to spend as we please is a sacred opportunity and becomes the chance to mutliply the capital on which we do the business of life."

The existence of this department and its claim for attention and cooperation is justified by the fact that it stands for a wise use of that precious margin of time. Our first word is one of sincere appreciation of the loyalty and faithfulness of the committee. No chairman ever had better support or enjoyed more congenial comradeship.

Mrs. Peirce and Mrs. Conway early found it necessary to resign. Later unusual demands made it expedient to augment the committee and our personnel now comprises in addition to names in year book Mrs. Jesse I. Litchfield, Mrs. Warren S. Anderson and Mrs. Carroll E. Bates.

The management of classes in various branches of handicraft has been the primary work of this committee.

During the year there have been courses in leather, brass, Irish crochet and embroidery, jewelry, Stenciling, two in millinery, two in basketry and three in dressmaking.

The patronage has come a little too largely from one section of the city, but we trust through exhibitions to secure a more wide-spread interest in our class work next year.

Under the efficient management of Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Homer the Arts and Crafts Exchange sold for consignors $100 worth of articles of handicraft.

It became evident that in spring woman's fancy strongly turns to thoughts of dress and it was deemed expedient to confine the operations of this department to the three months preceding Christmas.

Mrs. Beattie and Miss Wilde have been added to the committee and we bespeak for the exchange your hearty support next year.

When the young women's club was formed it naturally fell within the province of our committee to attend to classes. On the occasion of the first house capacity as well as teaching capacity were taxed to the limit but the enterprise soon assumed normal conditions and the attendance and work of the thirty interested young women has been commendable.

Six members of our committee devoted themselves untiringly to this evening work during four months. The teaching force was enlarged by several non-members and we take this occasion to publicly express our gratitude fr their generous assistance. An exhibition has been held each month in Art and Craft room.

Our financial report must open with a word of thanks to our treasurer, Mrs. F. F. Prescott, whose office has been no sinecure. It would gratify us to report a much larger sum devoted to philanthropic work. The credit for the little attainment we have made in this line lies with those who have sustained the classes and we ask you to feel a personal pride in the work accomplished.

Twenty-five dollars has been contributed toward the salary of visiting nurse. Ten dollars for the purchase of perennial shrubs and plants for club house grounds.

Four dollars to aid in defraying expense of telephone at Day Nursery.

One dollar to help secure school pictures.

But our chef-d'oeuvre has been the rehabilitation of the tea room, which we invite you to enjoy, with us in its new dress for the first time today.

Your support next year will insure further improvements of a similar nature.

Eleven dollars still remains to our credit with the club treasurer.

Caroline E. Tenney, Chairman.

CIVIC BETTERMENT.

The Civic Betterment committee has tried to work along several lines, believing that there are opportunities for improvement in many departments of our city life. The clubhouse grounds were put into good condition early last spring and cared for during the summer. The grounds around the Atlantic station, were graded, good paths made, trees and shrubs planted; these were also kept in good order. Unsuccessful efforts were made last summer to secure a bath house at Merrymount park. This is much needed, and we hope sometime to see it an accomplished fact. One of our members living near, kindly permitted some of the boys to use her basement. Frequently there would be eighteen or twenty piles of garments left while their owners were enjoying the cooling water of Black creek. In fact she has assured us, one pair of trunks have waited on a nail all winter to be reclaimed when summer comes again, her only stipulation and regulations were "No abuse or bad language."

During August ,our committtee cooperated with the Y. M. C. A. in equipping a playground in the rear of their building for children from five to twelve years of age. Mr. Clee, the boys' secretary acted as supervisor while the Civic Betterment committee secured the assistance of several ladies and students of physical training who kindly gave of their time to tell stories, play games, or teach the girls a few simple dances. The Association permitted the use of the gymnasium, this was much enjoyed particularly on rainy or very warm mornings. This playground work was started as an object lesson to show the need of supervised playgrounds throughout our city. It was a grand success from the start. The need and popularity of this enterprise can best be shown by a few figures—Total number of children attending 2,370—averaging about 100 daily attendance. In the fall the noted $25,000.00 Y. M. C. A. campaign was instituted. Our committee, realizing that the association is carrying on a great Civic work considered it wise to contribute $15.00 toward this fund. On November twenty-sixth was held the annual Quincy assembly. We feel that much of the success of this was due to the kind and efficient assistance of Mrs. Jameson, Mrs. Hunting, Mrs. Price and other willing helpers.

We would also mention another, who in the Assembly in the work for the Tuberculosis camp ,and in every line in which his assistance was asked, gave cheerfully, of time, influence and money. We, as well as the city at large, mourn a friend and helper in the death of Mr. Wadsworth.

Our next large effort was in December, when we carried on the sale of the Red Cross Christmas stamps. We wish to again extend our thanks for assistance to the newspapers, post office officials, the street railway ,the dealers and many ladies who contributed much of their time during the busy weeks before Christmas, 172 post cards and 32,777 stamps were sold, $84.09 was paid to the National Red Cross society and $256.23 to our treasurer, who in the name of the Quincy Women's club forwarded it to the local Tuberculosis Association. This work has been helped by us whenever possible. Ten dollars has been given toward the $300.00 pledged by the club, for a shack. A little assistance has been given in preparing a list of future contributors. Just here, in passing it might not be out of order to state that seven of the committee are giving much time in the endeavor to still further help this cause. They are practising for "Pinafore," a not unfamiliar name at present. During the year, at intervals, varying in length we have consulted the Commissioner of Public Works in regard to waste receptacles. The gentlemen assures us that these are at last really on their way and soon we hope to see them performing their useful offices in the different sections of our city. Mr. Bainbridge has also agreed to have the trees on Coddington street, which have died, replaced. He says that as the Women's club was kind enought to give all the trees on the boulevard, he thinks it only courteous for the city to care for them. For this we are grateful.

On February eighth, Mr. Bailey was secured for Civic Betterment afternoon, his address, "A More Beautiful Quincy," was both helpful and entertaining. As this was illustrated by the stereopticon, we engaged a lantern and invited the club to meet at the chapel of First church. The system of school savings which was inaugurated by the preceding committee is in a very flourishing condition. The Superintendent of Schools tells us that he regards it as a very important part of the educational system. We co-operated with the Civic league in the appointment of the Playground committee of One Hundred, which has been and still is endeavoring to secure an appropriation of two playgrounds in different sections of the city. Much good may often be done by joining forces "In union there is strength." This evening at a meeting of the Civic League, the sidewalk problem and a Municipal cleaning day are to be discussed and it is expected some definite plans may be made. Mr. Edward T. Hartman Secretary of the Massachusetts Civic League will speak on "Civic Cleanliness." Our committee feel greatly honored that we have been invited to attend this meeting and partake of the banquet preceding.

Do you blame us for believing in co-operation? For the next few weeks the Travelling Health Library, consisting of thirty-nine books, pamphlets, and thirty-five pictures will be on exhibition at the Public Library. You are all cordially invited to examine this collection. The care of the club house grounds has again been committed to us. If any club members or friends have any shrubs or plants which they are willing to give to us, we shall be delighted to accept them. Also gifts of money will be much appreciated, for we have several plans for the summer which will require funds in order that they may be successfully carried out. This shows a part of our work. Much has been attempted, a little has been accomplished. More is hoped for, in the coming year. We feel that what has been done has prospered in that it is the "Lord's work and is pleasing in His eyes." In our committee as in all the others, each is striving to obey the precept of the Divine Master, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as theyself." When this shall become universal throughout our city, from the highest to the lowest, the richest to the poorest, then of Quincy will it be true, "that the wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the deserts shall rejoice and blossom as the rose."

Annie E. Shaw, Chairman.

CUSTODIAN.

The number of guests present through the year have been 294, the largest number at any meeting was at the musical, Jan. 25 when 86 were present. The receipts for the year have been $72.50 of this $4.00 was in fines, and $68.50 guest ticket money. The largest amount taken at any meeting was at the musicale when $17.00 was taken at the door.

Mrs. E. E. Jameson, Chairman.

EDUCATION.

What the Education committee has aimed to do.

To bring the parents, teachers and superintendent of schools together and foster the spirit of cooperation. For this purpose a reception was given at the club house last October.

To urge the establisring and maintanence of a lunch counter at the High school, where a simple, wholesome, inexpensive lunch might be served to the pupils. This lunch counter will be installed in the High school during the summer months.

To interest the citizens of Quincy in establishing public playgrounds. With this hope in mind, the Education committee invited Mr. Thomas Auley of the Massachusetts Civic League to come to our city to speak, incuring the expense of the speaker, for the sake of sowing the seed, trusting that the wind of popular sentiment would blow it far enough to secure a good harvest.

We have funds available for our work of $250. This amount was raised from two entertainments,—The Living Picture Entertainment and the May Festival, given Friday evening, April 29th and Saturday afternoon, April 30th.

Seeds for one thousand Home Gardens have been distributed throughout this city to school children. It is the purpose of this committee to supervise this garden work. The supervisors are to be Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Miss Mary Griffin and Miss Florence R. Faxon. They will be paid by the hour and their travelling espenses will also be paid.

Besides the garden work this committee intends to support a teacher of physical training for the Girls' club. She will give lessons in swimming, gymnastics best fitted for hot weather, and games,— most of the work to be done out of doors. Basketry may be taught on very hot days.

The outline of the summer work is not complete but there will probably be a session of six weeks. There will be an exhibit of vegetables and flowers from the Home Gardens in August. Prizes in money will be awarded for the best exhibits. The exhibition will probably be held in City Council chambers and the public will be invited to inspect the exhibit.

Mrs. John D. Mackay, Chairman.

HOME ECONOMICS COMMITTEE.

As this is the first year of this committee, our work is all in its infancy and therefore many of our plans are in a very immature state. We have nevertheless a child by adoption of which we have reason to be proud, and that is the woman's exchange, which has got beyond its infancy and is able to stand alone as a sub-committee under this committee.

The Woman's exchange has been open every afternoon of the regular club meetings and every Saturday afternoon since January 15th, at Mr. W. G. Shaw's store. Thanks are due to Mrs. Conway and Miss Hatch, chairman and treasurer of the woman's exchange who by their untiring labors have placed it where it is. Very few can realize the amount of time and energy expended by these two women in this work for they have been on hand early and staid late, regardless of what the weather might be, and to them must be given the credit for the success of the exchange.

A lecture under the auspices of this committe was givn by Mrs. Mary J. Linclon before the club on November 23, the subject was "The simplicity of Living."

A series of lectures was arranged to begiven at the club house Friday afternoons during November and December. There were three lectures given in Novembr but on account of the enforced absence of the lecturer the other two were postponed until January 7th and 14th. $14.92 was netted from these lectures.

On Tuesday afternoon March 29th, a meeting in the interests of the Consumers League was held at the club house under the direction of this committee. A cordial invitation was given through the press and the churches to all Quincy women to be present at this meeting. It is to be regretted that only a small number responded.

Miss Elizabeth Houghton a representative from the league told very interestingly of its history, its growth the work it is doing at the present time and its hopes for the future. A large assortment of dainty underwear shirt waists, kimonas, dresses and other articles bearing the label of the National Consumers League was displayed and much admired. This label goes on goods means that they are made in clean and safe work shops with good sanitary conditions; that no child labor is employed in making them; that no work is sent out from factories, and that the laborers have proper working hours.

Miss Houghton explained that it is no guarantee that goods are made under right conditions because they come from exclusive shops or because they re high priced, well made and dainty, or because the merchant or head of the department has seen and vouched for the manufacturers work rooms. The Consumers League label alone is a sure guarantee that an article is made under right conditions. It is easy for shoppers to find labeled goods; several of the leading stores in Boston carry a fair assortment and many others have one or more lines. Now what can we do to help this good wark which is for the protection of us all. By asking for these labeled goods; and by joining the league, which may be done in groups of four each paying 25 cents, in groups of two each pying 50 cents, or alone and paying $1.

This comittee has interested itself in looking into the work of the inspectors of markets and food shops in Quincy. Some of the facts gathered are as follows. The state employs mill inspectors, food inspectors and assistant inspectors. The food inspectors are obliged to pass a civil service examination but the assistants are not, and are often unqualified for the work. Many of the assistat inspectors are employed in the packing houses and their duties are mainly putting labels on the meat to guarantee the weight.

The state inspectors make unannounced visits to the groceries and markets, perhaps inspecting our local markets two or three times a year. They investigate the condition of the cellar, ice box, and the scrap box. The scrap boxes must be metalic. The sweet fat scraps are sold to the makers of renovated butter, the rancid to the soap makers. The city of Quincy has a market inspector who is suposed to give about two half days weekly to this work but the salary is meagre so the work accomplished is most inadequate to what should be done. There is no paid milk inspector although one of the local druggists makes milk tests when required. These tests are to ascertain the percentage of solids and fats. Each town in Mass. has its own laws as to standards. Last winter an attempt was made to put milk under the control of the Board of Health. The bill met with much opposition and although recommended by the Governor was defeated. Public opinion was aroused and in time peple will demand clan milk and milk from cows free from tuberculosis and produced under sanitary conditions. At present there are but two herds of cows in this city which have been tested and found free from tuberculosis, there may be others, but the farmers have not paid to have the test made. We have made a small beginning in looking into the condition of some of the local markets but have not done enough to pass judgment upon them, the ones visited have been of the better class and but few of the stores which cater to the poorer people have been visited.

It is from the customers that the demand for better conditions must come, and this demand must be made by the intelligent women who, are not only able to point out the faults of the present system but must know themselves what a truly sanitary market or shop is, and this she can only know by doing her own marketing in person, and not by telephone or by ordering from the clerk who calls much can be done by tactful criticism, when unclean methods are found, and by praising where good conditions exist and by patronizing the most sanitary kept stores, thereby forcing the poorly kept places to raise their standards. There should be a well paid inspector, preferably a woman who thoroughly understands what the requirements are for a sanitary grocery or market. "A sanitary grocery or market is one where fruit and vegetables to be eaten raw or from the hand are not exposed to, the contaminating influence of dust, flies or other filth, where the fruit and vegetables are not exposed upon th side walk unprotected, nor placed where they will be polluted by dust and dirt and passing dogs; and where if the vegetables are to be kept sprinkled, impure water is not usd for the purpose." No foods which can not be washed should be exposed on the counters or shelves except in glass cass. Where the refrigerators are clean and sanitary, not musty and slimy.

We ask for the co-operation of every member of this club in this effort to protect our food supplies for it means health for our families, which means more comfort and happiness for us all.

Mary L. Wade, Chairman.

HOSPITALITY.

The work of the Hospitality Committee is so obvious to you all as you come to each meeting that there is little to report. During the year we have provided refreshments for seven afternoons. An effort has been made to have all the club members assist once, and beginning with the As we have gone straight through to the R's. These members have served at the teas and also given cake, sandwiches, and money. From the money contributed a large double boiler has been purchased. Thus making it possible to serve coffee at one of the largest meetings of season. The balance of the money will be spent for something equally necessary. The Treasurer's budget for the year appropriated for our use $60.00, but we ae glad to say that we have used on'y $41.00.

Alce K. Prescott Low, Chairman.

HOUSE COMMITTEE.

As the report of the House committee is practically embodied in that of the Treasurer there remains but little to add. There are however a few things which I take pleasure in mentioning. First, the Education room which has been redecorated and refurnished to some extent, under the supervision of the chairman and ex-chairman of the Education committee, the chairman of the House committee and Miss Elizabeth Johnson.

The cost to the club was $50.35 and we are greatly indebted to Miss Elizabeth Johnson for the contribution of a fine library table, the recovering of a rocker, a handsome new curtain for the bookcase, coverings for the box seats and two sofa pillows all of which add much to the improved conditions of the room.

A bulletin board was given the club by Mrs. Charles Bickford and is foud very useful in posting announcements of various meetings of committees and organizations.

By the generosity of two of our club members we are to have a much needed article added to our possessions, which would have been placed in position for this meeting had it not been deemed wise, in view of the long vacation and possible alterations in the audience room, to defer the happy occasion until the opening of the club meetings in the autumn. The recommendations to the club are some adequate system of ventilation and the insurance on club furnishings in the club house.

Eliza J. Davis, Chairman.

MUSIC COMMITTEE.

The duties of the Music Committee are to provide music for every club afternoon, to furnish talent for the annual musicale and to care for the piano. This year, the committee consists of fourteen ladies of well known musical ability, and at our first meeting, we decided upon a division of labor, each one of the members taking charge of one afternoon, so that no one would be unduly burdened. Every lady has cheerfully and faithfully performed her task. We have furnished music for each date of the year's program, with one exception—the afternoon of April 12, when Mrs. Bickford, chairman of the Art and Literature Committee supplied her own music for the program—the Misses Turner who so charmingly sang negro melodies, to banjo accompaniment.

The music has been of various kinds, and we have striven to maintain the high standard of our former years. We have had two orchestras, the Y. M. C. A. accompanied by Mrs. John F. Hunt and the Alexander Trio, each of whose work was most enjoyable, two piano soloists, Mrs. Joseph S. Evans and Miss Fannie Story, these ladies brilliant interpretations of Schuman, Straus and Brakins, were appreciated, and nine vocal soloists, Mrs. Stoddard, of Duxbury, Miss Poore of Wollaston, Miss Wright of Milton, Mrs. Wonson of Gloucester, Miss Ellis of Braintree, Mrs. Slade of Quincy, Mrs. Moore and Miss Coe of our own committee and Mr. Carlton Beal of Braintree.

These artists have greatly contributed t o the enjoyment of the club year. Thanks are most cordially extended to our accompanists, Mrs. Sampson and Mrs. Pfaffman, and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith for their efficient work during the season.

The Annual Musicale still lingers in our memory, an afternoon of pleasure, given by the highest talent, The Caroline Belcher string quartette and Miss Elsie Leighton Livermore, original monologist. Club members and guests were present in large numbers and the seating capacity of the club house was quite inadequate to comfortably accommodate the throng. We suggest that an addition be made to our yearly appropriation that we may be able to secure a place suitable for the large audience which always assembles on this occasion.

Our appropriation is exceedingly small, and we would be quite unable to perform our duties were it not for the splendid musical talent within the club and the kindness of the musical friends of the committee. We owe them, club members and friends, a deep debt of gratitude.

Our most ambitious work of the year is still incomplete, but it promises to be both pleasurable and financially successful. The production of the operetta, "H. M. S. Pinafore," which will be given by club members in Music hall, Saturday afternoon, May 21st, the proceeds to go toward fulfilling the pledge of the club, to raise $300.00 for the purpose of erecting a sleeping shack in our Fresh Air Camp.

The progress of our attempt has been reported from time to time at our club meetings since the middle of February, when we began active work A brief summary may be interesting. Our cast and chorus with one exception is composed entirely of club members or those on the waiting list. This chorus has been trained by Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and Mrs. John G. Worster, our coach is Mr. J. R. Pitman, late stage director of the old Boston Museum, and the Castle Square Theatre, the scenery was originally painted for the production of "Pinafore" in the Bijou Theatre; our costumes, many of them made to order, are from Wolff, Fording and Co., the piano used is from the Miller Piano rooms. Neither time nor expense has been spared to make this performance a success in every detail.

We have issued eight hundred tickets (800,) four hundred and seventy (470,) reserved seats, and three hundred and thirty (330,) admission tickets. The advance sale has been very satisfactory.

Henrietta F. Doble, Chairman.

PROGRAM.

Although there are six meetings for which the Program committee is responsible in some small degree, there are only three meetings for which it actually provides except the children's party. The report of the postal cards relating to the subjects in which the members of the club were most interested and anxious to work for gave a very small percentage of those desiring to work for the program. For this reason the committee thought best to ask the heads of departments to help out. With their advice and assistance; what otherwise might have been a small and weak committee was made a committee easily met, after meetings of the board and our thanks are due to their cooperation.

The three meetings for which the Program committee was directly responsible may be sumed up as one which gave a backward glance, one which looked forward, and one which looked about us to see if on our own horizon there was not some new thing.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, in her "Personal Reminiscences of Distinguished People," went back to her childhood and described how Longfellow, Thoreau and others of the Golden Age in Boston looked to a girl in her teens. Mrs. Hall has a quaint, old fashioned personality and gave us a glimpse into the past, though she did not speak at all as was expected by the committee, on modern men and women of note and character.

In the play, "Votes for Women," by Elizabeth Robins, we got a very good idea of the reasons which make the suffrage a matter of intense interest in England, and I think we all felt, on that day that prosper one must since one cause was so just and above all that we should not try to impede the wheels of progress; even if we work for it in our own very different way. The present century has been called The Woman's Century. Under the magic power of Mrs. Marion Craig Wentworth's voice, and the shafts of Elizabeth Robin's satire many of our ramparts went down, and we women were not the only ones convinced or at least made ready to listen to more.

Mrs. Wentworth had the exclusive right to read the play in this country.

Ellen Key is a significant, if little known figure on our horizon. Madame Amalie Von Ende gave a very sympathetic and interesting account of this very thoughtful and original woman.

Ellen Key stands for all that is original and inspiring in education, art, the rearing of families, and the position of woman.

She is neither very radical, nor is she hampered by the formal education of the schools. As she is a well known figure who has to be reckoned with in Europe, and is beginning to be much talked of here we thought that we should know something of her. Ellen Key's book, "The Century of the Child" is the only one so far translated into English. Madame Von Ende spoke at some length of another book of hers, "Personality and Beauty" which we may hope to see in English before long.

I wish to thank the Music committee, for delightful co-operation, the Arts and Literature committee for money and help given for the Children's party, March 24, and all the other heads of Committees for encouragement, help and advice. The Children's party was an extra afternoon where the children and little friends of members were invited. Because of the tardiness of the story teller the plans for the program were somewhat interfered with, but the children seemed to have a good time. Miss Gertrude Greene of the South End House as an Arabian story teller, was ably assisted by Mr. Bruce Saville as the Moorish servant. The refreshments were served in small baskets and a number of favors were given out. Thanks are especially due on this occasion to the pianist and those who were here to help in serving and amusing the children.

Clara C. Park, Chairman.

VISITING NURSE COMMITTEE.

A report from the Visiting Nurse committee must of necessity be largely statistical, and while statistics are not attractive, it may be well to resort to figures to make the report as comprehensive as numbers will allow.

Visits have been made during the past year to the number of one thousand and four, at a cost of approximately fifty cents each. The patients treated number two hundred and twenty-four, of this number one hundred and twenty-one have paid as their means have allowed, while the remainder, less than half have been treated free. The calls were made upon one hundred and six requests from physicians. The financial statement is as follows:

Cash on hand May 1909	$244.50
Quincy Women's Club	210.30
Contributions	251.00
From pay patients	140.35
Interest	9.98
	$856.13

Disbursements.

Salary	$500.04
Car fare	47.60
Incidentals	25.08	572.72
Cash on hand May 1910		$283.41

The contributions above referred to were generously subscribed by Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett, Unity Circle King's Daughters, Quincy Catholic club, The Arts and Crafts committee, Mrs. Charles A. Spear, Mrs. W. B. Rice, Mrs. Harry L. Rice, Mrs. Theophilus King, Mrs. George W. Morton, Mrs. Henry Faxon, Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Rev. Father Coan, Mrs. Herbert Lawton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Price, Mrs. James H. Stetson, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. J. H. Anderson, Mrs. Herbert T. Whitman, Mrs. William Alden and Mrs. Everett Crane.

These generous contributions and the co-operation of the medical profession have enabled your committee to increase the scope of the work; and while there is but one nurse in a territory where there should be at least four, it is, gratifying to report a growing interest. It is not a far cry from the moderately well-to-do to the absolutely needy and there are many families we fain would classify as objects of charity to whom, in case of sickness, fabrics of any kind would be most welcome.

To relieve this need which is revealed most frequently to our nurse, we appeal to you for bedding, underclothing and night dresses, partially worn sheets, pillow slips and in fact any washables. You will appreciate our urgent need when you know that our present stock is reduced to but three shirts, three bands, three cotton slips, three night-dresses, one and one half blankets and a small amount of soap. While grateful acknowledgment is made for donations to the Diet closet, recently installed as part of our equipment we still need delicacies for the invalid. We are at present most plentifully supplied with Jellies, but seasonable suggestions would be Beef extract, malted milk, Grape juice and Infant food's.

It should be remembered that the services of our visiting nurse are available to all and like all public utilities this department of our club work is beneficial to the community only in proportion to the extent of its use. It is to be regretted that anyone should feel pauperized in accepting the services of a visiting nurse, when such service is purely professional and intended for all, regardless of social or financial position.

Death, disease and honest poverty are no disgrace; but it is nothing less than sin to let false pride deny relief to the sick and suffering.

Let a recent experience illustrate; A member of a family well-to-do was taken suddenly ill, a trained nurse engaged but delayed, immediate help was needed but the suggestion of calling our Visiting Nurse was met with the remark "Why she is for the poor people and if she were seen coming here what would the neighbors think."

Such a remark would be as reasonable if applied to a minister of the Gospel or to a Physician.

Another case more in the spirit of our work was where a wealthy resident under similar circumstances sent immediately for our nurse and in grateful apreciation of her services contributed to our fund.

It is to be hoped that the City of Quincy will profit by the experience of some of our sister cities and make Visiting Nurses a city institution. The extension of our work to include the public schools was the result of an address to our Club by Dr. Margaret Carley supervisor of Visiting Nurses for the City of Boston where the department is a part of the public school system.

After five years experience we appreciate the importance of the work in Quincy and plans are now under way for its extension. A revision of our rules to conform to the best practice, an entertainment in the early fall for funds, and a conference of Visiting Nurses Associations to be held in this club house June the fifteenth which conference will be addressed by Miss Emily C. Fisher, and representatives of the local profession to all of which we commend your interest and support.

Anna Elizabeth Whitcher,
Chairman.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

You have heard from the reports read this afternoon, of the activities of the various departments of the Club, the records of its meetings and its finances. It remains for your president to report on the general conditions prevailing in the club. This fifth year of our existence is in some respects, a notable one, in that it marks the rounding out of the first period of our life as an organization. The Quincy Women's Club was in the minds of many of its members, as well as to the outside world, an experiment. Something that might grow and flourish, or, as easily, dwindle and sink into obscurity or even cease to exist. Now at the expiration of the first lease of this building, we note, with great satisfaction, that it has passed its experimental stage, and as we enter upon our second tenure of these premises, we may rightly claim that we are doing work that is most helpful to our City, our schools, our young people and children, and that we, ourselves, are growing toward higher standards of intellectual and social life.

The important new lines of work, this year have been, as you know, the opening of a Playground, and the formation of the Young Women's Club. We are assured that the playgrounds will be continued.

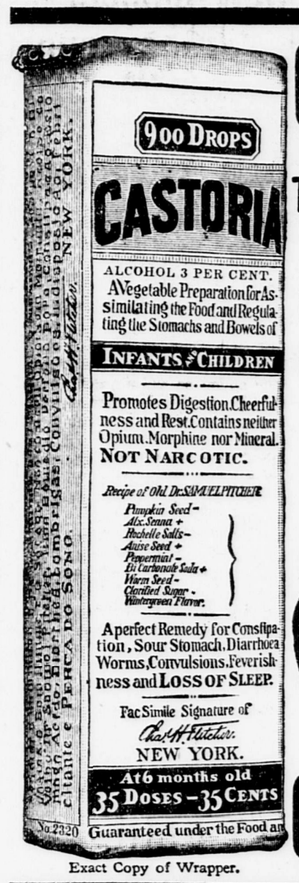

The Young Women's Club if wisely conducted should become a most helpful factor in the life of our young women. Your president asks you to give this matter your careful consideration and heartily endorses the hope expressed by the late chairman of the Philanthropic committee, in her report given to you on Reciprocity Day, that a gymnasium should be provided for the young women of Quincy and that privileges similar to those given young men at the Y. M. C. A. be also open to them.

Your president does not recommend that this club sould immediately burden itself with either the labor or the expense of starting this great work, but does recommend that it be given your careful consideration and she expresses her earnest hope that not far in the future it may become an accomplished fact. Your president again calls attention to what has always seemed to her the most important function of this club,—the development of a homogenous social life in our city, not the divided societies of Atlantic, Wollaston, Quincy Point and the other small isolated centres, but a union of all into one, great beautiful social and civic force, the life of Quincy. This highest social civilization is of slow growth, but it is the privilege of this Women's Club to be a prominent factor in this progressive work.

She also recommends that the grounds surounding the Club house may be put to more practical use, and that the various departments doing work f or Civic Betterment Philanthropy and education, endeavor to use these beautiful out-of-door premises in ways that shall be a benefit to the public as well as to members of our own organization.

It may interest you to hear some statistics of the work of your president as your representative. She has during the past year been present at all regular meetings of the club and executive board, has attended 14 meetings of the various committees; has made 14 visits to the vacation schools, gardens, playground and Young Womens club, collectively; has attended 2 meetings of the State Federation and 1 conference; has accepted 6 invitations from neighboring clubs to speak of the work of her home organization; has written 135 letters on club affairs, 2 to Representatives at Washington in favor of bills before the House and two to our local Senator and Representative on bills before our State legislature. In conclusion she thanks you all, officers, members of committees and club members for your loyal support, most graciously given to her by one and all during this year of her administration.

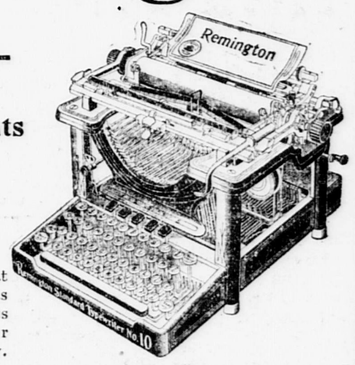

Claire Hubbard Gurney.

NEW CHURCH AT SHORE

Houghs Neck Proposes a Union Chapel

A largely attended meeting of the Protestant residents of Houghs Neck was held Tuesday evening at the Union chapel on Bay View avenue, to take action on the erection of a new chapel. After some discussion it was unanimously voted to erect a new chapel which should be a union chapel in every sense of the word. A committee was appointed to look up suitable sites and report at a future meeting.

Just how large a chapel will be erected has not been decided. It will depend largely on the subscriptions received. There are a number of wealthy residents of Houghs Neck, and it is believed that they will contribute liberally toward the new chapel.

The present chapel has been looked upon more as a Congregational chapel than a union chapel. The new building however of the word.

COMPROMISE ON POSTAL SAVINGS BILL

Draft Expected to Meet the Approval of President Taft

Washington, May 11.—The house committee on postoffices and post roads has practically agreed upon a postal savings bank bill which it is hoped will meet with the approval of President Taft and a majority of the members of the house.

As tentatively decided upon the bill provides that 50 percent of the money deposited in the postal savings banks shall be invested in government bonds valued at $24 each, the remaining 50 percent to remain in the locality where the money is invested. The $24 bonds will bear interest at 2½ percent and can be used to take up callable bonds.

The bill also provides that the establishment and maintenance of postal savings banks shall be in the jurisdiction of a board of trustees to be composed of the postmaster general, the secretary of the treasury and the attorney general.

While the bill as agreed upon by the committee is not in entire accord with the president, members of the committee are confident that Taft will give his approval to the draft.

MORE MONEY FOR NAVY

Measure as Finally Reported to the Senate Carries $130,770,934

Washington, May 11.—The naval appropriation bill, as reported to the senate by Senator Perkins, carries an aggregate appropriation of $130,770,934.38, an increase of $2,941,331.45 over the house bill. The bill of last year carried $136,935,199.05. The estimates for this year were $131,092,136.38.

The senate committee made no change in that provision of the house bill which authorizes the construction of two new battleships of the most advanced type. Senators Hale and Clapp are opposed to more than one new battleship, but probably will content themselves with registering their objection when the bill is taken up.

QUINCY HIGH WINS

(By Rube.)

Nine students from the Abington High school, accompanied by a small band of dyed-in-the-wool fans, came to Quincy on Tuesday afternoon to be entertained by Quincy High team and while we might say we were satisfied with the result there is a chance for a doubt from the visitors' standpoint.

The Abington lads were a little late in arriving and Quincy took the field and had good practice before they appeared. Once on the diamond, they got right down to business, and at 3.50 Umpire Flynn handed pitcher Holteen a brand new ball. Holteen was sent in so as to save Rice, the star south-paw, for the Melrose High game.

Holteen was a trifle wild at the start and passed Howland the first man to face him. Howland promptly stole second and took third on Cook's sacrifice. Holteen pulled himself together and with aid of Murphy and O'Connor retired the side scoreless.

In Quincy's half, "Billy" Manning doubled to left and stole third. Barry was hit by a batted ball. "Mil" Chapman came up and drove out a long fly to Murphy, Manning coming over the scoring block before the ball was back. This ended all scoring until the third.

In the third, Abington got busy. Holteen passed his rival twirler, Driscoll. Two successive wild pitches put him on the hot sack. The next batter struck out, but McKeown's long foul fly paved the way to a score for Abington for it was impossible for Allen to get Driscoll at the plate after his fine catch.

In the fourth, Holteen was sent to the bench and the heavy work was performed for four innings by the Chapman brothers. Abington could do nothing with "Mil's" offerings and he held them to one single while on the mound. Quincy had solved Driscoll's delivery by the fourth, and another run came in. In the sixth Quincy again got going, and a base on balls, two hits and a pretty squeeze play netted two more tallies.

The rooters began to holler for Bates to start something as he came to bat in the seventh. He gave the baseball a ride out onto Hancock street and was telling his team-mates a story on the bench before its return. Two more in the eighth brought the total up to 8. Abington made a feeble attempt to start something in the ninth but "Phil" Rice was doing the flinging and that is enough said.

Manning and Barry proved regular speed merchants on the paths. The former stole three bases and the latter four. H. Chapman caught an elegant game, nailing three of the visitors who had hopes of reaching the half way bag unmolested. Flynn umpired a fine game.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

That boy H. Chapman is a fine backstop, but he should wear a breast protector. A wicked foul tip is liable to end his career as a ball player, and an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Start now, "Brodus-"

That home run rap made by Captain Bates was by far the most interesting feature of the game. By the way this lad is playing fast games these days. His one-hand stop of a liner in the sixth was worth going miles to see.

Would it not be well to hold runners to the bag and not "send them down" with only one gone. A good throwing back-stop would have cut off two or more runs yesterday on plays of this kind.

* * *

"Speed Boy" O'Connor had the fans all with him from the call of "play ball." This lad turned in fine afternoon's work in the outer garden and at short. He accepted five chances without an error, and got a dandy hit in the fifth.

Cook, the first sacker with the visitors put up a great game. The fans had considerable fun at this lad's expense for he certainly look like a "long drink of water."

* * *

Currier, the man behind the Quincys, is showing us what he can do with a nine if they will only show some signs of life and listen to baseball advice. Boys, do as your coach suggests and you will not have many defeats chalked up against you when the season closes.

Miss Dorothy Rosalie Gittings Sponsor for the Sterett

Mayor Shea Among Speakers at The Lunch

Surrounded by a gay party of friends, officers of the United States and Argentine Republic navy, officials of the Fore River Company and hundreds of interesting spectators, Miss Dorothy Rosalie Gittings of Baltimore, Md., a daughter of John Sterett Gittings, a prominent banker of that city, gave the name "Sterett" to another United States naval vessel at the Fore River shipbuilding Company plant this morning, thus perpetuating the name of Commodore Andrew Sterett.

Commodore Sterett was born in Baltimore in 1760 and joined the navy in 1798. He was the executive officer of the frigate Constitution when she captured the French frigate L'Armour de la Patre. He also commanded the Enterprise when she won a brilliant victory over a Tripolitan cruiser, killing fifty of the latter's crew without losing a man. For this achievement he received a vote of thanks by Congress and was also presented by Congress on Feb. 3, 1802, a sword. He died while on a cruise to South America, Jan. 9, 1807, and was buried at Lima, Peru.

Miss Gittings, who is a direct descendant of Commodore Sterett, arrived in Boston from Baltimore on Wednesday and registered at the Vendome. She was accompanied by her father.

This A. M. the official launching party came to the Fore River in a special train which left the South station at 10 o'clock. This train was run to Braintree and thence over the Fore River tracks to the yard, landing the guests within a few feet of the green painted hull of the destroyer.

As they left the train they were met by officials of the Fore River Company and Miss Gittings was presented with a magnificent bouquet of pink Kelarney roses. She was then escorted to the launching stand that had been erected about the bow of the vessel ,and which was gayly decorated with bunting of the national colors. The destroyer itself was also in holiday dress the flags of the international code being suspended across her deck while at the bow and stern were the National emblem and the union Jack.

Suspended from her bow was a long tri-colored ribbon ,at the end of which was a bottle of Mumm's extra dry, with which the vessel was to be given her name. This bottle of wine was encased in a silver mesh so that the glass would not fly when broken.

Owing to the lateness of the tide, the launch did not take place as early as scheduled, and it was a little after noon before she was in the water. Preparations for the launch were begun shortly after the party arrived and the merry tap tap of several hundred hammers announced to the watching crowd that the launch was under way. Then came a shrill whistle and every hammer stopped on the instant. Then there was a pause while the keel blocks were being split away.

All was now in readiness. Nothing remained but to saw away the two soul pieces, the last links that held the destroyer on the ways. With a hasty glance to see that all was in readiness the signal was given and a minute later the saws had made their way through the planking and with a cracking sound the vessel began to move.

Slowly ,at first, but gaining speed at every foot. As she began to move, Miss Gittings hit her steel bow a sharp blow with the bottle, and as the sparkling wine ran down the sides of the destroyer she cried out, "I christen thee, Sterett."

This was the signal for the crowd on the launching stand and in the yards to cheer, which was taken up by the whistles in the yard and craft in the river, while the hundreds gathered on the shore of the river also cheered as with a splash the Sterett entered the water.

Tugs immediately came alongside and took her to the fitting out dock to a berth alongside of her sister ship "Perkins," where she will be completed.

The launch over, Miss Gittings and the launching party were escorted to the mould loft, where a lunch was served. The tables from which the lunch was served looked very pretty. Large mounds of Jack roses and ferns being used in the decoration.

Manager Smith briefly congratulated Miss Gittings on the successful manner in which she had carried out her part of the launch, and also spoke briefly of Commodore Sterett and his career as a naval officer. He then introduced Mayor Shea who welcomed the visitors to the city. His Honor said:

This matter of launching boats is getting to be a habit with the Fore River Shipbuilding Company. It is one that we all hope will grow, as every occasion of this kind we trust adds to the success and properity of the company, and what adds to the success and prosperity of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, or any business concern in our city, is a matter of congratulation for us all. But there is another habit which my friend Admiral Bowles is acquiring, that is of calling on me on these oc-

BANQUET OF IROQUOIS CLUB

Some of Best Hits of Minstrel Show Repeated

The Iroquois club gave all who assisted them in their recent minstrel show a banquet in Electa hall on Wednesday evening.

There was an informal reception from 8 to 9, at which time all filed to the banquet hall. The well-laden tables made a very pretty appearance as the members and invited guests, numbering 80, sat down.

President Daniel C. Driscoll acted a toastmaster, and in a few well chosen words, welcomed those present, and thanked all for making the show such a grand success.

Those present then gave their attention to the table to satisfy the inner man. Caterer Dennen proved equal to the occasion, and in less time than it takes to tell, cold tongue, roast beef, hot coffee and rolls, lobster salad and ice cream and cake disappeared from view.

The tables were cleared and members of other clubs and invited guests were called upon. Each speaker dwelled upon the fact that the Iroquois club is doing good work, to give Quincy such a high class entertainment every year.

A short entertainment followed in which many of the big hits were peated by the various artists. "Andy" Dinegan started the ball rolling with "Rings on her fingers." Jack Reynolds rendered a pleasing song which evoked much applause. One of the hits of the evening was a duett "By the light of the silvery moon," rendered by John Hansman and Miss Teresa Wholley. Miss Wholley responded to an encore and sang "Andy Dinegan's, "In a dear old swing." This was by far the best hit in the show. Harry McGrath was ready with several dialect stories, and responded to encores. "Jock" McMcIntosh was induced to go to the platform and he surprised al l present by reciting in a very capable manner, "The face on the bar-room floor." He was literally carried back to the front where he entertained for nearly half an hour with clever recitations and stories.

After this dancing was enjoyed with Peter M. Sullivan presiding at the piano. It was a late hour when those assembled journeyed homeward, satisfied in every way and willing to help the Iroquois club next year to surpass the splendid show of 1910.

FOURTH OF JULY FEATURE.

Merrymount lodge, A. O. U. W., at its meeting this week voted to take an active part in tho Fourth of July celebration of the city, and propose to have a feature in the grand parade.

—A Middleboro man had a rather odd three cornered job of moving household goods recently. He brought the effects of Rev. Warren A. Luce from Middleboro to Plymouth, and took those of Rev. J. W. Annos to Arnold's Mills, R. I., and brought the furniture of Rev. J. G. Gammons from that place to Middleboro.

HOUSE WARMING

At Wooden Wedding Anniversary at Wollaston

Mr. and Mrs. Chester G. Wiley observed on Monday evening their fifth wedding anniversary, which was also the opening of their new home on Elm avenue to their friends. Seventy-five guests from Brockton, Duxbury, Wakefield, Cambridge and Dorchester came to offer congratulations and enjoy the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley. The house was very attractive, the stairway twined with greenery and the rooms were profusely decorated with sweet peas and white roses. The hostess looked charming in her bridal gown. A pleasing feature of the occasion was the music rendered. Miss Mary Pumphrey of Roxbury gave piano solos, Miss Cora Hennan of Cambridge, a cousin of Mrs. Wiley vocal solos; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hayward of Brockton clarinet and piano duets. Many gifts of wood, including a chafing dish table and two chairs were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Wiley. The refreshments were served from wooden dishes on wooden plates.

A colored man noticed a board displayed in front of a building in course of erection. It bore these words: "Keep away. Danger." The colored man walked up close to the board and traced the letters with his finger. His lips moved as if he were spelling out the words. Before he had finished the "Keep away" a brick fell from an upper story and struck him squarely on the head. Without even looking up he backed across the sidewalk and examined the big gash in his hat. As he smoothed it down he sadly remarked: "Dat's one o' de drawbacks to a limerted edercation!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Champ Clark says he would be willing to serve in Congress, salary or no salary. The lecture graft is a good thing in itself.

Senator Raynor has hung out the Democratic "Welcome to our City" sign for the Republican Insurgents. They did not accept, however.

A man of the name of Booze has been convicted of felony, in New Jersey. Booze is indicted from one end of the country to the other every day.

Some of our public servants are shamefuly underpaid. At Wheatfield, in Pennsylvania, the postmaster gets 18 cents a day, and a man who prefers the vicissitudes of private life can get $3.00 a day in any wheatfield in Kansas.

With the Post Office building located where it is, and by the wish of the city, it is now the duty of the city to continue its work and group all its public buildings and at the same time create a civic centre that will be a pride to future generations. With the library and post office located as they are it is easy to continue the work of civic improvements. The vote of the city to buy the Insurance property at the corner of Washington and Coddington streets is a step in the right direction and the vote should be put through and the land secured no matter what obstacles may arise. It is due the Crane family who gave the library and also the citizens at large that this improvement be carried through.

DRIFT OF OPINION

In the world there are too many eight-hour men, and 18-hour women. They have no unions, and some times it looks too much like slavery. God help the husband, father or brother who forgets that the woman has limits. On the other hand there are some women who think that housework is degrading, and they do not know where their children are half of the time. The other night I was on my way home from a late engagement and I passed three little girls, not yet 15, wandering the street at 11. God help the mother who will lose sight of her girl like that.—Rev. Dr. Albert Mason Hyde at Brockton.

EVENING DRESS ALLOWED

Catholic Women May Keep Their Scapulars "Wherever They Please"

Milwaukee, May 12.—Archbishop Messmer of Milwaukee will issue a circular to priests in which he will notify women of the church that the pope has issued a special edict, which will make it possible for them to wear evening decollette gowns or peek-a-boo waists.

The edict permits women of the church to carry their scapulars in their pockets, or "wherever they please," the reason for the edict being to permit women to dress as the customs of society dictate.

Hitherto it has been impossible for Catholic women who wear the scapular to don evening clothes, for the scapular is not designed as artistic and would not harmonize with the ordinary decollette corsage.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

ADVERTISE THE TOWN.

Harris W. Fleming in the Shoe Retailer tells how to advertise a town. He says:

One of our salesmen in the South offered a proprietor of a small town hotel, a twenty dollar note in payment of his hotel bill. As there was not sufficient change in the cash drawer, the salesman volunteered to go out on the street to get the bill "broken." Stepping down onto the sidewalk, the first person he met was an old colored man, whom he at once accosted.

"Say, uncle, can you change a twenty dollar bill for me?" A big expansive smile lighted up the darkey's face from ear to ear, as bowing low he answered: "No sah. I mos' suttinly can't, but I 'preciate the compliment jus' the same."

The writer, when he was requested to rite this article, felt much the same as the old darkey did; for although naturally I have some very positive ideas as to how shoes should be advertised, I have never attempted to advertise a town. There are, however, certain fundamental principles to be followed in advertising a town or in advertising shoes.

At the outset, two problems confront us. 1. To keep the trade of a town at home, where it belongs, and 2, to bring to a town all the new trade we can—trade of the surrounding towns which has in the past drifted to other places.

A booster movement should also be aimed to make the town a better place to live in, and also to attract new manufacturing industries, but in the two articles I shall write, only the two problems first enumerated will be discussed.

If the movement to boost a town is to be successful, you must believe in it—you must do your part to help it. I am talking to you men, who read this article, to you men, who have been sitting back and waiting for the boom to arrive, but have not offered your assistance.

One man—a hundred men—cannot accomplish much unless the whole town is filled with a spirit of helping. If you don't believe in the town's future; if you feel that she has reached her limit, you cannot blame outsiders if they accept your valuation of her. Every time you knock, every time you criticise the efforts that are being made to boost her you are helping hold her down. You are doing yourself an injustice as well as her, for better times for your town will mean a better town to live in and fore advantages which you and your family will enjoy.

Why is it that the "booster" movements in Western towns and cities have been so successful? Why are these towns growing better and busier every day, and why is it so many Eastern towns are standing still? It is not because the former are more advantageously situated, but rather because of the enthusiasm—yes, more than that, it is the loyalty of their citizens. They believe in their towns and cities heart and soul, and every man and every woman is a walking advertisement telling the advantages of their home cities to all who will listen. Enthusiasm begets enthusiasm. Let a Westerner talk to you about his town and before he lets you go you are chock full of his enthusiasm in spite of yourself. You simply can't help it; it is spontaneous.

That's the spirit which you should have, which you must have, if a "booster" movement is to bring results. Catch the spirit of it—grasp its significance—believe in it—CO-OPERATE, and the results in a few years will surprise you. It will take time. A mushroom growth is not healthy for a town, but success is certain if all pitch in and help boost.

There are doubtless many things which you can criticise about your town. No town is perfect—Utopia was but a creation of the imagination. There are two kinds of criticism, the one tears down, demolishes and leaves despair or desolation in its wake; the other is constructive criticism which builds up, creates, and invigorates; the kind that not only picks out the flaws, discovers imperfections, but suggests a remedy for them as well. Constructive criticism is the only kind that will help.

How shall a town get the citizens imbued with this confidence, with the enthusiasm which is so absolutely necessary?

There are different ways: In the first place the merchants, manufacturers, and professional men, the men who are naturally the leaders in a fovement of this description should get together and organize. Call it a Trades' Club, Board of Trade or what you will, the name is of little consequence, providing that every man in your town who has good blood in his veins is eligible for membership. Talk over the situation together. If possible, arrange to have speakers come from out of town to talk to you to show what other towns have done; they will convince you that you are not chasing a rainbow—that a "booster" movement planned along certain well defined lines is a practical plan and not a vision. They will also suggest ideas which will help you boom your town.

—I wonder whether the inventors of the various hand-power vacuum cleaners for house use are married men. If they are, they are truly careless of their own home comfort and of that of their married neighbors. No, these inventors must have been crusty and disappointed old bachelors who had a grudge. They probably—what? Oh, yes, I'll wiggle it a few minutes.—Milford Gazette.

THE YACHT ALOHA
A GEM OF OCEAN

Completely Furnished the Craft Cost About Half a Million Dollars

Sailed Yesterday from the Fore River Works

With the sailing from the Fore River Works on Wednesday of the auxiliary yacht Aloha there left Quincy what is doubtless one of the finest private yachts afloat. The yacht which was launched March 23, was built by the Fore River Company, for Commodore James Arthur Curtis of the New York Yacht club. The yacht is barque rigged and carries 21,000 square feet of canvas. She is 202 feet long on her deck, and has a water line of 165 feet 10 inches. Her extreme beam is 35 feet 6 inches and her moulded depth 22 feet 4 inches. She was constructed throughout under the special supervision and to the highest class in Lloyd's yacht register. She has a clipper stem and graceful trailboard carving terminating in a full-sized figure head. Her machinery is arranged midships having engine room and staff quarters suitably located around machinery space, the crew being berthed in a commodious forecastle.

In midship and aft are the owners and guest staterooms, seven in number, all of which are finished in a magnificent manner. On the walls of the main reception room are numerous handsomely carved panels representing historic scenes and the interior finish is of polished mahogany. The staterooms are very elaborately furnished, the walls being papered and the floors carpeted. The electric lights are incased in cut glass chandeliers. The dining room is furnished with handsome upholstered chairs with hand-carved arms.

The staterooms are also very elaborately furnished and are in different colors ,that of the owner having an open fireplace. Each room has two single brass bedsteads and mahogany furnishings, and connected with each stateroom is a private bath room. The owner"s stateroom, in addition to the bath room, has an elaborately furnished dressing room. Each room is also connected with a intercommunicating telephone system.

In addition there is a hospital room where anyone ill during a cruise can be looked after. There are also the owner's kitchen, pantry, china and serving room, an officers' dining room, and a dining room for the crew. The navigating room is located well forward. There are also separate staterooms for the officers. They also have private bath rooms connected.

She will carry a crew, including officers of forty men and physician. It is the intention of the owner to depend largely upon his canvas for propelling power except when in harbors. Then the auxiliary engine will be used. These consist of a set of triple expansion direct acting engines furnished with steam by water tube boilers, the installation providing about 500 horse power. The smokestack is a telescope affair so that it can be housed when she is using canvas.

The officers of the Aloha are: Captain, Peleoman Bezanson; first mate, Melvin O'Brien; second mate, J. Anderson; chief engineer, F. M. Clifford; steward, William Palmer.

Commodore and Mrs. James arrived from New York on Tuesday with a party of six friends, and came to the Fore River Wednesday A. M. They immediately boarded the yacht. Shortly after she cast off and set sail for Vinal Haven, wherethey arrived last night. She will then make stops at Newport and New London, from which point she will proceed to New York, where she will be put in readiness for her first cruise which will be to Halifax. The coming summer it is the intention of Commodore James to go to Europe and cruise there.

Scores of workmen were busy all day Tuesday getting aboard furnishing and provisions to take to New York, and nearly the whole night was required to complete the job.

It is estimated that the yacht completely furnished cost in the vicinity of $500,000.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

Quincy High school has taken an advanced step in the establishment of seven courses, to go into effect on Sept. 1 next. All are four-year courses and will be known as:

Commercial course.
Manual Arts course.
Household Arts course.
Modern Language course.
Normal course.
Technical school course.
College preparatory course.

Printed folders were recently issued to the pupils and we quote the foreword:

"That pupils may have a wide range in their choice of studies, and at the same time be guarded against an unwise dabbling in too many unrelated, or poorly correlated subjects, the work of the school has been arranged in several groups, called "Courses." Each course bears a name suggestive of its chief study, or studies, and in addition to English, which is required in all courses, each course of study has certain definite requirements within itself. These courses, the studies required and studies elective in each, are briefly noted in this folder. There is also a page on which the pupil may indicate his studies for the coming year. That page, with the studies thus indicated, should be placed in the hands of the Head Master at the earliest possible date between now and the close of the present school year.

These courses are composed, in all, of thirty-two studies, namely:

English.
American history and civics.
Commercial arithmetic.
Commercial geography.
Commercial law.
Business practice.
Bookkeeping.
Stenography.
Typewriting.
Manual training.
Mechanical drawing.
Freehand drawing.
Domestic science.
Sewing and dressmaking.
Music.
Physical training.
Physiology and botany.
Biology.
General physics.
College physics.
General chemistry.
College chemistry.
Elementary algebra.
Plane geometry.
College algebra and geometry review.
Solid geometry and advanced algebra.
French.
German.
Latin.
Ancient history.
Mediaeval history.
English history.

The varied studies give evidence of the extensive scope of the school. We quote further from the folder:

"Physical Training for one period a week, counting as one credit, is required of all pupils in the entering class, unless excused on doctor's certificate. It is elective, but recommended for pupils of other classes. Two exercises a week in music, counting as one credit, is elective for all pupils. Pupils who take Manual Training must also take Mechanical Drawing; but Mechanical Drawing may be taken without Manual Training.

"It is often advisable for pupils taking Technical School or College Preparatory courses to distribute their work over five years, as the work is rather difficult and the required standard high.

"Beginning with next year teachers will be at the school on certain afternoons in the week, to give special help to deficient pupils, and to those who desire more help than can be given during the regular session. Pupils, when it is deemed advisable by a teacher, will be required to return to school in the afternoon for this help. It is intended by this means to save many pupils who would otherwise fail in their work.

No pupil, save by special permission, may carry a course of less than fifteen or more than twenty-five credits in any one year. At least fifteen credits are necessary for promotion the first year, thirty-five the second, and fifty-five the third. A total of not less than eighty credits in some specified course is necessary for a diploma. Four of these credits, one each year, may be obtained by satisfactory conduct and effort. Pupils are urged to consult the head master in making out their courses. All courses are subject to his approval, and the approval of parents. Courses thus approved will be subject to change only in case of conflict with the school program.

The picture of the Senior class was taken again Wednesday as at the snapping of the one last Wednesday the day was too cloudy for an excellent photograph.

Millard and Harold Chapman are doing excellent work as battery for the "Ramblers" baseball club.

The presentation of "The Amazons" the play by the Sir A. W. Pinero on Friday evening that was admirable. The acting by each member of the cast was given with great credit to the part and the Senior class, under whose auspices this three-act play was presented. Because of the large audience the proceeds equal about $150. The money will be applied to the commencement expenses. There will not be another production of the drama at least by the school. The committee who made arrangements included Dorothy Frye, Anna Beaney, Gordon Jameson and Stanley Churchill, assisted by Miss Mary A. Brown who coached the cast. The parts in the play were most creditably taken by William C. Northrop, Roy L. Sidelinger, Leon D. Brown, Harry P. Levowich, Charles C. Hearn, Isabel K. Thomas, Margaret Hall, Anna D. Larkin, Gladys L. Bain and Sarah M. Hale.

Mr. Leslie L. Cleveland, headmaster of the Cambridge High school until recently headmaster of Quincy High and also Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. Cole were present.

Many of the High students, who were graduated from the Coddington school attended the reunion last Friday evening. Corliss Berry, '09, and Minnie Packard, '05, were in the cast of "The Straw Man" which was presented and Harold Prout '11. In "Jane's Legacy" which was also presented.

* * *

The Melrose High team scheduled for today is considered a fast one, and the players expect that a very good work is necessary to win.

Since this column last appeared the baseball nine has scored yet more victories. Friday in a close game Brokton was defeated 2 to 1. Tuesday the Abington team suffered defeat, with a score 8 to 2 in Quincy's favor, making the sixth straight victory this season. George Holteen and Milard Chapman were the pitchers during the first eight innings and Philip Rice was in the box during the ninth, in order to have him appear at his best during the Melrose game.

Next Wednesday, May 18, Quincy is scheduled to meet Dedham High at Merrymount park.

With today's game, in doubt Quincy expects to win without much trouble the games up to the return one with Brockton, May 24, on the Brockton grounds. As this team held the Q. H. S. nine down to two runs while it made one, a hard contest is expected.

The record of Capt. Bates' nine thus far has been an enviable one. As about a third of the scheduled games have already been played with victories at every one for the home men. You may have noticed, the players are making few errors and working in excellent form. The other nines have been defeated by superior playing rather than by luck. Let the hopes be high for the continuation of the string of victories, even though several of the Boston High teams have had upsets in their lists. In giving credit for the success of the nine, the faithful work and judicious direction of Coach Ralph P. Currier should receive attention.

For the coming "Goldenrod," Charles Sayward, '10, wins the first prize for his story, "All's well that ends well." It is expected the second prize for stories will go to Ralph Ford, '10, and the prize for poems to Lewis Coombs '10 for a class song to be sung to the tune of "Fair Harvard."

* * *

The Alumni Association of the Malden High school has presented a petition to the School Committee remonstrating against the discontinuance of the study of Greek.

* * *

At the annual meeting of the English High School Association of Boston last night announcement was made that the Charles M. Cumston fund would be available this year, and for the first time in the history of a Boston High school a money prize would be awarded to the student who stood pre-eminent for manliness and leadership in influencing the character of his fellow-students in the right direction.

casions for a few remarks. That is a habit which I hope will not grow.

Ladies and gentlemen, as Mayor of our city, I am glad to be here today and extend a welcome to our visiting friends. We are proud to have in our city, if only for a few days, the descendant of a man who made for himself such an enviable record in the service of his country.

I salute Miss Gittings, and congratulate her on the fact that she is a descendant of such a worthy ancestor, and we all hope that the boat which this morning has been given to the services of the U. S. Navy will make for herself a record as honorable and as lasting as did the man whose name she bears.

Ladies and gentlemen I wish to propose a toast,—To the success of the Torpedo boat destroyer "Sterett" and to her fair sponsor "Miss Gittings."

Hon. Joseph H. Hibbard of Lowell a member of the Senate was introduced to speak for the Commonwealth. Senator Hibbard said that he felt very much honored at being invited to be present at the launching which was the first he had ever witnessed. He said that he came from a city noted for its textile business and knew but little of the shipbuilding industry. He hoped however that when the company held another launch that the government of the Commonwealth would be given an opportunity to see what a magnificent industry it had in Quincy.

In Miss Gittings personal party were Mrs. Albert Nickerson and Miss Ruth Nickeron of Dedham, Miss Margaret A. Solane of New York, Mrs. Wayland Manning and Miss Mary Burney of Boston.

Miss Gittings who was a very attractive young lady of the brunette type certainly performed her part of the launching in an admirable manner and was showered with congratulations. It was just 12.10 when the vessel begun to move and the blow that she hit the steel side smashed the bottle, that held the wine into a thousand pieces.

The invited guests besides a large number of city officials and residents of Quincy included: Naval Constructor H. G. Gilmor, Lt. Owen Hill of the United States Navy; Rear Admiral M. D. Garcia, Capt. D. Aguirre, Lieut. D. Casanova, Lieut. I. Espindola, Lieut. O. Fernandez, Lieut. V. Masion and Commander C. M. Valladares of the Argentine Republic navy; Mayor W. T. Shea, City Clerk Harrison A. Keith, Commissioner Randolph Bainbridge, Charles L. Hammond, Wilbur Sargent Locke, Capt. and Mrs. Charles H. Manning, J. R. Gordon, Mrs. Albert Nickerson and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Nickerson, John F. Merrill, Evan F. Richardson and Silas A. Stone of the board of County Commissioners, Prof. and Mrs. David Todd, Miss Vanwyck, Miss Anna Vanwyck, Representatives William R. Thomas, Louis F. R. Langelier, and members of the committee on bridges of the Legislature, and Mr. and Mrs. John Sterett Gittings, parents of the sponsor.

The party of members of the State Legislature, who were escorted by Representative Thomas, included: Senator Joseph H. Hibbard of Lowell, Senator Dennis E. Farley of Franklin, Representatives Isaac P. Willetts of Fall River, George H. Stevens of Dracut, Harrison J. Conant of Worcester, Alfred J. Buckel of Lawrence, A. W. Cushman of Provincetown, Robb D. P. Tytus of Tyringham, Lawrence J. Dugan of Webster, John J. Hughes of Adams, Ignatis Carleton of Chelsea, Henry E. Holbrook of Stoughton, Representative Atherton of Saugus, and Oscar C. Hammerstrom of Worcester.

In addition to those there was a large number of Quincy people included among the invited guests. At the launch of the Perkins last month the Fore River Co. sent invitations to a part of the citizens' committee of one hundred who had charge of the home coming celebration of Admiral Bowles, and the balance of the committee received invitations to the launch today.

Unfortunately Admiral Bowles was unable to be present at today's launch and the honors of the company were looked after by General Manager H. G. Smith.

Residents of Quincy who are acquainted with Regal shoes will be interested to know they can now be purchased right here in this city at the shoe store of John Hefferman, 1375 Hancock street, next door to Berry Bros. Regal shoes are made for men and women, are always up to the minute in styles and for comfortable fit and long wear have long since proved to be the equal of any shoe made. If you visited the Regal factories at Whitman you would soon see why these shoes have a world-wide reputation. Mr. Hefferman has many styles displayed, in attractive form, in his show window and one need not look outside of Quincy to find better shoes than are shown here.

TRUTH

No. 1

NOTE—From day to day you will read in these columns articles entitled "Truth" It is to you dear reader, these remarks are addressed. Weigh well every word contained in these stories. It may mean much to you to follow us as we go along. All that is asked is your time for just a few moments. We thank you.

Lest you take alarm at this invasion of your innocent seclusion, we will remind you of the anecdote of the man who tried to give away English gold sovereigns, and nobody would take any of them. On a wager, this gentleman, relying on his knowledge of human nature, stood at the busiest hour of the day at the corner of London Bridge, with a big pewter dish full of genuine gold sovereigns in his hand. Rattling the gold alluringly in the pewter, he besought all who passed to take one—no strings to it of any sort. But one and all either stared incredulously, frowned suspiciously, or smiled knowingly, and passed on unenriched. And at the end of the hour, the gentleman who knew human nature, had just as many sovereigns in his dish as when he started, and the other party to the wager had to pay up.

We know that if you had been one of the English crowd you would have left with all the English sovereigns laid safely away in the folds of your garments. This is our reason for addressing you in person.

Would you be rich?

Then join us in our great undertaking

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

BETTER FOOD

Take, for instance, Boiled Ham. Most dealers sell a Boiled Ham that is simply Pickled. Our Boiled Hams are Smoked. (You can see the difference in cost.)

The price here is the same as other dealers charge, but ours have the flavor of real Ham.

Our own customers appreciate it and we have to buy Boiled Ham by the crate.

BRIEFS

The City Council Committee on Fire Department will meet Friday evening.

Owing to the uneveness of the streets through City Square, the oil dust preventative makes a nasty mess of it when first put on. There are so many holes in the street that the oil gathers in little puddles. As soon as it dries in, however, it is all right.

A meeting of the permanent Fourth of July Committee of Atlantic was held Wednesday evening. For some reason, best known to themselves, it was voted not to give out any information as to what was done, other than that the committee will not do anything to interfere in any way with the celebration planned to be held in Quincy.

FORGERY AND PERJURY

Among the Charges Lodged Against a Pittsburg Department Chief

Pittsburg, May 12.—A warrant was issued for the arrest of Joseph G. Armstrong, director of the department of public works in the city of Pittsburg, charging him with forgery, perjury and false pretence. The informations were made by Tensard de Wolfe, secretary of the Voters' Civic league.

Armstrong is charged with unlawfully and fraudulently signing a payroll on Dec. 1, 1909, "for the purpose of cheating and defrauding the city." He is also accused of unlawfully obtaining the signature of City Comptroller Morrow to certain warrants for the payment of the money.

MORE EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS

Many Living Persons Have Been Taken From the Cartago Ruins

San Jose, C. R., May 12.—Heavy earthquakes were felt here yesterday. Thousands of persons are leaving the city in alarm. While fear has siezed a great part of the populace, the authorities continue resolutely at work among the ruins of Cartago. Many living persons have been released from the debris, some of whom will survive.

The dead are being buried as rapidly as possible at the direction of the health inspectors. Dynamite is being used to raze the buildings that are still standing. Congress had declared what amounts to martial law.

HOT CONFLICT IS PREDICTED

Complications Regarding Proposed Tariff Investigation

TAFT FACING NEW TROUBLE

Stand-Patters Resent Talk of Revision, as They Think It an Admission That Present Law Is Unsatisfactory — Ultra-Protectionists Disgusted Over Attitude of President, Whom They Expected to Stoutly Defend Present Law

Washington, May 12.—The president has received notice from some of the leading stand-patters in congress that they cannot stand with him in his support of the provision of the snudry civil bill under which the present tariff board is to be continued, and instructed to make certain tariff investigations with a view to ultimately making changes in some of the schedules of the existing law.

Senator Aldrich and Representatives Payne and Dalzell discussed the proposed tariff board legislation with the president yesterday. Neither Aldrich nor Payne would talk of the conference. Dalzell said that no agreement had been reached with reference to the legislation. "It is still up in the air," was the way he put it. All Aldrich would say was that if congress took any action which would leave the impression that there is to be another tariff revision within a few years business would be disturbed.

After the emissaries of high protection left the president's office, Chairman Tawney of the committee on appropriations, the author of the tariff board provision, arrived for a talk with the president. He found the chief executive determined to make a firm stand for the proposed legislation.

Mr. Taft believes that the tariff agitation now so acute in various sections of the country can be eased if congress will give him authority to have the existing tariff board, or a tariff commission make a thorough study of the existing schedules. He indicated in his talk with Tawney that he will make the best fight he knows how to make for this authorization.

The ultra protectionists like Dalzell and Payne are opposed to the proposed legislation because, as they assert, it will amount to an admission that there is something wrong with the present tariff law. They want to go before the country and defend the law as perfect, or as nearly perfect as it is possible to make tariff legislation. Privately they are expressing a good deal of disgust over the attitude of the president. They had expected him to continue to stand up and defend the tariff law as all right in every particular.

The situation as a whole with reference to the proposed tariff investigation is complicated. If the ultra protectionists in the house refuse to yield to the president, one of their number will make a point of order against the tariff board revision carried in the sundry civil bill. If the proposed legislation should go out on the ground that it is new legislation, the chairman of the committee on appropriations would have to ask the committee on rules for a special rule under which to pass the provision.

The Democrats are inclined to be against the proposed legislation because provision is not made for reporting to congress the information gathered. If the minority members of the committee on rules should vote against a special rule, and the standpat members of that committee should vote with them, a rule would be impossible, and the provision would go out of the bill. Tawney is not at all optimistic over the outlook for his provision, notwithstanding the support the president is giving him.

It is evident that a contest is coming on over what shall be done with reference to the tariff law. One of the elder senators says that it will probably develop into a conflict that will overshadow any other contest of this session of congress.

SEASON EARLY.

L. A. Wells of Blue Hill observatory reports that April broke record of 62 years for High mean temperature.

Like the preceding months in 1910, the weather in April was notable for its warmth. The mean temperature of the month was 49.8 degrees, which is 5.4 degrees above the normal and the highest recorded in April during the past 62 years. In fact, on four times in this period May has been colder than the month just closed, namely in 1858, 1868, 1882 and 1907. The next warmest April occurred in 1878 when the mean temperature was 46.9 degrees, while in 1909 it was 44.9 degrees. The maximum temperature of the month was 75 degrees on the 6th and the lowest was 29 degrees on the 11th.

There was less than the usual amount of rain, the total fall being 2.64 inches, while the average is 3.52 inches. Last year the monthly total was 4.79 inches. Rain fell on 12 days, the greatest in any one day being .58 inch on the 26th. There was about the usual amount of relative humidity, and the total amount of sunshine of 199 hours was slightly more than normal.

There was less wind than is customary in April and the prevailing direction was northwest. The maximum velocity was 50 miles per hour from the northwest on the 10th. Auroras were observed on the nights of the 2nd and 28th. It is estimated that vegetation in this vicinity is about four weeks earlier than the seasonal average.

NAVAL ROMANCE IS REVEALED

Madeline Swift to Become Bride of Paymaster Auld

COURT MARTIAL IS RECALLED

Husband-to-Be of Retired Admiral's Daughter Was Aided by Her Testimony While He Was on Trial For Knocking Down Cowles at Naval Dance—Robnett and "Woman In the Case" Also to Wed

Washington, May 12.—What many will regard as a fitting climax to a romance fraught with difficulties came when it was learned that Paymaster George P. Auld of the United States marine corps is to marry Miss Madeline Swift, daughter of Rear Admiral Swift, U. S. N., retired, next month.

Paymaster Auld was prominently before the public early in the year as a result of having knocked down Dr. E. S. Cowles, cousin of Rear Admiral Cowles, at a navy dance at Boston last December. It was alleged that Cowles had made insinuating remarks about Miss May Hessler of Chicago, who was visiting naval circles in Boston. Miss Swift was a central figure at the trial by court-martial of Paymaster Auld and Passed Assistant Surgeon Robnett which followed as a result of the incident.

From the first it was believed that the attachment of Auld for Miss Swift had something to do with the quarrel between Auld and Cowles. Miss Swift had broken her engagement at the last moment to Harry D. Storer of Atlanta, who journeyed to Boston to marry her and found the wedding "indefinitely postponed."

Meanwhile close friends of Miss Swift said that Auld was indirectly responsible for Miss Swift's change of heart toward Storer, and rumors of an engagement of Auld and Miss Swift were current.

At the sensational trial of Auld and Robnett Miss Swift was an important witness for Auld. She testified to Cowles' attitude toward Miss Hessler and indicated that Miss Hessler had at least on one occasion been much embarrassed by Cowles' attentions.

After the trial, where Auld and Robnett escaped with slight punishment, it was known that Robnett and Miss Hessler were to be married.

The announcement of the coming wedding of Miss Swift completes the developments which were not altogether unexpected as a result of the navy yard quarrel which stirred navy and Back Bay circles of Boston to their depths.

GREAT CARGO OF LEMONS

One Steamer Brings 19,600 Boxes of the Fruit to Boston

Boston, May 12.—Granting one lemon to a glass of lemonade, which is a liberal basis, there are enough lemons stored at the Clyde street pier in East Boston to furnish about six glassfuls for every man, woman and child in Greater Boston. There were 19,600 boxes of lemons left there by the steamship Sannio, from the Mediterranean, and as they will average about 300 to the package, the total number of lemons is 6,000,000 in round figures.

Few large consignments of lemons have been landed at Boston from the Mediterranean in the last three years, and to supply the market further, the Romanic arrived with 5000 more boxes, which were landed at Charlestown.

Mrs. Morse declares that she has more than 5000 names of some of the most prominent men in the nation signed to the appeal. Mrs. Morse will return to Atlanta to show the results of her Washington visit to her husband.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Quincy Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Quincy citizen says:

James P. Daugherty, Hammond Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am glad to let other sufferers know what they have done for me. I was bothered a great deal by back ache and had but little strength or energy to do my day's work. I took many so-called kidney cures, but did not succeed in finding relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at the Cox Drug Store. I was surprised and gratified at the prompt way in which they relieved me. My back was soon strong and free from pain and I felt better generally. I would go to considerable trouble to induce anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills, as I have so much confidence in them."

WITNESSES MIMIC BATTLE

Roosevelt, With the Kaiser, Attends a Great Military Display

Berlin, May 12.—Colonel Roosevelt, in the company of Emperor William, witnessed a mimic battle in which 12,000 men of the German military engaged in the vicinity of Doeberitz. Roosevelt was provided with a superb thoroughbred from the imperial stables. The emperor also took a mount and together they rode over the maneuvering field of some twenty square miles and observed the working out of the army problem.

The operations completed, the officers above the rank of major, who had taken part in the maneuvers, assembled to hear the criticisms of the emperor and the umpires. When these comments had been made the emperor, in a loud voice, called out:

"My friend Roosevelt: I have been greatly pleased to show you some of our German troops. You are the first civilian who has reviewed our soldiers."

Parting salutations were then exchanged and the imperial party left in automobiles for Potsdam, while Roosevelt returned to this city.

BOTH SEVERELY HURT

Forbes and Yates Dropped More Than 20,000 Feet In Balloon

Center, Ky., May 12.—Numbed by a snowstorm encountered at an altitude of 26,600 feet, and dropped rapidly to earth from a considerable height because of inability to control the balloon, A. H. Forbes of Bridgeport, Conn., vice president of the Aero Club of America, and J. C. Yates of New York, suffered severe injuries after a flight of 400 miles from Quincy, Ills.

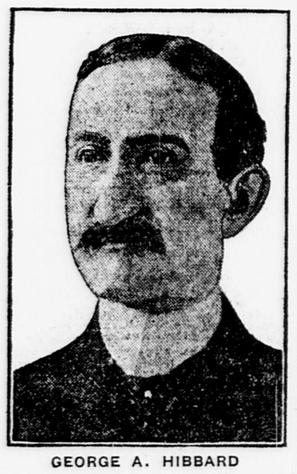

Their balloon, the Viking, descended with such precipitation that both aeronauts were bruised and stunned and the balloon was wrecked.

The balloon came to earth near here and dropped through the final 100 feet of space like a stone. The balloonists are suffering from severe bruises and sprains, but they are not seriously injured. Although confined to their beds, they expect to be able to travel within two or three days.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD REJECTS HIBBARD

Former Mayor of Boston Cannot Be City Collector

Boston, May 12.—George A. Hibbard, ex-postmaster and ex-mayor of the city of Boston, former lieutenant and intimate friend of Senator Lodge, has been "turned down" ignominiously for a minor city appointment by the Massachusetts civil service commission.

GEORGE A. HIBBARD

The man who once received 38,154 votes for the chief magistracy of this city has been declared unqualified to fill the position of city collector, to which Mayor Fitzgerald appointed him. The civil service commission has refused to say the word which would give him a new start in life, politically.

Mayor Fitzgerald is now helpless to aid his former rival and one-time conquerer further. Heartbroken and stunned by the blow, the ex-mayor refused himself to all callers and could find no words to express his opinion of the situation.

CHRISTENS WARSHIP

Miss Elizabeth D. Fleming, Sponsor For the Florida

LAUNCHING OF THE FLORIDA

IS 65 PERCENT COMPLETED

Secretary Meyer and Many Other High Officials, as Well as Fifty Thousand Citizens, Witness Christening of Big Dreadnought by Miss Fleming—Volley of Fine Cigars Fired From First Cannon Mounted on Ship

New York, May 12.—Fifty thousand persons witnessed the launching of the Florida, the new Dreadnought of the American navy, this morning at the Brooklyn navy yard, with Miss Elizabeth L. Fleming, daughter of a former governor of Florida, as the sponsor.

At Miss Fleming's side were Secretary of the Navy Meyer, Assistant Secretary Winthrop, Albert W. Gilchrist, Governor of Florida, and his staff; Admirals Evans, Sperry, Schroeder, Wainwright, Potter and Leutzel, the latter commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard.

As the big fighting craft slid gracefully down the greased ways, stern first, Miss Fleming broke the bottle against the steel plates and said: "I name thee Florida."

T. M. Wier, who is a member of the party of Governor Gilchrist, and who was the official representative of the Tampa board of Trade at the launching, brought with him the first cannon that was mounted on the new Dreadnought.

When the lanyard of this gilded weapon was pulled a volley of cigars was fired. The cannon, which is Wier's own invention, is about a yard long, and was crammed to the muzzle with the finest cigars that Wier's extensixe tobacco plantation could produce, and which were themselves shaped like miniature cannon.

The battleship is 65 percent completed and was built in the Brooklyn navy yard. She weighs a little more than 9000 tons, which is about 1000 tons more than her sister ship, the Utah.

Among those who witnessed the launching were many government officials from Washington, in addition to a great throng from this city.

Several stands for viewing the launching of the huge Dreadnaught were erected independent of the battleship's framework. These stands accommodated several thousands of people.

The Florida is twenty-one feet longer and her tonnage will be 3500 tons greater than the great battleship Bellerophon of the British navy.

The full length of the Florida is 521 feet. Her displacement will be 21,825 tons, and she is expected to develop 28,000 horsepower, and to attain a speed of twenty-one knots an hour.

GREETS NEW KING

Parliament Adopts Addresses of Condolence and Congratulations

London, May 12.—Parliament met to pay a national tribute to the memory of King Edward and to welcome his successor, King George. A message from the new monarch, in which he announced the death of his father and his own succession, was read in both houses, which subsequently adopted addresses of condolence and congratulations to the king.

Speeches were made in parliament by the leaders of the political parties. The royal message was received in the house of commons with solemnity, the members standing uncovered as it was read.

While he was speaking Premier Asquith was obviously deeply affected. When he expressed the sympathy which the house felt for the queen mother, he all but broke down.

Speaking along similar lines in the house of lords, the Earl of Crewe was well-nigh overcome with emotion and concluded his remarks only with difficulty.

PEACE IN HAT INDUSTRY

Manufacturers and Unions to Settle Future Disputes by Arbitration

Danbury, Conn., May 12.—An agreement has been reached by the manufacturers and the unions engaged in the hatting industry in this city, which provides for arbitration of all disputes between the two organizations in the trade.

The plan provides for the appointment of three arbitrators by each side, whenever any matter requiring arbitration shall arise. If these six are unable to come to an agreement within five days from the time the question is submitted to them, they are to endeavor to agree upon a seventh person to act as referee, and failing in this after five days the appointment of the seventh person is to be asked for at the hands of the president of the National Civic association.

In the meantime the work is to continue without interruption and all parties to the conference agree to abide by the decisions of the arbitrators.

CLAIM AGREEMENT WAS REPUDIATED

International Paper Company Issues Statement on Strike

Glens Falls, N. Y., May 12.—The International Paper company has issued a long document setting forth its side in the strike investigation being conducted by the state board of arbitration.

It holds that the men have no cause for a strike and that the reason why the company will not confer with J. T. Carey, president of the Papermakers' union, is that in 1908 Carey signed an agreement calling off the strike and a few months later repudiated the agreement, and that, as John H. Malin of the Pulp Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers' union has joined the Carey forces, it is impossible to treat with him.

The company continues to import strike-breaking help in its various mills.

BOGUS PASTOR JAILED

He Solicited Money For an Imaginary Hospital For Children

Newton, Mass., May 12.—Albert H. Fish, accused of having swindled many Newton and Brookline residents out of sums of money by representing himself to be a clergyman collecting funds for a crippled children's hospital, pleaded guilty before Judge Kennedy and was given two months in the house of correction.

Fish begged the judge to be lenient, saying that he had a wife and five children in New York city, that he came here to get work and that, because he could not he became desperate. At one time, he said, he studied for the ministry.

Attired as a clergyman, Fish found it an easy task to swindle many philanthropic wealthy society women.

Gelinas was at work in the cutting room at the shoe factory of Bray & Stanley, standing at his bench, when he commenced to jump and shout, and his fellow-cutters became alarmed, thinking that he had gone crazy. After they fled from the room they learned the cause of his actions.

REPORT OF SUICIDE A "LOCAL BREVITY"

Despondent Chorus Girl's Request to Gotham Newspapers

New York, May 12.—Physicians have succeeded in saving the life of Florence Heynemann, 30 years old, of Sacramento, Cal., who drank two ounces of lysol in her rooms in the Hotel Wellington, after addressing a note to the newspapers asking them not the mark "with an X the spot where my body was found."

The woman was formerly a chorus girl. She became despondent over the fact that her husband, Otto H. Heynemann of San Francisco, had obtained a divorce from her. It was on the ground of intemperance that her husband sued for divorce, and the wife did not defend the action. She came to this city immediately after the decision. Her letter "To the Press" says:

"Kindly give me only a local brevity. Don't put the 'X' where my body was found. I ask you to be kind in your writeup. I have a mother and a brother out home. I don't want to inflict my unfortunate end upon them. Will you do as I ask? New York is vast and my home town is small. I reiterate, please make the closing number a local brevity. If you are good fellows you will do as a 'good fellow' asks."

Danderine
GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!
A lady from Minnesota writes:
"As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."
Beautiful Hair at Small Cost
HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.
Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; while baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)
The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.
Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.
It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.
One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.
NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.
Cut This Out
FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

A CLAIM FOR $400

As Salary as Treasurer of Woodward Fund

It is expected that the case of H. Walter Gray late City Treasurer, against the City of Quincy will be reached in the superior court at Dedham today or Friday. Messrs. Edwards and Stone represent Mr. Gray, and Paul Blackmur represents the city and the Woodward Fund.

When tht case was first entered, Mr. Gray was represented by J. W. McAnarney. Later Mr. McAnarney became City Solicitor, and therefore is not now available in the case. It is also interesting to note that Mr. Blackmur was City Solicitor at the time the alleged debt was contracted.

The suit is to recover the sum of $400 as the treasurer of the Woodward Fund and property. At the time Mr. Gray was appointed treasurer by Mayor Bryant the ordinance concerning the Woodward Fund provided that its treasurer should receive $400 from the fund. Mayor Bryant, however, did not believe this right and announced when the appointment of treasurer Gray was made that he would not permit the payment of any salaries from the Woodward Fund and he did not.

Later the Woodward ordinance was amended and the salaries struck out. The city official salary ordinance was also amended, so that the sums that had been paid by the Woodward Fund were paid by the city. As this ordinance, however, could not take effect until the following year the officers of the Woodword Fund, namely, clerk, auditor and treasurer received no compensation that year. The following year Mr. Gray was succeeded by Henry G. Fay.

Mr. Gray now seeks to recover the $400 for his services as treasurer of the Woodwood Fund as provided by ordinance at the time of his appointment.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Bill of the Street Railway Men Substituted

Efforts in the House on Wednesday to reconsider the vote in favor of direct election of U. S. senators was defeated, the vote being 89 to 115. Representative Thomas was in favor and Representative Langelier opposed to reconsideration.

By vote of 164 to 37, on roll call, the Conday bill was substituted for the adverse report of the committee, providing that street railway employees shall not be permitted to work more than a ten hour day, and that it shall be performed in eleven consecutive hours.

The O'Brien amendment to the salary bill of the Gas Commissioners was defeated on roll call 80 to 117, and the bill increasing the salaries to $5,000 and $4,500 was passed to be engrossed 126 to 70.

The half fare bill for Normal school pupils on street railways was defeated in the Senator 16 to 18, Senator Hultman voting no.

The eight hour bill was passed by the Senate to be engrossed without division.

The Senate decided that the Harbor and Land Commissioners should decide the question of how many bridges should be built over the Cape Cod canal.

—The business men of Natick are to make an organized effort to regain lost business. Visitors to the town have remarked that the fact that the Natick today, in business activity and general appearance of thrift, is considerably below standard shown 25 years ago. Among the causes which have contributed to this decline, the half dozen or more legalized rum shops which were maintained as local institutions should not be overlooked. The sale of rum carries with it blight everywhere. There is a large number of misguided people in Natick who vote every year for the re-establishment of the rumshops: the public spirited citizen who is working to regain trade for the town should labor to the end that the poisonous saloons do not again get a foothold. —Needham Chronicle.

WHIST PARTY.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. George Dexheimer entertained Jolly Sixteen ,at the home of John Smith, Baxter street. As each lady entered the room one at a time, she was given a pretty little box of the sun bonnet babies series ,enclosed in which was a card, bearing a short quotation. Then followed the gentleman, each receiving an ash tray of the same series, with a quotation to match one of the ladies, these when matched were partners at the first hand of whist also at lunch. Each napkin was marked in the same way. After playing whist for two hours, souvenirs were awarded Mrs. Dexheimer, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Hammond and Mr. Hammond and consolation to Mrs. Merritt and Mr. Howe, after which lunch was served, consisting of lobsters and potato salad, rolls, olives, cake, tea, coffee, and cocoa. Fruit punch was also served in a handsome hand painted punch bowl.

The meetings of this club are always looked forward to for a jolly pleasant evening is always given by every one who entertains but when it comes the worthy president and wife turn to act host, things do certainly hum for the old saying, "let George do it," is always fulfilled for George certainly does it O. K.

LOCAL SPORTS.

Eight members of the Wollaston Golf club are entered in the open tournament of the Country Club at Brookline today; George Wright, John Morrill, J. H. Churchill, T. M. Claflin, R. R. Freeman, H. L. Doten, Robert J. Dunkle, G. A. White.

—We will not attempt to point out the persons and classes that in Europe and America are saying that there are three institutions which must be swept away; namely, the State, the Church and the family. If we should accuse any one in particular of holding such an atrocious doctrine, denial would be prompt and we should be accused of making a malicious statement. The fact, nevertheless, remains that there are many men and women in Europe and America who sometimes in private, sometimes in public, but always with passion ,are asserting themselves against the government ,against the church, and against the family. Whoever they are, they are undesirable citizens.—Christian Register.

—Even clams, the famous product of our Atlantic shore, have felt the effect of high prices, and those who eat them this year must content themselves with smaller helps, or pay more money says the Old Colony Memorial.

WAGNER AND COBB COMPARED

How Two Greatest Ball Players In Game Size Up.

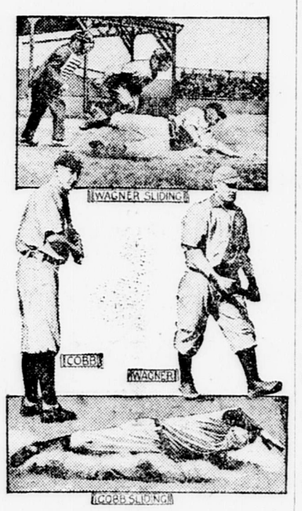

DIFFERENT STYLES OF THE MEN

Tyrus Wins Admiration by His Grace, While Honus Awes One by His Bulk—Both Have Achieved Great Results.

As has been the case for the past few seasons, Hans Wagner of the Pittsburg Nationals and Tyrus Cobb of the Detroit Americans are again corralling all the batting and base running honors of their respective leagues. Nearly every spring reports from the training camps tell that the equals or superiors of these two stars have been found. But shortly after the season opens these would be greats fall by the wayside. There is only one Ty Cobb and one Hans Wagner. They are the two greatest players in the game today.

The comparison between Cobb and Wagner is an interesting one. Both achieve great results, but not in the same manner. Wagner is a ponderously perfect athlete, while Cobb, a slender, delicate appearing chap, possesses ability which is constantly brought to the surface by his brilliant plays and the wonderful spirit that has made him envied and hated by others.

Both men are wonderful hitters, wonderful base runners and wonderful fielders. For more than twelve years

HOW THE TWO GREAT PLAYERS PERFORM ON THE DIAMOND.

Wagner has kept up a dizzy pace. He has played every position and, not only that, has been a sensation in all. He has the speed of Cobb, the terrific hitting powers of Lajoie, the energy of Jennings and the disposition of Willie Keeler. Cobb, on the other hand, has been setting the kingly pace for but four years.

But how different they are! You point to Cobb with pride as the ideal ball player, and then you watch Hans Wagner and smile at the comparison, for all that Cobb is, except in ability to "get there," Wagner isn't.

In action Ty Cobb comes closer to the athletic ideal than any other man in baseball. Built like a greyhound, his lithe body is always a study.

Wagner is without precedent in the athletic world. As Cobb wins admiration by his grace, Wagner awes one by his bulk. Wagner just bulges all over. He has to have shoes made to order, he is cramped in an ordinary bed, he eats a meal worthy of three men, and his hands are as big as good sized hams.

When Wagner wabbles to the plate swinging his great bat it looks as if Gibraltar were toppling over. But when he is set to swing there is action —wonderful action.

Wagner can run the hundred yards in close to ten seconds any time during a season's play. He doesn't sprint in the sense of the word, nor does he gallop. No one has been quite able to describe just what he does, but he gets there.

In fielding it's the same way. In Hans' great hands the ball assumes the size of a pea or close to it. The most terrific drive in his direction becomes a puny tap when he reaches for it.

Wagner hits .300 every year by force of habit. He has no equal at short, and his base running is always of the best. He is paid probably the biggest salary of any player in the game.

Cobb is a study. Just picture yourself as you are. Imagine seeing your picture in the paper every night in every town you went to with lines under it to the effect that fifteen or more men in every city had vowed to "get you." Wouldn't you feel a little squeamish, and wouldn't you the next time you went out be a little more careful?

But not Tyrus. For four years now threats have been made against him by every disgruntled player he has shown up. But he has kept right on playing better ball every day, and now he stands with only one man as his rival, and that is Wagner.

SMALL MEN AS SLEUTHS

Gaynor Thinks They Make Better Detectives Than Big Ones

New York, May 11.—Epicetus and Themistocles having been turned to the wall. Mayor Gaynor has now added Julius Caesar to his gallery of ancients whom he employs to illustrate his points. The mayor last night declared that small men, "even hunchbacks and singed cats," should be employed as detectives.

Mayor Gaynor today explained what a "singed cat" was. Julius Caesar, it appears, was a "singed cat," being a small man with sharp features.

The mayor said he thought it foolish that all the city detectives should be so big that they could be seen a block away.

Purchase and Sale of Human Beings Is Prohibited Henceforth

Washington, May 11.—The Chinese government by imperial rescript has abolished slavery throughout the empire, and has prohibited henceforth the purchase and sale of human beings under any pretext.

The reform, however, is not altogether complete, as by the rescript certain forms of slavery will still be tolerated, retainers of princelings failing to secure entire freedom.

JOINT CELEBRATION OF ANNIVERSARY

Odd Fellows Entertain Ladies and Few Other Guests

Musical Program, Refreshments and Dancing

American Odd Fellowship is now nearly 100 years old, and seems to increase in popularity each year. A joint celebration of the 91st anniversary was held in Quincy on Thursday evening by George L. Gill Rebekah lodge, Mount Wollaston lodge, John Hancock lodge and Manet encampment, and it was the occasion of a very large gathering. Every available seat in Alpha hall was taken by members of the order and their friends. It was the first time that a joint celebration has been attempted in a public hall, but it was so successful that it may be repeated annually.

The entertainment was given wholly by Boston talent, which included the Serenaders Sig Carlo Carcotto, Walter Vreeland and P. H. Foley—who were assisted by Col. Aurion V. Cheevers, the vocal flute soloist, and William F. Wentworth, reader and impersonator.

The Serenaders immediately established themselves in the popularity of the audience with their overture on mandola, mandolin and guitar, and were encored. The Serenaders were down for three numbers, but assistd in all the solo numbers. "The Darkies' carnival as arranged by Mr. Vreeland was one of the hits of the evening. The Mexican musical discs was a novelty, and the trick violin solo and xylophone solo pleasing numbers.

How Col. Cheevers could imitate so cleverly the flute in his rendition of "The mocking bird," and "Annie Laurie" was wonderful, as was also his unique dancing dolls. His impersonation in speech was also good. pediment in speech was also good.

Mr. Wentworth was down for four numbers, but gave as many more on encores. In several he took two or more parts very successfully,, and his selections covered a wide range. One of his best was the popular preacher, where he used only the letters of the alphabet.

Following the entertainment in Alpha hall, ice cream and cake were served in Union hall. Then all returned to Alpha hall for dancing. Music was furnished by the I. O. O. F. orchestra of Wollaston, and it was with regret that the midnight hour came so soon.

CITY SQUARE LIGHTING.

The flaming arc light in front of Murphy's drug store lights up the corner of Granite and Hancock street in fine shape. If one of these lights could be placed on Hancock street in front of the Hancock cemetery it would be a good thing. At the present time this is a very dark spot, as the light on the corner of Temple and Hancock street does not seem to light up the west side of the street owing to the numerous trees. An exhibition of how the street should be lighted will probably be shown during Merchant's week, when it is planned to have sixteen or more of these lights in City Square between Music hall and Saville street.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS

Organize an Association at Massachusetts Fields School

The new parents and teachers association promises to be a valuable help to the Massachusetts Fields school, as 75 mothers, fathers, teachers and friends gathered at the school on Tuesday evening. The objects of the organization are mutual, social and for the civic betterment of Wollaston Park and vicinity.

These officers were elected for one year:

President—Miss Ruth Taylor.
Vice President—Harry A. Stevens.
Secretary—Burpee Banks.
Treasurer,—Mrs. Frank Larkin.
Executive Committee—the officers above and Mrs. E. D. Atkins, John Morris and Seth Crocker.

The importance of a school playground received first attention, and the following committee of three was appointed to consider the purchase of an available lot,—Frederick Northrop, Leon Besse and George Haskins.

Mrs. Judson Smith and D. H. Goodspeed were appointed a committee to see if electric lights could be placed in the room of Grade VIII.

The association have many things under consideration which in time they hope to accomplish.

BRIEFS

The ladies of St. Stephen's Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, are arranging to present the chapter at an early date with a silk American flag.

The condition of J. Arthur Sparrow is again giving anxiety, just as the surgeons felt sure that the operation had proved successful, it became apparent that a second one was necessary and his arm was operated on again Thursday.

The regular mid-week meeting was held at the First Presbyterian church Thursday evening. A very interesting lecture on the missionary work in Korea was given by Mr. Miller who has just returned from that field.

The Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church held a social in honor of their president John Charles on Thursday evening. They regret that Mr. Charles will leave next week for Barre, Vt. Games were played and refreshments served Mr. Charles was pesented a traveling bag by the society.

One of the amusing incidents at the launch of the Sterett on Thursday was the leap frog exhibition by Councilman Bryant and Sandberg. The ex-Mayor got rather the worst of the game. Councilman Sandberg also gave an exhibition of a standing jump, proving to his friends that although stout he is quite an athlete.

BEAUTIFUL NEW CHURCH

Will Be Erected by Atlantic Congregational Society

Plans for the new $20,000 church home of the Atlantic Memorial church have been filed with the Inspector of Buildings for approval. The building which will be of wood will be located on the site of the old church at the corner of Newbury avenue and Sagamore street. Kendall & Taylor are the architects and George E. Thomas the builder. The main building will be 87 by 47 feet.

In the basement there are to be a nuumber of rooms that will greatly assist in carrying on the church work. There is a ladies' parlor 23 by 16 feet, and a women's room 16 by 11 feet, a men's room 15 by 11 feet, pantry and boiler rooms. The Sunday School room will also be located in the basement. The main Sunday School room is to be 40 by 26 feet. There is also to be a room for the primary department. This will be 18 by 21 feet.

The main entrance to the edifice will be on the corner of Newbury avenue and Sagamore streets. This entrance leads into a lobby 13 by 13 feet. From here entrance is had to the chapel on the Newbury avenue side. This chapel is to be 21 by 27 feet. There is also an entrance to the main auditorium room from the lobby. The dimension of the auditorium is 51 by 36 feet. It will be supplied with 52 pews which will give a seating capacity of about 300.

The pulpit is to be located on the end toward the depot, and back of the pulpit platform is the organ loft and choir. Over the chapel on the Newbury side is a balcony that will seat upwards of fifty people.

The building will be surmounted by a bell tower to be located over the lobby on the corner of Newbury avenue and Sagamore street. When completed, it will make a fine building and give to the people of the church an edifice that has long been needed.

A large part of the funds necessary to erect the new church were raised by popular subscription among the residents of that section of the city during a week's campaign. The balance was subscribed by the Congregational house.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It is good for any party to have disappointed candidates as well as talk like good losers.

Nevertheless, we are firm in the faith that straw hats will be reasonably numerous around and about the streets by July 4, anyway.

A Chicago man has discovered that by setting his phonograph to playing Wagnerian music he can stop the cat yowling in the neighborhood at night. His neighbors however, seem to prefer the cat yowling.

Steps should be taken to stop bicycle riding on our side walks. Several persons have narrowly escaped being run down by men and boys old enough to know that the street is the place for them to ride.

DRIFT OF OPINION

Rev. Arthur L. Howe of Malden, in an address before a civic improvement association, makes a plea for a systematic plan of city bulding and development. He would have cooperation on the part of all citizens toward a definite purpose in the development of cities. "Such a civic movement," he declares, "would greatly assist in making the city a city of beautiful homes, streets, park drives, buildings, a city healthful and comfortable, a happy home for the wage earner where he can bring up his children in good surroundings, educate them in good schools, pay a minimum tax and lay aside enough to povide for old age. A city which strives to do this will fulfill its great mission."—Chelsea Record.

WORLD'S AVIATION MEET

Aero Club Decides That Contest Will Occur In New York

New York, May 13.—America's first international aviation meet for the championship of the world will be held on Long Island. The last international meet, at which Glenn H. Curtiss of Hammondsport, N. Y., won the Bennett trophy, was held last year at Rheims.

Several cities have been interested bidders for the contest, but the Aero Club of America selected New York because it believes the transportation lines here are better equipped to handle large crowds, and because foreign aviators have signified a disinclination to undertake the expense of a long land trip after crossing the ocean.

The exact site for the course has not been definitely chosen, but it will be somewhere on the Hempstead plains, L. I., just outside the limits of New York city.

PLEDGED AGAINST CLARK

Many Democrats Plan to Check His Aspirations For Speakership

Washington, May 13.—Definite plans are under way to prevent the election of Champ Clark as speaker of the next house in the event that the Democrats are in the majority. This statement was made by a Democrat who has heretofore been regarded as one of Clark's followers.

"There are between thirty and forty Democrats," said this man, "who have already pledged themselves to vote against Clark for speaker, and there will be many more before the next congress. The plans to prevent Clark's election have gone so far that at least one Democrat will announce his candidacy for the speakership in a few weeks."

INDULGE IN HAIR PULLING

Clash Between Women Strikers and Strikebreakers In Lynn

Lynn, Mass., May 13.—A dozen of the women buttonhole operators of the Watson Shoe company, who are on strike, clashed with the strike breakers yesterday afternoon, pulling hair and scratching each other.

These women have been on strike for the past two weeks and have been most aggressive in keeping their places at the factory vacant. The fight was stopped by the arrival of police. No arrests were made.

EIGHT STUDENTS DROWNED

One Lad Sacrifices Life In Trying to Save Others

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 13.—Eight high school students, six girls and two boys, lost their lives while boating on what is known as the Old Paper Mill Dam at Huntington Mills.

The dead are: Maud Sutliffe, Carolyn Koons, Ruth Bonham, Iris Davenport, Rachel Thompson, Madeline Good, Robert Minnich, Ray Dodson.

Twelve students of the Huntington high school got two boats and started for a row on the dam. When the two crafts had reached the centre it was noticed that one of them had sprung aleak and an effort was made to transfer the girls from the leaky boat to the safer craft.

The last one of the girls had scarcely set foot in the boat when it began to sink, owing to the combined weight of the party. The girls were helpless to save themselves and the boys in the party, with the exception of Dodson, being expert swimmers, struck out for the shore, which all reached in safety.

Minnich had no sooner gained the bank than he noticed the girls hanging to the rapidly sinking boat.

The boy dashed into the water and swam to the water-filled craft. Only two of the girls were clinging to the boat, the others having gone down. Seizing Miss Davenport, Minnich again started for the shore, but the exertion was too much for the lad and the two went down together.

CHILD ATTACKED BY LION

Terribly Torn by Trained Animal In a Tennessee Show

Cleveland, Tenn., May 13.—A trained lion, while exhibiting on an open stage here, suddenly became bloodthirsty and snatched a baby from the arms of its mother, carried it to the back of the stage and dashed it to the floor. Planting both fore paws on the little one's body, the beast licked the blood from the wounds on the baby's head and face.

Frantic spectators, seizing anything available as weapons, advanced on the lion and diverted its attention, while a man snatched the baby from the stage. The child is terribly torn and may die. The keeper finally got the lion back into its cage.

STEAMER HITS ROCK CLOSE TO SHORE

Thirteen Lives Lost as She Turns Turtle and Sinks

St. Louis, May 13.—After a thorough search it is declared that thirteen lives were lost when the river steamer City of Saltillo tore out her botton on a rock and, turning turtle, sank off Glen Park, Mo., twenty-four miles south of here. Many of the survivors of the twenty-seven passengers aboard at the time of the accident are in a serious condition.

The accident occurred while the passengers were retiring or were already abed. The high stage of the river, it is said, deceived the pilot, who took his vessel too near shore. She struck a rock and pivoting on that careened and then toppled side ways.

In the wild scramble of the passengers and the crew—more than fifty persons all told—there was not time to account for all. It was each one for himself. So close was the ship to the shore, that after the first moment of excitement a board was thrown from the ship to the bank, and across that men, women and children in the dark crept to safety.

NEARLY $1000 IN FINES

Liquor Selling Proves Costly Business For a Maine Druggist

Alfred, Me., May 13.—Fines aggregating between $900 and $1000, for liquor selling, were imposed on George G. Brown, a Sanford druggist, and paid. He was charged with ten single sales, for which he was fined $50 and costs each, with being a common seller, for which he was fined $100 and costs, and with conducting a nuisance. The last charge was continued.

Brown's clerk, E. Cooture, paid fines of $50 and costs each for three single sales and $100 and costs for being a common seller. Brown sold out his business last week.

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

Brief Sketch of Quincy Light Intantry

(HISTORICAL PAPER NO. 17.)

A brief sketch of the Quincy Light infantry, which was a popular military organization of the town from 1790 to 1847, recalled several grand celebrations in Quincy between those dates. Pattee's History of Old Braintree and Quincy says:

This old and venerated company was incorporated in 1790 and was celebrated for high military character During its existence it was called upon to perform escort duty on all public occasions. In its ranks, for over half a century, were found many of our most influential citizens. The company was first organized by making choice of Daniel Baxter as captain; Peter Brackett, lieutenant; John Newcomb, ensign; Eliphalet Chandler, drummer; Benjamin Cleverly, fifer, who agreed to fife for the company when on regular duty for three shillings per day—all other times, gratis. The captain agreed to furnish him with a uniform coat, the cloth to cost twelve shillings per yard, with the understanding that Mr. Cleverly was to return the uniform when he resigned his position.

At their first meeting they decided, by a vote of the company, that no spirituous liquors should be brought to the place of military exercises, and agreed to celebrate "Independence Day" in the following complete uniform:—"Blue coats, buff waistcoats and breeches, guns all alike, white stockings, half gaiters and powdered hair."

The first time they were called into service was in 1814, Sunday afternoon, June 11, when an alarm was given by the ringing of bells, that the enemy were going to attack Cohasset, but instead of that, they entered Scituate Harbor and burned several vessels. In 1812, the town allowed each man detached from the military companies one dollar per day when called out to do duty, in consequence of such detachment. That whenever they shall be called on by proper authorities to march to a distance, the town will make up to them the sum of twenty dollars per month, including the pay by the government, and to deduct one year's interest if paid within two months of date.

Sept. 12, 1814, the company under the command of Capt. Thomas Tirrell, agreeable to general orders, marched to Boston Common, where they reported to the Adjutant-General, and were ordered to South Boston, and went into barracks. They remained here without any important event, until Oct. 30, 1814, when they broke camp, and began their march for Quincy at 12 o'clock noon, and arrived in town af 3 o'clock, P. M.

Sunday morning, Nov. 5, 1814, the company proceeded to the First Church for the purpose of a public acknowledgment to "Almighty God for preserving them from the perils of war, and permitting them to return safely to their homes and families."

July 18, 1817, marched to Roxbury, where they were ordered to do guard duty on the reception of the President James Munroe of the United States.

1819. Escorted the citizens and Mr. Whitney ,orator of the day, to the First church, after which they partook of a dinner at the Town House.

July 4, 1823, the company celebrated this day by a public parade ,and marched to the Town House, where they enjoyed a sumptuous dinner, provided for them by the much-esteemed school-master, Mr. Seaver. On this occasion the venerable John Adams the ex-President of the United States, honored them with his presence.

July 5, 1824, the company proceeded to the house of the Rev. Peter Whitney ,and there received the following gentlemen, viz:—Messrs. Whitney, Cutler, Colman, Brooks and Geo. W. Adams, Esq. They then marched to the meeting-house of the First Church, where an oration was delivered by Mr. Adams.

This oration was published. After the services they closed the festivities of the day by a dinner at the town hall.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

"From Sunny Italy to the North End" is the subject of a free illustrated lecture to be given at the Hall Place M. E. church, Monday evening, under the auspices of Fowler Chapter of the Methodist Brotherhood. This lecture is given by George Mecklenburg in the interests of the North End Italian Hospital fund. He tells of the various experiences that befall the immigrants; the conditions they leave and the conditions they meet here, everything which comes to them from the time they leave their own sunny clime in Italy until they reach the crowded North End of Boston, and pictures it all so accurately and earnestly that the poor condition and need of these people cannot fail to touch the hearts of the people.

The following comments have been noted:

"An intensely interesting and instructive evening." Lexington Minuteman. "From Sunny Italy to the North End" was the subject of a most thrilling story as told by Geo. Necklenburg in the Harvard church last night.—Brookline Press.

Through the eye gate and the ear gate he informs the mind, touches the heart, and moves the will.—Rev. O. P. Gifford, D. D.

This lecture will be given free but during the evening a voluntary offering will be taken. This money will be used in building a hospital for the Italian people in the North End. The public is cordially invited to be present.

Many people will doubtless remember the interesting stereopticon lecture, Mr. Mecklenburg gave at this church on New Year's eve on his travels through the various countries of Europe, which proved helpful and instructive to all present. He is an interesting speaker, picturing vividly and riveting on the minds of his hearers the details of his story, and with such a speaker the evening will be a profitable one.

AT THE MOODY SCHOOLS.

Rev. F. B. Meyer of London, England, who is to conduct a course of lectures at Mt. Vernon, the late D. L. Moody's school for young men, and to be the commencement speaker at Northfield Seminary, the Moody School for girls, is at present making an extended tour of the United States in the interest of the World's Sunday School Association of which he is President. The tour which began March 15th included visits to New Orleans, Dallas, Mobile, Nashville, Louisville, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Minneapolis, Chicago, Detroit Cleveland, Indianapolis, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Newark, Brooklyn and Boston. Mr. Meyer will take a leading part at the Sixth World's Sunday School Convention held May 24th at Washington, D. C., and on June 1st will arrive at Northfield, Mass. for his engagements at the Moody Schools. After his commencement address on June 14th, he will return to London.

MILESTONE RESTORED

Now Eight Miles to Boston But Was Formerly Ten

The Quincy Historical society has caused the old mile stone that was set in the wall in front of the Nancy Brackett estate on Hancock street to be reset. A square block of polished granite has been set in the wall ,and in this is the old mile stone, on the face of which is the following "B 10." This denotes that point is ten miles to the State House, Boston, via. of Adams street over Milton hill. The 11-mile stone was formerly located on Franklin street near the residence of the late Quincy Tirrell. Going north the 9-mile stone is located on the south side on Adams street near the corner of Common street, and the 8-mile stone beyond the railroad crossing in East Milton.

The face of the polished block of Quincy granite, set in the wall of the Brackett estate, in which the old mile stone has been set has the folloying inscription: "This milestone erected about 1730—Restored 1910—by the Quincy Historical Society."

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Senator Hultman Helps to Kill Direct Elections

By a vote of 59 to 40 the Metropolitan council bill for Boston and vicinity was rejected in the House on Thursday.

The House has reversed its action on the resolve of the Woman's Educational and Industrial Union, and it now has a place in the calendar.

The bill to extend civil service in Boston was ordered to a third reading. The House turned down the Ways and Means committee, and refused to reject bill for protection of faithful and efficient employees.

The House substituted for an adverse report the Knight resolve for an investigation by the chairmen of the railroad, gas and corporation commissions of the common control of gas, electric light and street railway companies by persons, firms, association and corporations.

The Senate rejected the resolve to annex the U. S. constitution so as to provide for the election of senators by direct vote. Senator Hultman was with the majority, the vote being 11 to 22.

The resolve in favor of voting machines was passed 18 to 12.

The resolve for an amendment to the constitution to permit cities to acquire by eminent domain the whole of estates, a part of which is to be used for highway improvements, was passed to be engrosed on a roll call, 21 to 0.

SUCCUMBS TO POISON

Doctors Fail In Effort to Save the Life of Former Chorus Girl

New York, May 13.—Despite the efforts made to save her life by the physicians of the Flower hospital staff, Mrs. Florence Heynemann, a former chorus girl, died in that institution from the effects of a dose of lysol.

The young woman had been despondent for some time. After taking the poison a note was left by Mrs. Heynemann addressed to the press in which she asked that no notoriety be given to her suicide.

Natives of South Africa Think It a Conveyance For King Edward

Durban, South Africa, May 13.—The death of King Edward, coinciding with the appearance of Halley's comet, which is now visible here, has created a belief in the minds of the natives that the stellar vagrant is nothing more than a great fiery chariot to carry the white king's soul to heaven.

As a result there has been incantations among the tribes here.

PROMPT GROCERY SERVICE

Yesterday morning a new customer said, "Where could I get rich roast beef and have it delivered before 11 o'clock. It must come strictly fresh from the Boston market every morning." Our clerk replied, "Evidently you don't know, madam, that our auto-truck goes to the Boston market every morning just exactly for that purpose, and goes early enough to get the best vegetables in the market, too." This customer left an order.

A CITY BEAUTIFUL AT WEST QUINCY

Ward Four Improvement Association Hopeful for Civic Betterment

A Grand Outing Proposed for Near Future.

A regular meeting of the Ward Four Improvement association was held Thursday evening and was largely attended. A number of matters of interest to the ward were taken up and discussed. The committee appointed to attend the July Fourth celebration made its report and the association pledged itself to do all it could to make the celebration a success.

The vacant lot on the corner of Copeland and Cross streets has been used to a considerable extend as a dump for old rubbish and has become an eye-sore. The question of improving this corner was taken up and discussed, and the owner gave his permission of the Board of Health to post signs forbidding rubbish dumping.

It was voted to ask the Ledger to call the attention to the residents of the ward that now was the time to clean up yards and plant flowers and grass seed, in order later on that the ward may become a city beautiful. Also to call attention to the notice of the Board of Health in regard to removing rubbish.

The question of a connecting street railway link between East Milton and Pierce's hill at Dorchester was again brought up, and as there is a possibility of several new industries locating between East Milton and the Granite bridge it was argued that if the link was built it would be of great benefit to West Quincy.

The question of organizing a loan fund association to aid residents in erection of modern houses was brought up and discussed, but no definite action taken.

It was voted to hold a grand outing in the near future at Braintree pond, and a committee consisting of John Evans, John Casey, Joseph Walker, Thomas Cahill, John Burke, Morris Cohen and John D. Smith was appointed to make the necessary arrangements. This commitee will submit its report at the next meeting at which time the date for the outing will be fixed.

HARDEST WORKED BRITISH OFFICIAL

King George Finds That He Has No Time to Fritter Away

London, May 13.—From a life of comparative ease and retirement, King George suddenly finds himself the hardest worked official in the kingdom. In addition to spending considerable time daily at Buckingham palace, comforting his widowed mother, he has to attend to multifarious duties connected with receiving and entertaining the royal guests and arranging the difficult details of the lying-in-state and the funeral of his father.

Seven o'clock each morning finds the king at his desk in Marlborough house to reply to the innumerable messages of condolence, and to receive his ministers and the officials who have to do with the obsequies.

LARCENY OF $104,000

Charged Against Hall, Who Is Indicted on Fifteen Counts

Worcester, Mass., May 13.—The grand jury of Worcester county returned an indictment against John A. Hall, the Southbridge bank treasurer, on fifteen counts for stealing $104,000 from the Southbridge Savings bank.

Hall, who has been in jail awaiting trial much of the time since last January when he surrendered himself following the discovery of the shortage in the bank's accounts, did not plead to the indictment. It is expected he will be brought into court to face the charge some time next week.

That "Corner" Is Needed to Complete Good Work

Editor of the Ledger:

Shall we not? Can we not? Have all the land needed to show our fine Library building to the best possible advantage? The opportunity afforded by the special appropriation of the City Council once lost may be forever lost. Wollaston joins hands with Quincy in urging the completion of the deal.

We are beginning to take pride in showing visitors our local attractions. The home of two Presidents ought not to suffer the humility of a business structure detracting from the beauty and dignity of the surroundings of our splendid Library building. This is not a commercial but a civic question. Is it too much to ask the directors of the Mutual Insurance Co. to cut the Gordian knot and solve the problem by accepting the sum appropriated by the Council and remove their offices to another spot as well located for business purposes as the present site?

This generation earnestly requests the favor and future generations will be grateful for the concession to civic pride and need.

We feel sure the insurance officials will yield something—much if need be—to a sentiment which is growing stronger daily. Let our children witness an exhibition of generosity in a transaction where gentlemen with such an opportunity will waive the quid pro quo, look at this matter with breadth of vision and make some sacrifice for the greatest good to the greatest number.

ROOSEVELT ON CIVILIZATION

It Will Not Fall Unless It Is Deserved and Earned

HOMELY VIRTUES ARE NEEDED

Future of Nation Demands That Men Possess Qualities Which Are at Basis of Family Life—Unjust War to Be Abhorred, but Nation Unprepared For It Will Suffer—What Civilization Has Done For Japan

Berlin, May 13.—Theodore Roosevelt has taken his place with the savants of Germany, delivering an address at the University of Berlin. As the former president left the hall he was mobbed by cheering crowds that broke through the cordons of police. A squad of mounted men, flourishing sabres, rescued Roosevelt with difficulty and he was whisked off by auto to the American embassy.

The kaiser and the kaiserin were among the foremost in the audience, which also included the first men of the nation in official, military and scientific circles. The degree of doctor of philosophy was conferred upon Roosevelt.

Taking for his topic "The World Movement," and tracing the progress of the human race, Roosevelt sounded a warning to modern society. After comparing modern civilization with those that have gone before it, he said:

"There are signs that bode ill. The machinery is so high-geared, the tension and strain are so great, that there is cause to dread the ruin that would come from any great accident, or from the mere wearing out of the machine itself."

In concluding, he reverted to this phase of his subject, saying: "We shall not go down in ruin unless we deserve and earn our end. There is no necessity for us to fall. Personally, I do not believe that our civilization will fall."

Modern conditions, he said, gave the human race for the first time something approaching a world civilization. "We, the men of today and of the future," he said, "need many qualities if we are to do our work well. We need, first of all and most important of all, the qualifications which stand at the base of individual, of family life, the fundamental and essential qualities—the homely, everyday, all-important virtues.

"If the average man will not work, if he has not in him the will and the power to be a good husband and father; if the average woman is not a good housewife, a good mother of many healthy children, then the state will topple, will go down, no matter what may be its brilliance of artistic development or material achievement.

"But these homely qualities are not enough. There must, in addition, be that power of working in common for a common end. Moreover, the things of the spirit are even more important than the things of today. We can well do without the hard intolerance and arid intellectual barrenness of what was worst in the theological systems of the past, but there has never been greater need of a high and fine religious spirit than at the present time.

"Unjust war is to be abhorred; but woe to the nation that does not make ready to hold its own in time of need against all who would harm it; and woe thrice over to the nation in which the average man loses the fighting edge, loses the power to serve as a soldier if the day of need should arise.

"Each people can do justice to itself only if it does justice to others; but each people can do its part in the world movement for all only if it first does its duty within its own household."

A notable paragraph in the speech refers to Japan. After declaring that in some phases modern civilization is inferior to past, he cites Japan as "the most extraordinary instance when an alien people is profoundly and radically changed by the mere impact of western civilization. Japan's growth and change in the last half century has been in many ways the most striking phenomenon of all history. Intensely proud of her past, with a single effort she wrenched herself free from all hampering ancient ties and with a bound has taken her place among the leading civilized nations of mankind."

FINANCIAL PACE TOO FAST

Fairbanks Declined to Be Ambassador to Court of St. James

Washington, May 13.—Renewals of the rumor that former Vice President Fairbanks may succeed Whitelaw Reid as ambassador to the court of St. James, meet with no color of confirmation here in important quarters.

It has been said here upon good authority, and never contradicted, that Fairbanks was offered and refused the post before starting upon his recent tour of the globe. Reid is a man of enormous wealth, and has developed the social functions of the ambasadorship to a degree impossible for a man of any but unlimited means.

Mr. Fairbanks, while possessing a comfortable old-fashioned fortune, could not follow such a pace. His friends intimate, in fact, that he was influenced to decline the post, partly by the knowledge that it would entail heavy personal expenditures.

DIRECT VOTE BILL KILLED IN SENATE

Had Passed Lower Branch of Massachusetts Legislature

Boston, May 13.—The senate without debate killed the Riley resolve in favor of the election of United States senators by direct vote by a roll call vote of 11 to 22. The question was on adopting the resolve. It had already passed the house, despite a futile attempt of the Republican machine to kill it in the lower branch. The house vote in favor was 116 to 110.

Three Republican members broke away from the party traces and joined the Democrats in voting for the measure. Three other Republican senators were absent or didn't vote.

HIBBARD HAS TUBERCULOSIS

Former Mayor Makes Announcement and Appeals For a Respite

Boston, May 13.—Closely following the rejection of the appointment of former Mayor Hibbard as city collector by the civil service commission came the announcement by Hibbard himself that he is suffering from tuberculosis.

The latter information led Mayor Fitzgerald to express his most bitter criticism of the commission, to the effect that the members have dealt the former mayor his death blow.

Mr. Hibbard, in his announcement of his condition, appeals for "a little respite" from the citizens of Boston, for he says that he is out of public life and yesterday his physician discovered that he had tuberculosis in his right lung. He says he stands convicted before the civil service commission of a charge, he knows not what.

This will be Chapman's second marriage, his first wife having died several years ago. He has a daughter married and residing in Chicago, a son who is now attending Williams college and two smaller children.

FRITZ HEINZE IS ACQUITTED

Not Guilty of Misapplying Mercantile Bank Funds

FRIENDS SHOUT IN COURT

Announcement of Verdict by Foreman of Jury the Signal For Great Demonstration of Joy by Men and Women Whose Sympathy Was With "Copper King"—Government Fails In Case Which It Pressed Very Hard

New York, May 13.—Fritz A. Heinze was acquitted last night of charges of misapplying the funds of the Mercantile National bank while he was president of the institution in 1907, and he was cleared of the charge of overcertifying the checks of his brother's firm, Otto Heinze & Co. A jury in the criminal branch of the United States circuit court, after a trial lasting nearly three weeks, found him not guilty and he was discharged.

When the jury filed in at 9:39 and announced a verdict had been agreed upon the courtroom was very quiet. Heinze showed no trace of nervousness. When Foreman Lovell of the jury announced: "We find the defendant not guilty" his voice rose to a hysterical shout.

Instantly the courtroom was in an uproar. It was crowded with the defendant's friends, who shrieked exultantly and gave loud hurrahs of joy. Marshals finally restored order, while the jurymen filed out of court. As each juror left his seat Heinze shook his hand warmly. Men and women pressed eagerly forward and surrounded Heinze and, sweeping through the railed inclosure, embraced him. During this disorder Judge Hough quietly left the bench.

Heinze by this time was laughing hysterically as he received the kisses of his women relatives and the congratulations and back-slapping of the men. Out into the corridor he was pushed, where the scene of enthusiasm and disorder was repeated.

Thus failed ingloriously the government's attempt to hold Heinze responsible for financiering, during the panic of three years ago, alleged to be in violation of the national banking laws.

Think of Last Summer--

does away with all drudgery of cooking. Why should you be a slave to a coal range when you can have an Oil Cook-Stove that is cheaper than coal, cleaner than coal, doesn't "smell," doesn't smoke, lights instantly, can be put out instantly, leaves no ashes, and doesn't heat the kitchen. With one of these stoves you can boil, bake or roast the most elaborate dinner. You can change from a slow to a quick fire, or the other way about, by simply turning a wick. Apply a match, and instantly the heat from an intense blue flame shoots upward through the turquoise-blue enamel chimneys to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven—but nowhere else. The stove has every convenience that can be thought of: Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping food and dishes hot, drop shelves to hold coffee or teapots, towel rack; in fact every convenience possible.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

A farce and the liveliest of its kind. That is the best description that can be given of "My Wife," which is to be the play at the Castle Square next week. It will be chiefly remembered as the leading play in John Drew's repertory a season or two ago, and also that in its title character Billie Burke made a hit that carried her to stardom. It now comes to the Castle Square for its first stock production in Boston. Adapted by the ingenious Michael Morton from the French, its plot tells how a light-hearted and pleasant young man assumes the guardianship of a beautiful girl, and how they soon fall into love and marriage with each other. It is a clever piece of work, laughable and entertaining, from beginning to end, and it promises to rival in laugh-giving qualities, both "Are You a Mason?" and "The Marriage of Kitty." In the Castle Square production the heroine, Beatrice Dupre, will be made lovely and merry by Mary Young, who is especially clever at the interpretation of such roles. The character dominates the play from beginning to end, and Miss Young will be the centre of its attractions. The John Craig Stock Company will fill out the other roles. "My Wife," will hold the Castle Square for only a single week.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The annual appearance at Keith's of Valerie Bergere has become an event of importance, particularly for the reason that on each succeeding visit Miss Bergere has presented something entirely new. The present occasion, however, is one of more than ordinary moment, for she will be surrounded by the largest company of players ever seen in vaudeville, and in a production which may be said to be the most elaborate. It is called "The Lion Tamer," and as may be imagined, has all the atmosphere of the circus, but there is a love story running through the rather deep plot, which, of course, works out satisfactorily after some exciting scenes. Since Miss Bergere made her first great hit in Belasco's "Madam Butterfly," she has been recognized as one of the greatest vaudeville audiences and having that gift it is more profitable for her to remain in vaudeville than it is to play leading parts on the legitimate stage. In "The Lion Tamer," Miss Bergere has scored the crowning triumph of her career. She will head an exceptionally strong bill, another feature being the Tuscany Troubadors, Charles Loveberg's splendid company of singers and picturesque surroundings. Also on the bill are Willie Pantzer and company, perhaps the most expert troupe of acrobats now before the public, and they are not only acrobats but comedians; Charles Leonard Fletcher, the impersonator, in an entirely new programme; the Doherty Sisters, in songs and dances; Anderson and Goines; Marion Garson; and others to be announced.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

At the Colonial Theatre, Boston, Robert Edeson has successfully started on what gives every indication of being the most popular and profitable engagement he has yet played in this city, his new play, "Where the trail Divides," written by the actor for his own use, having been hailed as an even stronger vehicle than "Strongheart" in which he was applauded by thousands of theatregoers from coast to coast. In addition to marking Mr. Edeson's debut as a dramatist, "Where the Trail Divides" also brings him forward again in the portrayal of an Indian role and his characterization is easily the best work he has yet done.

The story of "Where the Trail Divides" which is in four acts is related on the prairies of South Dakota during the eventful territorial days and Mr. Edeson is seen as a Sioux youth, "Ma Wa Cha Sa," who was adopted early in life by Colonel Landor, the ranch owner, and given an education. He is nevertheless proud of his Indian ancestry and anxious to do something for the good of his people, and in spite of his life among the whites retains some of the traits of his forefathers. An act of good-will, or in injury, he can never forget. Altogether the redskin is a very brave, noble fellow, just the sort of character Mr. Edeson loves to portray. But the educated, brave and daring but refined Indian youth loves Colonel Landor's daughter, and is to marry her. In the first act a young man from the East, a relative of the Landors, arrives and makes known forthwith his abhorrence of the idea of a relative of his marrying an Indian. He says he will certainly oppose the match. Thus originates the plot. The other characters in the piece are the early settlers who have bravely ventured into the then wilderness to make homes for themselves, rough and quick with their guns, but good at heart. Mr. Edeson has brought to Boston one of the most beautiful scenic productions of recent years and the cast prvided by Manager Henry B. Harris for the star's support includes the following well-known players: Menifee Johnstone, Rose Tapley, George W. Barnum, Cordelia MacDonald, Joseph Hawley, John Prescott, Frederick Watson, Charles Riegel, James Gordon, James Grady and Edward Wade.

During the engagement of "Where the Trail Divides" at the colonial Theatre there will be Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

TREMONT THEATRE.

"The Girl in the Taxi," a farce comedy with musical specialities, began an engagement at the Tremont theatre, Boston, Monday evening before an audience that jammed the theatre to the doors. The play was greeted with the greatest enthusiasm, the numberless complications causing the audience to go almost into hysterics before the evening was over. There is not the slightest doubt but "The Girl in the Taxi" is the greatest laugh-producing, entertainment seen in Boston this season and its popularity should cause it to remain in this city for many weeks to come. "The Girl in the Taxi" lends itself admirably to an English reduction and Mr. Stange, its adaptor has preserved much of the smart dialogue and brilliant epigrams, with all of the good humor of the distinguished German writer. The scenario in Mr. Stange's adaptation has its locale New York city. It deals with the escapades of Mignon, the pretty wife of a New Jersey perfumer, fond of visiting the Gay White Way for a good time. Her proclivity for flirting leads her into embarrassing entanglements. The company presenting "The Girl in the Taxi" is one seldom equalled in this day of one-star attractions and theatregoers may look forward to something out of the ordinary in the way of a laugh-producing entertainment.

BOSTON THEATRE.

As a matter of relief from the boredom usually induced by the book of the average musical comedy the plan adopted by Charles Dickson in adapting "Three Twins" from Mrs. R Pacheo's farce, "Incog" may be said to have proven a distinct success. A mystification following mistaken identity has been so often used that it was thought to contain no element of originality, but at the Boston theatre there is a spontaneity in the treatment of "Three Twins" a zest in the act that makes one completely lose sight of anything else but the occurrences of the moment. The novelty of the situations come with the extra twin, the part being taken by Clifton Crawford upon whose shoulders evolves the major portion of the funmaking. General Stanhope played by Joseph Allen is not the least amusing portion of an intensely amusing evening's entertainment. Daisy Leon sings her songs "Cuddle up a Little Closer" and "Goodnight Sweetheart" in a voice in which sweetness and strength are equally blended. Mayme Gehrue, bubbling over with irrepressible merriment assisted by a band of eight girls grotesquely attired takes the leading part in the song, "Yama Yama Man" which is quite the most striking portion of the musical section of the performance. Summer prices are now in vogue at the Boston and these include 800 seats on the main floor at $1. matinees will be given as usual on Wednesday and Saturday. The fourth week of big success begins Monday.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Miss Charlotte Hunt and her Stock Company achieved an immediate success on the opening of their season at the Majestic Theatre last Monday evening. That clever Clyde Fitch comedy "The Blue Mouse" was the play presented as the opening bill and proved perfectly adapted to the abilities of the company. So great was the interest in the play even before theopening that Miss Hunt decided to retain it for a second week so Miss Hunt and her company will be seen through next week in this laugh-compelling farce. On Monday evening, May 23 the organization will appear for the first time in a serious play when William Vaughn Moody's big drama "The Great Divide" will be staged for a stay positively limited to one week. In "The Blue Mouse" Miss Hunt achieved a personal success for it showed that her long training had developed in this little woman the talents of a perfected comedienne. She handled the character with such sharp contrasts and delicate shading that it was a pleasure to all who have seen the performance. With Miss Hunt the honors were shared by her handsome young leading man Richard Buhler, the comedian of the organization James A. Bliss and Miss Eleanor Brownell. "The Blue Mouse" is quite the cleverest farce which Clyde Fitch ever conceived. The action begins at the very rise of the curtain and there is no cessation to the laugh-making incidents until everything comes to a happy end after two hours and a half of solid enjoyment. Miss Hunt has mounted the play superbly and in a manner which compares favorably with the original production as seen in New York. Miss Hunt and her company play two performances daily, matinee and night, and popular prices prevail.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

A real dramatic thriller in the form of a one act playlet called "After the Opera" will be the big feature at the American Music hall next week. The term "thriller" is used advisedly because the playlet has already succeeded in thrilling the two cities of the world that are most difficult to interest, namely Paris and New York. Terry & Lambert are a clever pair of character artists who being Americans themselves, portray many English types through American eyes. In doing this they reverse the usual order of character portrayals found in vaudeville. Josephine Sabel, has been properly termed the "quaint comedienne." She lives up to the title for she is not only quaint as to voice, material and gestures, but she proves herself a real comedienne as well. Sam Stern is another act that Bostonians will take kindly to. He has been seen here but once and on that occasion made a decided hit with his Italian and Hebrew characterizations. His assumption of the role of a Jewish Indian is about one of the funniest things that vaudeville has produced this season. The balance of the bill will be made up of all star acts fully up to the standard.

Fined $50 for Sending Liquor Illegally to Quincy

In the Municipal court in Boston on Thursday George R. Ulman, one of the proprietors of the liquor firm Cochrane & Co. of 6 Congress square Boston, was fined $50 for violation of the liquor law by sending liquor to Quincy, improperly marked, by Abbott & Miller's express. An appeal was taken. This is the firm which it is alleged sent a package of liquors to Quincy by Murphy's express and then later the same package marked appollinaris water by Abbott & Miller's express.

Ringing Knives Not Gambling

Albany, May 13.—Throwing rings at knives or canes, which is in vogue at places of amusement, is not gambling within the meaning of the law, but a test of skill, according to an opinion given by Attorney General O'Malley.

—A Georgia man writes that the people of that state have awakened to the economy of good roads. Texas has not only awakened to the economy of good roads, but has found that one of the surest and quickest ways to make money, is to make good roads, and are suiting this knowledge to active action in pilling up "good roads dividends"; as $10.00 per acre land, with macadam roads added, means $20.00 land. It is just as plain as 2 and 2 makes 4. Easy, isn't it? And if Texas has within its borders a single farmer or citizen who is not smart, and not of the 20th century brand, and we don't think it has, even he can do the sum.

MORE TIN BADGES

Should Be Awarded to City Square Volunteers

The City Square volunteer fire department responded promptly to a still alarm in the rear of City Hall at 10.30 this morning, and did yeoman service in extinguishing a lively blaze in a tool box. It contained a number of brushes used by the crossing sweepers, shovel, etc. The fire probably started by someone throwing a lighted cigar or cigarette out of the toilet room window which fell into the dry material in the box.

The fire was discovered by Bernard Fritz, the local chief, who dropped his needle and thread and hot footed it to the scene. Harry Hill, assistant chief, was a good second on the scene, and they were followed by Andy Odom, City Messenger Tirrell and others of the local force. Andy and Chief Fritz pulled the box from near the building and Harry Hill told them how to put out the fire without calling out the city department. Harry Tirrell however needed no instructions, but manned the bucket, which he filled repeatedly with water from a near by sill cock and dashed on the box, which at this time was burning briskly.

Officer Farrell showed up on the scene when the excitement was about over, and with him came the depot carriage drivers. All were loud in their praises of Messrs. Fritz, Hill, Odom and Tirrell.

After it was all over, and the excitement had died down, Harry Hill said that he should lay claim to the tin badge recently presented to President Tilden of the Granite City club for meritorious services at a fire in the Keating block.

FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

The sum of $4,320.23 was awarded Miss Ada Harding in her suit against Mr. Percival Hall for breach of promise at the mock trial at Atlantic.

Lawyers Herbert Gearwar and John Duggan put up such astonishing arguments in favor of their clients, and the testimony of the witnesses was so effective that it required the greatest discrimination on the part of Judge De Wolf to give the verdict.

Other men might have found it difficult to leave kept order in such a count but Bailiff Herbert Barker's methods were so effective that perfect order was maintained throughtout the case.

The witnesses for the plaintiff were: Mrs. Alva Beede, Mrs. John Burke, Mrs. William Cumings and Mrs. W. N. Ware. Witnesses for the defendant were Mrs. Albert Hall, Mrs. Benjamin Blanchard and Mrs. Agnes Pulsom.

The trial was held in Atlantic Music hall, Thursday night before a crowd that filled the building to the doors. Mrs. Herbert Gearwar, Mrs. Chase Pope and Mrs. Alfred Hall were the committee that made the affair such a success.

Preceding the case an entertainment was given by the following talent. Miss Barbara Johnson, fancy dancing; Miss Mabel Trask, contralto soloist; Mrs. Isabel N. Wittit, reader; Miss Agnes E. Littlefield, soprano soloist. Music was furnished during the evening by an orchestra from the Perkins Institute.

TWO QUALIFIED.

T. R. Fuller and T. M. Claflin of the Wollaston Golf club qualified at the open tournament of the Country club on Thursday, all with 90 or better.

Black Hand Man Convicted

New York, May 13.—A verdict of guilty was found in the Enrico Caruso "Black Hand" case in Brooklyn. Antonio Misiana, charged with attempting to extort $15,000 from the tenor, was found guilty. He will be sentenced on Monday.

FIRST DEFEAT OF SEASON

Melrose High Lowers the Colors of Quincy

Quincy High at last met its Waterloo Thursday afternoon at the Park. The Melrose High team whitewashed them 7 to 0, in spite of the fine game the home players showed. After six straight victories it finally fell to Melrose who have won both at football and basketball games to break the record.

The Quincy players started the game with a snap for when Melrose was at the bat the fly of Dike was caught by "Terry" Murphy, Russell's by Billy Manning and Phil Rice stopped the one by Collins. When Quincys turn came at the plate, Dike struck out Manning and Barry. Mel Chapman's pretty fly to the right garden dropped into Carey's hands.

The second time Melrose was at the bat, catcher Wanamaker's fly was intercepted by Billy Manning, Capt. Bates stopped the hit of McLetchie and handed the ball to Murphy before the third baseman could reach the first sack. Cram managed to get a base on balls but before he could get anywhere Gately struck out. In the turn of Quincy, McLetchie got under Bobby Allen's hit. Broodus Clapman got a walk to first, but went out near second while Russ Bates struck out.

In the third inning Page touched first, Carey struck out, Dike found first. Rice then caught the sacrifice of Russell and Collins flies. In the last half Dike got onto Murphy's fly, Bechtel struck out and then followed one of the features of the game, the catching of Phil Rice's hot liner by Russell.

Wanamaker commenced the fourth by taking a look past first and down to second, where he arrived safely soon after he scored the first run. McLetchie and Cram struck out. Gately gets on first, and as Page is at the bat, is put out on a steal to second by Manning. Billy Manning when his turn at the bat comes, strikes a number of fouls and finally one fair one which carried him to first. Barry sacrifices and Billy gets on second. M. Chapman struck out and Allen's fly is intercepted. Score 1 to 0.

Rice showed up at about his best in the fifth, and successively Page, Carey and Dike go out. For Quincy, H. Chapman is put out, and Bates after sending some heavy hits just inside to foul line to the hollows at left and right, strikes out. Shortstop Gately gets under Murphy's fly.

"Speedboy" O'Connor is put into the centre field in the sixth inning. Russell gets a walk but does not reach second. Collins hits for first sack, and with Wanamaker following, crossed the home plate. McLetchie is put out stealing to second. Cram finished the half by stricking out.

SCORE 3 TO 0.

In the Quincy half Betchel gets out at first, Rice touches first after four balls, Manning hits to the left garden, and Mel Chapman strikes out.

Page starts the seventh with a rattling good smash to the right field which gives him a home run. Carey and Dike struck out, Russell and Collins get on first but Manning captures Wanamaker's fly. For Quincy, Allen gets a walk, "Broodus" Chapman hits safely but is put out at second. Russ Bates, after reaching first, is put out on a steal to the second bag, Murphy also gets out. Score 4 to 0.

McLetchie strikes out in the beginning of the eighth, Mel Chapman gives a death blow to Cram's fly. Gately makes a clever hit, passing by stages to the home plate. Of the home players, Bechtel gets caught, and Rice's and Manning's stay on bases is limited by a double play. Score 5 to 0.

Excitement increases in the ninth. Dike directs a hit over to Manning, Russell is put out at first, but Collins, after a neat hit between second and third base touches first. Finally he runs in and Wanamaker follows. O'Connor winds up the run getting of Melrose High by catching the fly from McLetchie.

All hope of victory has fled when the Quincy players started the last of the ninth. Mell Chapman had his fly caught at left field. Allen struck out, and H. Chapman is put out thus ending the game, 7 to 0.

Pitcher Phil Rice struck out ten of the opponents and did some other good work. Dike pitched in great form. Manning played the best all around game for Quincy. Wanamaker, the catcher for Melrose, was the star of the game. He scored three runs and gave a good example how to connect with the sphere; as catcher he did himself honor.

Bjorkland sends me his line-up for the opening game of the season and judging by past performances of some of the men I believe he intends to go into the lead from the start. Simpson, the former Reading star, will twirl; Murray will don the mit; Briggs will play the initial sack; Fraser, formerly with Brockton N. E. league team, will cover the midway bag; Lynch of Nashua, N. H., with the Deweys last year, will stop the drives in the short field position; Lonergan will play the hot corner; Duggan will chase the drives in left field; Bjorkland will make the shoe string catches in the centre garden and the sun lot will be taken care of by Gunn, formerly with New Orleans in the Southern league. "Brodie" is very anxious for the season to start, for all men have signed to play and he wants to show the fans a real live aggregation here.

I had a long talk with "Joe" Elcock, recently, in regard to the coming sports for Merchants' Week. Mr. Elcock is very enthusiastic over these events and the Quincy merchants may rest assured this end will be well taken care of with Elcock and E. J. Murphy working for its success. About 300 entry blanks have been sent out to every 10 mile runner in this section who is registered and as the prizes to be offered will be as good if not better than offered anywhere nearly all will undoubtedly return the blanks signed. Bruce, Hackett, Gover and Dikanio are entered and the first to finish among this quartet will be known as the champion 10 miler of Quincy. The first Quincyite that crosses the line will receive a special prize. Quincy runners should enter for each one has an equal show to finish with the leaders. Competent officials from the B. A. A., A. A. U. and prominent men in the athletic world have been secured and it would not be surprising to see a "dark horse" at the tape in the wind-up.

Vol. 24 No. 113 QUINCY, MASS., SATURDAY EVENING, MAY 14, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

NEW OFFICE BUILDING AT THE SHIPYARD

Will be of Four Stories and Built of Re-enforced Concrete

Handsome Structure to Cost About $50,000

Plans for the new office building to be erected by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. have been filed with the Inspector of Buildings for approval. The building which will be of re-enforced concrete will cost when completed in the vicinity of $50,000. The location is just north of the present office building. Its dimensions are to be 113 feet frontage on East Howard street with a depth of 61 feet.

There is to be a main entrance in the centre front of the building. This leads into a small hall with a waiting room attached. Entrance may also be had into a long corridor running lengthwise of the building. From this corridor a shorter corridor runs through an L on the ear of the building thence to the yard. On one side of this L, which extends way through to the top are the toilet rooms. These will be located on each of the three floors above.

On the first floor are to be located the executive offices. These include the President's office and reception room, treasurer's and pay master's rooms, purchasing agents office, auditors, estimating department, and chief engineer; also a large room to be used as a correspondents room. There is also a private telephone room.

On the second floor are thirteen office rooms. On the third floor is one large room which occupies the whole floor.

On the fourth floor are the offices of the inspectors, tracing blue print and photographers' room, and two dark rooms for the use of the photographer. The various government officers, who are stationed at the works during the construction of government vessels will probably be assigned offices on the second floor.

The present office building has long been considered inadequate to meet the wants of the rapidly increasing business of the Fore River company, and the need of additional room has been imperative. The new building when completed will be a handsome building and will probably be large enough to meet the wants of the company for many years.

The plans of the building were drawn by the company's own draughtsmen and architects.

COPELAND CLUB ENTERTAINMENT

The Farce "Time of His Life" Presented

The eighth annual entertainment and dance of the Copeland club was held last evening at St. Mary's hall, and was very largely attended. During the first part of the evening there was a pleasing entertainment which included the presentation of a laughable farce entitled "Time of his life." In the cast of characters were John Dunn, Miss Lillian Berry, Andrew Dinegan, Miss Rita Lyons, Frank Egan, Miss Francis Burke, Willard Burke, Fred McDonald and George Hebert.

The entertainment was given under the direction of Andrew Dinegan which in itself was a sufficient guarantee that it would be good.

Following the entertainment there was dancing until a late hour, music being furnished by Wilson's orchestra. Councilman Harry T. Boyd was the floor director, and Andrew J. Dinegan, assistant. The aids were Edward J. B. Desmond, John F. Dunn, James B. Elcock, Richard Williams and J. Harold Gates.

FEATURES OF PINAFORE.

One of the attractive features of the Pinafore performance to be given by the Quincy Women's club will be the souvenir program presented to every one attending. It will contain much original verse and prose by club members and even the "jokes" will be localized to add jest to the reading. Business men who have subscribed for advertising space have been requested to specialize their advertisments so that the idea of originality may be carried out in all parts of the program. The cover will have a fine cut of the club house for its central feature, and the first thing inside will be the club hymn which fittingly symbolizes the substance and spirit of all the club work.

Those who have not heard Pinafore will find the familiar cry "Words and Music of the Opera" a useful bit of the local color scheme, and the delicious candies provided by the Home Economics committee, which will be passed between the acts in regulation theatre style, promises to add the crowning touch to an ideal matinee. The men are quite envious that the performance is for women only.

GLENDALE ROAD.

Have you travelled through Glendale road recently? If not, you will be surprised at the growth of this vicinity and best of all it is an attractive neighborhood with well-built houses, lawns, granolithic walks, etc. Since March 1, 1909, Councilman Charles A. Ericson has started eleven houses in this vicinity, one of which he occupies. All are rented or sold before the cellar is completed. He recently sold houses on Euclid avenue to Erik Youngquist and Sofi Ekblom. He has another house raised on this avenue, two cellars completed, and this week started another cellar at the corner of Dimmock street.

H. F. McIntire and Charles Pearson are putting in cellars on Glendale road, and other houses are being built. The city is building sidewalks and making street improvements in this neighborhood. Glendale road is becoming a thoroughfare between Granite street and Newport avenue.

TODAY'S COURT.

Fred T. Murphy was fined $10, Thomas H. Gilson $10, William E. Leggett $15, Louise Thorndike $15, Robert H. Evans $10 Hans A. V. Neilson $10, Alfred R. Meyer $20, for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton. Miss Thorndike who was fined $15 was driving her car at a speed of forty miles an hour.

Robert Wright was sentenced to one year in the house of correciion for the larceny of a horse at Cohasset.

ELEVATED MERGER BILL

To Be Reported in Legislature on Monday

The Boston Journal says some of the things that may not come under the "L" merger are:

Chelsea may not get that five-cent fare after all.

Quincyites may still have to pay two fares to get into Boston.

Boston and Northern stockholders might decide they didn't care to be merged.

Should all this happen, Elevated franchise tax would not be changed.

Continuing the Journal says: Led by Representative Roger Wolcott of Milton, House chairman of the committee on street railways, one of the stiffest fights of the session will be precipitated in the House on Monday when the Boston Elevated merger bill is reported by that committee.

After a long discussion yesterday the committee by a vote of 8 to 2 decided to report the draft submitted by the Railroad Commission, with a few changes in section 8 relating to the renewal of the leases from the city of Boston of the subway and tunnels.

The extension of the five-cent fare zone, to include everything within a radius of five and one-half miles of the State House, doesn't strike some people as anything very costly to the Elevated, although it did win one or two votes in the committee from members who thought they saw the finish of the eight-cent fare within that territory.

Quincy, Milton, Hyde Park and Dedham do not come within the five and one-half mile limit, but some towns to the north of Boston, which are not contiguous, will have a five-cent fare. The State House should not be selected as the centre of Boston.

CITY APPROPRIATION OF $2,000 WANTED

Fourth of July Committee Will Petition the City Council

Union Labor Men in Majority at the Meeting

A meeting of the Fourth of July Executive committee was held last evening at the rooms of the Board of Trade, and if the action taken at this meeting is strictly carried out, no local business concern will be permitted to participate in the civic parade planned for that morning unless his team is driven by a man wearing the union button.

The committee had already voted to employ none but union bands in the parade and the action places further restrictions on it.

The meeting was attended by a delegation from the Central Labor union, and the action was taken at their request. This committee also asked that any work that the several committee may have to do, such as printing,etc., be done by union establishments. They also submitted a long list of names which they desired placed on the various committees.

After some discussion, it was voted to have a petition drawn up to be presented to the City Council at its meeting Monday evening, asking for an appropriation of $2,000 to be expended under the direction of the executive committee, to help defray the expenses of carrying out the program arranged for the day.

The various plans for the day's celebration were discussed at length. It seemed to be the unanimous opinion that Atlantic, which has entertained in past years, should receive some consideration. It was voted that the members of the Atlantic permanent Fourth of July committee be invited to attend the meeting of the executive committee to be held next Friday evening.

It was also voted to have the route of the morning parade so arranged that it will go through a large part of West Quincy.

Chairman Charles W. Hanscom of the balloon ascension committee of the Fourth of July celebration has appointed the following men on his committee N. Ordway, John C. Faircloth, David A. W. Bowers, Fred Curtis, Michael Dorley and Patrick O. Neil.

The several chairmen made reports, all of which showed that plans were progressing, and that the chairmen were doing all in their power to make the day's celebration a grand success.

Before the meeting adjourned it was voted that James L. Trainor be elected as chairman of the committee on decorations. It was also voted to extend an invitation to the veteran firemen's associations of the city to take part in the parade and that prizes be offered for the best company parading.

It was reported this morning that an effort would be made at a special meeting next week to reconsider the votes relative to union labor, members who were absent claiming that it is not a Labor day affair.

WERE YOU INCLUDED?

Charles F. Gettemy, supervisor of the national census in Massachusetts, announces that the enumeration of the population of the cities and towns in the metropolitan district is finished. So far as can be judged the work is complete, but as there is always the possibility of mistake supervisor Gettemy suggests that if any individual thinks he or his family are not included in the enumeration that person should write to the supervisor at the state house and he will have the names looked up and in case they do not appear, see that they are listed.

In writing to the census supervisor give him the information as to where you were living on April 15 last, your name, street and number city and town including ward and precinct.

It is important that Quincy should be credited with every resident, and thereby swell the total.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Mr. Rockfeller says the world is getting better, and Miss Ida Tarbell says so, too. Guess it surely must be.

No man in this country ever will have the temerity to assert that Col. Roosevelt is in any sense a local issue.

They say that society women in New York care more for their pet dogs than for their hair, but it's false.

It will be interesting to the public to know that the Nicaraguan army now numbers 2,000 men and only has one general. It usually numbers 1000 generals to one man.

On Monday night the City Council and School Committee meet to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dexter E. Wadsworth. Good names have been brought forward for the position, among them John D. Mackay, Dr. Anderson, Frank H. Crane, John L. Gow and Dr. A. H. Gilson. With such good material the selection will be difficult In appreciation of the services and in memory of the one whose place is to be filled the committee will naturally give considerable thought to the selection.

ATLANTIC MEMORIAL CHURCH.

Many of the people of Atlantic the past week have found in themselves conflicting emotions; sorrow to see the Memorial church being torn down which has been a religious home and landmark for twenty-five years in the community, and gladness that the time has come when the new church is to be built which has been the dream of many since the church was organized twenty-five years ago.

The last service held in the church building and the first service held in the hall were very touching as the minister spoke on the significance of a church in the community and his appreciation of the church members and those whom he hoped to see become members, who had sustained the church so heartily and had made the new church possible.

Several decided at those meetings to become members of the church and were received into its membership and several have since expressed their desire to live the Christian life.

The aim of the church at present is to make it a religious home forall o nthe basis of Christian unity. In its membership are those who are ritualistic, those who are liberal and many who are conservative—all exercising the spirit of loving toleration.

The efforts to build the new church has interested the entire community. Some have expressed it. "There is a religious awakening without a revival."

Last Sunday the minister stated that it would be advisable to raise another thousand dollars to add to the building fund, and already more than half of it is promised to be paid before July on demand. George E. Thomas of Wollaston has the contract for the new church and begins work Monday.

OVERTAXED

Hundreds of Quincy Readers Know What it Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed;
Have too much to do.
They tell about it in many aches and pains—
Backache, sideache, headache.
Early symptoms of kidney ills.
Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Quincy citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

Mrs. George McDonald, 133 1-2 Quincy Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have more faith in Doan's Kidney Pills than in any other remedy I have ever known of and it gives me great pleasure to publicly recommend them. For at least six months I was feeling all out of sorts as the result of kidney trouble. I became tired easily and had but little strength or energy to do my housework. Pains through the small of my back annoyed me a great deal. A friend, knowing of my condition, advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug store. A short time after beginning their use, I was helped and I now feel like a different person."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Millburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BIRTHDAY REMEMBERED.

Roses, pinks and pansies in great profusion ornamented the desk of Probation Officer Francis A. Spear at the District Court this morning, while the tables in his office were heavily laden with fruit and cigars. Inquiry brought out the fact that on Sunday the genial probation officer will pass another milestone in his eventful career, and that the flowers had been sent by admiring friends who had not forgotten the day and date. Frank holds his years well, and feels as young as many people who have seen many more years than he has. When asked which birthday it was he was celebrating, he replied nine hundred and ninety-ninth, leaving it for the questioner to guess his age.

PROMPT GROCERY SERVICE

Yesterday morning a new customer said, "Where could I get rich roast beef and have it delivered before 11 o'clock. It must come strictly fresh from the Boston market every morning." Our clerk replied, "Evidently you don't know, madam, that our auto-truck goes to the Boston market every morning just exactly for that purpose, and goes early enough to get the best vegetables in the market, too." This customer left an order.

SCHOOLMASTER INSULTED

Boy Arraigned in Court and Fined Five Dollars

It cost Harry W. Tabb, a Wollaston young boy, $5 to refer to a bicycle riden by Charles Sampson, master of the Quincy school as "ice." Mr. Sampson testified that last Wednesday he was riding up Hancock street on his bicycle to dinner. He passed a team driven by the Tabb boy near the car barn. After he had passed the boy cried out "ice." He then turned back and went to the team and when the boy came out of the house where he had been he asked him for whom he worked. The boy replied, "none of your business; what do you want to know for." Some further remarks were made, at which he alleges the boy made an offensive remark which the boy in court admitted.

J. J. McAnarney, who appeared for the Tabb boy, in summing up the case, said there was nothing to show that the word "ice" was meant for complainant. This caused the court to remark that Mr. McAnarney was evidently not familiar with the fact that an old-fashioned bicycle was sometimes referred to as an ice cart. Mr. McAnarney replied that His Honor probably knew more about those things than he did.

The court imposed a fine of $5 for the offensive remark made in the public street, and continued the case until July 1.

"Met your mutual friend Hertz this morning; his face looked as if he were suffering from an aggravated case of eczema."

"So I thought, but it was only a case of shaving with a safety razor."

TRUTH
No. 3

Are you a 3 1-2 per cent man? Are you a 4 per cent man? If you are, then you certainly belong to the "Old School"—you may think, "Well, I'd rather earn 4 per cent and be sure that I will get it than earn 25 per cent and stay awake nights about it." All right, that was a true rule to follow in the past, but now, today, just because the world is moving on and on, the standard of living, the standard of society and the STANDARD OF MAKING MONEY has changed. Further, the standards we work from today will be pigmies, in the eyes of future generations—Hence, the world did big things in the past (the 3 1-2 per cent age) and the world is doing bigger things today (the 25 per cent age), and the world will continue to change its standard, in about the same proportion we may compare the past with the present—we appeal to you who are living and working and are satisfied with a 3 1-2 per cent standard today, when "today" is the 25 per cent standard—you are behind your generation, a straggler and a drag on the world. Don't you known that things big things, that are possible today were not possible yesterday? Why? Because it's the law of action—the law of cause and effect. Hence, we have results, i. e., growth. What is today representative of the big things that the world is accomplishing? It is substituting one public necessity for another which is superior. Coal yesterday was a public necessity; today we are teaching the world to use a better substitute—OIL. Yesterday was the coal age—the 3 1-2 per cent man, but today is the OIL age, tbe 25 per cent man.

Don't let big things scare you. Don't believe that big things are out of your reach. Don't leave it for the other fellow to reap the big man's profit. Don't be afraid of a 100 per cent investment.

There is to be a public examination of the confirmation class at the Swedish Congregational church Sunday morning at 10.45. The pastor Rev. G. W. Palmgren will give a special address to the class and both choirs will sing. The public will be made welcome as far as the seating capacity will allow.

Rev. Edward Anderson is to preach Sunday at the 10.45 A. M. service at the Wollaston Congregational church.

There have been some rumors that work on the new Houghs Neck school building was being delayed on account of the cement foundation not hardening properly. Contractor Crowley says that the cement used was the best manufactured and rather slow in drying out, but that there was no delay. The slower a cement dries out the better and the foundation of the building is now as solid as a rock, and work laying the bricks will be commenced immediately.

Miss Miriam Robertson of Maple street, Hyde Park formerly of Standish avenue is very ill with typhoid fever at a private hospital in Hyde Park. Her many friends in Wollaston anxiously await news of her convalescence.

FRITZ A. HEINZE

Raps His Prosecutor and the Newspapers

HEINZE FREES HIS MIND

Has Poor Opinion of Prosecutor, Jurors and Gotham Newspapers

New York, May 14.—Severe criticism of United States District Attorney Wise, who prosecuted him, and of the grand jury by which he was indicted, was made by Fritz A. Heinze. He also took a fling at newspapers.

"A district attorney who first suspects and then believes is a calamity," he said. "You fellows in the east seem to be mistaken in the rights and powers of jurors, federal or otherwise. It would be well for New York jurors to realize that the federal attorney is not the judge of facts nor of evidence in the grand jury room.

"Then comes the newspapers. In New York they overawe everything and everybody. Frequently they bow to the federal prosecutor."

FORMER GOVERNOR HELD AS SMUGGLER

Wife and Son Are Also Arrested by Customs Officials

New York, May 14.—Frank W. Rollins, formerly Governor of New Hampshire and now one of the most prominent bankers in Boston, his wife, Catherine, and his son, Douglas, were taken in custody here after their arrival from Europe on the Lusitania, charged with conspiring to defraud the government in attempting to smuggle jewelry and dutiable articles of clothing through the customs.

The arrests were made after each member of the family had been compelled to submit to a personal search in their staterooms.

Mrs. Rollins was so seriously affected by the charges that she was taken to the Hotel Belmont and will answer to the charges against her when she recovers.

Mr. Rollins and his son were arraigned before Commissioner Shields and were released in bail of $2000 each, which was furnished by a surety company.

COMET WON'T HARM US

Alarmist Tales From France Refuted by an American Authority

Washington, May 14.—"There is no more poison in the tail of the comet than could be packed in an ordinary pill box.

"The nearest Halley's comet will come to the earth is 14,000,000 miles. If its tail is long enough the earth will pass through it May 18. The only effect which may be noticed may be a few so-called shooting stars."

In these terse statements Father Hedrick, chief of the observatory staff at Georgetown university, offered refutation of stories cabled from Paris regarding declarations of French astronomers that the tail of the comet again showed traces of cyanogen; that Halley's wanderer was off its path, and that the atmosphere of the earth might be permeated by the gases arising from the comet.

CONSUMERS MAY GET MILK TEN DAYS OLD

Declared Possible Under Present Conditions In Boston

Boston, May 14.—Testimony of the Whiting brothers of the C. Brigham company and the D. Whiting & Son company at the hearing in the milk war at the state house revealed the fact that two-thirds of the milk sold by them to the people of Boston might be even ten days old, inasmuch as they had no way of knowing how old it was before they touched it.

This admission followed the testimony of John K. Whiting to the effect that one-third of the milk which they received from New York state was from 60 to 72 hours old before it reached the Boston consumers.

In addition to the age of the milk, Whiting admitted that none of his dairy inspectors had made a trip into the dairies from which their present supply is coming from, and that he had absolutely no guarantee to offer the consumers of Boston that the milk had been inspected.

Bill of Indictment Against Cohen Ignored by Grand Jury

Philadelphia, May 14.—The last echo of a sensational escapade was heard here when the grand jury ignored a bill of indictment charging Ferdinand Cohen, the hotel waiter, with kidnapping in running away with Roberta B. De Janon, the heiress, 18 years old. The couple, after being missing a week, were found in Chicago.

Robert Buist, the millionaire grandfather of the girl, engaged private counsel when the runaways were found to press the charge made against Cohen, but it is understood the action of the grand jury was agreeable to counsel for Buist.

REDSKINS IN AN UPRISING

Troops Are Rushed to Check Outbreak of Pueblo Indians

RANCHERS FEAR A MASSACRE

Tribe Which Has Been Peaceful For Years and Has Governed Itself Aroused Over Punishment Inflicted by Territorial Officers—Telephone and Telegraphic Communication Cut Off—Governor Responds to Appeal

East Las Vegas, N. M., May 14.—An uprising of serious proportions has broken out among Pueblo Indians at Taos, seventy miles northwest, and troops are hurrying by special train from Santa Fe to check a possible massacre of white ranchers.

The Indians have cut all telephone and telegraph wires from Taos, but reports indicate that the depredations have been confined to an attack on the wife and children of L. L. Myers, a homesteader, the cutting of fences and the theft of horses and cattle.

Further attacks are feared by ranchers and Judge John R. McFle, conducting court at Taos, made an urgent demand for troops upon Governor Mills. He declared a massacre was imminent.

The governor immediately ordered fifty men of the national guard to Taos. The guardsmen will reach Taos today. General Brooke, in command of the national guard, has also ordered another company at Santa Fe to be in readiness to march at a moment's notice.

The uprising of the Pueblos, who for years have been peaceful, is believed to have been caused by the punishment of Pueblos by territorial officers. For years the Pueblos have governed themselves, electing their own chiefs and village councillors, who tried and punished malefactors of the tribe without appeal to the territorial officers.

Petition Begging For Release of Banker Walsh From Prison

Chicago, May 14.—Bearing 50,000 names, a petition will be formally presented to the department of justice of the United States within a few days asking for the pardon of John R. Walsh of Chicago, now serving a term in the Leavenworth federal prison for violation of the national banking laws. This is admitted by Richard Walsh, a son of the imprisoned banker.

"This is the first petition which has received the sanction of my father," he said. "It was started without his knowledge, however. There have been several others which have been turned down by the government authorities on account of the lack of my father's approval and signature.

"This one will be duly signed by him, and his attorneys have been instructed to get it into shape and present it as soon as possible."

Engineers Doubt Their Ability to Raise the Maine In Havana Harbor

Washington, May 14.—The state department has begun negotiations with the government of Cuba to secure permission for raising the wrecked battleship Maine. As this wreck lies in Havana harbor and has been abandoned for a decade there is no question as to the necessity of appealing to Cuba before undertaking to enter its territorial waters with a large force of American workmen and wrecking vessels.

Recognizing the public sentiment which demanded that the Maine be raised, the engineers are extremely doubtful of their ability to do anything of the kind, many of them believing that the hulk has gone to pieces and the most that can be done will be to recover the bones of some of the victims of the explosion that lie buried under the rusting steel plates of the ship.

The judges decided, after a lengthy consultation, that his side had won, adding further perturbation to the kidnappers.

TRUTH NUMBER 4

A Good Investment is Worth a Life Time of Toil

OIL is one of the greatest things in this country to-day. More fortunes have been made and are being made in Oil than in any other known commodity. Of course the first principle of making money is to provide the public something that the public wants when it wants it, and for which the public is willing to pay the producer's price. Too many men make failures who face the other way and try to sell the public something which they want the public to have, and thus the provider is ultimately obliged to sell at the public's price, and in it there is little or no profit.

Oil is a necessity, and new uses are being made of it every day. On the Pacific Coast Oil is about the only fuel used, and even two of our largest railroad systems use California Crude Oil for locomotive fuel.

BROWN GOLD

By R. S.

Note: (We wish the reader to know that the term "Brown Gold" means California Crude Oil.)

When Jud Elwood awoke one morning in his cabin located near Bakersfield in the State of California, and decided to go on a rabbit hunt, "by his lonely," he little dreamed the result of that decision and the subsequent trip was to lead to the discovery of one of the greatest Brown Gold producing districts in the world; and naturally the thought never occurred to Jud, because he had in mind simply hunting for rabbits, not minerals.

To quote Jud, as he gave the account of his find to the writer, he on that morning left his cabin accompanied by his gun and dogs; and Jud, by the way, was always fond of dogs and had a few that were as good as any in Kern County; and Jud knows a good dog, too, and why not? His old home, Bakersfield, is the Mecca to which all real'y good ones make an annual pilgrimage to attend the great National Try-out. Well, to continue Jud's story, he started out in a direction to the northwest of his cabin toward the foothills, and after securing a good-sized bag of cotton-tails was returning homeward, when his attention was attracted in one direction to the different hues of the early morning mist which, rising from the soil, gave off a color that had the appearance of being a brown-colored haze, or a "something" entirely different from that noticeable in other directions, with the result that Elwood was soon convinced of the presence of Brown Gold, and the existence of the Kern River District today proves his deductions to have been correct.

Jud had hard work at first in his efforts to convince friends and neighbors as to the importance of his find, his deductions not being accepted even by experts as being at all reasonable, which brings to mind the curious story told of the earliest discovery of Brown Gold in this country during the days of Colonel Drake. The Wise Ones at that time smiled at the prospector, being amused at the mere idea of finding Brown Gold in the earth. The son of one old farmer brought home the news of Col. Drake's find, which to the mind of the old man was utterly absurd, consequently he would not believe it. "If you had told me that they had found whiskey, I could readily understand it, for we know that whiskey is made from corn, and it might easily soak through the roots of the stalk and accumulate in the earth, but flowing Brown Gold, never." As a consequence, the adverse opinions and criticisms to which Jud was subject showed neither sympathy nor support, which made him fully realize the old truth that "no man is a prophet in his own country," and the sequence in all probability would have been that the great body of mineral wealth which has been lying there dormant for many ages would have remained undisturbed if it were not for the stranger who took advantage of the opportunity and backed his judgment with money. This fact is notorious in the history of the development of the great Kern River District. Practically, and excepting one old firm which had pinned its faith on what is now famous as the "West Side," the district where gushers ane making millionaires nearly every day, the brains and means which developed the great Brown Gold districts of California, which today is by long odds the greatest producing country in the world, came from the outside; from the stranger. The local capitalist and others of smaller means, being absolutely blind as to the opportunity then within their grasp. From other portions of the state, California capital and brains took a leading part in the early development. Well known merchants, lawyers, doctors, lumber and fruit men taking a leading part, and to the list must be added the many hundreds of the comparatively smaller investors, such as mechanices, railroad men and particularly the strong support and backing furnished by the keen department store employe—two Los Angeles stores alone supporting hundreds of investors, each one helping the development in amounts that ranged from $50 by the lady cashiers to $2,500 by managers of departments. Another interesting feature in this connection was the impetus given by residents of the "Show Me" state. They sent their delegations to investigate, were duly "shown" and as aconsequence their subsequent investments have added many millions of dollars in Brown Gold to the world's wealth. Some towns of about 20,000 inhabitants furnishing more "sinews" than did any one of the wealthy eastern states.

It was not very long after the Elwood discovery before all the good land in the district was acquired, principally by mining, fruit, lumber and other men, who through business connections and associates were brought into active touch with the exact situation in Kern County, and who were quick to take advantage of the immense possibilities and profits to be ultimately derived from the development of Brown Gold as against that of any other kind of mining or industrial enterprise. And, as a consequence, those who later on decided to engage in the industry were compelled to go elsewhere and secure lands in other districts, where the indications and general appearance of the country were similar to those prevalent in the Kern River District. This "crowding out," which led to the compulsory seeking for other districts was particularly fortunate from the fact that it led to the further exploiting, development and ultimately the proving up of the greatest of all California Brown Gold Districts—"Coalinga."

The stupendous magnitude and the recent rapid advancement made in the development of this great Brown Gold district is such as fully warrants the name the "WONDER DISTRICT," and in order to fully appreciate its immense richness and the development thereof which has been made during the past few years, which period covers the real opening up of the field, a comparison will be necessary, and for the purpose of making an intelligent one, the celebrated Kern River District, the field that is generally (and was truly) regarded as being the greatest and richest producer of Brown Gold in the world will be taken.

The authentic, up-to-date figures used in order to substantiate the statements made are those compiled for the month of March, 1910, and they are interesting as well as remarkable from the fact that they prove unquestionably the supremacy of Coalinga, the Wonder District of California, and shows it to be by all odds, through comparison of present development, as well as by results, actual production—the King of all Brown Gold districts. The figures referred to, which cover the total production of those two great Brown Gold districts for the month of March 1910, are:

	Barrels.
Coalinga District	1,231,000
Kern River District	1,100,000

barrels of 42 gallons each, the difference in favor of the Coalinga district being 131,000 barrels for the month. BUT when the present development of both districts are taken into consideration, the startling fact is realized that the great Coalinga district produced this enormous quantity of Brown Gold with less than one-half the number of wells as compared with the more thoroughly developed and comparatively older district, the Kern River.

And by a further comparison of the average production per well in the two districts it is shown that the Coalinga district well produced two and one-half times as much Brown Gold as was produced by the Kern River district well inthe same period, or in other words, to make the contrast more apparent, while the average Kern River well was producing 800 barrels the average Coalinga well was producing 2,000 barrels.

Having shown by facts and figures that Coalinga is the greatest producing ditrict, it is now pertinent to refer to another point in order to show the further great advantage this district has in facilities for marketing or moving the product to Tidewater, and this brings up the subject of transportation, which as a matter of fact was the one and practically the only handicap with which, until recently, the producer of Brown Gold in California has had to contend. Producing a commodity without the facilities of getting it to a market is like finding a Yellow Gold mine in the heart of Africa without being able to handle the ore or getting the product to the outside world. Such was the story of Brown Gold found in the heart of California. No means of transportation, excepting by the few thousand tank-cars furnished by the railroads, which at its best was a totally inadequate, as well as very expensive, serice. Now, however, those conditions have been completely changed and with a due appreciation of the magnitude and importance of the "Wonder" of all producing ditricts, the Coalinga producer has at his disposal the service of the following great pipe line systems—one of six-inch and four of eight and ten-inch capacity each, making in all five great through pipe lines, which extend to various coast points north and west from the district to market, i. e., Tidewater.

These lines are: Associated from Coalinga to Monterey, from Coalinga to Port Costa; Producers from Coalinga to Port Harford; Standard from Coalinga to Mendota, the latter two being parallel lines, which connect with the through line to Point Richmond on San Francisco Bay.

The product is handled by the transportation company or companies with which the producer elects to do business, which concerns, at their cost and expense, run pipe lines to the property and take care of the product, thus relieving the producer of all further work. From tidewater points the Brown Gold is shipped north, south, east and west, from Alaska in the north to Chili in the south; and over seas as far as Japan, and portions of it even as far as Australia.

The Coalinga district offers a product capable of further immense development; offers ample facilities for the marketing of the same; offers a market which is practically unlimited coupled with a demand for the commodity, which all present efforts have as yet been unable to supply. With all these facts in mind, can a single argument be advanced that will contradict the statement that an investment made now in Coalinga Brown Gold is the best investment extant?

How or where can I make an investment whereby I may participate in the distribution of the immense amount of mineral wealth with which California is so favored and the development of which is still in its infancy? How? By making an investment in a company that has something to offer in return for your investment, and the more they "have and hold" the greater will be your return thereon. Where? Investigate fully the California National Crude Oil Company, which has recently acquired Five Thousand Acres of rich Brown Gold holdings in the now famous Coalinga district, the Wonder District of California.

Remember the story of Jud and his dogs and don't be likened unto the blind friends and neighbors, but "get in" now, like the stranger did, when the investment of a few hundred dollars, which the stranger actually made, resulted in a private car, which he now uses and is now his own; all the result of a small investment in Brown Gold made at the bottom.

Invest your savings in a company that is operating in the greatest field in the state. Remember, you have only a short time to purchase this stock at 40 cents per share. We can assure you that within a limited time this stock will be sold for double this figure, and you will see it quoted at that figure in these columns.

We would advise you to make as large a reservation as you can afford and doso immediately. Make all drafts, money orders, etc., payable to the California-National Crude Oil Company, Los Angeles, Cal., and mail with attached blank.

Boston, May 14.—Ex-Mayor Hibbard yesterday declined to agree to an arrangement whereby Transit Commissioner Noyes, who gets a salary of $7000 a year, was to resign and the ex-mayor to be given Noyes' place by Mayor Fitzgerald.

The ex-mayor, who only two days ago was rejected by the civil service board for a position which paid only $5000 a year, sent messages of appreciation to both the mayor and Noyes, but firmly declined to permit the plan to be carried out.

The annual field day sports of the Woodward Institute girls is being held today at Merrymount park. The sports began shortly after 9 A. M. and will continue all day. The girls brought their lunches with them, and at noon all gathered in the shelter in the lower park and had a jolly time. Headmaster Plummer and most of the faculty were present.

FIRE ON BATTLESHIP.

The fact that the battleship North Dakota was in dry dock, without a supply of water, resulted in some damage from fire and considerable excitement on Friday afternoon at the Boston navy yard. A hot rivet fell into a magazine that was nearly empty and set fire to the cork with which it was lined. Because of the water used a new lining may be necessary. For a while there was considerable smoke. Several fire engines and the fire boat responded, but their services were not required.

PROBABLY A HOAX.

The police do not place much stock in the black hand letter received by Mrs. Vinner M. Ross of Brewers corner, demanding $500 to be left at a certain place under penalty of death. Mrs. Ross went to the designated spot at the time set in the letter, and the police were on hand to grab the "black hand" in case he showed up. The yhad their midnight trip for nothing however, as no one appeared, and it was not exepcted he would.

The case was brought to the attention of the police the first of the week and they desired that no mention should be made of it in the local papers until they had an opportunity to capture the black hander if there was one. The letter was written in red ink to imitate blood and was mailed at the Quincy office. As soon as Mrs. Ross received it she had an interview with the police and a trap was laid to capture the writer if he attempted to carry his threat into effect.

NO OFFICIAL NOTICE

So Insurance Company Did Not Act on Sale of Lot

A meeting of the directors of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co. was held Thursday, but no action was taken on selling the lot and building to the city, as proposed by an order passed at the last meeting of the City Council, for the reason that no official notice had been received by the company that the city desired to purchase.

Mayor Shea, when seen this noon, said that it was true that the Insurance company had not been officially approached in regard to the sale of the lot when the meeting was held, but it had been communicated with since that time. The Mayor said that he was not aware that a meeting of the directors was to be held, or he should have communicated with them before the meeting. He had however, sent them a letter Friday, and had been informed by President Howland, that while another regular meeting of the directors would not be held for a month, that a special meeting would probably be held to consider the question.

SUMMER CAPITAL AT HOUGHS NECK

When Mayor Shea is Elected to Represent This District in Congress

William Norteman Gives Annual Dinner to City Officials

The annual opening of Norteman's pavilion at Houghs Neck took place Saturday evening, and was attended by Mayor Shea and a large number of city officials, who sat down to as fine a shore dinner as the exacting could desire. For a number of years it has been William Norteman's custom to open the season by giving a dinner to members of the city government and friends, and so enjoyable have these become that those fortunate enough to be included among the many friends of the genial host, always look forward to the opening of the beach season with the name of Norteman on their lips.

The party Saturday evening numbered about fifty, and they began to arrive soon after 5 o'clock. They found plenty to occupy their attention until 6.30, at which hour the dinner was served. During this informal reception an orchestra furnished music, and the only Bowditch entertained with some of his choicest selections.

At the head table were the host, William Norteman, Mayor William T. Shea, president Hobbs of the City Council, Commodore H. W. Robbins of the Quincy Yacht club; Frank Fessenden Crane, Dock and Water Front Commissioner; Councilman Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., and Henry W. French, the master of ceremonies. Seated at the other tables were Tax Collector J. J. O'Hara Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker, Representative L. F. R. Langelier, Assessors Warren W. Adams, John J. Duggan and Alexander Falconer, City Engineer E. C. Sargent, Overseer of the Poor James H. Elcock, Walter S. McKenzie of the Sewer department, Councilmen Carey, Moir, Bolster, Ericson, Cherrington, Smith, Woodward, Loud, Sandberg and Richards, Clerk of Council G. T. Magee City Messenger H. W. Tirrell, Medical Examiner Dr. Fred E. Jones, F. E. Tupper, F. F. Green, George Morse, Ira Whittemore, G. V. Bowditch, Robert T. Johnson, M. T. Shea of the Street Department I. W. Hayden, John Sullivan, John Krocker, C. C. Collins, R. Braner, F. Braner, P. Figenbaun, James Nash.

The smell of the good things that was wafted through the kitchen door had sharpened the appetites of the party, and no second invitation was neede to fall in and partake of the menu and it goes without saying that there was not a man but what did full justice to the many good things spread before them, and that all were high in their praise of the excellence of the dinner:

Olives Radishes
Clam Chowder
Norwegian Fish Balls with Peas
Fried Cod Fried Clams
Potato Croquettes
Tomatoes Cucumbers
Chicken Salad
Plain Boiled Lobster
Harlequin Ice Cream Frozen Pudding
Assorted Cake
Roquefort Cheese Crackers
Coffee

During the progress of the several courses the orchestra rendered all of the popular airs, the party joining in singing the choruses. The dinner over, Master of Ceremonies French rapped for order, and called for three cheers for the host, which were given with a will. He then called upon Mr. Norteman for a few remarks. The host expressed his pleasure at having so many of his friends present, and said that while he enjoyed the good things of this world he did not like to enjoy them alone and that if the party only had a good time that was all he desired. He was assured that everyone was enjoying himself.

Other speakers were Mayor Shea, who said that one of the chief attractions of Houghs Neck was Norteman's pavilion, and that he had done much to make the place attractive. Brief remarks were also made by President Hobbs, Representative Langelier, Commissioner Crane, Commodore Robbins and most of the councilmen present. During the remarks there were cheers for Mayor Shea, who was called the next congressman, and who replied by saying when he got to congress he would have the summer capitol moved to Houghs Neck.

Before the meeting adjourned it was voted to hold another dinner about the first of September to be given complimentary to Mr. Norteman. The following were appointed as the committee to take charge of the dinner, Mayor Shea, President Hobbs, Commodore Robbins, Councilman Sandberg, F. F. Crane and H. W. French.

After the dinner the guests spent an hour or more in social intercourse until the time came to take their departure which was with wishes that the coming season might be a successful one with their genial host and that he would not forget them when he had his opening next year.

Woodward Girl Breaks World Record for High Jump

One record at least was broken Saturday at the annual field day sports of the Woodward Institute at Merrymount park. This was by Miss Rachel Hardwick, daughter of C. Frank Hardwick of Spear street. The world record that she broke was the standing high jump which was held by Miss Theodora Wheeler of Fairfield, Conn., and was made at Vasser college last week. Her record was 4 feet, 3 inches, while Miss Hardwick jumped 4 feet 6 inches.

The only events in the afternoon were a 50-yard dash, captain ball and sack race. The first event was captain ball. The preliminary round was between 1910 and 1911, and was won by 1911. The second round was between 1912 and 1913, and was won by 1912. The final round between 1911 and 1912 was won by 1912.

The sack race was won by Miss Miriam Marsh, '11; Miss Helen Clark, '12, second and Miss Dorothy Bean, '10 third:

—The Lloyd-George budget, substantially in the form in which it was rejected by the House of Lords at the end of the last Parliament, was promptly passed by that chamber in April after it had received the approval of the Commons. The action o the peers in recognition without any show of opposition the determination of the British electorate to shift the weight of the burden of taxation to a degree which has been termed socialistic and subversive of the existing order, removed the problem of financial legislation from the docket of public issues for the time being, and cleared the way for the consideration of the much more important constitutional question. Parliament, after a breathing spell, will reassemble on May 26 to take up the task of determining whether the House of Lords shall be shorn of its power to such an extent as to make the British legislative sytem to all intents and purposes unicameral, or whether the change shall be less radical.—Christian Register.

AUTOMOBILE IN COLLISION WITH STREET CAR

While Former Was Trying to Avoid Man Running for the Electric

The Man Now on Danger List at Hospital

Sunday morning about 10 o'clock an automobile driven by Louis B. Goodspeed and occupied by his wife and Mr. and Mrs. William E. Francis parents of Mrs. Goodspeed, collided with Luigi Maise, 19 of Park avenue, East Braintree and a street car going toward Quincy. The car was in charge of Conductor Herbert Johnson and Motorman Joseph Conlon, both of this city both of whom have been in the employ of the Old Colony street railway for a number of years.

The automobile had passed Newcomb square and almost reached the top of the long hill that starts at the square, when Mr. Goodspeed saw the young Italian Luigi Maise running across the road in front of his machine in an effort to catch the inwardbound trolley which had just started the descent of the hill. Maise was almost in front of the automobile before Mr. Goodspeed saw him.

The htreet car was coming down the incline at fairly good speed though Motorman Conlon was cranking his brake as hard as possible. Seeing that he must work quickly, Mr. Goodspeed turned almost at a right angle to the road across the car tracks but the speed of his machine was such that its rear end struck Maise and knocked him to the ground within a few inches of the car track.

At this point the trolley bore down, despit the efforts of the motorman, and struck the rear of the auto, tearing off its step, and the steel scraper that bangs in front of the car wheels to push ahide small obstacles struck Maise's head, which lay close to the track, and almost entirely severed scalp and left the right ear hanging by only a thread of flesh.

When Mr. Goodspeed turned from his course to avoid a collision he turned to the right though the road to the left was clear for about fifteen feet. As he turned he tried to steer his car for a grassy stretch about eight feet wide between the car tracks and a stone wall which runs along the property of Charles Hayward, in front of whose house the accident occurred.

Had this plot been level all might have been well, but a small water ditch runs through the middle, into which the right front wheel of the auto sank ,tipping it almost over As the machine tilted the car step struck the rear end and turned it completely

DRIFT OF OPINION

Cape Cod people have no special interest in their political location if the census causes a readjustment of congressional districts. No matter whether they are located in the district that Taunton and Brockton is in now or are joined in political bondage with New Bedford they expect to be the tail of the kite and are resigned to the situation. However, the kite couldn't fly without a tail.—Taunton Gazette.

Humanity has every reason to be grateful to animals. They have taught us some of our most useful arts, and have suggested the idea for many an invention. It was the beaver that showed us the possibilities of building under water; the bee brought us the conception of regularity in building; the birds are the oldest masters of basket-work; they, too, have furnished every inventor who has attempted to design a flying-machine with his basic principle; the spiders have taught us the art of weaving and suspending a net. Man learned how to construct ships from the fish; how to dig holes from the badger, and the frogs gabe him hih first swimming lessons.—Humane Advocate.

THE FAMILY'S FREIGHT BILL.

Investigators in the service of the United States Government have ascertained that the avereage family in this country consists of five persons and has an income of $749.50. Of all the money paid out for food, fuel and clothing in one year, by the family of five, the part that can be traced to transportation charges amounts to $9.90. This is an average of less than three cents a day.

Railroad rates, instead of going up with commodity prices in recent years, have declined. This is shown by the Interstate Commerce Commission's reports, which give the average "ton-mile" rates over a period of years.

Lately some typical instances of transportation charges have been culled from the voluminous rate schedules, to show how small a proportion of the cost of an article is due to the freight.

For hauling a one-hundred-and-eighty-five-pound package of potatoes from Florida to New York City the railroads get 61 cents. When the housekeepers buys fifteen cents' worth of these "new" Florida potatoes, she pays only two-thirds of one cent for the hauling. The farmer who raised the potatoes gets not more than a cent and a half for that quantity, at the outside. Somebody gets the rest; who it is scores of official and unofficial investigators are now trying to find out.

A quart of strawberries, whether it sell for 15 or 40 cents, is hauled from Augusta, Georgia to New York City, in specially constructed cars, for half a cent.

From various points in Ohio the rate on butter to New York City is 40 cents a hundred pounds. From places 575 or 400 miles from the city, the New York Central hauls butter for 30 cents a hundred pounds, without extra charge for refrigeration on the way.

Last winter, when eggs were retailing in New York for 40 cents, or more, they could be bought fresh at Salamanca, N. Y., for 20 cents and shipped to the city for about half a cent a dozen. Somebody besides the poultryman and the railroad company got most of what the housekeeped had to pay.

These are only a few illustrations of the small part that transportation charges play in the price of commodities. The fact that freight rates have either remained stationary or declined shows that they have had nothing to do with the increases in the cost of living.

—The high cost of living has not affected the sale of beer in this country, but has in fact rather improved it, according to the figures given out at the internal revenue bureau. The monthly report of the bureau shows that 1,000,000 more barrels of beer were taxed in March than in February and that for the nine months of the fiscal year the increase in the beer tax over the corresponding period of 1909 was almost $1,800,000.

Detective Poisoned His Wife

New York, May 16.—Maurice Lustig, a former private detective, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury. The state contended that he poisoned his wife with strychnine. She carried $3000 life insurance and Lustig was in love with another woman.

Saving the Union.

Until we had a national game it was silly, according to Ellis Parker Butler in Success Magazine, to speak of the loose group of states as a nation. The people had too much time in which to talk politics, and whenever they talked politics they became angered, and whenever they were angered they wanted to secede or knock spots off each other. There was no one great unifying spirit. There was too much "Maryland, My Maryland," and "Yankee Doodle" and not any "Casey at the Bat." All the animus that is now directed at the umpire class was allowed to foment into sectional feeling. A man from Baltimore and a man from Boston could not meet and talk incurves; they had to talk slaves. Imagine the benighted state of society! It is a wonder that the nation lasted until baseball arose in its might and strength to make of us one great people!

Origin of Commerce.

Commerce—the international traffic in goods as distinct from domestic traffic—was undoubtedly originated by the wonderful little people known in history as the Phoenicians. The "Yankees of antiquity," the Phoenicians traded with various peoples long before the other nations had crossed their respective frontiers. All along the shores of the Mediterranean and up the coast of the Atlantic as far north as the British isies their ships were to be found, leaving their manufactures and wonderful dyes and bringing back to Tyre tin, wool and such other articles as paid them to deal in. Creating the merchant marine so long ago that history gives us no account of it, the Phoenicians and their colonists, the Carthaginians, held it until it passed on to Greece and Rome and later along to the republics of modern Italy.—New York American.

Never educate a child to be a gentleman or a lady alone, but to be a man, a woman.—Herbert Spencer.

Anecdotes About the Late King Edward

KING GEORGE V. LATE KING EDWARD VII. PRINCE EDWARD.

WHEN KING EDWARD WAS PRINCE OF WALES.

DURING the first twenty years of his life the little prince, who was afterward King Edward VII., rarely forgot for a moment that he was in all probability to be a ruler of the land. He lived in the firm belief that "a king can do no wrong." When he was a boy of ten he was with his mother, Queen Victoria, at Balmoral castle, in the Highlands of Scotland. At that time the queen was quite a skillful painter in water colors and spent many days by the waterfalls and in the glens making pictures.

One day while she was sitting at her easel young Edward was playing around her. The little prince suddenly caught sight of a Highland lad in kilts. The lad was making a sand castle and adorning it with heather.

"Ye'll No Dae That Again!"

The prince advanced to him with royal hauteur and asked for whom the sand castle was being built.

"For bonnie Prince Chairlie," was the playful reply of the boy, who stood with his hands on his hips to see the effect of a thistle on the top story. The lad had no idea that his interlocutor was any different from any other boy. The young prince, however, determined to make it clear that he, and not Prince Charlie, was to be king some day. He kicked over the castle.

The Highlander, glaring at him, said: "Ye'll no dae that again!"

It was a challenge. The lad rebuilt his sand castle very deliberately. The prince waited until the thistle was stuck on the top story, then kicked it over.

"Ye'll no dae that a third time!" challenged the little Scot, beginning to rebuild with even more deliberation.

The queen had been noticing the affair. She set aside her brush and palette, but said nothing, only watched.

A third time Prince Edward kicked over the Highland lad's sand castle. No sooner was it done than its kilted builder closed his fists and lowered his head. In another moment the two boys were hammering one another. The queen sat there and never interfered by word or act. The little prince presently returned, weeping, bruised and bloody nosed, while the rebel Gael stood apart. To the little prince's plea for speedy justice and vengeance the motherly queen merely replied as she wiped the blood from the future king's nose:

"It served you right!"

One other boy who has long since grown into a tall, sturdy Californian told tales in former years of an encounter which in his schoolboy days he had in Scotland with the then youthful prince. In this case, too, it seems royalty was the aggressor. The Californian, James Miller, was living at the time in Scotland. As James was enjoying a donkey ride one morning near the Firth of Forth the prince passed by and—just for fun—pulled him out of his saddle. Next moment his royal highness found himself giving and taking blows with a plebeian rather bigger than himself, who did not spare him punishment. In after life the prince often referred pleasantly to the "little mixup." He never resented the drubbing he got, and once on learning that his former adversary was in money difficulties went generously to his assistance.

It Was "Bertie" No Longer.

Edward VII. was a man who felt his dignity keenly. At heart he was one of his people. None ever realized more utterly than he that in the ideal he stood for the nation and was the personal representative of the people as a whole—their concrete expression. How deeply he felt that in small things was shown by simple acts. When Edward VII. was Albert, Prince of Wales, none could be more rollicking and gay. He had no closer friend than

KING EDWARD AT THE AGE OF SEVEN.

Lord Rothschild, the great banker. Driving in Tring park, Lord Rothschild's place in Hertfordshire, England, they would lark together like two overgrown boys, even to the extent of mashing in one another's hats in their exuberance. To Lord Rothschild then the prince was "Bertie." But the week that he became king he was heard to say, "Nye"—that was his pet name for Baron Nathan Rothschild—"it won't do now." He never was "Bertie" again, and there was no more knocking of hats over one another's eyes. The friendship remained the same, but the kingship had to be respected.

As King and as Private Person.

An incident at Sandringham, King Edward's estate in Norfolkshire, showed how keenly he felt that as king he belonged to his people and how closely he separated the kingly from the personal identity. He was attending the parish church as king. A newspaper photographer tried to step out into the pathway to obtain a snapshot. A couple of detectives seized the man by the neck and flung him back into the crowd. Edward VII. stopped, had the photographer called and posed for him. Later in the day Edward VII. was sauntering around his garden as a private person, enjoying a smoke after lunch. The same photographer, deeming he was safe as a persona grata, ventured over a fence for a picture of the king in private life. The king signaled to his guard, had the man seized and carried to the railroad station, with word that he was never to let himself be seen at Sandringham again.

King Edward was a "good fellow." A few years ago one of his closest friends was repeating to him something that had been overheard as to the qualifications of George, the new king, to take his place. King Edward smiled and replied: "Oh, that's all right! They've never heard George curse."

PROMPT GROCERY SERVICE

Yesterday morning a new customer said, "Where could I get rich roast beef and have it delivered before 11 o'clock. It must come strictly fresh from the Boston market every morning." Our clerk replied, "Evidently you don't know, madam, that our auto-truck goes to the Boston market every morning just exactly for that purpose, and goes early enough to get the best vegetables in the market, too." This customer left an order.

COMET SPEEDS TOWARD EARTH

Will Be Nearest to Us During Wednesday Night

"A CELESTIAL SEARCHLIGHT"

Close Student of Visitor Says No Poisonous Gases Will Envelop Earth and Expects Nothing More Than Great Condensation of Atmospheric Vapors—Astronomers Say Comet Bodies Are Not Solid Masses!

Washington, May 16.—Halley's comet will be greeted Wednesday night on its closest approach to the earth by a bristling array of telescopes flanked by rapid lenses in the cameras of the naval observatory.

The government observers are prepared for the phenomenon and elaborate calculations have been made as to the minute and second the comet will be at given places in the heavens, where it will be observed and photographed.

Among the scientists there is some difference of opinion as to the effect the comet will have upon the earth, but the differences are minor. Professor Hall of the naval observatory would not be surprised if there were a shower of meteorites. He advances his theory with the same calmness that he would prophesy a shower of rain.

Others—and they appear in the majority—expect no disturbance will mark the passing of the comet. Edwin F. Naulty of New York, who has been at the observatory making telescopic and spectroscopic observations of the visitor, contends that such a shower as Hall deems possible cannot occur.

"Halley's comet, to all intents and purposes, is a celestial searchlight," said Naulty. "It is nothing more than sunlight condensed from radiant solar energy and processed through the solar system, precisely as a lens focuses, condenses and transmits light."

He asserts that the tail of the comet is not composed of gas or of meteoric particles of matter or of meteoric bodies. The entire solar system, Naulty says, is filled with gases in varying states of density. All these gases, poisonous and non-poisonous, are present in the earth's atmosphere in dense form.

"There will be no collision of the earth and comet," continues Naulty, "nor will the earth be enveloped in poisonous gases. The effect of the passage may be to cause great condensation of atmospheric vapors, so that automatically the earth will be provided with a sort of shield which will act like a lead screen used to protect X-ray operators."

Astronomers are curious to know whether the fact will be known when the tail of the great comet sweeps across the earth. It was not known in the case of the comet of 1861, the scientists not knowing of the passage until it was all over and the fact learned by computing the figures.

In the case of Halley's, it is estimated that the comet will pass entirely across the face of the sun in about an hour, so rapidly is it traveling. It may take about the same length of time for the earth to pass through the tail of the comet. If, however, the tail is curved greatly and the earth passes through a diagonal section, the pasage will take longer.

Astronomers who have made a thorough study of comets say that in their opinion these bodies come far from being solid masses, as some laymen believe. They are certain if this from the fact that on various occasions when observations were made of comets, some of the brighter stars were seen directly through the head of the comet.

DANCE SHOCKS NEWPORT

Show Given by Torpedo Factory Employes to Be Investigated

Washington, May 16.—A court of inquiry is investigating a recent entertainment given at Newport, R. I., by civilian employes of the torpedo factory there. The program, it is charged, included a dance by a thinly clad young woman which has shocked the community.

The civilian employes implicated in the affair cannot be court martialed, as they are not amenable to naval regulations. They may lose their jobs at the torpedo station, however, if the authorities decide that the dance was a scandal to the community.

WOLLASTON UNITARIANS

Listen to a Discourse by Pastor on "Patience"

The prayer which preceded the morning sermon at the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday was one to lift up the souls of the congregation, and was especially touching in its deep and earnest plea that the heart of man should be able to feel the profound reality of things unseen.

The subject of the discourse which followed was "Patience" and the text taken by Rev. Mr. Horst was from Hebrews 10:36—"Patience," asserted the preacher, "is not apathy, is not indifference; it is the ability to use, with energy, one's power, to do all within one's ability to forward the achievement of good and useful ends, and then to have faith and hope, and to be able to wait. Nature teaches patience, the seasons follow after one another, and plant and animal life come by gradual and orderly stages to perfection; Great undertakings require that man should wait while he works and work while he waits, and to be able to exercise a large patience. In times of distress and perplexity and sorrow, the ability to wait manfuly and bravely secures one deliverance from the pettiness of impatience and the bitterness of present disappointment.

Many a business man has failed of success through his inability to await in patience the fulfillment of plans which mature slowly. Patience is the mother of cheerfulness and both are friends of peace.

The Unitarian Church-Helpers will meet Thursday, May 19, at 2 P. M. with Mrs. H. A. Stevens, Wayland street.

Members and friends of the Wollaston Unitarian parish will be interested to learn of the approaching marriage of Marion Bagley, whom many will remember as a sweet and attractive little girl. The marriage will take place in Toronto, where her mother lives, on June 17, and it is proposed to send her a gift from the many friends here, who remember with great affection her father, the Rev. James E. Bagley, the second pastor of our church, who did so much for the cause of pure christianity in this community. Those wishing to have a part in this gift will please hand contributions to Mrs. H. G. Fay, 52 Marlboro street, Mrs. George W. Bennett, 174 Arlington street or Mrs. Frank A. Page 107 Winthrop avenue before May 21.

Mrs. J. C. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jacobs, Mrs. C. G. Horst and the pastor represented our church at the installation of the Rev. Charles W. Casson, as pastor of the Third Religious Society in Dorchester last Friday.

The Rev. Thomas J. Hoover of Melrose will occupy our pulpit next Sunday morning. Do not fail to hear him.

The annual Unitarian May meetings begin Sunday, May 22. Hon. Curtis Guild Jr., and Mrs. Clara Guild, dean of the Tuckerman school, will make addreshes at the anniversary meeting, of the Children's Mission in the Arlington Street church Sunday, May 22, at 3 P. M. In the same church in the evening at 8, addresses on social justice will be made by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes of New York, John Spargo, the well known socialist and Clarence E. Carr of Andover, N. H., a prominent political leader and reformer of that state. During the entire week there will be daily morning prayer in King's Chapel at 9 o'clock, and daily vespers at the First Church, corner Berkeley and Marlboro at 5 o'clock.

The last meeting of the season of the Young People's society will be held Tuesday evening, May 17, in the vestry. Mrs. F. C. Babcock, Miss Helen Foster, George Brown and Roy C. Baker have prepared a unique and original program. This society has now nearly 150 members.

Moving Books.

Many persons complain that their books suffer in transit. The head of a moving company was interviewed on this subject, and he said: "After several years' experimenting with different things for the best conveyance of books I have found that the use of small boxes is by far the most advisable, the smaller the better. These boxes are easily secured for a few cents from your grocer. For storage purposes, where the matter is left to us, we move books in long, narrow boxes fitted with handles made especially for this purpose, but this is no necessary, of course, for the ordinary moving. Barrels simply ruin books and large boxes filled with heavy volumes have caused more than one strike among our men. They are the clumsiest of all things to handle, as well as the heaviest."

Another mode of moving books is to tie them up in small bundles with stout wrapping paper and heavy twine, leaving enough of the twine to make a loop handle for lifting.—New Idea Woman's Magazine.

New Way For Mailing Germs.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has amended that section of the postal regulations relating to the transmission of infectious matter in the mails. The change in the regulations will permit the use of a less expensive but amply secure mailing case for specimens of disease. It will provide also that such material may be sent to private laboratories approved by the postoffice department at Washington, as well as to government, state and municipal laboratories. The changes meet with the approval of the bureau of public health and marine hospital service.

CONGRESSMEN'S WIVES' CLUB

Members to Have Directory Showing Their Achievements.

In imitation of their husbands, whose names and deeds are recorded in the Congressional Directory, the members of the Congressional club, composed of the wives of national lawmakers, intend to have a blue book of their own.

The idea originated with Mrs. Champ Clark, better half of the minority leader of the house of representatives. Each member of the club has been asked to furnish a brief biography of herself, and among other questions is asked:

"If thrown on your own resources what could you do to win a living for yourself?"

A full record as to genealogy and personal achievements is requested.

Mrs. Clark believes that the book will not only lend dignity to the club, but that it will act as a cementing bond between the members. Each new session of congress will see a new blue book.

Genesis of the Horseshoe.

It is known that the hoofs of horses were protected by boots of leather at a very early period in the world's history—at a time which at least antedates Pliny and Aristotle, both of whom make mention of the fact. These leather boots were sometimes studded with metal nails, but more usually worn without extra trimming, the cheapness of that commodity making it possible for the owner of the steed to "reboot" him at any time.

AUTO COLLISION

over, breaking down the stone wall and throwing the occupants onto the Hayward lawn in a stunned condition.

The whole thing took only a few second's time. When the automobilihts recovered their senses they found themselves sprowled over Mr. Hayward's lawn; while the young italian Maise,lay on the other side of the track in a serious condition.

Word of the accident was telephoned to the street car barn in this city and an emergency call for physicians was sent out. Drs. George M. Sheehan, John F. Welch and Fred E. Jones responded, and went in their automobiles to the scene of the mishap with all possible speed, and the police ambulance made a record-breaking run. The automobiles and ambulance had a hard time making the run as a part of Quincy avenue, which is state highway is being rebuilt and is now torn up.

The physicians divided their attention between those on the lawn and the more severely injured Italian. Mr. Goodspeed, who was the first to recover, had succeeded in homewhat calming the women, who suffered from nervous shock.

After emergency treatment had been administered to Maise on the side of the street, he was rushed to the Quincy hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis and Mrs. Goodspeed were sent to their home in Dorchester by another auto, while Mr. Goodspeed superintended the righting of his machine, which upon inspection, was found to have escaped damage except for one broken spoke in a rear wheel.

The accident drew a large crowd to the scene among whom was Maise's brother, who was much affected by the sight of the injuries sustained by his brother, and was finally allowed to ride in the ambulance to the hospital. Maise is on the dangerous list.

TRUTH

No. 5

There are two sure roads to wealth.

One is by inheritance and the other by investment.

The man who INHERITS a large sum of money or property which yields him a goodly return is to be congratulated.

BUT,
The man to be doubly congratulated is the INVESTOR—the WISE INVESTOR—who recognizes the opportunity to place his cash, whatever the sum may be, where it will bring him safe, sure and good returns.

The history of America—in fact of the world—shows that the greatest fortunes have been made in oil. California, prodigally rich in this mineral, has made within the past three years fortunes for those shrewd enought to invest in oil lands and stocks. The producing of this product has been in the past, is now, and will continue to be a still greator factor as an investment than anything known at present in the country.

You are afforded an opportunity to invest your savings or surplus funds in an oil company that promises to reap large returns Never before, and probably never again, will you have the same chance. Stock is now selling at 40 cent per share, and in order to secure it at this price we urge haste on your part. Fill out the attached blank and mail at once.

A SONG IN MAYTIME.

William Struthers.

Away, away!
Bold shadows play
With Morning's holden laughter;
Whilst Dawn doth flee
In bashful glee,
Not knowing where they'd waft her!

The daffies dead
And jonquils sped
Forget, and cease repining!
Soon glade and field
Shall give fair yield
Of buttercups, all shining!

Let no lament
Stay glad Content
Who with us would be going!
Shall we not share
With her our fare
Of mirth, so blithe and glowing?

Come! Sing and dance—
As dryads glance
Amongst the boughs moonlighted—
But in the sun,
Joy wooed and won
Without one tear benighted!

TOOK $3500 FOR A WINDUP

Utica Bank Is Looted of $144,000 by Thieving Assistant Cashier

Utica, N. Y., May 16.—J. H. Lowery, the assistant cashier of the Utica City National bank, who walked out of that institution with $3500 at the moment that Federal Bank Examiner Van Vrankin commenced an examination of his books, is a defaulter in the sum of $115,000, it is now learned.

This, with the $3500 he grabbed up as he skipped, made his total thefts $144,000 and the return of $29,000 left him short $115,000. Lowery had a bond in the sum of $20,000, which, with his real estate holdings, which will be seized by the bank, will reimburse the institution to the extent of about $35,000. This sum has already been made good by the stockholders. Lowery has not yet been located.

FINDS SHORT LOBSTERS

Commissioner Dives Overboard to Get Evidence Which Convicts a Man

Newport, R. I., May 16.—The laws of this state governing the catching of lobsters are going to be enforced hereabouts, even if the commissioners have to dive overboard to get the evidence against the law-breakers.

This was the method used by Lobster Commissioner Harrington when he dove from his boat after a tub which he had seen Abraham Riley throw over when the commissioner's boat neared him. The tub was secured and found to contain eleven short lobsters and Riley was arrested. In court later he was fined $50.20.

CANNOT USE KIEV AS ABIDING PLACE

Thousands of Jewish Families Must Seek Homes Elsewhere

Kiev, May 16.—The commission appointed to inquire into the question of the expulsion of Jews residing illegally in Kiev and elsewhere outside the pale has finished its labors.

Eleven hundred and fifty cases have been investigated and 170 families will be allowed to remain, and possibly an additional thirty when the list has been revised.

Many Jews were entitled to reside here as merchants of the first guild, but after the publication of Premier Stolypin's circular, which instructed the local authorities not to evict the Jews who had illegally settled outside the pale prior to August, 1906, pending the enactment of general Jewish reforms, they stopped paying the guild fees and engaged in other occupations not entitling them to residence. The circular issued with reference to expulsion left them without rights.

FAVORS SUNDAY BASEBALL

Minister Thinks Factory Workers Need Healthy Recreation

Woonsocket, R. I., May 16.—Rev. Samuel G. Ayres, pastor of the First Universalist church of this city, surprised the members of the Rhode Island Universalist conference when he came out unqualifiedly in favor of Sunday baseball.

"All sorts of excuses are made for not attending church," he said, "but the man who plays golf, the man who runs an automobile, who have all the week for recreation, are absent from the house of God more often than the man who toils six days a week."

Mr. Ayres expressed his belief that people who work in the factories should be allowed to play baseball or have any other healthful recreation on Sunday. He spoke strongly in favor of a democratic Sunday, instead of the old Puritan Sunday.

LEAVES COW TO DAUGHTER

Mrs. Roberts' Will Is Peculiar In More Than One Respect

Worcester, Mass., May 16.—By the will of Delima Roberts, who died suddenly at her home in Douglas, which was filed at the courthouse in this city for probate, Emma, her daughter, is given a red cow, set forth in the will as the mother's favorite; while Edmond, a son, is cut off with $1. Five children, Robert, Emma, Napoleon, Gilbert and Xavier, are given the residue of the estate, which is valued at over $30,000.

Mrs. Roberts' will, which was made the day before her death, was on a small sheet of paper, and was one of the shortest wills allowed by the court for some time.

ROLLINS, WIFE AND SON HELD

Each Under Bail to Answer to Charge of Conspiracy

REPORT IS "HIGHLY COLORED"

So Says Former Governor of New Hampshire, Who Promises an Explanation of Alleged Smuggling Which Will Put Matter In Different Light—Original Taft Man In Granite State In Embarrassing Position

New York, May 16.—Mrs. Catherine P. Rollins, wife of ex-Governor Rollins of New Hampshire, who is under bail with his son, Douglas, on a charge of conspiring to defrad the government out of customs duties, was arrested in the office of Commissioner Shields. She had gone there for that purpose.

Arraigned at once, Mrs. Rollins, as in the case of her husband and son, was released on $2000 bail to appear Friday, for a formal hearing. She was accompanied by a representative of Rollins & Rollins, who have been appearing for her husband. Neither father nor son was in court. Mrs. Rollins appeared to have recovered from her nervous shock of Friday.

Steamship officials declare that the arrest of the Rollins family is the best possible proof that Collector Loeb's men were in earnest some time ago when they announced that society smuggling must be stopped, no matter who might be affected by the law. Rollins, who is very wealthy, was the original Taft man in New Hampshire, and the president of the W. H. Taft association several years before the nomination. He has a very wide acquaintance with public men, including Loeb.

The steamship people say that if returning Americans hear that a man like Rollins is arrested they will become exceedingly truthful in their declarations. At the same time there is sorrow generally at the embarrassing position in which the family finds itself.

Only one thing, it is thought, can be done, and that is to have them acknowledge a technical fault and pay a fine, submit to the confiscation of their property and promise never to do it again. Rollins may have another view, however. He dictated the following:

"The newspapers have contained statements in regard to my landing from the Lusitania on the 23d which are highly colored and give a wrong impression. My natural impulse is to publish a statement correcting the misconception, but I do not deem it wise or advisable at this time to make any statement through the papers. At the proper time I expect to make a statement which will put the matter in a different light."

Much interest is expressed as to the effect the affair may have politically on the future of Douglas Rollins. It is known among his friends that for some time he has entertained the ambition to serve in the diplomatic service.

FROM ALL OVER EUROPE

Monarchs Will Gather In London to Attend King Edward's Funeral

London, May 16.—At the funeral of the late King of Great Britain there will be present a most remarkable gathering of monarchs and potentates.

From all over Europe they will come to London, and there, marching behind the casket, will do honor to the dead king.

So closely is the royal family of Great Britain related to the rulers of continental Europe that nearly every king and queen will be present at the funeral not only as the royal head of a nation, but also as a near relative to the dead king.

Among them will be these rulers who are related by birth or marriage to Edward: William of Germany, Emperor Nicholas II of Russia, Manuel II of Portugal, King Alfonso XIII of Spain, King Albert of Belgium, King Haakon VII of Norway and King George I of Greece.

ACCIDENT UNEXPLAINED

Dozen Persons Seriously Injured When Big Car Leaves the Rails

North Attleboro, Mass., May 16.—Forty women and men were thrown from their seats in an electric car here and many were injured when the rear wheels of a big semi-convertible car suddenly left the tracks on a straight road and the back vestibule was dashed into an elm tree alongside the track and was smashed almost into splinters.

Women and men were thrown into promiscuous heaps in the centre aisle of the big car, and when the confusion was over it was found that twelve people had been injured enough to require the care of doctors, while a dozen others were shaken and bruised by the crash.

What caused the accident could not be determined. An investigation showed that the rails seemed to be in good condition, and there was no switch at the point.

BROKEN NECK FAILS TO KILL TEAMSTER

Will Be Discharged From Boston Hospital In a Few Days

Boston, May 16.—Clayton Seaboyer is one of the few men whose necks have been broken and who live to tell about the terrible experience. Rarer still, he is sitting up now in his cot in the Boston city hospital, whither he was carried, supposedly in a dying condition, on April 4. Most strange of all is the fact that he is to be discharged from the institution in a few days.

The surgeons at the hospital declare the case almost without precedent in the annals of the profession. Seaboyer is a teamster. He is 37 years old. He received a broken neck while wrestling on the wagon of which he had charge.

TROUSSEAUX GOWNS.

Useful Hints From Elaborate Trousseaux—Pretty Trimmings That Reresh Last Year's Tailormade—Novelties in Embroideries Fancy Footwear—Changeable Silk Blouses—wide Glove Stitchings.

Some of the prettiest frocks seen lately have been in notable trousseaux where good taste dominated the lavish expenditure, for whether the outfit is simple or elaborate unless good taste and appropriateness rules the selection ,the result is sure to be a fai'ure.

THE STUDY OF PERSONALITY.

Women who dress very well always understand their personal needs. They know what not to wear, and thus eliminate most of the trouble of selection. Usually simple frocks are most becoming and it is safer to err on the side of simplicity than in the other direction.

PEASANT TYPES.

What are known as "Peasant" frocks, which are simply the old time skirts of soft materials fulled into the waist, with waists to match usually having the new close fitting sleeve, cut in one with the blouse, are pretty, easy to make and becoming to almost everyone. These are draped over fitted linings, so that the silhouette still remains slender as when the skirt is cut plain over the hips. The skirts tied in below the knee are increasingly worn, and if the figure is slender are most becoming unless an extremely narrow banding is attempted. One sees very few of the absurdly narrow French models worn, for dressmakers and their clients have modified the lines to suit American good taste.

SILK AND SERGE FROCKS FOR GENERAL WEAR.

Girlish frocks of serge made in the modified Princess styles shown everywhere are prettily worn with turned down collars and turned back cuffs of pleated linen, or lingerie and with these, rough straw hats trimmed with big velvet bows and facings, or with scarfs of printed silk go admirably. Foulard dresses, made simply, often with no other trimming than their own borders, are worn with rather wide belts of black patent leather, while patent leather shoes, and bags go uncommonly well with these.

FASHIONABLE EMBROIDERIES.

Embroideries of all sorts were never more fashionable than now, and every girl who is collecting her store of linen for the wedding outfit, as well as other women who like the daintiness of nice markings should know of the Reis "Stitchon" and "Foundation" letters that make such embroideries an easy matter even for the least skilled needlewoman. The "Stitchon" letters and Monograms can be had at any embroidery counter that is up-to-date, and are simply stitched on to the article as their name implies. The "Foundation" letters save all the trouble of stuffing and insure success in marking table linens, towels, handkerchiefs or any other desired article. They keep their shape in laundering, make the work easy, and can be used singly or combined in names or monograms.

NEW TRIMMINGS.

Nothing is better, or less expensive for bringing last year's gowns or tailored suits up-to-date than to trim them with foulard, in polka spots, or some other attractive design. Collar facings, coat linings, belts, bands and other trimmings are made of these silks and it is a happy conceit to have a parasol covered to match. Natural colored shantungs are especially pretty with foulard trimmings in blue, or red or green. Overlapping buttons are the last trimming kink noted.

FASHIONABLE GLOVES AND SHOES.

Wingtipped shoes both in low and high cuts are very much worn and many very fancy styles are shown at the shops, but the majority of well dressed women, stick to black or tan footwear for street purposes. Slippers with black foxings with heels in color to correspond with the dress or its trimmings are liked ,and on white or black slippers many of the heels have lacy metal ornaments in silver, steel or gilt. Fancy uppers in striped or blocked serge are seen on boots with smoked pearl buttons. Wide heavy stitchings are used on street gloves. White stitchings on black or dark colors, and black stitchings on white or light colors.

When Finished.

Busy persous, forced to defend themselves from interminable talkers who have little to say, can appreciate a hint to which Henry IV. of France once resorted. A parliamentary deputy called upon him and made a long speech. The king listened patiently for a time, then he decided that his visitor would do well to condense his remarks. He took him by the hand and led him to where they could see the gallery of the Louvre.

"What do you think of that building? When it is finished it will be a good thing, will it not?"

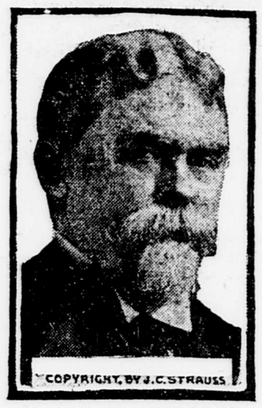

"Yes," replied the man of many words, not guessing what was coming next.

"Well, monsieur, that is just the way with your discourse," was the king's mild observation.

VAN CLEAVE DROPS DEAD

Man Who Succeeded Him In Office Says He Died a Martyr

St. Louis, May 16.—J. W. Van Cleave, former president of the National Manufacturers' association, dropped dead of heart disease at his home here Sunday.

New York, May 16.—John Kirby, Jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, which begun its fifteenth annual convention here today, gave a statement on James W. Van Cleave, in part as follows:

"It is not too strong to say that he died a martyr to his duty and sacrificed his life for the benefit of the American employe as well as the American employer.

"Valiantly he fought for industrial freedom and bravely he died for the cause of righteousness and justice. He was intolerant of sham, restless at injustice of all kinds, a fighter for truth."

FISHERMAN KEEPS VOW MADE IN 1894

Two Thousand Loaves of Bread Distributed to the Poor

Gloucester, Mass., May 16.—Fulfilling a vow made sixteen years ago when a sudden shift of wind saved his storm-beaten vessel from driving onto a lee shore off Cape Cod, Captain Joseph Mosquita, one of Gloucester's best known fishermen, on Sunday gave away to the poor 2000 loaves of bread.

This gift he made at the Church of Our Lady of Good Voyage, after a special mass, during which Mosquita and his crew of sixteen were "crowned" amid all the pomp and ceremonial of the Portuguese church, had been celebrated.

Captain Mosquita and his crew, headed by a band, marched in picturesque array from the church to the captain's home, where, in celebration of his vow and of the feast of the Pentecost, open house was held until late in the evening.

Taft Calls Republican Senators, Except Insurgents, In Conference

Washington, May 16.—President Taft conferred with Republican senators from states west of the Mississippi river, upon whom he is depending for votes to put through his legislative program. Nearly all of the western senators were present except the Republican insurgents. They were not invited.

The purpose of the gatherding was to get all of the western Republicans in line, including some of those who have appeared lukewarm toward certain of the administration measures. No effort will be made to influence the "out and out insurgents," according to authoritative statements from some of the participants in the conference.

TO DEVELOP MAINE FARMS

Pomona Granges Back Project Launched by Minister and Others

Bangor, Me., May 16.—Rev. George M. Parks of Presque Isle is one of the originators of a land development project. A bill is to be presented to the legislature to empower Aroostook county to acquire title to land adapted to agricultural purposes. Pomona granges in Aroostook county are behind the plan.

It is argued that the farms available are beyond the reach of young men of limited means and the grangers urge that they should have a chance to acquire lands at a price within their reach.

EXONERATION OF BALLINGER

Charge That Lawler Drafted Letter Signed by Taft

STENOGRAPHER'S STATEMENT

Says Preliminary Drafts Were Burned In Grate In Interior Department Under Supervision of Ballinger's Private Secretary—Note From White House Says President Personally Dictated Document After Inquiry

Washington, May 16.—Oscar Lawler, assistant attorney general for the Interior department, of which Richard A. Ballinger is the head, did in fact prepare a draft of a letter addressed to Secretary Ballinger, and in such form and phrase that it might have been adopted verbatim and signed by the president as Mr. Taft's exoneration of the secretary from two charges of L. R. Glavis and authorizing the dismissal of Glavis from his position of special agent of the interior department.

This draft by Lawler was delivered to the Ballinger-Pinchot committee and ordered spread upon the records of the investigation.

Careful comparison of the Lawler draft with the letter of the president shows that Taft did in fact adopt practically verbatim two short paragraphs of Lawler's language. The substance of the two documents is otherwise widely dissimilar.

The subject is on every tongue in Washington, where almost every man, woman and child is bitterly either a Ballinger or a Pinchot partisan.

The thing came to a head in the publication of a statement attributed to Frederick M. Kerby, one of the stenographers in the office of Ballinger, in which Kirby related at length the circumstances under which he alleges the Lawler draft to have been prepared.

Kerby asserted further that all of the preliminary drafts used in the preparation of the letter were burned in a grate in the interior department at the suggestion and under the supervision of Don M. Carr, Ballinger's private secretary.

Kerby drew the inference that the Lawler letter had been adopted by the president essentially as his own; that Ballinger and his legal adviser, therefore, virtually prepared the exoneration which Taft issued over his own signature.

Almost simultaneously with the publication of the Kerby statement, Attorney General Wickersham sent to the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee, then in session, a copy of the Lawler draft, accompanied by a letter to Chairman Nelson, in which Wickersham declared that the document was overlooked in sending the papers requisitioned by the committee at the behest of Attorney Bradeis.

Upon the publication of the Kerby statement Ballinger hurried to the White House. Shortly afterward the following statement was issued:

"With reference to the published affidavits of F. M. Kerby, a stenographer in the office of the secretary of the interior, to the effect that the president's letter of Sept. 13, 1909, exonerating Secretary Ballinger, was substantially prepared for the president's signature by Assistant Attorney General Lawler, it was said at the White House today that there is absolutely no foundation for any such statement. The president dictated his letter personally as the result of his own investigation of the records and consideration of documents and papers in his possession at the time and upon the report to him of the attorney general."

The facts seem to be that Kerby told his story truthfully as far as he knew personally what had been done. But his information was confined largely to what transpired within the secretary's office at the interior department and did not include certain events at Beverly, where the president was visited by Ballinger and Lawler.

However, his affidavit promises to open up a new line of inquiry before the congressional committee. Brandeis has been clamoring for the records and the reports presented to the president, but has experienced great difficulty in obtaining them.

RAMBLERS WIN AT BELMONT

Heavy Hitting by O'Brien and the Chapmans

The Ramblers of Wollaston, played the Belmont Green Sox at Belmont on Saturday, and defeated them in a tight well played game by a score of 3 to 2. Ben O'Brien's batting was the feature, a three bagger and a double being his portion, and he was ably seconded by the Chapman brothers, who made a double and triple between them. Mil Chapman pitched a good game but had a hard time winning, the umpire giving him the small end of the balls and strikes.

FORE RIVER BOYS LOSE

But Gives General Electric Team a Treat

(By Rube.)

The Apprentices from the General Electric Co. plant at West Lynn came to Quincy on Saturday afternoon to try conclusions with the Fore River Apprentices and after nine innings of good and bad baseball the visitors came out victors by a score of 7 to 3.

At the start of the game, Kerr fanned Grover the first man to face him; Willey singled and Perry doubled scoring Willey. Grethe fumbled Wilber's grounder and this coupled with errors by Clinton and Newcomb gave the Lynn lads three scores. Kerr put on extra steam and fanned the next two batters making three strike outs in the inning.

The locals could not fathom Grover's delivery and but three men faced him. In the fourth with two out, Allen of the vihitors singled and went to second as the ball got through centre field; Grover came to time with a fine two sacker and Allen scored. Willey struck out but in doing so broke one of Newcomb's fingers so that he retired in favor of Boyle.

The shipyard boys were unable to do anything in their turn in the second, third or fourth innings and Instructor Neary sent Gomez into the game.

The fifth brought the out-of-towners two more runs on three errors, a base on balls and a hit. With two out in their half of the fifth, Neary's pets went at their opponents with blood in their eyes. Gomez was hit in the back with an inshoot; Creswell drove a dandy single to right which got by Willey and Gomez tallied. Kerr's grounder went through short, Srehwell scoring and Kerr went to second; Howley's single put the twirler over with third. Naylor flied out. Score 6 to 3.

In the seventh the "Electrics" put another over on a two-bagger, and two outs which ended the scoring for the afternoon. Mr. Neary, instructor of Fore River Apprentices, pressed Hayden into service in order to look him over as he wants the strongest possible team when the Granite City league opens next Saturday.

During the game the best of feeling existed between the rival nines, and not a kick was made by either side on the umpiring which speaks well for both teams.

After the game, players, instructors, and a few invited guests went to the Y. M. C. A. building where they enjoyed the shower baths and swimming pool. After a half hour of inspecting this fine home for Quincy athletes, the party adjourned to the banquet hall where dinner was served. The ball field proved a big factor in making all anxious for nourishment and chicken pies, mashed potatoes, coffee, rolls, pickles, ice cream, cakes, cookies and various other catables were soon among the missing.

The toastmaster, James E. Neary, arose at conclusion of dinner and in a few well chosen words spoke highly of both nines. Capt. Wilber of the visitors, and Capt. Grethe both had a few words to say. E. G. Gay of the Y. M. C. A. told a few interesting stories and complimented boys on clean games

C. K. Tripp, instructor of Apprentices at the Lynn plant, was the last speaker, saying he had always found Quincy a great place. He hoped all present would come to Lynn on July 16, when they held their annual field day. With a hasty parting the visitors rushed to the depot to catch a train and slowly the local lads "came to" wondering if the visitors had hidden batteries that kept them going in such a speedy way, continually.

HULL MEN HILARIOUS

Put it All Over Government Draftsmen

In the second game of the Fore River inter-department series, the Hull drafting office team easily put away the Government draftsmen Saturday afternoon at Merrymount park by a lop-sided score of 20-12. The game was characterized by ragged playing at times by both teams, but heavy hitting, fast base running and flashes of pretty fielding served to make it interesting and at times exciting for the large gathering of supporters on hand.

The Hull men took the lead from the start and were never headed. Only at one period, the eighth inning, did Uncle Sam's men look dangerous when they crossed the pan several times and came within one run of tieing the score. However, in their half the Hull men braced and pounded Harsen all over the field, thereby tucking away the game with a comfortable margin. Seven hits including a homer by Alstein and another to the half way station by Jordan, coupled with a number of free passes netted the Hull team seven runs. In the remaining inning the Government men failed to connect.

The pitching of Joe Ryan for the Hull men was the feature and proved a stumbling block for his opponenth. With a flash of his old form, while at Mechanics Art High, Joe formed 15 Government men and allowed but three free passes, besides keeping the hits scattered.

Harsen for the opponents was touched up for 12 hits, fanned 11 Hull men and issued 8 free passports

Wagner, Torrey, Cantwell and Campbell lead for the Government team, while Harsen featured in wielding the willow.

Sickler of the Hull team was struck over the heart in the fifth inning by one of Harhen's swift inshoots, and rendered unconscious for several minutes. Emergency work by his team mates revived him and he was escorted to his home on Butler road. Otherwise there were no mishaps.

As the Government team took the opening game by a lone tally it is probable a rubber will be played to wind up the series.

Batteries for the Hull—Ryan and Floyd. For Uncle Sam's men—Harsen and Torrey.

Kicker—Now we have children taught how to play. Bocker—Fine! Next we shall have animal training to show lambs how to gambol.—New York Sun.

A Scotch Anti-golf Law.

Scotland, as everybody knows, is the land where golf originated and the land where it most flourishes. But if the law were strictly enforced north of the Tweed it would go hard with the players of the royal game in "bonnie Scotland." Golf players there may not know it, but they are liable to a sentence of death for their indulgence in their favorite sport. Technically this is literally a fact. In ancient times, when Scotland always had work for her soldiers to do, all young men were required to perfect themselves in archery. They preferred to play golf and so serious a rival did the game become that it was for a time suppressed and made a capital offense. That curious law never has been repealed and may still be found on the statute book There seems to be no record, however of the law ever having been enforced.

MIDNIGHT SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL

Three Ballots Necessary to Fill Vacancy on the School Committee

Adverse Report on Meters and Finance Investigation

Another long meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. The lengthy session was caused by prolonged debates on the admitting of applications for permits to transport liquor, on the granting of a license to run a junk shop to L. Grossman & Son and on granting the Gas Co permission to lay mains. The debate on the latter question was the most spirited. Motions to recommit were lost on roll call, and a roll call was demanded on the suspension of rules. The climax came when Councilman McDevitt stated that the Gas company had opened Marsh street and Quincy street without a permit, and if not so, he would apologize and resign.

This brought Mayor Shea to his feet with the original order granting the company permits to lay mains as passed by last year's City Council which included the two streets named. The Mayor also made a sharp reply. This was immediately followed by a roll call on the order which was passed.

Considerable time was also consumed at the joint convention to fill the vacancy in the School Committee three ballots being required to make a choice. Councilmen Nowland and Snow were absent.

SURFACE DRAINAGE.

A communication was received from the Mayor recommending an appropriation for surface drainage. Referred to Committee on Streets.

CITY CLAIMS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the City Solicitor in regard to the claim of various persons, and recommending an appropriation of $2,500 for that purpose.

JULY FOURTH CELEBRATION.

A communication was received from the Fourth of July committee, asking an appropriation of $2,000. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Bryant offered an order for that amount to be expended under the direction of the Mayor. Referred to Finance Committee.

PETITIONS.

Councilman Smith presented a petition for the care of the clock on the Methodist church on Hall place. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

A petition for a concrete sidewalk on Grand View avenue was referred to the Committee on Streets.

Councilman Whiton presented a petition for a light on the pole opposite 1000 Sea street. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Clark presented a petition that Quincy street be watered or oiled. Referred to Executive.

A number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred.

Petitions for licenses to transport liquor were received from Cataldo Coletti and Gerardo CapoBianchi. After some debate the rules were suspended by a vote of 12 yes and 5 no, and they were admitted and referred to the License Committee.

A public hearing was held at 7.45 on petitions of the Telephone Co. to make attachments. No opposition was heard and the order was recommitted.

Councilman McDevitt presented a petition of Jerry Bizzozero to transport liquor. A motion to suspend the rules to admit the application was lost, 11 voting yes and 7 no.

Later a motion was made to reconsider and it prevailed. Another motion to suspend the rules was lost, 11 voting yes and 8 no.

SCHOOL BOARD VACANCY.

A joint convention of th e School Committee and City Council was held at 8 o'clock to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dexter E. Wadsworth.

John L. Miller was elected chairman clerk of the convention and George T. Magee clerk.

Councilman Gardner nominated Alfred H. Gilson.

Councilman Moir nminated John D. Mackay.

Dr. Hunting nominated John L. Gow.

Those entitled to vote were requested to rise and be counted. The clerk counted 26 present.

A committee consisting of Councilman Hobbs and Whiton and Dr. Hunting was appointed to receive and count votes.

The first ballot showed 29 votes cast, three more than the count. This was due to the fact that some members came in after the count. Voted that the names be called by the clerk and the members vote as their name was called.

The first ballot gave Edward Southworth 2 votes, Gow 5, Gilson 8, and Mackay 14. The second ballot gave

CONGRESSMEN INTERESTED

And Quincy Should Hear Addresses on Waterways

Such has been the demand for tickets to hear the addresses of Congressmen Small and Moore in this city on Friday evening, that the Quincy Historical Society and the Quincy Board of Trade have decided to meet in Alpha hall on Friday evening. "Atlantic Deeper Inland Waterways" is the subject, and these gentlemen are enthusiastic on the theme, and its great advantages. It means much even to the sea coast towns, and it is not surprising that Quincy is interested.

CONGRESSMAN MOORE.

Should this city become the mouth of the Boston, Brockton and New York canal it would rise rapidly in commercial importance, and attract large industries to locate on the river front.

The committee of the Board of Trade who are acting with the Historical Society, includes Frank F. Crane, Henry L. Kincaide, H. S. Barker and T. L. Williams.

The congressmen will be entertained at dinner previous to the lecture, and on Saturday will be taken about the city, and over the route of the canal to Brockton.

Brooks Adams, Esq., will preside at the meeting on Friday evening at 8.15. It is one of the times when Quincy should enthuse.

ROOSEVELT RULES DR. GIFFORD'S SUBJECT

At Ladies' Night Banquet of Men's Club of Bethany Church

Show Passion for Righteousness and Passion for Service

"Be sure you're right" and "Seek points of contact," two rules of Theodore Roosevelt, formed the keynote of the talk by Rev. Dr. O. P. Gifford of Brookline Monday night at the "ladies' night" given by the Men's Club of the Bethany Congregational church. He gave a typical after-dinner speech, with pointed summaries that kept his audience in good humor.

Recalling an address delivered by the governor of Colorado on "Theodore Roosevelt," four years ago at Lake Winona, Indiana, Dr. Gifford said his attention was focused on two rules of Roosevelt which hung above his desk at the White House—"Be sure you're right" and "Seek points of contact."

"These are characteristic of Roosevelt, the man, as we know him," he said. "In these mottoes is shown a passion for righteousness and a passion for service. There are those who think they are right but are not righteous and others who are active but not for service. Men cannot always be convinced by argument but they can by action. Weston would have been a long time crossing the continent if he had balanced this way, but he new where he was going.

"Uncle Sam may have been startled when a certain young man jumped on him with both feet, but that young man had been awake some time and knew what he was doing.

"The whole commercial system of the country depends on the integrity of the men at Washington and yet the ultimate court of appeal in much that is science is the human mind. Too many men when they know they are right fail to seek points of contact. They say truth will take care of itself. But it won't."

Touching the family life and the boys and girls he said it was a good plan to go through the house and see if there are any "broken drain pipes" that need fixing. Too many people are careful of the company their children keep outside and not so careful of the company they have at home.

The address abounded in epigrams, and a few are quoted below:

"I don't care how big a club a man swings if he don't hit me—when he hits the back of my head I'll open my mouth and howl. Theodore Roosevelt found "points of contact."

Seek "points of contact" in the regulation of your own life.

Don't try to teach music until the piano is in tune.

Don't try to point another to righteousness when your thumb points back at self.

Prayer is a mighty force but you can't save plumbing bills with it. There are times when you want a man down in the cellar on his knees.

See to it that your city streets are sanded, that boys and girls may not fall morally.

Roosevelt's mind is a hair trigger, but it is not the quick trigger but the steadiness of aim that tells.

The festivities of the evening opened at 6 o'clock, and there was a reception until 6.30 in the ladies' parlor. The banquet was served in the dinning room which was attractive with red, white and blue bunting, uags, and apple boughs in blossom. On the tables were hydrangers in bloom, also ferns, candelabrum, pinks and other flowers, and at each plate a long stemmed pink.

The blessing was asked by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Hardy. An excellent menu was then served by C. C. Whittemore of Boston.

President Edward Southworth presided at the post prandial exercises, and first presented a pleasing musical program, including a violin solo by Miss Nell Forsaith, accompanied by Miss Frances Forsaith, and a duet by Mrs. Emma S. Moore and Mr. A. L. Hayden, who were accompanied by Mrs. Charles Sampson.

After the address there was a beautiful solo by Mrs. Moore.

The address of Dr. Gifford was frequently interrupted with approval, and the applause at the conclusion was long continued. Upon motion of Dr. Hardy a rising vote of thanks was given the entertainers of the evening. President Southworth thanked all who had contributed to the work of the year, which he felt had been very encouraging. "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung in closing.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Some people as well as towns appreciate shade trees as was demonstrated this week in Newton when a man paid a hundred or two dollars to move a large oak tree a couple of miles to his estate: It was a large oak tree fifty feet high and weighing over ten tons. Its owner is anxiously watching hoping it will live. Hon. Russell A. Sears of this city had a good-sized tree on his estate transplanted this spring and it is thriving.

BRIEFS

W. H. F. Browne of Elm avenue has gone to New York on a short business trip.

Ballinger Swings His "Snake" Axe on Stenograper's Head

EXPOSED WHITEWASH LETTER

Starting of New Forestry Row Due to Secrecy of Administration —Discharged Man Says He Acted For the Public Good—President Says He Directed Lawler to Prepare Missive —The Wickersham Letter

Washington, May 16.—Frederick M. Kerby, the stenographer whose statement on Saturday last brought from President Taft an acknowledgement of the accuracy of the young man's statements, has been discharged by Secretary Ballinger. This action, while inevitable under the circumstances, is generally taken also to be another step in the campaign of elimination in the interior department which Secretary Ballinger has characterized as "snake-killing."

Now that President Taft has narrated the circumstances surrounding his preparation of the letter exonerating Ballinger and virtually admitting the accuracy of the statements made by Kerby, there is a disposition on all sides to dismiss the matter, so far as the president is concerned, with perhaps the suggestion that he might have used a little better judgment.

Had the government officials involved made all the facts known at the beginning of the investigation the incidents would not have been regarded as seriously as they now are. It is not unusual for the president or other government officials to call upon subordinates to prepare letters for their signature. This is exactly what the president did when he was called upon to review the Glavis charges and the fact that he selected for that task a subordinate of the secretary of the interior, instead of some disinterested official, is regarded as unfortunate judgment, rather than indicating desire to have only Ballinger's side of the case.

The text of Ballinger's letter to Kerby is as follows:

"Sir—You are hereby discharged from the public service because you are unworthy to remain in it. In divulging information obtained by you in the confidential relation of stenographer to the secretary of the interior; in communicating that information to those whom you are bound to know are wrongfully seeking to bring reproach upon the administration and to injure me; and in deliberately misstating material facts as to which you treacherously communicate, you show that you are unworthy and unsafe. The fact that your treachery is futile cannot mitigate the character of your offense. For the good of the service you are hereby discharged."

Kerby received the letter of dismissal by special messenger. In discussing the subject of his discharge Kerby said the secretary's action had not been a surprise to him.

"Of course when I issued my statement," he added, "I realized that the secretary would take some such action. As to the charges made by Secretary Ballinger against me I am perfectly willing to leave to the judgment of the people of the country as to whether I acted treacherously or patriotically, and I feel entirely certain that the general verdict will be in my favor. At any rate I think that Secretary Ballinger is not an excellent judge of ethics."

President Taft in person has taken a hand in the situation which has arisen concerning the "inside" history of his letter of Sept. 13, exonerating Secretary Ballinger from the charges of special agent L. R. Glavis and authorizing the dismissal of Glavis. Over his own signature he addressed a long letter to Senator Nelson, chairman of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee, setting forth in detail the sequence of events after his receipt at Beverly, on Aug. 18 last, of the charges by Glavis.

He says not only that Lawler did prepare such a letter as Kerby said he did, but that he did so by the president's specific direction. When he received it, he found it was not what he wanted to issue, and he wrote the letter in the form he desired, using from Lawler's draft only one or two general statements.

The president goes still further and takes up the question of the "back dating" of Attorney General Wickersham's summary of the Glavis charges, to which Attorney Louis D. Brandeis has drawn attention. Taft says that the attorney general's letter was in fact "back dated" and that this also was done by his specific direction.

LETTER FROM JAPAN.

Tottori, Japan, April.

The first time I met the lieutenant was at a social meeting at our house when he made one of the 95 present. He had come, he told me, at the invitation of one of the church deacons. He spoke English pretty well and modesty was not his characteristic feature. As he bade me goodbye he said that he would come soon to see me with tickets for a field day at the barracks, and sure enough, the next Sunday afternoon he appeared with the tickets for the sports which were to be held the next day.

So on Monday I stopped at a friend's and picking him up we went on together to the barracks which are two miles from here on the other edge of town. The roads were blocked with hundreds of folks, gentle and simple, from the governor and the general down to the old parents of the soldier laddies, come in see Taro and Jiro do "stunts." Arrived at the barracks we soon were discovered by our lieutenant who showed us the decorations of the different companies. Company 1 (they are numbered, not lettered), for instance it had a most gruesome sight for its contribution; it was a historical scene well known in this country, Tokimune putting to death the ambassadors of Kublai Khan (in 1281). One decapitated Mongal was "lying weltering in his gore," while a second, with anything but a resigned look on his face was kneeling under the uplifted sword. Next to this was a tremendous phonograph—"Edison's original," our mentor reported it. His own company had prepared a rest house in the form of a huge daruma, 30 feet high, composed of red blankets. A daruma is a tremendously fat man usually represented as sitting with no legs appearing. In Japan the boys don't make snow-men they make snow-darumas. Another of these decorations was an octagonal house for the boys' parents to use as a resting place and drink tea. It was made of pieces of canvas over a frame of light wood and on it was written in characters visible 500 yards away, "Panorama." A close inspection showed that the strokes of these simple letters were made of white socks! Another company had built a mountain of green mosquito-nets from the ground to the eaves of the barrack roof, 40 feet, and two lions made of palm-fibre, were crouching, one on the roof and one on the ground. There was an eormous spider on a web of straw rope. There was a flying-machine. There was a devil-fish (giant squid) which two stuffed straw soldiers on the roof had captured. There were numerous frogs (to insinuate that Tottori has a moist climate!) and other animals and historical figures. The boys had laid themselves out, and considerable ingenuity was shown, as the materials were all taken from easily accessible military stores—or rather they had drawn on their own clubbed possessions. The best at least most suggestive—was a pair of scales with a dead soldier on a stretcher on one side and a feather on the other and lower side. The legend ran: "Death weighs lighter than a feather."

The occasion for all this is the anniversary of the regimental "colors." The first thing we saw as we entered the barracks was a shrine—a temporary one, to be sure, but still a shrine—and in front of it were the guarded colors. Query: Where do reverence and respect end and worship begin? I have no dobut that my companion's feelings were the exact counterpart of what a loyal New Englander feels on Decoration day at the cemetery exercises. Equally have I no doubt that some of the old country parents of Taro and Jiro really worshipped that flag.

But soon the bugles blow and we surround the railed enclosure, for the stunts are about to begin. Of course the Governor and big guns generally (figuratively speaking!) are in the grand stand which consists of benches under a low awning made of canvas strips. Each company has one stunt and they are run off without a hitch—the tail of one sometimes being stepped on by the front feet of the next! Some are real races but for the most part they are just stunts.

The first was a tug-of-war, 50 on a side. There was a race of "horses," each "horse" consisting of three men with a fourth man riding. Another stunt was for two sides of such "horses," a dozen to a side, to see which side could pick up, in small lacrosse raquets in the rider's hands, small red and white balls from the ground and throw into a basket—ball like basket, while the other side prevented. The only real running race was a very interesting thing. At one corner of the enclosure two sets of heavy articles, exactly similar, were got out. These articles consisted of bundles of blankets, axes, pick-axes, boards, etc., all munitions of war. At the opposite corner sat an orderly who at a given signal handed dispatches to one of each of two parties, one in kahki and one in blue. These two men raced away around opposite sides of the semicircle to the opposite corner where each handed his dispatch to the quartermaster in charge of the munitions. He received the bundle of boards, or blankets, or cart to pull, or horse to lead, as the dispatch called for and raced home as rapidly as his laden condition permitted. As soon as he was in, the second of his party reviewed his dispatche and went racing off. So it was in reality a relay race illustrating potentially the necessities of war.

There was also a daruma race, which was really a sack race only the contestants were more fettered than usually they are. One stunt was for two blindfolded parties led by a blinded musician to engage in fencing with wooden rifles. Of course they meandered all over the lot and fought with each other, as much as with the enemy. One of the best was an old-fashioned bridal party escorting, with the inevitable bride-song, the bride to her new house. There were masters of ceremony and drunken coolies staggering under the weight of the many boxes and bureaus and wardrobes containing the bride's trousseau. The were followed by the immediate family of the bride who, herself stoped and did a fan dance while they were being photographed.

But the most laughable and successful of all was a procession of different kinds of people, types one constantly meets on the street. It is impossible to describe the outfiits, but they were certainly excellently done. The whole thing that we saw did not occupy much over an hour. I returned home at noon feeling that this had been one of the most interesting scenes I have lately witnessed in this land of interesting things.

Ad now, Mr. Editor, with the request that you refrain from stating that your correspondent who so relishes the word stunt is a minister and a missionary, I will sign myelf,

Yours truly,
Charles M. Warren,
Tottori, Japan, April 6.

TWELVE-INCH SHELLS FIRED AT KATAHDIN

Old Navy Ram Used as Target In Interesting Experiments

Washington, May 17.—A bit of naval warfare took place on the Potomac river at Indian Head, Va., when the old naval ram Katahdin received her baptism of fire.

It was not the fire of an enemy, but it was aimed at her with every intention of sinking her if possible.

Having outlived her usefulness as a fighting vessel, the curious naval vessel was clothed in modern 12-inch, high grade armor plate, and a dozen ordnance experts directed the attack on her with the new soft-nose naval shell, hurled through a big 12-inch gun.

The Katahdin served to assist the naval experts in ascertaining whether the new shell can be deflected when it strikes at any angle, or whether it would bite into the armor plate, as the naval officers anticipate.

Unfortunately for the public, the navy department conducted the experiment with all possible secrecy. Foreign military and naval attaches were refused permission to witness the test and it is doubtful if accurate information can be had as to the outcome.

CITY WINS IN GRAY SUIT

Ex-City Treasurer Fails to Collect from Woodward Fund

The case of H. Walter Gray against the city, to recover $400 for salary, was heard in the superior court at Dedham on Monday, and a verdict returned for the city.

Mr. Gray claimed the amount was due him as treasurer of the Woodward Fund. On the year in question Mayor Bryant announced when he made his appointments of City Treasurer and City Clerk, that he would allow no salaries paid these officers from the Woodward Fund, although the ordinance of the city provided for the payment of such salaries. Before the year was out the ordinances were amended, and the salary clause stricken out of the Woodward ordinance, and the regularity salaries of these two officers were increased although they did not take effect until the following year.

The following year Mr. Gray was not reappointed, and he sued to recover the amount named in the Woodward ordinance, namely $400. The case has been pending ever since.

Edwards Bros. appeared for Mr. Gray and Paul R. Blackmur for the city and Woodward Fund.

CITY SQUARE ACCIDENT

Two Ladies Unsuccessful in Dodging Automobile

Mrs. D. Aguirre, wife of Capt. Aguirre, one of the Argentine officers stationed at the Fore River shipyard had a narrow escaped from serious injury Monday afternoon by being run down by an automobile of H. M. Faxon in City Square. Mrs. Aguirre and another lady were crossing the street on a line between Johnson Bros. store and Pettengill's. When half way across Mr. Faxon came around the Granite street corner in his automobile, going slowly. The ladies hesitated and stopped and Mr. Faxon also held up, then both started. Mrs. Aguirre was knocked down and fell beneath the car which was almost instantly stopped. Mrs. Aguirre was assisted into the car and taken to her home at 65 Chestnut street, where she was attended by Dr. Hunting. Mrs. Aguirre suffered a severe shaking up and an injury to her shoulder. It is thought, however, that no serious results will follow.

Mr. Faxon was solicitious for the unfortunate ladies, and rendered all assistance possible. President Bowles of the Fore River Company also called at their residence within an hour to interest himself in their behalf. Quincy people in general are anxious that the lady who is so far from home, and does not speak English, may speedily recover.

A "Star's" Demands.

While traveling with the object of gathering together types of African tribes for their exploitation in an exhibition an agent found a Herculean specimen of the Sudanese warrior. He was determined to get him at any price. At first the warrior refused flatly to go with him, but when the agent told him he might demand whatever sum he pleased he wavered. Finally, after long consultation with his friends, he consented, through an interpreter, to accept the engagement, but added, "I must have my wife's expenses paid while I am away." "All right," said the agent. "And I must have all my mother's expenses paid." "All right." "And I must have money for my children." "All right. How much do you want?" "And ten months is a long time." "I know it. Name your own figure." At this the warrior, with a cunning gleam in his eyes, as if he were demanding a king's ransom, named a sum which in our money amounted to a little less than $15. "And he nearly fainted," said the agent in conclusion, "when I told him he could have it!"

A Japanese Custom.

On the anniversary of a Japanese boy's birthday his parents present him with a huge paper fish, made of a gayly painted bag, with a hoop of proper dimensions forming the mouth. A string is tied to the hoop, and the fish is hoisted to a pole on the roof of the house. Then the wind rushing through causes the fish to swell out to the proper size and shape and gives it the appearance of swimming in the air. A Japanese boy carefully preserves every fish thus given to him. One can tell by the number of them that swim from the same pole how many birthdays the little fellow has had.

Antiquity of Wrestling.

Probably the first authentic record of a wrestling match is in A. D. 1222, when chivalry on the European continent was undergoing a change for the better. During the reign of Henry III. of England a match took place in St. Giles' field, London, between citizens of Westminster and the city of London proper. Wrestling was, however, popular as a pastime in England at a much earlier period, and from that country many of the different styles originated.

Male Fashions In 1850.

Male fashions of 1850 had other discomforts besides long hair. Trousers were tight and buttoned under the foot with broad straps. Every man who aspired to be well dressed wore his coat so high in the collar that the back of the hat rested on it. This fashion was so prevalent that, according to Sir Algernon West, "every hat had a crescent of cloth on the back of the brim to prevent the rubbing of the beaver or imitation beaver of which the hat was made, for silk hats were not then invented." And from the same authority we learn that "opera hats were unknown, and in the evening a folding chapeau bras was always carried under the arm. Nobody but an apothecary or a solicitor would have dreamed of leaving his hat in the hall of the house where he was calling or dining."—London Chronicle.

A Useful Femur.

Excited Naturalist—Are you aware, my dear sir, that this gatepost of yours is the femur of an ornithosceli da?"

Farmer (apologetically)—I always thought it was somethin' odd like. It don't match the other post nohow.—London Punch.

Cheerfulness.

Cheerfulness is the great cure. If you are not cheerful already try to acquire the habit. It will not require much trying either. Accordingly as one likes or dislikes beings and things he becomes cheerful or the opposite. The temptation to dislike animate or inanimate objects lies in wait for every one. Be on your guard. You can drive it off by liking a bird or a flower.

Hate never made any man happy. But in order to be unhappy one does not need to be a hater. Simple dislike will sour all the milk in the cocoanut of cheerfulness. Your choice is not restricted. If you do not like a man or do not love a woman, why, then, like a dog. Even a cat may be an inspirer of cheerfulness.

Liking is a sun which can make even an iceberg nature resplendent with the aurora of cheerfulness.—Boston Globe.

A Strong Cup.

Guest (in cheap restaurant)—Look here, waiter, I thought I told you to bring me a strong cup of coffee?

Waiter—Well, what's the matter with that cup? You couldn't break it with an ax.

TRUTH

No. 6

Oil is now California's biggest industry—bigger than gold. Oil is an extremely profitable business when handled as a business proposition. The demand for oil is greater than the supply. The demand grows greater daily. It is the only fuel now used on the Pacific Coast by railroads, steamships, factories and office buildings. Japan is using millions of barrels of oil on her warships. The United States will unquestionably use oil in the Navy, which will mean millions more. Oil is cheaper than the cheapest coal. It is the safest, most economical, cleanest and the easiest feul to handle. Oil will soon be the fuel of the world.

The California Oil Fields are now by far the biggest producers of fuel oil in the world. The supply is apparantly inexhaustible. Three pipe lines, costing about $10,000,000 each, pump oil to tide-water, where it is transported to all parts of the world. A pipe line, costing $25,000,000 is about to be built into Arizona, to supply the smelters with cheap fuel. The price of oil at the well is now around 60c a barrel—it will go up. California oil stock is the most profitable as well as safest investment ever offered the public, providing the oil companies are good, substantial companies.

California oil presents an opptunity to the capitalist and the wage-earner alike. Bankers, business men, clerks, laborers, both men and women, are investing—whether a million or a few dollars, they are investing for big dividends and immense returns—and they are getting them NOW. Many millionaires have been made from California oil in the past ten years. Millionaries are now being made month after month. Dr. Hyde Murdered Colonel Swope, Says the Jury

DELIBERATED SIXTY HOURS

Man Who Is Supposed to Have Planned to Secure Immense Fortune Was Indicted on Eleven Counts Charging Him With Trying to Commit Murder on Several Members of Swope Family—Wife Stands by Him

Kansas City, May 17.—After deliberating sixty hours the jury in the trial of Dr. B. Clark Hyde found him guilty of murdering Colonel Thomas H. Swope, the millionaire and philanthropist, with a sentence of life imprisonment.

Thus ended one of the most remarkable murder cases of a decade, in which it was charged that the doctor planned to secure the immense Swope fortune by killing off his wife's entire family with disease germs and subtle poisons.

As the words of conviction were spoken, Mrs. Hyde broke down and hurried to the side of her husband. Her two sisters-in-law, Mrs. E. M. Hopkins and Miss Laura Hyde, mingled their tears with hers, but the physician stoically and with fixed expression of the mouth said not a word. For a time he was even unable to whisper a word of encouragement to the strong, brave woman who sat at his side.

Dr. Hyde had been under suspicion in connection with the mysterious illness and deaths in the Swope family ever since the death of Colonel Swope on Oct. 3, 1909. The death of Swope followed soon after he had suffered a severe convulsion and this convulsion, it was charged by the members of the Swope family, followed immediately after the administration of a capsule given by direction of Hyde, who said it was a digestive tablet.

It was proved at the trial that Hyde had purchased cyanide of potassium in five-grain capsules. Hyde claimed he bought the cyanide capsules to kill roaches in his office.

Two days before the death of Swope, Moss Hunton, a cousin of the millionaire philanthropist, died at the Swope home following a stroke of apoplexy. Dr. Hyde and Dr. Twyman treated Hunton. The patient was bled profusely, it is charged, at the suggestion of Hyde. Beginning early in December, an epidemic of typhoid fever broke out in the Swope household, during which ten members of the family were stricken and one, Chrisman Swope, a brother of Hyde's wife, died after taking a capsule given at Hyde's direction and after suffering a convulsion similar to the one that attacked Colonel Swope.

Margaret Swope, Chrisman's sister, who was also treated by Hyde, had a convulsion after taking a capsule, but she was given an emetic at once by Twyman and recovered.

In all, Hyde was indicted on eleven counts, the remaining indictments charging him with trying to murder members of the Swope family by introducing typhoid germs and poison into the medicines administered by him.

Dr. Hyde is the husband of Colonel Swope's niece, formerly Miss Frances Swope. Hyde married Miss Swope, in spite of the opposition of the girl's mother, Mrs. Logan Swope. The mother and the son-in-law became reconciled.

BRISETTE IS CAPTURED

Federal Officers Have Been After Alleged Smuggler For Three Years

Houlton, Me., May 17.—After patiently waiting three years and watching all night several times for Louis Brisette, who was wanted for the alleged smuggling of liquor and sale of the same without paying a federal tax, the federal officers were successful in capturing their man without a struggle.

On July 3, 1907, a "line store," kept by Brisette on the boundary line between Maine and New Brunswick near Limestone, was raided by the United States officials and torn down as a nuisance.

Brisette escaped to the Canadian side and since has been running a small hotel just across the border and a sawmill on the American side.

Learning that he was near the sawmill Deputy Marshall Stevens and Deputy Customs Collector Thayer laid in wait for him and caught him unawares. He was taken to Portland for arraignment.

STOVE POLISH KILLED WIFE

Bereft Spouse Awarded $5000 In Suit Against Grocery Firm

Cambridge, Mass., May 17.—A $5000 verdict was returned by a jury in the superior court for Matthew Gately of Waltham, who brought suit against a Waltham grocery firm, following the death of his wife, which was alleged to have been caused by a package of stove polish purchased from the defendant concern.

During the trial it was brought out in evidence that the stove polish contained naphtha and that while Mrs. Gately was polishing the kitchen range an explosion occurred.

The defendants contended that they were not the manufacturers of the stove polish and sold it as it was received by them. They will probably appeal the case.

A HISTORY MAKING WEEK FOR COMET

What May Be Expected When Earth Passes Through Tail

Cambridge, Mass., May 17.—Halley's comet will occupy the centre of the stage for the next few days. It is now almost at its nearest point to the earth, and its movements will excite world-wide interest for the remainder of the week.

Tomorrow astronomers in the far east will be afforded an opportunity to witness a remarkable phenomenon—the transit of a comet across the sun. The transit will not be visible in America, but the intense brightness of the celestial wanderer has given the Cambridge astronomers reason to hope that observations at noonday, just before and after it crosses the sun's disc, will be possible.

The comet is now almost at its nearest point to the earth, and tomorrow our planet will be rushing through its tail. Strangely shaped clouds and abundant showers of meteorites may be looked for to accompany the flight of the earth through the tail of the comet, but there will be no more serious results.

The three Bell sisters have been inseparable always, but especially so since the death of their parents left them alone with the care of a considerable estate.

Cleveland, May 17.—U. G. Walker, formerly president of the defunct South Cleveland Banking company, was sentenced to five years in the Ohio state penitentiary.

Walker was found guilty of perjury, for making false statements to the state bank examiner. The financial condition of the bank, which failed for more than $1,000,000, was discovered after the failure of an Akron printing concern, which had borrowed heavily from the bank. Walker will appeal to the circuit court.

PUBLIC VIEWS BODY OF KING

Remains of Edward Lying In State In Westminster Hall

CORTEGE FROM THE PALACE

King George and Number of Other Monarchs Follow Remains on Foot In Procession From Buckingham—Royal Mourners at Special Service—Roosevelt and Reid View Remains of Dead Ruler Before Transfer

London, May 17.—The removal today of the body of the late King Edward from Buckingham palace to Westminster hall was attended by a spectacle scarcely less impressive than the funeral will be.

The cortege accompanying the body included the male royal mourners, lords in waiting and members of the royal households, who followed on foot the gun carriage bearing the coffin. King George was accompanied by the Duke of Cornwall and his two other sons.

Others who walked in the procession included the King of Denmark, the Duke of Connaught, the King of Norway, Prince Christian, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, Prince Arthur of Connaught, Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, Prince Andrew of Greece, the Duke of Teck, Prince Louis of Battenberg, the Duke of Fife, the Duke of Argyl, Prince Francis of Teck, Prince Alexander of Battenburg, Prince Maurice of Battenberg, Count Gleichen, Prince Alexander of Teck and Prince George of Batenberg.

Only nine carriages were in the procession. In the first was the queen mother, Alexandra, accompanied by Dowager Empress Marie Feodorovna of Russia and the Princess Royal.

Upon arrival at Westminster hall the late king's company of the Grenadier Guards, who had charge of the casket throughout the ceremony, placed the body upon the catafalque for lying in state. All the regalia having been placed upon the casket, the archbishop of Canterbury conducted a service in the presence of the royal mourners, after which the public lying in state begun.

King George, Queen Mary, the queen mother and the royal family were present at a service over the body in the throne room at Buckingham palace. The scene in the throne room was deeply moving, one of the most impressive displays being the hourly change of guards, who in full uniform with hands crossed on reversed rifles and with heads bowed, stood like statues at each corner of the catafalque, with an officer in the same attitude facing the bier. Not a muscle was seen to move. At the end of each hour a bugler silently led the relieving guard in, and the change of guard was made noiselessly.

Colonel Roosevelt, accompanied by Ambassador Reid, called on King George at Marlborough house yesterday. The colonel's audience with the king was a lengthy one.

Previous to visiting Marlborough house Roosevelt and Reid visited Buckingham palace and went to the throne room, where the body of King Edward was lying in state. The visit to the palace lasted half an hour.

HABEAS CORPUS DENIED

Morse Case Settled So Far as Taking Legal Steps Are Concerned

Washington, May 17.—Charles W. Morse was denied the privilege of filing an application for a writ of habeas corpus by the supreme court of the United States.

New York, May 17.—"That finishes the matter so far as the taking of legal steps is concerned," it was said at the offices of Martin W. Littleton, when information reached there of the supreme court's denial of a writ of habeas corpus for Morse. Beyond saying that no further court proceedings were possible, Littleton's representatives said they did not care to make any statement on the case at this time.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Quincy People Know How to Save It.

Many Quincy people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Quincy citizen's recommendation.

Nicholas Albanese, 16 Gilmore street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I was annoyed by attacks of backache for some time, often while at work sharp, shooting pains darted through my loins, causing me great misery. I also had dizzy spells and my sight seemed to be affected. I tried many remedies, but did not receive relief and as a last resort, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and in a short time after using them, I was helped. I have no hesitation in giving Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for my cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

How British Kings and Queens Are Crowned

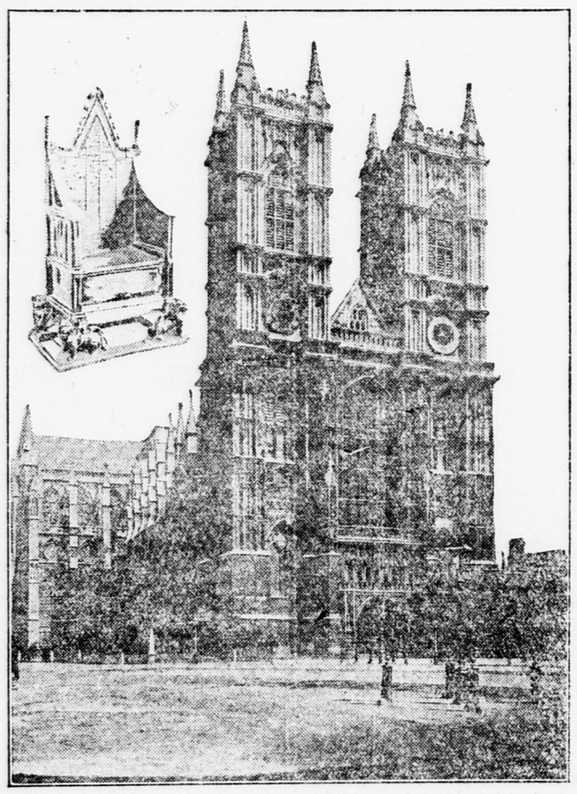

KING GEORGE V.

NEVER for an instant is the British empire without a monarch full panoplied with reigning power. "The king is dead! Long live the king!" is not an idle cry. It embraces in its first phrase the lamentation of the people over the death of the old ruler and in its second their exultation over the accession of the new. By automatic action of a constitutional principle as old as the empire the heir apparent becomes sovereign at the moment of the sovereign's death. No official proclamation, no taking of oath, no coronation, is necessary, though all these follow in due time.

Upon the death of a president of the United States the nation is left without a chief executive until the vice president takes the oath of office. When President McKinley lay dying in Buffalo and the doctors had given up hope Theodore Roosevelt, his constitutional successor, was hunting in a wilderness. Roosevelt's rapid ride back into civilization to take the oath of office is well remembered. But King Edward's successor would have become king and the British empire would have had an official head immediately upon Edward's death no matter where he might have been at the time.

The following day, as a matter of form, King George V. took the oath as sovereign. The official proclamations were issued to the world girdling empire. In a few months King George and his queen, Victoria Mary, will be crowned in Westminster abbey amid splendid pomp and pageantry. Yet all these ceremonies are merely incidental to the accession, though regarded as highly proper and decidedly important.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY AND ANCIENT CORONATION CHAIR.

Official Proceedings.

In all probability the course of proceedings followed on the death of Queen Victoria nine years ago will be adhered to in the present instance, save that the serious illness of King Edward necessitated a postponement of the coronation ceremonies. On that occasion, as on this, the Prince of Wales was in the death chamber. A meeting of the privy council was called at St. James' palace the next morning, at which orders were issued for the official proclamation of the new ruler. Public announcement of the death of the queen was made by the male members of the royal family, the archbishop of Canterbury, who is head of the Established Church of England; the privy councilors, the lord mayor, the aldermen and other officials of the city of London. All these persons and officials declared the succession to have come to "the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward, our only lawful and rightful liege lord, Edward VII." The following afternoon the houses of parliament met to receive the oaths of allegiance and supremacy.

At the meeting of the privy council the king made a brief speech, announcing his acceptance of the name Edward VII., which was published in the official Gazette. The formal public proclamation of the new monarch took place at 9 o'clock on the morning following the taking of the oath.

Reading the Proclamation.

A procession of officials, headed by the high bailiff of Westminster, with heralds, trumpeters and two detachments of horse guards, then proceeded to the city, reading the proclamation at Charing Cross and Temple Bar, where the lord mayor was awaiting them, and the high bailiff of Westminster retired. Here a barrier had been erected. The rouge dragon pursuivant of arms dismounted and demanded admission to the city for the purpose of reading the proclamation of the accession of the king. Having been admitted, the rouge dragon was conducted to the lord mayor, to whom he delivered the order in council, after which the procession was allowed to enter. The lord mayor and other city officials then fell into line, the procession advancing to the Royal Exchange, where the final reading of the proclamation took place. The guns of the tower and in St. James' park thereupon fired a salute.

For eight centuries the monarchs of England have been crowned in Westminster abbey, the archbishop of Canterbury presiding at the ceremonies, which in all instances have been of a highly elaborate character, with pomp and glitter galore. It is the general expectation that the coronation of George V., when it comes to pass according to the royal pleasure, will surpass in its magnificent ceremonial features all those that have gone before. But at the present time one can only get a prevision of what this gorgeous picture is to be by looking back at the coronation of King Edward. On that occasion all London was astir early, and the great city was a riot of decorative colors. Dense crowds gathered, particularly in the vicinity of the royal palace and Westminster abbey, thousands of throats uniting in the cry, "God save the king!"

Magnificent state coaches swept by, with powdered coachmen and footmen in gorgeous liveries of red, blue, mauve, white and gold, and there were flashing glimpses of crimson robes and white underdresses within the coaches. Various ambassadorial equipages passed through the thoroughfares with the diplomats in their official costumes. Indian princes in brilliant array dashed along in their carriages of state. The lord mayor's splendid coach, drawn by six horses, was one of the sights.

But the chief spectacle of all was the king's procession on the way to the abbey, heralded by a prolonged undertone of joyous applause all along the route. The king and queen rode in the famous and costly royal coach, preceded, surrounded and followed by a glittering retinue of life guards, soldiers from the colonies on which the sun never sets, members of royalty, peers and various other dignitaries.

The interior of the abbey presented a blaze of color. The archbishop of Canterbury took his seat beside the coronation chair, with the lord high chancellor seated beside him. King Edward walked to his chair in front of the throne and bowed to Queen Alexandra, who had entered at the left of the throne. Then he knelt in prayer.

The king stood up, and the archbishop read the recognition, beginning, "Sirs, I here present unto you King Edward, the undoubted king of this realm," etc. A shout, "God save King Edward!" went up from the brilliant assemblage. With king and queen kneeling the archbishop read the communion service. The administration of the oath followed the singing of the creed.

After the archbishop's anointing prayer the king divested himself of his outer robe and walked to the ancient coronation chair, where the archbishop placed the crown upon his head. The Prince of Wales advanced to pay homage to his sovereign by kissing the king's hand.

"SYSTEM AND HABIT"

Harvard Man Tells How He Lives on a Dollar a Week

Boston, May 17.—That a man can go through Harvard living on a dollar a week and at the same time be a star student, a varsity football player and the third strongest man in college has been proved by E. V. M. Long, a Harvard senior, who for four years has consumed one dollar's worth of food weekly and thrived on it.

"It is easy enough to live on 14 or 15 cents a day," says Long, "when you've worked it out to two things—system and habit. First a man has got to find out the greatest amount of nourishment that a given allowance of money will buy, and so arrange his diet that it will best fit his individual needs. That's system. Second, he has got to get used to eating those things right along and forget the saw that variety is the spice of life, and that's habit."

He was brought to this city and taken into the municipal court and arraigned before Judge Murray. He waived examination and in the sum of $500 was held for the June sitting of the grand jury. The bail was furnished by his father.

The charge against Coleman is the larceny of jewelry to he amount of $350 from the Frank A. Andrews company, Inc., of this city. The date of the offense is given as Oct. 15, 1909.

BLAME FOR LOOTING OF SAVINGS BANK

Placed by Legislative Investigators on Three Bodies

Boston, May 17.—The report of the special legislative committee that has been investigating the Southbridge Savings bank was filed late yesterday afternoon. The committee is unable to locate the funds of the bank because it cannot summon and examine Hall, whose defalcations wrecked the bank, without giving him an "immunity bath." The committee finds negligence in degree in this order:

First, in the savings bank department, for a period of seventeen years. Second, in the auditing committees of the bank. Third, in the trustees of the bank.

The report makes certain recommendations for legislation, the principal of which is to provide for an enforced expert auditing of banks.

MANY CRUSHED IN PANIC

Crowd Outside Circus Tent Thought That Lion Had Escaped

Newark, N. J., May 17.—A mistaken cry of "The lion's loose!" threw a circus crowd of women and children into a frenzy of panic here and in the pell-mell rush seven children were badly crushed and cut, a man fell in a fit, a woman had her shoulder dislocated and many others suffered minor injuries. One little girl had a broken jaw.

The panic was outside the circus tent, during the parade, when the streets were packed with sightseers.

Suddenly the band struck up. A mounted policeman's horse took fright and bolted straight for the thick of the crowd. Before he could get it under control, somebody shouted 'A lion's loose," and the crowd went mad with fright.

Earthquake Shocks Alarm People, but Little Damage Is Reported

Los Angeles, Cal., May 17.—This city and surrounding territory was visited by a series of earthquake shocks that alarmed many people, but did little damage beyond breaking dishes, destroying house ornaments and cracking walls of the lighter houses.

The shocks were felt in Pasadena, Riverside, Redlands and San Bernardino. Pasadena suffered the heaviest damage. Walls of buildings were cracked, and on Mt. Wilson, where the Carnegie observatory is situated, the tremors alarmed many tourists who had climbed the peak to view the comet.

SUNNY ITALY TO NORTH END

Work Needed That Immigrants May Become Good Citizens

It was no uncertain note that sounded when the Rev. George Mecklenburg of Boston lectured at the Hall Place M. E. church, Monday night on the subject "From Sunny Italy to the North End, Boston."

Mr. Mecklenburg, a man of pleasing manner and an intelligent speaker, could not help but interest his audience as he described the sunny land of Italy and contrasted it with dark crowded North End of Boston.

Very beautiful indeed were the views of the sunny land of Italy each one showing some different part of this warm country. Mr. Mecklenburg told the conditions that prevail in the different parts of Italy, both political and social, and the chief reason as to why this class of people immigrate to this country.

Mr. Mecklenburg showed that the need of the Italian people in the North End is a great one. Although he has a large number of views which he uses in his lecture, some showing the bright side of life in the country of the Italian people, while others portray the darkness, filth and sufferings of these same people in this country, there is not one view among them that attracts more attention and holds by its power than the picture of the "flag of America" to which many of the Italian people pledge their allegiance after coming to this country. When this picture was thrown npon the screen, the audience clapped their hands and it showed hearty appreciation and admiration of our beloved flag.

At the close of the lecture subscriptions were received toward the building of an Italian hospital in the North End of Boston.

This lecture was given under the auspices of the Fowler chapter of the Methodist Brotherhood of the Hall Place church. The business of the evening was postponed to a special meeting to be called by the president at some future date.

BIGELOWS ENTER CITY LEAGUE

Play Begins Saturday on Schedule Adopted

The Granite City League held its last meeting before the opening of its playing season Monday evening, the most important business transacted being the acceptance of the Bigelows of Ward Two as the sixth team in the league. At the time when the league was organized, the Bigelows, under the management of Jack Ford, declined to enter the league. Advances were made to various teams about the city but without success. The Bigelows, however, are now under the management of Bill Avery and have applied for admission to the league, which was granted, the team being given three weeks in which to pay the guarantee of $10. The admission of the Bigelows completes the circuit of six teams and means that the league may continue without changing its schedule as planned.

The lists of players authorized to play on the various teams, sixteen for each club, were recorded with the secretary. Every arrangement has now been made for a successful opening day and the teams will clash next Saturday in an effort to get a running start for the pennant. The Fore River Apprentices and the Bigelows meet at Ward Two, the Adams and Cranch at Ward Three, and the Hardys and Bryants at Ward Four.

Good Work Being Done at Fore River School

The school for apprentices at the Fore River shipyard closed for the summer season, Monday forenoon, and the various prizes were awarded to the winners of both sections.

The closing exercises consisted of short addresses by officials and others, among them being a lengthy and instructive talk by H. G. Smith, manager of the Fore River plant. His talk was of the right nature and his painting of the future for them was by far the most instructive the apprentices ever heard. He offered much good advice which if the boys follow they may expect to land at the top of the ladder.

An Alligator's Nest.

Alligators' nests resemble haycocks more than anything else to which they can be compared. They average about four feet in height and five feet in diameter and are constructed of grasses and herbage. First the mother gator deposits one layer of eggs on a mortar-like floor and, having covered this with a stratum of mud and herbage about eight inches thick, lays another set of eggs upon that, and so on to the top, there being commonly from 100 to 200 eggs in a nest. With their tails the parents then beat down the tall grass and weeds to prevent the approach of unseen enemies. The female watches her eggs until they are hatched by the heat of the sun and then takes her brood under her own care, defending them and providing for their subsistence.

REDS WIN FROM BLUES

In Meet of the Wollaston Social Society

The second year of the Wollaston Social society came to a whirlwind finish on Tuesday evening, when an indoor track meet was held in the Unitarian vestry. Under the leadership of Captain Barker, the Reds put the Blues, under Captain Carr, to rout by a score of 35 to 15.

The events included 100 yard dash for ladies, 100-yard dash for men, hammer throw for ladies, unknown Marathon, and shot put for men.

The Reds were picked to win from the start, taking first and second in the ladies' 100-yard dash, and following by a first and third in the 100-yard dash for men. They placed a first and second in the ladies' hammer throw, and won two heats of the unknown Marathon. The Blues forged ahead in the shot put leaving only third place for the Reds in that event.

As a travesty on a regular meet, the entire affair was a decided success, and one of intense excitement and high ridiculousness.

BIRTHDAY GATHERING

Miss Pauline Swingle Entertains at New Home

The birthday party given on Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan S. Swingle, for their daughter Pauline, in observance of her sixteenth aniversary was a most happy affair. The spacious home was brilliant with many lights, fragrant with flowers, and potted plants added to the decorative effect.

Nearly a hundred guests were present to congratulate the charming hostess, who was the recipient not only of good wishes but of quantities of flowers and many presents. Among the presents was the complete furnishings of a room given by her father. As they have just moved into their new home this gift is particularly pleasing to Miss Pauline.

During the evening, music and games were enjoyed, also refreshments of ices, punch and cake, the party breaking up at half past ten. Mrs. Swingle in a beautiful gown gave the young people a cordial greeting assisting her daughter in receiving.

"Goodness" exclaimed the throat specialist ,as he looked down the giraffe's neck, "you have at least a yard of sore throat." The elephant trumpeted loudly.

"That's all right," said the giraffe, after coughing violently at the elephant. "But if they should cut off your ears, it would be impossible to tell which was the north or south end of you." The elephant felt a little hurt at this repartee.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Quincy is hardly ready for a municipal ice plant. The ice crop is very uncertain, and the dealers are as hard hit as their customers in the off years.

It will not be easy for a committee of the City Council to conduct an investigation of financial affairs of the city without funds to employ experts. The order, however, can be amended, and the necessary funds provided by loan.

If the State is to pay taxes to towns for land used for public institutions, it should pay taxes to the City of Quincy for the 2.562 acres of land taken for the Blue Hills reservation. Quincy not only loses the taxes, but extension of the granite quarries in that direction was stopped.

It would be a good thing if everybody could have a pension when 70 or 75 years of age, but in these days when taxation is a burden, it is not easy to provide ways and means that the city, the county, the State, and the Nation may pension all its employees. No one class is more entitled to pension than another, but there are special cases where a person has taught school for fifty years, or served in other capacities half a century where pensions should be granted.

While the citizens in general throughout the city deplore the fact that the death of Dexter E. Wadsworth made it necesary to hold a joint convention of the City Council and School Committee to elect a member of the latter board, the citizens are to be congratulated that a man well qualified by education and experience has been elected to fill the position. Mr. Mackay is a lawyer by profesion and has been a resident of Quincy for a number of years. He has always taken a deep interest in city affairs, although not what is called an office seeker. He is liberal in his views, and can be depended upon while a member of the School Board to give his best efforts toward maintaining the high standing of the public schools of the city. Mrs. Mackay is also interested in education as a student and teacher. Although any of the gentlemen whose names were mentioned at the convention, would doubtles have made an efficient member of the School Commitee, Mr. Mackay has a vital interest aside from his natural pride as a good citizen of having the Quincy schools take a high rank. His election as a member from Ward One was for the balance of the municipal year, and a successor for the unexpired term of Mr. Wadsworth will be elected at the municipal election in December.

DRIFT OF OPINION

Memorial Day will soon be here. It is the duty of every person to assist the Grand Army in their services. It is a beautiful custom. It should be continued. The day was originally intended to be one for commemorating those who fought, bled and died in defense of the Union. Let us keep to the original. There are days in the year when sports and pastimes can be enjoyed, but on this the only day when we revere those dear and sorrowful memories, let us keep to the true meaning and assist in whatever way we can to make the services impressive. Every parent and every teacher should instruct in the true meaning of the day. Soon the plans and the activities must be the work of our young people, because that noble army is fast being called before the Great Commander, and it will not be long before the Boys of '61 will be memories.—Mansfield News.

SQUANTUM HEAD CAMP

Free Grants Issued by City of Boston

Just how so many Boston people come to camp at Squantum Head each year will be better understood when one reads this story from the Sunday Globe:

Boston is one of the few municipalities in this country which provides summer resorts for its inhabitants free of charge. At the same time the city keeps a watchful eye on the general health and sanitary condition of those who take advantage of this opportunity. Although not generally known there are several hundred persons who camp on the land of the city of Boston at Squantum, and according to the order presented by Councilor Curley men and women are greatly annoyed by the inadequate provisions made for their comfort, especially on Sundays when as many as 1500 have been known to have frequented that portion of the harbor headlands known as the "Head."

In all the city has upwards of 175 acres in various strips of property in that vicinity which was acquired when the sewer system was built at Moon head, and this is divided into beach, upland and marsh lands.

There is exactly 19 10-100 "acres in the upland plot known as the Head, and here is where the campers hold forth during the heated period in the city.

The order presented by Mr. Curley was the sequel to a protest made to the Boston board of health by land owners in that vicinity and the health officials in turn told the sanitary division of the street department that unless the sanitary requirements were lived up to no more permits would be granted to the summer campers at that place.

Quite naturally Councilman Curley was sought owing to his love of outdoor life and the fact that many of his constituents resort to the Squantum site for recreation.

The order asking for the transfer of $500 from the reserve fund to provide for three sanitaries for each sex and the tapping of the fresh-water supply was presented to the council the past week, and after some discussion was laid over and will come up for consideration at the council meeting later, when it will probably pass.

"There is no favoritism shown," said Mr. Curley yesterday, when discussing the manner of granting permits for the camp sites. "It is first come, first served, and no charge."

The property is in charge of foreman Timothy Callahan of the sanitary division of the sewer department, who attends to the sewer outlet at Little Moon island, where he has been for many years.

It is one of the best sites in Boston harbor for camping, for there is an excellent view of the shipping, both coming and departing from port, through the old ship channel, and one can see right out on the ocean, as well as having an unobstructed view of the many beauty spots in the harbor.

Councilman Curley says there will be no trouble about the granting of the appropriations, as the sum required is in the estimate of the sanitary department and the water department of the city, and the money will have been well expended. C. B. Pratt, deputy superintendent of the sewer division grants the permits to the campers.

On Monday Councilor F. J. Brand, offered an order to authorize the superintendent of streets to sell the 13 acres of land owned by the city of Boston at Squantum head, Quincy, the city to keep a small portion on the southerly side. The order was referred to the committee on public lands.

The reason set forth for the sale of the land was that it was not necessary to the city. It was purchased in 1889 for the construction of improved sewerage works, the land being assessed for $15,200 and the buildings on the same at $4300; total $19,500.

Not Anxious For Air Journey

Paris, May 18.—The members of the Chinese mission, which is headed by Prince Tai Tsao, visited the French aviation station at Issy. The Chinese officials were bombarded by offers of flights, but all declined, one adding that he had no intention of dying at present.

Saco, Me., May 18.—Sitting at a window in her home last night, 13-year-old Ernestine Townsend was shot by a bullet which caused her death. The police arrested six Albanians employed in a nearby brickyard who, it is alleged, have been in the habit of practising with a revolver evenings.

ATMOSPHERE NOT AFFECTED

No Effect Observable as Comet Speeds Toward the Earth

SCIENTISTS NOT IN ACCORD

Whether We Will Pass Through Tail of Sky Wanderer Is a Disputed Point—All Agree That There Will Be No Injurious Effect Upon Inhabitants of Mother Earth—Passage Across Sun Occurs Tonight

Boston, May 18.—No atmospheric changes rightly chargable to the proximity of Halley's comet to the earth have yet been observed by astronomers and meteorologists in the vicinity of Boston. They are keeping a sharp lookiut, however. The astronomers will keep their telescopes aimed at the comet and the sun, while the meteorologists will watch the atmosphere.

In the course of the next twenty-four hours the inhabitants of the earth will learn vastly more about comets in general, and Halley's comet in particular, than they know at present. In that period the celestial visitor, whose approach has been closely watched for many months, will be at the nearest point to the earth that it will reach during its present visit.

Whether the earth will pass through the tail of the comet is a disputed point. Some astronomers say that the comet has no real tail; that the appendage that is seen in the heavens is merely light passing through the nucleus as through a lens. Others claim that there is a real tail composed of fragments or particles of gas, but that the whole thing is a more absolute vacuum than scientists have been able to produce on the earth.

Of those astronomers who maintain that the comet has a real tail, some assert that the tail will not reach the earth; others, that if it does reach and envelop the earth there will absolutely no effect on the atmosphere; while some believe that there may be a glow in the sky and possibly a shower of meteoric stones. All the foremost astronomers agree that the passage of the comet and the earth at a distance of approximately 14,000,000 miles will have no injurious effect upon the inhabitants of our planet.

In the hope that some of the mooted points will be cleared up the directors of the astronomical observatories all over the world are making careful preparations to observe the comet and atmospheric conditions. The actual passage of the comet between the sun and the earth will not be visible in these parts. It will, however, be visible in Japan, India, Australia and the islands of the Pacific, and it is expected that the observations of the transit of the comet across the disk of the sun will provide much valuable material bearing on the question of the constitution of the comet's head and tail. If the comet's head contains solid matter there may appear spots on the face of the sun; if, however, the head is composed only of gases, then the transit probably will not be visible at all.

The transit of the comet across the face of the sun will occur, according to the calculations of astronomers, between 10:50 and 11:48 o'clock tonight and during that period, if at all, the tail will sweep the earth. Just what will happen is unknown, but at the most the astronomers expect a meteoric shower and a peculiar light change. There may be nothing at all that will be visible to the layman and there may be a brilliant spectacle.

Following the passage of the comet between the sun and the earth it will change from a morning to an evening star. Thursday it will set so quickly after the sun that there probably will be little or no opportunity for general observation. By Friday evening, however, if the western sky is clear, there should be an excellent opportunity to view the comet. It will set about an hour and a half after the sun, and will be at the maximum of its brilliance. Thereafter the comet probably will be visible in the western sky, but its magnitude will be constantly diminishing until finally it passes out of sight for another seventy-five years.

BIG FISH PLANT SET AFIRE

Employe Is Under Arrest, Charged With Attempt at Arson

Gloucester, Mass., May 18.—An incendiary fire which would probably have destroyed the largest fish packing and curing plant in this city and thrown hundreds of persons out of employment was narrowly averted.

The plant is that of the Gorton-Pew company, and John Powers is under arrest charged with attempted arson. It is alleged that Powers sought vengeance because he was refused $45 which he claimed was due him by the company, and that he also attempted to fire the schooner Fish Hawk, one of the company's fleet, of which he was cook.

The blaze at the Gorton-Pew plant was detected while in an embyronic stage.

LANDMARK RAZED.

Work has been commenced demolishing the little old house on the easterly corner of School and Marsh streets, thus removing another old landmark. Just how old the house is can not be told for certain, but from the information that Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker can obtain it was built by Moses Penniman about the year 1710. The house was occupied by the descendants of the Pennimans, one of the early families of old Braintree for many years. The land and buildings is owned at present by Richard Brooks, and has been going into decay for some time. No building will be erected on the site at present.

IS IN NEW PASTORATE.

Rev. A. R. Atwood, formerly pastor of the Washington Street church in our city, is now located in Patterson, N. Y., as pastor of the Presbyterian church. His denominational paper "The Westminister" spoke last week of his work as follows:—"To assure pastorial efficiency the Patterson parish is divided into districts. After the pastor calls them a district, the Session arrange a series of gospel song services in the homes of that district. in such a series of services just closed, participated in by members of six different denominations, free transportation was provided by teams and automobiles. In these services special stress is placed upon singing the familiar gospel songs, using 'hymns and psalms and spiritual songs, making melody in the heart unto the Lord.'"

The people of our city will be interested to learn also that Rev. Mr. Atwood is now in Washington, D. C., attending the World's Sunday School convention. He was sent as a delegate from his school, which pays all his railroad and hotel expenses at Washington for the week of the convention.

MAXIMUM OF 33.24 KNOTS

Fine Performance of Torpedo Boat Destroyer Flusser In Her Trial Runs

Rockland, Me., May 18.—A maximum speed of 33.24 knots an hour was attained by the torpedo boat destroyer Flusser during twelve runs in connection with her trials over the Owl's Head course.

The best average for five-mile runs was 32.838 knots an hour. Three of the runs were at 17.5 knot speed; three were at 21.2 knots an hour; another three were timed at 24.4 knots and the last three showed 30.2 knots.

These figures all are unofficial. The Flusser still has three more runs to make.

An Easy Cure.

A correspondent for a local paper writes that his sister sent him four fun lines which are guaranteed to cure any case of strenuosity in the family. The lines are to be repeated three times heartily in the face of any domestic difficulty. Here they are:

The cat is in the lake;
The cow is in the hammock.
What difference does it make?

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

Mrs. T. S. Barbour of 32 Prospect avenue is hostess this afternoon for the regular meeting of the Women's Missionary societies of the Wollaston Baptist church.

* * *

William C. Hill principal of the Chelsea high school, attended the annual meeting of the Chelsea Woman's club to express personally to the members his appreciation of the work of the club under the direction of the civics committee in providing a noon luncheon at a nominal price for the pupils of the school. He said: "This work fills a real need ,a real necessity for the pupils. The five-hour single session seems to be the best method of accomplishing the school work, but one of the most serious objections to the session is concentration without food. You have solved the problem for the Chelsea boys and girls. I know that your work is giving good results and I take pride in this luncheon counter and show it to every visitor to the school."

Daughters of the Revolution are to meet Friday afternoon at two o'clock at Hotel Vendome, Boston, to hear the reports of the Massachusetts delegates who attended the national convention at Atlantic City.

The meeting of Whatsover Circle of King's Daughters, on Monday evening will be held at the home ofMrs. Marcus Chase, 135 Winthrop avenue, Wollaston.

After seven years of most faithful conscientious work in the various offices of the Women's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A., Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham of Wollaston ,at the annual meeting held last week at the home of Mrs. H. E. Ricker resigned from the presidency. She has been a most able president, always ready to do her share and a little more and her resignation is received with general rgret Whatever Mrs . Pinkham undertakes she carries through if personal labor will accomplish it and in church, club, or home circles hers is a personality that stands for the best.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Although the club season is over for the Quincy Women's club, there are echoes of continued activities among the committees.

The Women's Exchange held the last food sale for this season at W. G. Shaw's store Saturday afternoon. Sales will be resumed in the fall. The Exchange committee plans to have candies and salted nuts at Music hall, Saturday, when Pinafore will be produced and it is hoped many will take advantage of this opportunity, which is intended to help make the afternoon a real matinee.

Interest now centers on the operetta "Pinafore" to be given Saturday afternoon at Quincy Music hall by the Music committee. The performance is not restricted to members of the club but may be attended by any who wish to subscribe provided they belong to the gentler sex. It is a disappointment the men have to swallow but probably most of them are so busy with merchants' week they don't know how good a time they are barred out of. Already several hundred tickets have been sold but that no one may be disappointed the balance have been put on sale at C. C. Hearn's both reserve and admission.

The performance is to begin at two but the doors will be open at 12.30 to accommodate those not holding reserve seat checks.

Considerable hard work has been put in by the committee in planning for the operetta and there have been many rehearsals, also a souvenir program is being prepared all of which goes to make up what will probably be the finest matinee performance ever given in Quincy. All this energy is a labor of love for it is a benefit performance the proceeds being for the Fresh Air camp.

The Exchange department has consented to take charge of the checking room so that ladies attending the matinee may check their wraps, and hats and enjoy the performance without having to hold a lap full of millinery and the like.

Under the auspices of the Education committee the children's gardens are started and later on there will be classes at the clubhouse for sewing, gymnastics, etc., and when the club season opens in the fall there will be much good work to report.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Mothers' Association has had a successful season thus far. A great many new faces are seen in the audiences. Everyone seems pleased with the program and the speakers. The talent is of the best that Boston and our city affords. Great pains was taken in the selection of the speakers and the women of Quincy are showing that they appreciate good things when they are offered to them. At the first meeting Dr. John A. Gordon of this city gave a very instructive and interesting lecture. Those who could not attend the lecture are urging that the report of it be reprinted, so that they may own a copy of it.

At the second meeting Mr. Albert L. Barbour, superintendent of schools, addressed the association. At the close of the meeting there was a conference between the mothers and the superintendent. There was an opportunity for him to hear their side of the educational problems of today and Mr. Barbour in return explaned why it was better to raise the age limit of entrance to school, why the high school work is so hard for the teachers and how earnestly he and his committee are trying to do their best with the small amount of money which they have to use. The course of study at the High school was discussed and the question as to the wisdom of a five year course raised. The women who were thinking about these questions left the meeting feeling that there was a closer bond between the man at the head of the school and themselves.

The last meeting was one for which every woman would be the better. Mrs. Richard C. Cabot of Boston gave a delightful and helpful talk about punishments for children. She pleaded for absolute justice and fairness in dealing with the little people without ever allowing them to take the reins or the lead. She showed how the harsh word and the cruel deed lasted through childhood on into after life as a bitter memory and how the kind word and the gentle act, while oftentimes the longest way around was the surest way to win the love and respect and confidence of the child.

The next meeting is to be in charge of Mrs. W. H. Doble. Her subject is one of interest to the mothers with growing children. When the mother feels that her child is stepping over the line from childhood into the wonderland of manhood and womanhood it is with anxiety that she watches the progress. Mrs. Doble's paper will deal with the perplexities which beset the parent at this trying time. She can speak from experience as well as theory and her talk will be suggestive and helpful.

JUNIOR FRIDAY CLUB.

Junior Friday club brought its season to a close Monday afternoon when the club was entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Russell C. Low, at her home on Spear street. Covers were laid for fifteen, all the club members and one guest being present. After two hours at table, the menu being enlivened by clever stories and witticism, the president Mrs. L. H. Sturtevant called the club together for the annual business meeting.

Officers elected for next season are: President—Mrs. Alfred P. Thompson; vice president—Miss Abbie B. Wood; secretary—Mrs. L. H. Sturtevant; program committee—Miss Grace M. Isaac, Mrs. Wiliam Whitney and Miss Etta M. Prescott.

Unappreciated Effort.

"That man hasn't any sense of humor," said Mr. Growcher.

"Why, he is always trying to amuse his friends."

"That's just it. If he had any sense of humor he would see that there is nothing funny in interrupting a man's work to tell him funny stories."—Washington Star.

RECEPTION TO SENIORS

Delightful Gathering at Quincy Mansion School

An event in the social life of the Quincy Mansion school is the reception given each year by the faculty to the members of the Senior class. This reception was held Tuesday evening, from eight until eleven o'clock in the Mansion house, and was largely attended by friends of the faculty and pupils.

In the receiving line were members of the Senior class composed of Miss Katherine Covey of Bloomington, Ill., Miss Muriel May Badger of Wollaston, Miss Mildred Crowell of East Dennis, Mass., Miss Mary Louise Drake of Franklin, N. H., Miss Jladys Jewell of Boston, Miss Harriet May Loring of Waurегan, Conn., Miss Mary Miner of Ishpeming, Mich., Miss Francis Cobb Minor of Waterbury, Conn., Miss Kathleen Roby of Nashua, N. H. Miss Monnie Tarkington of Danville, Kentucky, Miss Marjorie Welch of Quincy, and Helen Louise Richards of Wilkes Barre, Pa., also members of the faculty.

During the reception there was music by members of the alumnae, and also by present members of the school. Pupils of the school were in attendance everywhere extending the cordial hospitality which is so marked in the life of this school.

Members of the Junior class who ushered were: Miss Beatrice Gillam of Canagoharie, N. Y., Miss Genevieve Parsons of Binghamton, N. Y., Miss Edith Robinson of New York, Miss Margaret Christian of Lynchburg, Va., Miss Madeline Mears of New York, N. Y., Miss Jessie Alma French Miss Elsie McClure Foretier and Miss Gladys Ames Willey of Atlantic, and Miss Helen Louise Abercrombie of Braintree.

In the reception room, the dining room, hall, and library were quantities of flowers, which combined with the many colored dainty gowns worn by pupils and guests presented a charming picture. Mrs. Horace M. Willard the beloved principal of the school, to whom parents all over the country send their daughters with fullest confidence, greeted the guests in her usual quiet cordial manner. In a few weeks the commencement week exercises will begin, the school closing early in June.

TO CANVASS EACH WARD

For Funds for Fourth of July Celebration

The committe on finance for the Fourth of July celebration met Tuesday evening at the rooms of the Board of trade, with an attendance of fourteen members. Chairman Gammon presided and the committee organized with John J. Duggan as secretary and James F. Burke as treasurer.

A general and informal discussion was held on the matter of raising finances. As the collection for Merchants' Week is now in progress, it was not deemed advisable to start collections just at present. Before collections were started some enthusiasm should be awakened among the citizens, and the general opinion seemed to be that a short and sharp campaign for funds would bring the best results. It was voted that the work soliciting funds begin the week of June 6.

The members in each ward were empowered by vote of the committee to organize, and to select as many canversers as desired. In brief each ward will be canvassed as the committee in that ward see fit. All funds collected to be turned over to James F. Burke the treasurer.

The question of posters, informing the general public that a celebration was to be held, and giving the days' program in detail, was approved. It was argued that if the money collected was to be expended so that there should be some form of a celebration in each ward, the contributions would be more generous.

It was announced that there would be something in each ward. The parade would touch Wards One, Two, Three and Four. The field sports would be in Ward Two. The water sports in Ward Six. The fireworks and childrens entertainment in Ward Five and there would be ball games in all wards.

The general impression seemed to be that an appeal should be issued to the societies, clubs and lodges of the city to contribute in addition to the house-to-house canvas.

It was voted that the Chairman of the committee appoint one member in each ward as chairman of that ward, and that he call his ward committee together and organize and arrange for the collections in that ward.

Chairman Gammon appointed the following as Ward chairmen:—

Ward One—Charles A. Ericson.
Ward Two—H. F. Tucker.
Ward Three—Albert Nelson.
Ward Four—John Evans.
Ward Five—John Faircloth
Ward Six—John J. Duggan.

There was an informal discussion on the financial side of the celebration question.

Heckling Humor.

A parliamentary candidate was holding a meeting in Auld Reekie at which the heckler was much in evidence, and the embarrassed candidate failed to give a single answer which was judged to be satisfactory by the audience. Toward the end of the meeting an elector rose and quietly asked, "Sir, would you tell us what might be the name your second initial stands for?" The unfortunate candidate, greatly puzzled at the purport of the question, asked in what way the information could interest the audience. "In this way," explained the interrogator—"we should be able to see if you could answer one question."—London Tatler

Dr. Yates' Trousers.

St. Catharine's was the first Cambridge college to produce a don who dared to stagger humanity by wearing trousers. He was Dr. Lowther Yates, "a large, square man from Cumberland," suspected of radical opinions, who was master of "Cat's" during the closing years of the eighteenth century. As Yates, when vice chancellor, walked in procession to the university church, wearing trousers instead of the orthodox knee breeches, somebody shouted from a window:

Gadzoons, gadzoons,
Lowther Yates in pantaloons!

The profane impromptu poet was captured and proved to be Yates' own nephew. "Gadzoons!" was a Cumbrian expletive with which Yates was wont to express intense astonishment —Westminster Gazette.

TRUTH

No. 7

Weekly the wires are bringing the news of a new gusher being struck. Hundreds are being made rich over night. Oil is truly proving California's greatest money-maker. HAVE YOU THOUGHT ABOUT OIL AS SAFE AND EXTREMELY PROFITABLE INVESTMENT? There is big money in oil. The millions made by the Standard and by capitalists in our own state are matters of general knowledge. California is recognized as the best field for oil operations, oil discoveries and oil production today. The money coming from this oil production is being distrubuted among hundreds of stockholders and is not all going into the pockets of a few men. Dividends exceeding FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS have been paid by oil corporations in this state and the amount is going to steadily increase every day from now on.

Now, is there any reason why you shouldn't be one of the lucky ones? Wouldn't it be nice if you were to receive $500 dividend check every six months, and this check to be paid on an investment of two or three hundred dollars? This is being done regularly in California. Why are you not one of the lucky ones?

CORPORATION TAX MONEY

Will Go to Depositaries Without Causing Serious Drain on Banks

Washington, May 18.—Money collected throughout the country in payment of the new corporation taxes will not be permitted by the government to remain in local banks, but will be treated as all other intefnal revenue receipts. Receipt of this money, however, will obviate the necessity of a call on the banks for money, such as was made about this time last year.

The money collected in Massachusetts, for example, will not all be paid at one time, but will be collected from day to day in the collection districts in the state and deposited with the depositaries without causing any serious drain on the banks. The money will not be held to create a surplus in the treasury, but will all be needed for immediate use. While a call on the banks will not be necessary, the working balance in the treasury is only about the same as it was a year ago. Hence the impossibility of permitting the money to remain in the local banks.

CAUGHT BY FURIOUS STORM

Train Takes 137 Days to Go From Los Angeles to Salt Lake City

Salt Lake City, May 18.—Passenger train No. 4 of the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake railroad, completed a record run when it arrived here, 137 days out from Los Angeles. On Dec. 31, when it started for Salt Lake City, it was listed as a "fast train." It now claims supremacy over every way freight and accommodation train in the service as a slow traveler.

The storm of Jan 1 caught No. 4 a short distance east of Caliente, Nev., and washed out the track before and behind. On Jan. 10 the twenty passengers were transported by wagon to Acoma and brought here by train.

The engine, tender and seven cars of No. 4 held their position. The track builders working from the east side of the break reached the stalled train yesterday.

"DOCTORED" MILK IN ITS POSSESSION

Dealer Found Guilty In Superior Court at Boston

Boston, May 18.—A jury in the superior criminal court returned a verdict of guilty in the case of the White Cross Milk company, accused of having in its possession June 21, 1909, for the purpose of selling, milk to which water had been added. The indictment was found in July and has been pending since.

The defense set up that water was added to something that was not milk. The substance was a sort of condensed milk and was prepared in Vermont. Water was taken from it in Vermont and the water added here was purer than that taken from it and the addition of water brought the substance up to the requirements of the law. The product was not milk within the meaning of the milk laws, the defense claimed.

St. Martin and Gibeau were arrested, charged with manslaughter, and taken before the district court. Their cases were continued and they were held in $2500 each.

WEEKS' TASK IS COMPLETED

New Postal Bank Bill Ready to Be Introduced

HAS APPROVAL OF PRESIDENT

Money to Be Deposited in Institutions Approved by Trustees—Experiment to Be First Tried In Limited Number of Postoffices—Measure Offers Great Attractions to Depositors, Who Are Amply Safeguarded

Washington, May 18.—"I can now vote for a postal savings bank without a grimace." This laconic but important declaration made by Representative Weeks, chairman of the committee on postoffices and post roads, just as he was preparing to introduce in the house the new postal savings bank bill with which his committee was wrestling for several weeks.

It is no secret that the committee is greatly pleased with the result of its own efforts and believes it will be warranted in calling for a caucus and asking the house to adopt a rule under which the passage of this, one of the most important of the administration measures, may be expedited.

Mr. Weeks, who is a banker himself, and one of the most influential men in the house, has been able to bring about agreement in his committee partly through his position as a banker and his ability to demonstrate to the committee that the revised bill is not framed in the interest of "Wall street" and that it gives the government reasonable use and supervision of the deposits without committing it to a responsibility which it should not assume merely to enable the banks to make money.

The bill's chief merit, as an economic proposition, is that it safeguards the deposits by requiring the local communities to deposits their own bonds, state, county and municipal, as security for the use of the money, while by the device of requiring that the money shall be deposited only in institutions approved by the trustees, the government will guard against the collection and deposits of the moneys in communities whose own credit does not warrant the government in reposing confidence in them.

By this plan the sixty thousand postoffices of the country are not thrown open indiscriminately to deposit, and only such will be used as have the banking and safety conveniences at hand which will eliminate risk of burglary and misuse of funds.

As a matter of fact, it will be the policy of the trustees in the first year of the operation of the act to try the system on the dog by selecting five hundred postoffices with which to make the experiment of collection. From the experience thus gained the trustees—the secretary of the treasury, the postmaster general and the attorney general—will be able to develop and extend the system to the greatest possible point.

Five percent of the deposits will be retained by the government as a reserve, and of the remainder the trustees may invest 50 percent in such government securities as they choose. The second 50 percent will remain in the local banks as a working balance, but in time of emergency the president is authorized to draw this for the purposes of the government.

In practice, therefore, almost half the money will remain in the communities, yet all will be available in case of war or other serious demand.

The depositor is offered great attractions by the new bill. He has the option of permitting his money to remain with the government without further action on his part, in which case he will receive 2 percent interest, or he may buy with it government bonds of $24 and its multiples which will pay him 2½ percent interest. All deposits are limited to $500 each. The new bill does not limit the percentage of interest which government bonds purchased with postal savings must pay, hence the government is free to use the money as it pleases in readjusting its own finances.

President Taft, Senator Carter and others representing various schools of thought have been consulted in the preparation of the bill and given it their approval.

BOXING NOT IMMORAL

Pugilist Nelson Defends His Profession at Washington Hearing

Washington, May 18.—"Let me tell you something. Maybe you don't know, but Theodore Roosevelt never missed a boxing match while he was in New York," said Battling Nelson at a meeting of the committee on interstate commerce, the chairman of which, Representative Mann, comes from the pugilist's home district.

Nelson was at the Capitol to appear before a committee in opposition to a bill introduced by Representative Smith of Iowa, prohibiting the exhibition of moving pictures of prize fights and transmission of descriptions of prize fights by wire.

"This boxing game is not immoral," Nelson told the committee. "That's a lot more than can be said for most of these moving picture shows around the country. Boxing is the manliest of sports. There might be a dozen fatalities in the history of the prize ring, which is about the number they have every year in football."

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Interesting Services in the Church and Sunday School

HALL PLACE M. E.

The subject and text of the Sunday morning service at the Hall Place church were "Faith in Christ," the text being taken from Acts 24-24.

Sunday school was held at the close of the morning service, with a good increase in attendance. The Junior League met at 3 P. M., in the vestry.

The twenty-first aniversary of the institution of the Epworth League was celebrated with special exercises. The subject was "The upward look and the uplift." Miss Maud E. Hogkinson was the leader of the service.

After the praise service a short season of prayer was held led by the president of the league. The scripture references were read by three members, the first being taken from Titus 2; 11-14, read by Miss Hilda Francis; second from Heb. 12; 1, 2, 12, read by Miss BerylA .Hannant, third from John 3; 17, read by Miss Ada Williams. A few remarks were made on each reference by the reader. The pastor, Rev. Carl H. Raupach, spoke on the League motto, "Look up; lift up." He spoke briefly of the instituting of the Epworth League in Cleveland, Ohio, twenty-one years ago on the 15 of May, the events immediately preceding and which resulted in its founding. He also touched on the facts of the origin of the League motto, and its adoption, and spoke of its meaning. He emphasized the fact that neither part of this motto could be taken by itself, as there could be no real looking up to God unless we also put into practice the lifting up of those around us; there could be no lifting up without first looking up; also that there could be no real looking up unless we werewilling to let God look down and search our hearts. The roll was called and each member responded with a verse of Scripture. Each vice president was then given an opportunity to speak on the work of their department.

A very pleasant part of the service was the rendering of a duet by Miss Catherine Hodgkinson and Miss Mary Jane Williams. The service closed with the singing of "God be with you till we meet again," and the League benediction.

The Sunday evening text was taken from Galatians, 6; 7, "Be not deceived, God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." A duet was sung by Miss Catherine Hodgkinson and Miss Mary Jane Williams.

Prayer meeting will be held as usual this week. At the close of the service the official board of the church will meet.

The first quarterly conference wil be holden in the church on May 24, with Dr. Galbraith, district superintendent in the chair.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

Rev. Wesley Wiggin preached at the Wolaston Baptist church on Sunday morning in exchange with the pastor. Mr. Wiggin's subject was "The great gospel." Text Heb. 2-3. How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation. Some are very regular in their attendance at church and Sunday school, but with many their is more form than reality. Law was a school master to bring us to Christ, but Christ became the end of the law. Christ came to supply human need. Greatness is often governed by cost. Pictures are prized because of their cost, forgeting the thought behind the painting. We prize one with a great education, but we should prize the hard work and sacrifice of the parents that make the education possible Let us follow the Lord to Calvary and count the cost of His blood. Language canot express the greatness of God; only Christ can do that. It cost much to christianize the heathen nation, but who can count the worth? Consider the cost of schools, but count the worth; the cost to abolish slavery, the cost to spill Christ's blood, but count the worth to all. Thank God the "Old Book" lives today that tells of a gospel to help men to live. Better for children to have too much life than too little. Paul's life was such that the longer he is dead the better he is remembered.

The Sunday school had the largest attendance on Sunday that it has had for a long time.

The Christian Endeavor meeting was led by Miss Grace Schenmerhon. A solo was rendered by Char'es Kempton.

Albert E. Watson, president of the Brookline C. E. society was present and gave a very interesting talk on Christian Endeavor work.

The pastor preached at the evening service; subject, "A woman who condemns many in this generation," II Chron. 9-2. Solomon was a type of Jesus. The Queen of Sheba a type of women today. She travelled 1500 miles (it taking 75 days) to see Solomon, to find out whether reports regarding his greatness were true. It would be well if people today were as anxious to find out the truth. Test the reports of God and find out. Allow Christ to open our eyes to see His beauty. Christ wants the whole heart The more we give the more we receive from Him. Taste and see that the Lord is good and receive the fullness of His love and blessing.

WOLLASTON M. E.

The pulpit of the Wollaston M. E. church was occupied by Rev. Joseph Walther of the Baptist church Sunday morning, in exchange with the pastor. He spoke on "God's work and ours," saying that we are not saved by work alone. We must use faith. Man might be dead in sin, and yet Christ comes and gives him life. Lifts him and makes a new man of him. "Salvation is a bigger thing than we are wont to think." The preacher made clear that a man to work out his own salvation, must be independent, altho' he must not boast of being a self-made man. He said that God was in us. Finally, we must work with Christ as our model.

At 7 o'clock Rev. G. F. Durgin, D. D., of Boston, spoke and installed the following officers of the Epworth League: President, F. G. Bennett; First Vice President, Miss Sadie Teed; Second Vice President, Clarence Cassidy; Third Vice President, Miss Bessie Wilbur; Fourth Vice President, Mis Florence Bennett; Secretary, Walter Sutermeister; Treasurer, Storer Wiggin; Junior League Superintendent, Miss Rena Chamberlain. F. G. Bennett had charge of the evening services.

FOOD'S HEAT ENERGY TESTED IN A CAGE

Relative Value Being Recorded on a Human Subject

Washington, May 18.—To determine whether roast beef produces more energy in the human body than cabbage, whether baked beans in this respect surpass potatoes, and so on through a long list of foods, the department of agriculture is conducting a series of novel experiments.

The instrumentality being employed is a machine known as a calorimeter and a human being who submits to the "torture" of being fed and sitting in a glass cage while the food energy is recorded. Around the inside of the calorimeter, which is a glass airtight compartment about the size of a small steamer stateroom, runs a system of pipes filled with cold water. The temperature of the water is carefully noted, the heat generated by the body in the process of assimilating the food causing the water to become warmer.

The experiments so far have been to determine the relative heat producing energy of fatty and starchy foods.

POLICE PENSION VETOED

Governor Draper Gives His Reasons For Disapproval of the Measure

Boston, May 18.—Governor Draper sent to the senate a veto of the bill to provide for the pensioning of members of the district police.

The governor says that it is time to call a halt on such expenditures; that the state police are paid good salaries, that they should be able to make reasonable savings therefrom so as to render themselves comfortable in their old age; that such acts as this, which increase enormously the expenses of the whole people, tend to increase the cost of living; that it is class legislation.

It is considered a curious coincidence that Dr. Stevenson publicly has advocated the giving over of the mentally deranged to scientists for experiment.

HOUSE PROVED MINT TO NEGRO

Was Used In Straw Bail Syndicate, Say Hub Police

TRANSFERRED SEVERAL TIMES

Named as Bail Bond, It Is Alleged, In at Least Half a Hundred Cases to Secure Release of Criminals—Woman Doctor and Real Estate Agent Arrested at Instigation of the District Attorney

Boston, May 18.—Following a probe by the district attorney's office in conjunction with Lieutenant Lee and Inspector Lynch of police headquarters an alleged "straw bail" syndicate has been unearthed.

The police last night arrested Dr. Lillie Landis, alias Annie Clark, aged 49, a registered physician living at 1623 Washington street, and Harry J. Lucas, a negro, aged 39, claiming to live at 49 Dundee street.

The latter is a real estate agent with an office on Clarenden street. He in charged with subornation of perjury, while the woman, who is white, is charged with perjury.

The police say that the Landis woman was a tool in the hands of Lucas, who was pardoned from state prison on July 30, 1907, after having served three years for a similar felony.

Officers assert that within a comparatively short time the house at 28 Holyoke street, the deed of which appears in the name of Etta E. Tucker, has been transferred about fifty times. The latter cognomen is the maiden name of Dr. Landis, whose husband died about five years ago.

It is said that at least fifty cases are known where this house at 28 Holyoke street has been named on a bail bond for surety in the release of pickpockets and petty thieves who happened to get into the clutches of the law.

The police say that Lucas really owns the house and that his scheme was to have several deeds and to transfer the house temporarily from one person to another. This was finally brought to the attention of the district attorney's office.

After a searching inquiry by Lee and Lynch they stated that they had obtained evidence that Lucas was the person behind the syndicate and that he paid the Landis woman and others a nominal fee for appearing in the role as owner of the house at 28 Holyoke street, and that he used the house in question for the purpose of giving "straw bail."

Many persons arrested for various crimes were bailed out, the officers say, and the house at 28 Holyoke street was named as the surety on the bail bond. If, in the meantime, the arrested persons had fled, then, it is alleged, Lucas would see that the deed was transferred again so that he would not lose the property which was a mint to him. He made thousands of dollars through this illegal method, it is claimed.

AT KING EDWARD'S BIER

Thousands of People of All Classes Pay Their Tribute of Respect

London, May 18.—At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the doors of Westminster hall, where King Edward's body is lying in state, were thrown open to the public. They were composed mostly of the middle and working classes and the great majority of them were dressed in black, many of them carrying flowers.

A steady stream began passing through the hall at the rate of 6000 an hour, and at 10 o'clock last night, when the hall was closed, there was a line extending through the streets for nearly two miles.

KIRBY'S ANNUAL REPORT

Pleads For New Political Party and Pays Respect to Labor Leaders

New York, May 18.—John Kirby, Jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in his annual report at the fifteenth annual convention, pleaded for the organization of a new political party.

"To me," said Kirby, "that seems the only way in which this country can be preserved in its original form as the model of the fathers."

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is attacked in the report, which declares "his type of trades unionism stands condemned by public opinion."

Referring to the case of Gompers, John Mitchell and Secretary Morrison of the Federation, now before the supreme court, Kirby says "they are awaiting a closed shop sentence which will doubtless give them all they want of it."

REGAL OXFORDS

Heel Hug—Regal Oxfords fit snugly at the heel—never chafe or cut—because they are made on special Oxford lasts.

Ankle Fit—Regal Oxfords fit smoothly and evenly around the ankle, whereas ordinary low-cuts, made on high-shoe lasts, sag and gape at the ankle.

Custom Instep—The patented, two-part REGALFORM Lasts, on which Regal Shoes are made, are removed from the finished Regal Shoes in sections. This permits the instep or "waist" of the shoes to be made small and snug.

Quarter-sizes—In addition to the usual half and full sizes, Regals come in one-quarter and three-quarter sizes in between. This double number of fittings insures an exact fit for every foot.

Custom Styles—Regal Oxfords reproduce the latest, correct custom styles, not found in other ready-to-wear shoes until the following season.

The date has been changed for the next meeting of the executive committee of the Fourth of July celebration, and it will be held Thursday evening instead of Friday.

SUCCESS TO HIM.

William I. Johnson, of 2 Gothlard street, who for the past eight years has been in the employ of Wilder & Co., leather dealers, 64 South street, Boston, left this morning for Chicago where he will remain permanently with the same firm, working as salesman from that end of the route. "Billy," as he is well and favorably known, has lots of riends who wish him the best of luck, and while they wil lmiss him they msut remember the old adage "that the best of friends must part." A goodly number of relatives and friends went to Boston this morning to wish him good luck on his journey.

COLEMAN SENTENCED.

George W. Coleman charged with looting the Cambridge National ban", was before Judge Hale of the United States circuit court this morning. He plead guilty, and was senteced to fifteen years at the jail at Grenfield, Mass.

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS

Grand Army and Auxiliary Bodies Acting Together

A joint conference of the members of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R.; Col. A. B. Packard camp, Sons of Veterans; John A. Boyd camp, Spanish War Veterans; the Women's Relief Corps, and the Ladies Auxiliary societies to the Sons of Veterans and Spanish War Veterans, was held Tuesday evening at Grand Army hall. The object was to talk over plans for Memorial day.

It was agreed that all of the organizations should work together for the proper observance of the day. The matter of soliciting flowers and of refreshments was arranged. The dinner to veterans on Memorial day will be served in Faxon hall.

The plan for the observance of the day will differ but little, if any, from others years, and the day's program will be outlined in the general orders that will be issued by Commander Phillips this week.

On the Sunday previous to Memorial day the Grand Army and kindred bodies will attend services at the Universalist church in the morning, on invitation of the pastor, Rev. C. L. Paddock. The Post has also received an invitation to attend services in the evening at the Hall Place church West Quincy. While many of the members of the organizations will doubtless attend, some are not equal to two services in one day, so they will not go as an organization.

SPECIAL CONVOCATION.

John Adams commandery, Knights of Malta, met in special convocation, Tuesday evening in Greenleaf hall. The opening drill started promptly at 8 o'clock. After some very important business was transacted, the Malta degree team rehearsed in full uniform, under the watchful eye of Sir Knight Commander George H. Jacques, who has proven himself equal to the occasion both as a degree master and as instructor in Malta work. Great preparations are being made for the next regular convocation when the Malta degree will be worked on a number of novices A large number of visiting sir knights are expected to be present. A collation will be served.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Veto from Governor on District Police Pension Bill

Representative Langelier voted on Tuesday against extending civil service to certain Boston departments, and on roll call the bill was defeated 90 to 101.

The House advanced the order for an investigation as to the electrification of railroads in the Metropolitan district; also the three mill tax bill.

It was voted not to accept the adverse report on the bill to reimburse cities and towns for loss on taxes for land used for public institutions. The bill to limit hours of street railway men was passed to be engrossed; also the resolve relative to a tunnel between the union station in Boston; and the grade crossing bill for Charlestown.

The motor bill was amended to require an ordinary reed horn and it was then passed. The teachers agency bill was debated, but no vote was reached.

The Senate stood by its vote in rejecting the half fare bill for normal school pupils, Senator Hultman voting no. Also the adverse vote on the Hisgen anti-monopoly bill.

The Senate favored 18 to 17, reference to a commission, the disputes in the Millbury water cases.

A favorable report was received on the bill to increase the number of fish and game commissioners to six.

Gov. Draper has vetoed the district police pension bill.

CUP RACES.

Unless all signs fail there will be some interesting races the coming season for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup. Three challenges, aside from that of the Quincy club, have been received the past week. These are from the Eastern, Sippican and Beverly clubs. In addition, challenges have also ben received from the Corinthian and Hingham clubs. This will make a fleet of at least seven boats, and if the Manchester club should challenge, as is expected, there will be eight boats. The races will be sailed off Hull beginning July 23. There are two clubs represented for the first time this year. The Sippican club of Marion, and the Hingham club.

TODAY'S COURT.

Louis Rossi was fined $5 for participating in a game of craps at Quincy.

Joseph Koslowsky was arraigned for assault on John Wiczea at Weymouth. Satisfaction was acknowledged, and the defendant discharged on payment of costs amounting to $8.10.

The continued case of George A. Malloy for larceny from the New York & Boston express at Cohasset was heard and he was held in $500 for the grand jury.

An Autobiography.

Mrs. Chugwater—Josiah, what is an autobiography? Mr. Chugwater—It's the story of a man's life written as he thinks it ought to be. Couldn't you tell that from the word itself?—Chicago Tribune.

A Success.

Byker—I attended a successful sleight of hand performance last night. Pyker—Really! Byker—Yes, I lent a conjurer a counterfeit half dollar, and he gave me back a good one.

One Better.

CLEVER STUNTS IN EARLY GAMES

Pennant Races of 1910 Show Brilliant Performances.

HOME RUNS WITH BASES FILLED

One No Hit Game and Two Triple Plays Among the Sensational Things That Have Electrified Fans—Tris Speaker's Great Batting.

Although the 1910 season is still very young and old Jupiter Pluvius very unkind to the fans for the first few weeks of the campaign, quite a number of sensational stunts have been pulled off in the big leagues. In the American and National leagues the quality of ball has been on a higher plane than ever before, and, while the fans of certain cities may be disappointed at the standing of their representatives in the percentage columns, they have to acknowledge that the play this year has been fast and spirited.

TRIS SPEAKER, BOSTON AMERICANS' GREAT STAR.

In the first few weeks of play two triple plays were made, both in the National league. The New Yorks wiped out three of the Brooklyn players at one fell swoop in New York and duplicated the feat a few days later in Boston. Dahlen's Daisies pulled off a three ply killing at the expense of the Doves also. Tris Speaker, who Jim McAleer says is the best outfielder in the country, already has made a double play without assistance, a rare feat for a center fielder. Ty Cobb in the second game played by the Tigers this year beat Briscoe Lord of the Naps out of a hit by throwing Larry Lajoie out at second. Cobb, who, like Speaker, always is trying, came in fast on Lord's low liner, just missed catching it and then threw to second and retired the king of the Naps.

Addie Joss, pitcher, inventor and sporting editor, had the honor of pitching the first no hit game of the year, but there are many captious critics who aver that he should not have been credited with this performance. On April 20 the slender Clevelander got the best of Frank Smith in a pitching duel by the slightest of margins—1 to 0. Bill Bradley fumbled Parent's unintentional bunt, and the scorers first called it a hit, afterward changing their minds and charging an error against McGuire's tall and capable third baseman.

Bradley says he was to blame on the play, but many fans who witnessed the game aver that a point was stretched in Joss' favor to let the "human slat" make his second appearance in the no hit colony. Walter Johnson of the Washingtons, Frank Smith of the Chicago White Sox and Earl Moore of the Phillies let their opponents down with one rap in nine innings.

Of noble four baggers and cleanup swats there has been a bountiful supply. J. Bentley Seymour of the New York Nationals and Tex Erwin of the Brooklyns seem to have made the longest loop-the-loop cracks of the campaign. McGraw's outfielder and Dahlen's backstop each hit the ball over the high right field wall in Philadelphia. Players who have hit for the circuit with the bases in a congested condition in the first few weeks of the campaign are Norman Elberfeld of the Washingtons, who turned the trick on April 20, and Jake Stahl of the Boston Red Sox, who came to time with a drive of this kind on the following day.

Roger Bresnahan of the St. Louis Cardinals, Charles Louis Phillippe of the Pirates, Bob Bescher of the Reds and Larry Lord of the Boston Red Sox have either doubled or tripled with the bases all tenanted and swept the hassocks clear of their inhabitants. Tris Speaker came mighty nigh making himself more popular than ever with his admirers recently when in an eighth inning assault on Gray and Hovlik of the Washingtons he almost got two home runs in one round.

On Tris' first appearance at the plate he drove the ball out of the lot, and on his second he again sent it beyond the barrier, but drive No. 2 was foul by an inch or so, and he had to return to the batters' box. Speaker singled on his second trip to the plate in the same inning and is the first major league performer who has got two hits in one inning.

SMUGGLED LIQUOR

Found on Another Quincy and Boston Express

Inspector Goodhue is hot on the trail of Boston liquor houses who are sending liquor into Quincy improperly marked. Tuesday he overhauled several express teams, and in one case found a box containing two gallons of liquor. This was received by Connelly's express and was consigned to a Quincy business man. The box came from a Boston wholesale grocer and was marked "200 pounds granulated sugar." The box had a suspicious look and on being opened was found to contain among other things, two gallons of liquor. The box was seized. In fairness to the expressman it should be stated he is exonorated from any blame.

FAREWELL SERMON.

Rev. Aug. Erikson, the well known Boston pastor, who is shortly to leave his present charge for an Illinois pastorate, preaches a farewell sermon in the Swedish Congregational church on Garfield street this evening, at 7.30 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Erikson's many friends in Quincy will, we feel sure, avail themselves of this last oportunity to hear the forceful and popular preacher. Mr. Erikson leaves Boston for Rockford, Ill., about June 1.

ATHLETIC SPORTS FOR FOURTH OF JULY

Events for Men at Merrymount Park, and Events for Boys at Ward Six Playground

Protest of Makaria Base Ball Team Favorably Considered

The sub committee on Athletic sports for the Fourth of July celebration met Wednesday evening in the rooms of the Board of Trade. As there had been some dissatisfaction over the arrangements of the several events in the athletic line, as published, the committee after some discussion practically undid all that had been done and began over again.

The schedule as now arranged will probably give better satisfaction. One of the events that caused some kicking, was the big game of base ball which had been arranged to be played at Merrymount park between the Copelands and Atlantics. The action regarding this game was reconsidered, as the Makaria's believed they were strong enough to have some consideration.

It was voted that a committee be appointed to meet the managers of the three teams and arrange which shall play and where the game shall be played. The committee appointed were Joseph H. Elcock, James E. Neary and Peter M. Sullivan. A meeting of the committee and managers was fixed for Friday evening. It is possible that a series of elimination games may be played to pick the two teams.

The following games between teams of the Granite City league were arranged the games to be played in the afternoon:

Bigelows vs. Fore River Apprentices, at Ward Two.

Adams A. A. vs. Cranch, at Ward Three.

Hardy A. A. vs. Bryant A. C., at Ward Four.

A meet for boys between the ages of 12 and 16 years will be held on the Atlantic playground at 1.30 P. M. These events will include the following:

Yards dash.
Three-legged race.
Potato race.
Obstacle race.
Sack race.
Relay race between teams from the various wards of the city.

Suitable prizes will be given in each event.

In the big events it was voted to cut out the 12 pound shot put, and in its place to have a 440 yards open dash. This will give a 440 yards open and a 440 yards closed to residents of Quincy.

These sports will be held at Merrymount park at 9 A. M., after the parade, and will be under the rules and with the sanction of the A. A. U. Competant officials will manage the meet and good prizes will be offered. Entrance for these events will close June 30, and the fee for entrance will be 25 cents for the first event, and 10 cents for each additional event.

The events of the big meet will be as follows:

100 yards dash (open.)
440 yards dash (open.)
440 yards dash, for residents of Quincy only.
1-2 mile run (open.)
Mile run (open.)
10 mile run (open.)
Running hop, step and jump.
Runing high jump.
Relay race for championship of Quincy, between teams from Quincy clubs.
Tug of war.

All clubs and societies of the city are invited to send teams to compete in the tug of war contest.

Good prizes will be offered in all events. What they shall be will be determined at the next meeting of the commitee to be held Tuesday, June 7.

NOT APPROVED OR DISAPPROVED

Mayor Shea has neither aproved or disapproved the order passed by the City Council, calling for a special committee to investigate the financial affairs of the city. As the ten days have expired, it becomes a law without his signature. President Hobbs has not as yet announced the make-up of the commitee. Whether there will be any appropriation available for the committee remains to be seen.

EDUCATION OF NEGROES

Debated by Mens Club of Christ Church

A meeting of the Men's Club of Christ church was held Wednesday night in the parish house for the purpose of debating the subject, "Resolved—That the Negro shall have equal educational and industrial advantages with the white man."

Before the debate began the Rev. Mr. Armstrong, pastor of the church, spoke of the progress of missionary work in the Philippines, and requested a donation to the fund being raised for that purpose from the Men's Club.

M. A. Turner, president of the club and principal for the affirmative, opened the debate. He told of the cruel condition under which the Negro was first brought to America, after having been snatched from his friends, relatives and home. When the Negro was emancipated, after two hundred years of slavery, he was suddenly cast upon a world of which he knew nothing and of which he knows little today, said Mr. Turner in conclusion, and it is the duty of the white man who brought upon him his present condition to do all in his power to uplift the Negro.

William Walker, for the negative, said that there is every advantage placed before the colored man, but that he is unable to grasp them, because of mental deficiency and that by his sloth and inclination to disease, both mental and physical, he was gradually degrading the South. Mr. Walker spoke briefly but very strongly, and was loudly applauded.

A. McLeod, for the affirmative, declared that the Negro problem is one of the greatest of the day. He said that the Negro in the South, is mistreated and injured by the white and that his franchise was useless since he was not allowed to cast a vote.

Henry French, the last speaker for the negative, proposed the case of a Negro placed in the lowest possible class, with the possibility of rising on a system of merits, and showed, in forcible style, the impossibility of any great progress on the part of the Negro. He said that the Negro has a sphere out of which he cannot rise as a class.

The speakers then took up the rebuttal, and after some consideration the club voted that the negative won the debate. Then refreshments were served.

The next meeting of the club will be the last this season, and officers for the ensuing year will be elected. Nominations will be brought in by the following committee: Thomas E. Furnald, A. McLeod, James Smith, George Holden, William Walker and N. M. Spencer.

ANNUAL FAIR EASTERN STAR

Supper, Entertainment, Dancing and a Good Time

The fifth annual fair of the Quincy chapter, O. E. S., opened Wednesday evening in Protection and Electa halls, and was attended by a large gathering.

Supper was served at 6.30, at which about one hundred and fifty enjoyed the good things prepared under the management of Dexter Remick, E. T. Spear, Mr. Gilliett, Henry F. Furnald, Mrs. Furnald, Mrs. Kribbs, Mrs. Roach, Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Walters, Mrs. Deacon, Mrs. Willis, Mrs. Worsdell and Mrs. Leach.

The halls were attractive in the colors of the chapter, and flowers added their beauty. Great credit is due for the success of the fair to the committee of which Mrs. Alice W. Ralph was chairman.

A brief entertainment was provided by Miss Clara Call and included a reading by Miss MacDonald, a piano solo by Miss Lane and a vocal solo by Miss Barnicoat. Dancing folowed the entertainment.

The tables were in charge of the following ladies:

Fancy table—Mrs. Forrest, Mrs. Brett, Mrh. Mumn and Mrs. Carter.

Candy table—Mrs. Catarus, Mrs. Stone, Mrs. Poddry, Miss Jones and Mrs. Norwood.

PLANNED TO SEE COMET.

Had the comet made its appearance Wednesday evening so that it could have been possible to see it with the naked eye, the fact would have been announced to the citizens of Quincy by two blows on the fire alarm circuits. Wednesday afternoon, Mayor Shea got into communication with Harvard observatory and made arrangements with the professors there, that in case the comet could be seen the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department would be notified by telephone. Chief Williams would then have sounded two blows on the fire alarm circuits. The comet however was not visible.

There is considerable satisfaction to know that hereafter the mysterious visitor will not cause people to arise early only to be doomed to disappointment. Few people have been able to see the comet yet, but perhaps they may between May 20 and 30 durin gthe evening hours. It is now at its nearest point and will begin to recede today.

CHAIR CASE IN COURT

A case of unusual interest was heard before Judge Avery in the district court this morning, when Warren T. Arnold was arraigned for the larceny of a chair from Fred F. Green. Mr. Green was represented by J. D. Mackay and Mr. Arnold by J. J. McAnarney.

Mr. Green in testimony said that he gave Mr. Arnold a large black walnut easy chair to be re-upholstered fourteen years ago. No price for the work to be done was named. He had not seen the chair since that time. He had several conversations with Mr. Arnold about the chair and in every case had been told that he had been very buhy but would have the chair ready on a certain date. The last time was last Christmas. Six weeks ago he again asked for the chair, and was informed he could not have it until he, Arnold, had consulted his counsel.

A few days ago a demand for the chair was given a constable, who made a tender of one dollar with the demand for the chair, in payment of any work that might have been done. On cross examination, Mr. Green said that he did not know that Arnold was ready to return the chair on the payment of $2 for work done.

Mrs. Green testified that she had been to Mr. Arnold several times about the chair, and he had promised to have it done at a certain time. Three years ago, at Mr. Arnold's suggestion, she had selected a new cover for it. Mr. Arnold then said that he would finish it right away. She had not seen it since that time.

Lawyer George E. Adams, after considerable argument among the counsel, said that he was the assignee of Mr. Arnold, but that any property that Mr. Arnold had in his shop for repair was not included in the assignment. The chair was now in the office of C. H. Johnson, where it had been brought. He had advised that Mr. Green could have the chair upon payment of $2 for work done on it.

The court said if the chair in possession of Mr. Johnson was the chair of Mr. Green, he could not find the defendant guilty of larceny. The description of the chair given by Mr. Adams and other witnesses seemed to identify the ehair as being the one in question. He therefore found Arnold not guilty.

Lawyer Mackay for Mr. Green said that he intended to apply for warrants in two other cases, and that Mr. Adams, assignee for Mr. Arnold, wanted to be heard on the matter of issuing the warrants. The court agreed to hear both sides on the applications for the warrants.

After court, Mr. Green gave up $2 and now has possession of the chair.

SUDDEN DEATH FROM SHOCK

Mrs. John A. Avery Passes Away Very Unexpectedly

Mrs. Hannah Ring, wife of Mr. John A. Avery, passed away quite suddenly Wednesday, at her home, 6 Mill street. Mrs. Avery to all appearances had been in her usual health, and that morning was about the house as usual, attending to her household duties. Shortly after 9 o'clock she suffered a shock, but managed to make her way to the room of her son, Officer John J. Avery, whom she aroused. As he was awakened she collapsed. He carried her down stairs and summoned a physician. While it was known that she had suffered from a shock, it was not thought that she was in immediate danger. She did not rally, however, but continued to fail until about 4 o'clock when she passed away.

Mrs. Avery was one of a large family of children and was deeply interested in church work. Besides a husband, who has recently been appointed a boot and shoe inspector for the government, she leaves seven children, five sons and two daughters. Her eldest son is John J. Avery, a member of the Quincy Police department. Her funeral will be held Saturday from St. John's church.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Boston should think, twice before selling that land at Squantum Head. Possibly Quincy might be interested in keeping it open for public use.—Herald.

The Squantum Head property has never been included in the list of parks or reservations in Quincy, but doubtless it is a fact that hundreds of Quincy people have visited it during the summer months. As the population of the city becomes more dense, and private owners exclude the public, the reservation will be prized more and more. As at present conducted by the city of Boston, Squantum Head is not the attractive spot it might easily become. The buildings are old and going to decay, while the camping ground without supervision is more or less of a nuisance. Because of the water front and upland it is a property which Boston will do well to hold onto, as the city may need just such a site in the near future. It contains over fifteen acres and has a water front of about 4,000 feet without including the embankment to Moon island.

DRIFT OF OPINION

When a great genius passes away we all feel the loss as a personal one. But friends of animals have special reasons for mourning the departure of Mark Twain, or rather for rejoicing in the memory of the generous life which he lived. He was an arch foe to vivisection. So extremely sensitive were his feelings upon this subject that he did not care whether human life might be benefited by the tortures of the vivisector; it was enough for him to know that the animal suffered intense pain. That he knew men and something of dogs is shown by his saying: "If you pick up a starving dog and make him prosperous he will not bite you. This is the principal difference between a dog and a man."—Our Dumb Animals.

And still another form of conservation is recommended to the people of this period. We are asked to conserve the household furnishings, utensils, ornaments and treasures of the present day. This generation is appealed to to do for coming generations what past generations have done for us. It is a matter of preserving from destruction things that we once valued highly but that have deteriorated in our esteem. Our great-grandparents and our grandparents were conservationists of this sort. In almost innumerable instances so were our parents. But our great-grandparents and our grandparents, and, in many instances, our parents, possessed one great advantage of which the present generation has been or is being deprived, namely, the garret.

Garrets are not provided for, as a rule, in the architecture of the modern dwelling. They are impossible in the modern apartment house. Whether they occupy dwelling, or flat, housekeepers in our times find it inconvenient, or entirely out of the question, to give storage room to the old things when the new things take their place, unless it is the case, as frequently, that the new things are the costly old things which housekeepers of other generations stored away in their garrets, knowing that they would sometime come into use or into style again.

In any event, as a consequence of our present methods and of the disappearance of the garret, there seems likely to be comparatively little contributed by this generation to the antique collections of the future. Yet, in common gratitude for all the interesting things that have come down to us we should hand down interesting things to others. How we are to do it without garrets is, of course a serious question. One hope is that it may become so serious that we shall insist upon getting back to the garret while we are getting back to the soil—and perhaps to a lot of other things from which we have unwisely strayed.—Christian Science Monitor.

CHURCH ROBBER CAUGHT

Automatic Alarm Exposes a Deacon, Who Is Landed In Jail

Halifax, May 19.—Several times recently the collection box in the vestibule of the Methodist church at Milltown has been robbed. Determined to catch the robber, an automatic alarm was rigged and connected with the pastor's house, a few feet from the church.

About 3 o'clock in the morning Rev. Mr. Cartwright was awakened by the alarm. Hurrying to the church he discovered a man in the act of rifling the box. After a brief struggle the robber was secured and taken to jail. The culprit was one of the regular attendants at church, a deacon, over 75 years of age.

New York, May 19.—Katie Mueller, the sweetheart of Albert Wolter, sentenced to death for the murder of Ruth Wheeler, is now living with Wolter's parents, and it is said to be their intention legally to adopt her.

Frank Moss, the assistant district attorney who tried the case, offered the girl a home, and for two weeks she accepted it, "but Albert wrote me to go to his parents," she said, "and I shall always stay with them; that is, as long as they will let me."

TEN CITIZENS AND MAYOR ARRESTED

Graft Charges Against Prominent Men of Lawrence

Lawrence, Mass., May 19.—A sensation that shook this city was sprung last night, when Mayor White and ten other prominent citizens, ex-government officials and department heads were arrested on charges of bribery, larceny, conspiracy, and other forms of graft, following a report of the grand jury, which held a two weeks' probe session in this city.

The following were indicted and arrested and booked at the police station:

Mayor White, Fire Chief Hamilton, Ernest Dube, Fred Koschitsky, Thomas H. Keegan, ex-Alderman Burns, ex-Alderman Legendre, George B. Smart, William H. Moisson, Mayor's Secretary Ripon, and John J. Cummings, a Lawrence liquor dealer.

With the exception of Ripon and Cummings, who were charged with simple larceny, all the defendants were held in $2500 bonds for their appearance before the superior criminal court at Newburyport. The latter two were held in $500. All secured bail.

Hall, it is expected, will plead guilty and sentence will probably be imposed at once. Lawyer Gaskill will appear for Hall and will make a plea for clemency.

The legislative committee found that the larcenies of Hall from the savings bank totalled over $372,000. He was also found to be short in his accounts as treasurer of the town.

MILLIONS OF EYES SKYWARD

But Only Trained Scientists Got Peep at Comet's Tail

OLD EARTH IS UNSCATHED

Not Yet Known What Astronomers Discovered During Transit of Celestial Visitor—Big Storm Gives Bostonians a Scare—Superstititous People Are Badly Frightened, the Negro Population Being In Panic

Boston, May 19.—Millions of eyes were upturned to the heavens last night from every part of the habitable globe to catch a glimpse of the tail of the elusive comet as the earth was swept through it.

Astronomers in every part of the world, in Cambridge, on the top of Great Blue Hill, in Flagstaff, Ariz., on the mountains in Peru near Arequipa, where the Harvard observatory has a station, from crowded cities and on lonely mountain tops, men of eminence in astronomy were making observations of a celestial event that was unique to them in all their years of study and research.

The millions of eyes, except those that were trained to watching the skies, and were looking through powerful glasses, were doomed to disappointment. The tail, as had been prophesied, was too tenuous to make any impression on the naked eye, although in a few days we may learn that astronomers were able to solve some of the problems that they had set out to conquer last night or never.

Even people in this city who were not nervous over the comet at 5 o'clock began to be alarmed about 6, when black clouds dropped down and seemed almost to envelop the earth. Women and men, caught in town a little late, hurried to trains and cars to get home, and telephones in newspaper offices began to tinkle with calls from anxious people who wanted to be assured that everything on the earth was all right.

Reports came from all parts of the globe of the anxiety felt about the comet among poorly educated people, particularly in the tropics, and of the intense interest that astronomers were taking in Europe and Asia, as well as in the Americas, in Australia and the islands of the Pacific and the islands of the Atlantic.

In districts of Chicago populated by foreigners school children by the hundreds asked permission of the teachers to remain at home yesterday for fear of some untoward happening for which Halley's comet might be responsible.

Physicians were appealed to by their patients for specifics to ward off the dangerous gas which they supposed would envelop the earth when it passed through the comet's tail. Priests and ministers were besought by their parishioners for words of comfort to help them through the ordeal through which they believed they were about to pass.

Among the negro population of Chicago the coming of the comet was received with much superstitious dread. Little faith was had in the prophesy of astronomers and whole households were given over to prayer for protection. In many neighborhoods work practically ceased while men, women and children awaited the passing with fear.

LIE DIRECT IS ORDERED

Taft Has Not Said Harsh Things About Insurgent Senators

Washington, May 19.—Following a White House conference, in which Senators Aldrich and Crane and Attorney General Wickersham participated, it became known that President Taft has directed his friends in the senate to give the lie direct to those circulating stories that the president had used disparaging language in speaking of insurgent Republican senators.

It is said that Senator Borah is spreading the story about language that President Taft is said to have used about the insurgents which is making the near insurgents indignant.

TWO MILES OF PEOPLE

Standing In Line When Doors of Westminster Hall Closed Last Night

London, May 19.—Thousands of people, marching in double file on either side of the catafalque on which rests the coffin of Edward VII, passed through Westminster hall Wednesday, and when the doors were closed at 10 o'clock last night there were miles of people still in line.

Throughout the afternoon Victoria station was the scene of a constant stream of foreign representatives arriving for the funeral.

"Anarchist" Tip Proves a Boomerang

New York, May 19.—When William Halliwell, 28 years old, tried to board the steamer Lusitania shortly before sailing time, "to warn the officials," he said, "that three anarchists were in the steerage and that the vessel would never reach the other side," he was arrested and committed to Bellevue hospital for observation as to his sanity.

ROGERS TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION

Was One of the Navy Reorganization "Insurgents"

Washington, May 19.—The expected resignation of Paymaster General Eustace B. Rogers of the navy has come and Secretary Meyer's reorganization plan has a clear track ahead of it. Rogers' resignation has been accepted, that it will not become effective until Meyer deems it opportune to place a new chief in charge of the bureau.

A general shakeup in the paymaster's corps will probably follow the resignation of Rogers. Paymaster Conard, whom the secretary regards as the brains of the bureau and one of the chief recalcitrants, has been ordered to duty aboard the Nebraska. Other changes will probably follow within a short time. Some of the officers now on duty at Washington will be assigned to sea duty.

Admiral Rogers as a staff officer has repeatedly clashed with Meyer since the latter began to reorganize the department.

DENTIST IN POE'S COTTAGE

Kit of Instruments In Spot Once Occupied by Bust of Pallas

New York, May 19.—Other lamentations than those of "The Raven" soon will be heard in the rooms which hitherto have been held sacred to the memory of "Nevermore."

The Poe cottage in the Bronx, where Edgar Allen Poe wrote his famous poem, has been transformed into a dentist's office. Where once stood the bust of Pallas now is located a cabinet containing a full kit of instruments for the extraction of molars and the repair of aching bicuspids.

A dentist has owned the cottage for some time and has opened his office there. His sign hangs over the bronze tablet placed on the house a year ago on the occasion of the centennial of Poe's birth.

STEEL STRIKE IS OFF

Workers In Schwab's Plant Have Been Idle Over Three Months

South Bethlehem, Pa., May 19.—The strike at the Bethlehem Steel works, which had been in progress since Feb. 4, was officially declared off at a meeting of the executive committee of the strikers in this city. The conditions secured last week from President Schwab were unanimously accepted by the men.

Mr. Schwab was in New York, but was reached by long distance telephone. He accepted the proposition from the men and stated that they could return to work at any time.

PERU-ECUADOR DISPUTE

May Be Settled by Arbitration Efforts of Three Republics

Washington, May 19.—Secretary of State Knox for months has been trying to effect an arrangement whereby the perennial boundary disputes of the smaller countries of South America may be settled by diplomacy, thus avoiding the comic opera mobilization of troops on various frontiers every time a territorial row arises.

It is understood that Knox has enlisted the co-operation of Argentina and Brazil in an undertaking which may result in quieting belligerent nations like Peru and Ecuador, which at the moment happen to be bristling toward each other over the reputed tentative decision of King Alfonso relative to the ownership of a strip of rubber territory.

Information received here confirms the report from Lima that the United States, Argentina and Brazil will mediate between Peru and Ecuador to prevent hostilities. It is understood that both Peru and Ecuador have given their consent to this form of settlement.

CAUGHT IN FISH WEIR

Provincetown Fishermen Trap Baby Whale of the Finback Variety

Provincetown, Mass., May 19.—The body of an infant found within the fish weir of the Frates crew at South Truro was brought here. It was the handsomest and healthiest of babies, and one of the biggest as well, it being no less than 12½ feet in length. This infant was of the finback whale variety.

Fat, bright colored and without blemish upon that side which lay uppermost as the little whale rested beside the pier, it was pronounced the most perfect specimen. It was towed out of the harbor and cast adrift, as no one cared to expend time and labor in securing the trifling quantity of oil contained in the blubber. The Frates crew killed the whale with difficulty.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

The Seniors held a class meeting Wednesday at which several important matters were considered. President Corey presided. The treasurer, Leon Browne, reported about $66 in the treasury. The motto committee, Mary Cleveland, Bertha Given, Charles Kendall, Lillian Mead, and Edith Hyland—selected five choice mottoes for presentation to the class. When translated, they are, "We can if we will," "Not finished but begun," "Not for School but for life," "Over obstacles to success," and "Perseverance is accomplishment." On the ballot the first one "Possunt quia posse videntur." or "They can, who think they can," was chosen. The class party committee with Bertha Given chairman, Lillian Mead, Reginald Sprague, Roy Sidelinger, Dorothy Frye, Richard Favorite and Mildred Dunham, reported that Music hall had been secured for Thursday, June 23, and also Merrill's orchestra. Marion Hicks was chosen class prophetess and Gordon Jameson as class historian. The Seniors unanimously voted that no tickets would be issued to any Senior whose dues were not fully paid by June 6.

• • •

Apropos to mottoes speaking of the frequently discussed question of the time for their selection, while it is an excellent thing to have a motto at any time, would it not be better for some of the lower classes, say the Juniors and perhaps the Sophomores, to make selection of a motto soon, and thus have opportunity to test and live up to it, not only after graduation, but also previously?

Thursday in place of the usual music class, all the Seniors assembled and thus had an occasion to familiarize themselves with graduation music.

Saturday the Schoolmasters' Club meets at Squantum. Among the events is a baseball game between the members of the club at the High school and the principals of the Grammar schools. Lately the teachers have been seen putting in a good deal of practice.

Russell Bates, '10, made a visit from Saturday morning until Monday at Amherst "Aggie," and also Amherst College. While at the Agricultural college he was with the Quincy graduates, and at the college he visited some of the former members of Quincy High school.

• • •

Warren Baker, '09, has returned to Amherst "Aggie." He came back to Quincy for a short time as some scarlet fever cases broke out in rooms near his own.

• • •

Lucien H. Thayer, Quincy High 1906, figured prominently in the Harvard-Yale dual meet on Saturday. In two of the events he won second and third places respectively.

• • •

Ralph P. Currier, teacher of mathematics and coach of the baseball, was a winner of one of the prizes for the best season's score in whist offered by the Granite City Club.

There will be a school meet Friday, May 27. This is a week earlier than previously planned, but it is at this time in order that it may not conflict with the Merchants Week meet June 4, at which a relay team from the High will run.

A meet with melrose High for June 11 is almost assured. With Franz Marceau the school seems to stand an excellent chance of making a good showing. Melrose has won from Quincy on the football, basketball and baseball fileds, but the expectations are that victory for them on the track will come with difficulty if at all.

Are the girls going to have a meet this year? In 1907 a very successful meet was held, and none since.

• • •

The result of Friday's game was 7 to 0 in favor of Melrose. Different from what might be inferred the Q. H. S. team played a good game, and held Melrose down but could not score.

• • •

The game planned with Dedham for Wednesday was canceled because that team had disbanded, when some of the best players were debarred because of low rank in studies.

• • •

Tomorrow a game with Hingham is scheduled. Then next Tuesday comes the return game with Brockton, expected to be a very close game as the score of the previous game was low.

• • •

A number of the students are on baseball clubs. For instance, on the Ramblers of Wollaston is William Manning '11, and Millard and Harold Chapman '11 as battery; these three are also on the High team. John McCarty, short stop of the '09 team is at his former position. Of those on the Y. M. C. A. Extension Club is Thomas Veale '10 as battery. George Barry '10, centre field on the Q. H. S. team plays on the Adams nine of the Granite League. Stanley Bates '08 plays with the Cranch and John McCarty '09 with the Fore River Apprentices in their league. In the Makaria are Stanley Bates '08, Harold Curtis '07, Russell Bates '10. A number of students are on other organized teams.

The annual athletic meet of the High schools composing the suburban league, including Medford, Malden, Melrose and Everet, will be held June 2 at the Everett High school field. Six men will be allowed to enter from each school in each event.

• • •

Mayor Fall of Malden has commended the work of a High school pupil of this city, Arthur W. Parker who obtained and set out 28 trees on one of the streets.

Miss Frances L. Holmes will be valedictorian of the class of 1910 of the Wakefield High school. The class will issue a "Year book" about June 1.

• • •

The traveling scholarships of the High school of Commerce provided annualy by Boston business men to students of exceptional standing, have been awarded to Raymond H. Gorman and Isaac E. Simmons, who will sail June 15 for three months' study of German trade conditions.

• • •

The Girls' Dramatic club of the Somerville High school presented "A Japanese romance" on Saturday evening to a large audience.

Radcliffe seniors are setting a good example in dress for commencement exercises. The rules issued by the chief marshal of the class for 1910 are:

1. Long-sleeved white shirtwaist (as plain as possible.)
2. Linen collar (plain or embroidered.)
3. Ties will be provided.
4. Plain white skirt—preferably linen—must be fairly heavy and not ruffled. There should be neither embroidery nor a row of buttons on the front of the skirt.
5. Skirt three inches from the ground.
6. Gown two inches above the skirt.
7. Black hatpins. Absolutely no jewelry. No bows in the hair. Please be careful of the hang of the skirt and gown.
8. Black shoes and stockings (oxford ties and plain black stockings. The feet must look dainty and trim.)
9. No fancy combs and barrettes.

• • •

Weighty (?) subjects are considered by pupils of the Malden High school, for a Boston paper says: "Boys and girls of the High school are at odds over the decision of the girls to carry out the resolution adopted at the debate of the Usona Club of the school, to permit no young man to stay at a girl's house after 9.30 P. M. The boys of the schol have declared defiance, and today announced their intention of transfering their attentions to the girls of Everett, who are not so strict about callers." Wonder if" the club ever found an answer to the question, "When is enough not enough?"

ENLARGEMENT OF FACTORY

Pneumatic Scale Co. to Erect Concrete Building

Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker has issued a permit to the Pneumatic Scale Co. to erect a concrete and wood manufacturing building on Newport avenue and Arlington streets, adjoining their present building. The dimensions of the new building are 35 by 110, and it will be two stories. The building will cost in the vicinity of $10,000.

The first Quarterly Conference will be held at the Hall Place M. E. church Tuesday, May 23, in charge of the District Superintendent Rev. John Galbraith of Boston.

William Gragg returned unexpectedly to West Quincy this week on a visit to his mother. Mr. Gragg formerly lived in West Quincy but has spent the past nine years in California.

Perhaps the comet was responsible for the varied weather last night. At sunset clearing weather was indicated, but soon there was a heavy rain, then a clear sky, at midnight a thunder shower, and this morning clear.

Tickets are necessary for the meeting of the Quincy Historical Society tomorrow evening, when Congressman Moore and Small will speak at 8.15 on "Atlantic deeper inland waterways," of which the Brockton canal is a part.

The annual ladies' night of the Men's club of the Wollaston eMthodist church will be held in the vestry this evening. An attractive program has been arranged which it is expected will call forth a large number.

Improvements are promised at the South station in Boston. It is proposed to erect a glass partition between the headhouse and the train shed, to minimize the smoke nuisance. The change will cost about $10,000. The track announcement boards, with their clock faces, will be relocated ,to enable passengers to find their train more readily.

BAY STATE LECISLATURE

Committee Favor Loop Railroad Through Quincy

Representative Langelier of this city spoke in the House on Wednesday in opposition to the McCarthy bill, relative to teachers' agencies, but it was substituted for the committee's report 97 to 91.

The House passed to be engrossed the Senate bill to prevent the sale of dangerous fireworks.

The savings bank bill, consequent upon the Southbridge investigation was ordered to a third reading without debate.

The resolve to promote electrification of railroads in the Metropolitan district was passed to be engrossed without debate.

Cavanagh of Everett opened debate on the bill to require express companies to pay a tax of five per cent of gross receipts. He said the present law is inefficient. The bill was defeated.

Gov. Draper's veto of the police pension bill was sustained.

The railroad committee of the legislature voted to report a resolve based on the Ufford bill directing the railroad commissioners to report on the feasibility of a circuit road electrified connecting certain tracks of the New Haven, and providing a continuous loop service through Boston, Quincy, Milton and Hyde Park.

The Rainbow.

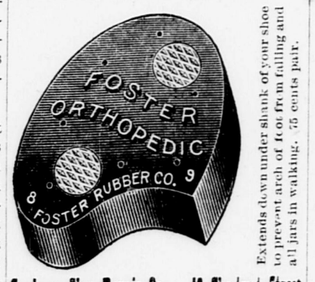

When a ray of sunlight falls on a raindrop it is refracted; then part of the light is reflected from the internal surface and again refracted on leaving the drop. The white sunlight is not only refracted when it enters and leaves the drop, but dispersion also takes place. The eye sees bright circles of light for each kind of light, and since sunlight is made up of different kinds of homogeneous light we get a series of circular arcs showing the spectrum colors, the red being outside and the other colors following in the order of descending wave length. The whole constitutes a primary rainbow. A secondary bow is sometimes seen outside the first. This is formed by the light being twice reflected inside the raindrops. The less refrangible rays are on the inner side. Rainbows due to still more internal reflections are too feeble to be observed. It is possible to get a white rainbow if the sun is clouded or if there is a mixture of raindrops of very different sizes.

TROLLEY FREIGHT

Petition Taken to the Railroad Commissioners

The Old Colony street railway has petitioned the Railroad Commissioners for the right to operate a trolley freight in Quincy. The street railway were granted approval to operate a trolley freight in Quincy by the City Council of 1909. The approval however limited the franchise to ten years. This year the railway company sent another petition to the City Council for an approval of its operating a trolley freight without the limitation clause. On this petition the City Council after a public hearing gave the company leave to withdraw.

The street railway company also petitions the Railroad Commissioners for a right to operate a trolley freight in Weymouth where the selectmen had limited the franchise to 20 years.

BRIEFS

The City Council Committee on Public Buildings meets tonight.

A brick catch basin is being built on Maple street near the Johnson building.

The big game for Saturday will be the Makaria-Dewey contest at Merrymount park at 3.30.

A barbor shop has been opened near the corner of Hancock and Beach streets, Wollaston Park by M. Lucian.

Rabbi Fleischer has been secured as the speaker for the Woodward Institute graduation exercises June 15.

The C. I. C. of the Bethany Bible school held a social in the chapel on Wednesday evening. Games were played and refreshments served.

Owing to the annual reception of the Society of the Colonial Dames being held on Saturday the house will not be open to the public on that day as usual.

Miss Lillian Waterhouse teacher of the fourth grade in the Massachusetts Fields school has recovered from her illness and resumed her duties at the school.

James Veale of Barre, Vt. who has been staying with his brother, Thomas Veale of Vernon street for a few days, while renewing old acquaintances in this city, has returned home.

Mrs. Mary L. Wade is giving a reception on Friday evening at her home, 112 Elm avenue, Wollaston Park, to the teachers of the Quincy Mansion schol and the pupils of the Home Economics class.

Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy of Bethany church was elected one of the vice presidents of the general association of Congregational churches of Massachusetts at the annual meeting at Springfield on Tuesday. Rev. Edward A. Chase of Wollaston presented a report on Missionary work.

The ladies of Quincy will not have a separate table at the coming grand garden party to be held in Newton for the Boston college extension fund, but they will work in conection with the Chanticleer table of Roxbury. The Quincy committee will hold a whist party to raise funds for the table next Monday evening at the home of Miss Frances Talbot at 3 Lawry street.

The Onion.

The onion has been so long in cultivation that its original form is not definitely known. There are so called wild onions that grow in the woods. Nobody ever tastes them but once, and there is about the taste no suggestion that cultivation or anything else could ever make them grateful to the human palate. In all probability the onion is a native of western Asia and adjacent parts of Africa, since it is mentioned in old Egyptian writings and the Pentateuch.

MIGHT INJURE FALL CAMPAIGN

Fear of Republicans In Regard to Land Office Verdict

ATTITUDE OF THE REGULARS

Alleged Attempt to Endeavor to Dodge Settling the Matter at Once Is Believed by Congressmen Outside Investigating Committee to Be Bad Politics—Opinion That There Will Be Three Committee Reports

Washington, May 19—Introduction of evidence in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation will end this week, according to a tentative tgreement entered into by members of the committee and counsel on both sides. Counsel anticipates that they will be able to dispose of all witnesses by the time the committee adjourns Saturday night. Next week, unless there is a decided change in plans, counsel will begin to argue the case.

The members of the committee are becoming weary of the prolonged sessions and they are desirous of finishing up their work at the earliest possible moment. For this reason it is believed that the arguments will not be especially protracted, and counsel will be given the privilege of filing supplementary briefs.

Despite the fact that the Democratic members of the committee are insistent that the investigation should be finally disposed of at this session of congress, it is learned that the Republican members are determined that a verdict shall not be rendered until next winter. The principal reason for this, it is learned, is that the majority feels that the congressional election should not be complicated by the verdict of the committee.

Another reason is that Senator Root, a member of the committee, is due to sail for Europe on May 21. While it is possible that he might vote before leaving this country, it is known that the Democrats will strenuously oppose such a proceeding. It is hardly likely, however, that such a contingency will arise, inasmuch as the Republicans show no disposition to dispose of the matter at this session of congress.

General opinion here is that the committee ultimately will make no less than three reports. The regular Republicans are expected to write a complete exoneration of Secretary Ballinger and the administration, the Democrats to take an opposite view and Representative Madison (Kan.), a Republican, to steer a middle course. Madison is in a very strong position, that is, if one willing to concede that the report of the committee will cut any figure with public opinion.

Senators Root, Sutherland, Flint and Nelson, and Representatives McCall, Olmsted and Denby, if standing for Ballinger, make a majority of the committee. The four Democrats are Senators Fletcher and Purcell and Representatives Graham and James. Should Root be unable to vote, Madison's vote would tie the committee. He could write an independent report generally favoring one side or the other, yet giving such a color to his views as he might choose.

The assertion is made flatly that the vote will not be taken until after the fall elections. Members of congress outside the committee are rather startled by this determination, for they believe it bad politics. It would put the committee and the administration, they say, in the attitude of dodging a verdict at just the time when the result of the investigation will be most important.

In fact, it is even suggested that the committee does not dare vote before the elections take place. On the other hand, the argument is advanced that the members of the committee, with all their other duties, will not have time to review the evidence between now and the adjournment of congress, and even if they had, the public mind is so excited and prejudiced over the merits of Ballinger versus Pinchot that the people should be allowed to cool off before a decision is rendered.

Court of Claims Renders Decision Against Former Queen of Hawaii

Washington, May 19.—Liliuokalani, former queen of Hawaii, has again met defeat in her efforts to secure $450,000 or the rentals from the crown lands in Hawaii.

The court of claims has just decided that these lands belong to the government of Hawaii and that the queen had no personal claim upon them.

JOHN F. FORT

FORT TIRES OF POLITICS

Will Not Again Be a Candidate For Public Office, He Says

Trenton, May 19—Governor Fort declares that he is not a candidate for any public office, and that if ever again he accepts an office it will be a judicial one.

The governor spoke forcibly against the criticism that had been aimed at governors in general. The people, he declared, expect governors to accomplish what the legislators are opposed to.

BARRACKS BLOWN UP BY DYNAMITE

Hundred Persons Killed In Cuba by Terrific Explosion

Havana, May 19.—Two almost simultaneous explosions of dynamite, supposed to consist of 3000 pounds, demolished the rural guards barracks in the city of Pinar del Rio. Fully a hundred persons were killed and nearly as many were wounded.

Most of the dead were rural guards, but the entire families of several of the officers of the rural guards, it is reported, were also killed, as well as several employes of the public works department and residents of the city, on whom fell a deluge of masonry and debris from the blown-up building.

It is not known yet whether the explosion was the result of an accident or was due to an act of conspirators, but the former hypothesis is considered the more probable.

According to reports received here, the mangled remains of victims were found in the streets of the city, a mile from the scene of the explosion.

LIEUTENANT AMES IS HELD

Must Explain Tragedy In His House In Which Janney Was Killed

Manila, May 19.—Lieutenant Colonel Robert E. Ames of the Twelfth infantry was confined to his quarters at Fort McKinley in conformance with orders from Washington. He will be so restricted pending his court martial on charges unbecoming an officer and to the prejudice of military discipline resulting from the suicide of Lieutenant Clarence M. Janney of the same regiment.

Lieutenant Janney shot himself at Ames' house while a party was being given there. The tragedy was attributed at the time to jealousy. Mrs. Janney was detained as she was about to sail for the States. She may be the principal witness at the court martial.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR JOB

It Will Take That Much Money to Raise the Battleship Maine

Washington, May 19.—The appropriation of $100,000 recently made to raise the Maine will not be enough, and five times this sum may prove insufficient.

A statement as to the probable cost of raising the wreckage was submitted to the house by General Marshall, chief of engineers. He says that $500,000 at least would be required. It would be necessary to erect a coffer-dam around the wreck. The water could be pumped out, the human bodies of the crew removed, and the wrecked hull closely examined.

"Straw Bail" Couple Held

Boston, May 19.—The arrest of Harry J. Lucas on a charge of subornation of perjury, and of Dr. Lillie Landis, on a charge of perjury, will probably lead to the arrest of others who the police claim have been implicated in furnishing straw bail. Lucas and Mrs. Landis were yesterday held under bonds of $2500 for the grand jury.

West Point to Have More Cadets

Washington, May 19.—As the result of a decision announced by Secretary Dickinson, there will be a substantial increase in the corps of cadets at the West Point military academy.

COLEMAN GETS FIFTEEN YEARS

Bank Wrecker Sentenced to Term in Greenfield Jail

FRIENDS ARE DISAPPOINTED

Had Hoped That Clerk Who Was Responsible For Theft of Over $300,000 From Cambridge Bank Would Get Off With Five-Year Sentence—Maximum Penalty Could Be Hundred Years—Keliher Placed on Trial

Boston, May 19.—George W. Coleman, through whose operations the Cambridge National City bank was wrecked, was sentenced by Justice Hale of the United States circuit court to the Franklin county prison and house of correction at Greenfield, Mass., for fifteen years.

Coleman took the sentence with the stoicism of an Indian. His friends were disappointed. They hoped that he would not get longer than about one-third of that time. William A. Morse, Coleman's counsel, asked that he be sentenced to serve five years.

Immediately following the sentence of Coleman, who pleaded guilty to two indictments in connection with the looting of the bank of over $300,000, the trial of William J. (Big Bill) Keliher began. Keliher was indicted jointly with Coleman, charged with aiding and abetting him. Coleman will take the witness stand as a witness in the prosecution of Keliher.

Coleman pleaded guilty to four indictments, two charging him with misapplication of the funds of the bank, and of private individuals, and two charging him jointly with Keliher of misapplcation of the funds of the bank and of private individuals.

United States District Attorney French gave a history of the bank clerk's career and said that the amount taken was over $300,000, three times the capital stock of the bank, and the receivers had stated that after the stockholders had paid the capital stock in full the depositors would receive only 50 to 75 percent of their deposits.

Mr. French stated that on the ten counts of the indictment the prisoner might be called to serve 100 years as the maximum penalty. He asked, however, that sentence be general, covering the four counts, and this was done by Justice Hale.

CHEAP CUTS OF BEEF

Demand Has Doubled, Causing Drop In Price of Fancy Cuts

Chicago, May 19.—A reduction of ½ cent a pound in the price of the better grades of dressed beef cuts is announced, while cheaper grades remain the same.

Packers say that since the public has awakened to the fact that beef plates, chucks and rounds are as nutritious as beef loins and ribs even though their cost is much lower, the demand for the cheap cuts has doubled. Consequently, they say they were compelled to reduce the cost of ribs and loins in order to equalize the demand for the inexpensive parts.

This latest reduction brought number one ribs to 14½ cents and number one loins to 18 cents a pound, as compared with 17½ and 22 cents in January.

Direct Vote Bill Killed

Albany, May 19.—The Hinman-Green direct nomination bill, advocated by Governor Hughes, failed to pass the senate by three votes, receiving 23 to 25 against.

"IN A BAD WAY"

Many a Quincy Reader Will Feel Grateful for This Information.

When your back gives out;
Becomes lame, weak or aching;
When urinary troubles set in,
Your kidneys are "in a bad way."
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Here is local evidence to prove it:

Mrs. F. Olsen, 197 Whitwell Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time my back was weak and gave me a great deal of trouble. I could not sit up in a chair for more than a few minutes at a time without having severe pains in my back. I was also subject to headaches and dizzy spells and at times was very nervous. I was becoming discouraged when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and through their use received immediate relief. I did not expect to be speedily cured, as my condition was so serious, but I can say that the results could not have been more satisfactory. In a few weeks I was restored to good health. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly have my highest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Halley's Comet and Part It Has Played In Human History.

FACTS.

Identified by Edmund Halley (1656-1742), who predicted its return in 1758, fixing the period of its revolution in its orbit at seventy-five to seventy-nine years. This was the first recorded prediction of a comet's return.

Previous appearances identified as far back as 240 B. C. Sir Robert Ball identifies it as the comet that appeared in 2616 B. C., the year of Methuselah's death.

Conjectural diameter of the head, 9,000 miles; length of tail varying, present estimates ranging from 20,000,000 to 46,000,000 miles; present speed about twenty-five miles a second.

Its orbit, inclined to that of the earth at an angle of 18 degrees, extends beyond that of Neptune, the outermost planet of our system, to a distance of about 3,300,000,000 miles from the sun. Its speed is greatest near the sun and diminishes so rapidly as the distance increases that half of its period is spent in that part of its orbit lying beyond Neptune's.

HISTORY AND FABLE.

A. D. 837.—So frightened Louis I., emperor of France and Germany, that he built many churches and monasteries.

A. D. 1066.—Frightened the Saxons and cheered the Normans and thus possibly influenced the success of William the Conqueror's invasion of England.

A. D. 1456. — Its appearance prompted Pope Calixtus III. to order prayers for protection against it and for the safety of Europe against the invasion of the Turks. This is probably the origin of the myth about the papal bull against the comet.

Associated by the superstition of the times with the following events:
A. D. 66.—The war which ended in the destruction of Jerusalem.
A. D. 373.—The invasion of Italy by the Huns.
A. D. 451.—Invasion of Gaul and Italy by Attila.
A. D. 530.—Founding of a kingdom in England by Saxon invaders.
A. D. 1378.—Beginning of the forty years' schism in the Church of Rome.
A. D. 1531.—End of the power of Rome in England.
A. D. 1607.—Colonization of America by the English.
A. D. 1759.—End of French power in America with the fall of Quebec.

SUFFRAGIST FLAG ON GRAVES

Memorial Day Tribute For Dead Warriors In the Cause.

All the graves of women suffragists are to be decorated this coming Memorial day. There is a little suffrage flag of blue with the words, "Votes For Women," in the center in white and with four white stars, one in each corner, which will be placed upon the grave of every warrior who died during what the suffragists call the great civil war for woman suffrage.

That is a little secret which leaked out the other night at the opening of a new suffrage settlement house by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont at 196 East Broadway, New York, the wage earners' branch of her Political Equality association.

There was a big blue and white "Votes For Women" flag across the end of the room where the platform was raised, and at the side the American flag, with many of the small blue flags, facsimiles of the large one, held in place by "Votes For Women" buttons. It was the first time the flags had been seen in New York, and Mrs. Belmont when asked about them let the secret slip out.

"Yes," she said, "they are quite new, and they are going to be used to decorate our suffragists' graves. The women's graves will be decorated as well as those of the men. Some of the flags were taken to Washington for the suffrage convention, and the women took them home to their respective states from there. We can have our own Memorial day ceremonies."

The graves of "Aunt" Susan B. Anthony of Rochester, of Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Mrs. Lucy Stone, pioneers in the movement, will be among those which have the flag—which is the size of the American flag used on the soldiers' graves—raised on their last resting places.

SPEEDY FIGHTING CRAFT.

The Sterrett Pioneer of Enlarged Type of Torpedo Boat Destroyers.

That grim old sea fighter Commodore Andrew Sterrett would have swept the Mediterranean clean of Barbary pirates if he had had under his feet so speedy a craft as the torpedo boat destroyer which, bearing his name, plunged down the launching ways at Quincy, Mass., the other day.

When the Sterrett receives her equipment and takes on board a dozen or so of those long, destructive torpedo tubes it is a question of naval science whether she could make that final dash and deal a fatal blow to so formidable a fighter as the United States battleship Florida, which also made her maiden plunge on the same day.

In that final dash, for all torpedo boats are supposed to achieve glory and death at practically the same moment, the Sterrett is expected to make 29½ knots an hour from the 600 revolutions each minute of her two turbine driven screws.

The Sterrett and her sisters are notable pioneers of a new and enlarged type of ocean going destroyers planned to keep the sea with the battle fleet under all conditions, and American naval architects say their ideas along these lines are being followed by the rivals abroad.

A Chaplain's Advice to Muck Rakers.

The Rev. Henry N. Couden, the blind chaplain of the house of representatives at Washington, took a shot at the muck rakers the other day in his opening prayer.

"Help us as individuals," he said, "to strive earnestly to cast out the beam from our own eye that we may see clearly to pull the mote out of our brother's eye. If we are to become muck rakers help us to rake before our own door, and if we have time then let us help our neighbor. Since cant and hypocrisy are the most heinous of all sins, deliver us, we pray thee, from them."

WHICH IS WHICH, KING OF ENGLAND OR CZAR OF RUSSIA?

The striking similarity of Great Britain's new ruler, George, and the czar of Russia has been frequently commented upon, and a glance at the portraits of the two monarchs leaves the average person in doubt as to which is which.

The beards worn by both men are chiefly accountable for the similarity. They both seem to have the identical expression of reserve or repression, both being serious minded men, upon whom the weight of responsibility does not rest lightly.

There is a strong hereditary reason for a similarity of appearance, the mother of the czar and the mother of the king being sisters, daughters of the late king of Denmark.

Close study of these two men from original photographs and not retouched shows many facial characteristics totally dissimilar. The eyes in portrait No. 1 are round and bulging, the upper part of the head is round, and the under lip is heavy. There are traces in the face of the comfortable, placid German type. In portrait No. 2 the eyes slant a trifle, suggesting the craftiness of the Asiatic; the upper lip is heavy, the nostrils broad and thick.

Portrait No. 1 is that of the king of England. No. 2 is that of the czar of Russia.

Bigger Farmers' Union Planned.

Money, crops, the United States government and the farmer's wife were discussed at a recent session of the farmers' rally in St. Louis. The consolidation of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative union and the American Society of Equity has been agreed on by the executive committees of the organizations, which claim a membership of 3,000,000. The matter is to be put to a referendum vote next September.

Million Immigrants In Year.

That the United States will receive a million immigrants during the fiscal year ending June 30 is the prediction in Washington. During April 133,276 arrived, making a total of 801,225 thus far this year. The last million immigrant year was in 1907.

NO DANGER IN HALLEY'S COMET

How Sir Robert Ball Dispelled Fear of a Collision.

ONE COULD BE PUT IN SUIT CASE

So Claimed Sir John Herschel, Famous British Astronomer—Comet Parties on Hotel Roofs—Novel Feast at New York Partaken In Improvised Bower While an Orchestra Played.

If you have feared that Halley's comet would collide with the earth, causing a great disaster, and would snuff out all our lives with its poisonous gases you have been needlessly alarmed. Sir Robert S. Ball, the famous royal astronomer of Great Britain, in his final dictum concerning Halley's comet dispelled all fear of a fearful catastrophe when he said:

I have received multitudes of letters relating to the comet, and so many have expressed alarm as to the possibility of collision that I venture to send a reply: My dears, a rhinoceros in full charge would not fear collision with a cobweb, and the earth need not fear a collision with a comet. In 1861 we passed through the tail of a comet. No one knew anything about it at the time. For a hundred million years life has been continuous on this earth, though we have been visited by at least five comets every year. If comets could ever have done the earth any harm they would have done it long ago, and you and I would not be discussing comets or anything else. As far as I can learn, we were in the tail of Halley's comet May 12. I sincerely hope we were, and I think Sir John Herschel says somewhere that a whole comet could be squeezed into a suit case.

ROBERT S. BALL,
Observatory of Cambridge.

Courses Served In Diminutive Garden.

The interest in Halley's comet has reached the guests of the hotels in New York, and the roofs of all the big ones have been crowded nightly by comet parties. A guest at the Hotel Gotham gave a breakfast early the other morning to his friends on the roof of the hotel, and the occasion was enlivened with music. Many of the incoming visitors selected their rooms with the object of viewing the comet. A woman who registered at the Plaza asked for a room on the top floor where she could watch for the comet.

The breakfast on the roof of the Gotham was given by Dr. Ralph M. Grace, an amateur astronomer, who conceived the idea of inviting a dozen of his friends to watch for the comet and to entertain them with music and breakfast.

A section of the roof of the hotel was made over into a diminutive garden, with side awnings to keep out the cold. The place was decorated with palms, and Japanese lanterns were suspended on wires, but in such a way that their colored lights did not interfere with the view of the comet.

A round table was spread for breakfast at 2:30 o'clock in the morning, and the table was decorated with flowers. The menu was so planned that all of the dishes reflected in some way the interest over the comet. The guests sat around the table in their motorcar toggery, which consisted of fur coats and caps mostly, while a Hungarian orchestra played behind a screen of ferns and palms. One of the selections played was "A Trip to Mars."

Silver Telescopes as Favors.

The comet was sighted by the outlook just after the first course, so the guests were forced to leave their grapefruit to view the comet through their glasses. The breakfast was resumed half an hour later, and the last guest departed about the time the milk wagons began to rattle through the streets. They all carried away with them small silver telescopes, which had been given as favors by Dr. Grace.

There was a jolly comet party on the roof of the Hotel Astor the other morning early, although no breakfast was served. One party was made up of seventeen guests at the hotel, who had procured binoculars the day before, and when Halley's comet first showed itself over the bridge there was a battery of glasses turned upon it from this particular roof.

Ze Game of Golf.

He had come over from France and had just been asked to give his views on the ancient game of golf. With much gesticulation he did so.

"Ah," he said, "your game of golf! Yees, I know him. You put on ze tunic so red as ze Ingleesh rosbif underneath done. You strap your sack of sticks on ze back of a boy twice so small as ze bag.

"He scrape a mud pudding to make balance a leetle white ball. He make three bad tries to balance him, then very angry you call aloud, 'Feur!' Then you what you call address ze ball, and, ma foi, your address is sometimes of language to make afraid.

"You strike, and ze ball find himself in ze long grass.

"You call aloud for ze nib lunger stick and beat ze ground till your partner say, 'Ho, chuck it!' You say— But, my friend, I excuse myself to repeat what you say.

"Ah, my friend, you are a great nation, but your golf game gives me what you call ze pip!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Willing to Chance It.

Here the lecturer threw upon the screen the portrait of a man well known in the financial world, says the Chicago Tribune.

"This," he said, "is one of the great captains of finance. I do not need to mention his name. His face is familiar to all of you. Look at his corrugated brow, the furrows in his cheeks, the pouches under his eyes, the deep lines about his mouth. That face, my friends, bears the unmistakable and ineffaceable stamp of care. Anxiety has marked it indelibly. It shows the traces of sleepless nights, weary days and bitterly fought campaigns, with millions of dollars at stake. Success brings such a man no happiness. Look at him! How many of you, my friends, would change places with him? How many of you would be willing to take his wealth if compelled to assume the terrible burden of responsibility that goes with it?"

His hearers rose en masse.

"I would!" they shouted in unison.

His Unfortunate Investment.

"It's astonishing," the old settler in the little town was saying, "how real estate has advanced in this town since I came here. The corner lot this building is on, for instance, sold once for $450."

"What is it worth now?" asked the stranger.

"Five thousand."

"Well, you had a chance to get rich by investing in land yourself. I suppose you bought some real estate?"

"Yes; I bought one lot—just one."

"That has increased in value, hasn't it?"

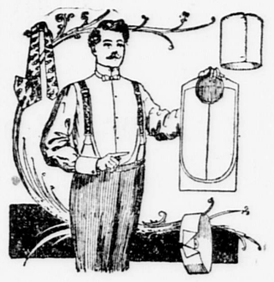

"Yes; over 600 per cent."

"That was a good investment."

"Not so awfully good, mister," said the old settler gloomily. "I paid $10 for it, and it's worth $75 now, but it's in the cemetery. The way I figure it I've lost a heap of money by not dying forty years ago."—Youth's Companion.

Punishment In Persia.

Among the Persians the usual mode of punishment is the bastinado, from which men of the highest rank are not exempt. It is inflicted with very great severity, frequently so as to render the sufferer almost a cripple for life. The victim is thrown upon his face, and each foot is passed through a loop of strong cord attached to a pole, which is raised horizontally by men, who, twisting it round, tighten the ropes and render the feet immovable. Two executioners then strike the sole alternately with switches of the pomegranate tree well steeped in water to render them supple. A store of these switches is generally ready for use in the pond which adjoins the courtyards of the houses of the great. The punishment frequently lasts for an hour or until the unfortunate victim faints from pain.

Very likely that's why we turn out such fine work in the laundry line. There's a good deal, after all in knowing how, isn't there?

GIRL HAD BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Got Too Near Mill Loom, So She Must Wear Wig Henceforth

Lowell, Mass., May 19.—Miss Elizabeth Mahan, whose black tresses were the envy of many girls, was scalped when her hair was caught in a loom at the Stirling woolen mills and was torn from her head. The entire scalp was removed.

Screaming with pain Miss Mahan could not be rescued until her hair was all torn off. She was hurried to St. John's Hospital, where the surgeons say she will live, but will have to wear a wig the rest of her life.

The members of committee on sports for Fourth of July celebration are workers. They already have planned for Quincy residents only 100 yard dash; 880 yard run; 1 mile run; 10 mile run; hop, step and jump; running high jump and tug of war.

The Rockland and Stoughton teams in the Old Colony league played South Framingham and Malboro, respectively, Saturday afternoon. Rockland won by a score of 6 to 1 and Stoughton lost by a score of 6 to 5. Smith, the local boy, caught for Rockland, and got a single out of four times up. Orcutt was also in the Rockland line up. McInerney the star for years with Stoughton appeared against his former team-mates and his home run won the game for the Bay State leaguers.

The committee on sports for Merchants' Week, might do well to consider feasibility of having one-half mile "brushes" between members of Old Colony Driving club on one day of the week. There are many lovers of horseflesh who will be in Quincy during the week and the cost of ribbons, cups etc. would be very small. There are a number of places in this city available for such events and if interested, committee might look over Beale street, Wollaston, between Adams and Farrington streets and Washington street from Chubbuck street to the Quincy Point bridge.

The management of the Quincy Department store have made a ten strike with the players in the Grammar school league by offering to fit every member of tthe pennant winning team with a pair of their unexcelled shoes. The only restriction is that all members of every team in the league must call at the store and register in order to be eligible. Come on boys, and save your parents a little money by landing the flag.

Brockton, Boston, Taunton and other smaller cities boast of a barbers' baseball team. It seems as though the Quincy artists might enjoy themselves on their half holiday by playing a game either at home or away with above named tonsorialists, and besides enjoying themselves obtain much good exercise. I sincerely hope the barbers will get busy after reading this for a star ball player is bound to have a good trade and plenty of chance to say "Next."

I have received a sample of entry blanks to be used by Quincy Merchants Association for their big ten-mile handicap run which will be held Saturday afternoon, June 4. The event is open to all registered athletes and judging from the conditions of the contest "Joe" Elcock plans to have nothing but a clean race. By the way this same lad is working like a Trojan to have this eclipse anything ever held here, and it certainly looks as though he will do it.

Capt. Jennings of the Cranch school in the Grammar school league is proving a natural leader for his team has come from the rear and is now on top. George says he and his teammates are sure of those shoes, and already have left their sizes so as to have them as soon as the schedule is completed. By the way this lad wants a partner to go to Lynn with him Saturday to enter a three legged race.

It is not very often I have occasion to mention the fair sex, but I feel as though that wonderful feat performed by Miss Rachel Hardwick on Saturday afternoon should be brought to the attention of the readers of this column. Miss Hardwick broke the world's record for a girls standing high jump. Her record was 4 feet, 6 inches, three inches better than the one made by Miss Theodora Wheeler of Conn.

REVISED SCHEDULE

Randolph Club Will Now Open Season Here

(By Rube.)

The directors of the Old Colony baseball league held a special meeting at Hotel Belmont, Brockton, Monday evening to revise the schedule for the coming season. Much dissatisfaction with the schedule, adopted several weks ago, was found by a few managers and it was deemed advisable to satisfy every club if such a thing was possible.

Jerome F. Murphy the popular president of the league presided. Quincy and Lincoln did not send representatives but made their wishes known.

The new schedule brings Randolph here for the opening game on Memorial day morning and Stoughton who were to play here will entertain the Deweys at home. The Stoughton club will not appear here until July 4 A. M.

JEFFRIES NEEDS MORE BOXING.

Sparring Only Thing to Bring Back Hitting Eye.

BIG FELLOW'S WIND GOOD.

Breathing Apparatus In Splendid Shape, but No Muscles In Belt Region—Jeff Has Not Lost Paunch Entirely.

By TOMMY CLARK.

The next few weeks are going to be busy ones for Jim Jeffries if he maintains anything like the pace he has started off with. It marks the trial of the beginning of his battle for condition—a steady grind that is to continue until a week before the big mill. The ex-boilermaker's real hard siege of trainig is now on in earnest, and he has banished all other thoughts from his mind and is ready to go the full route.

With all the work Jeffries has done so far he has a world of work before him before he can consider himself fit. His legs are heavy; much is to be done to bring back the old armor that covered his chest, stomach and back, and that waist will have to be reduced. In all his posed pictures Jeff carefully draws in the stomach and gives an appearance of being quite sveldt, but the paunch has not gone entirely, and the absence of the old washboard muscles which formerly sheathed the champion's solar plexus is obvious. In the little boxing the champion has done he has covered up the belt region very carefully, but when once or twice Armstrong has ripped stiff ones into his short ribs Jeff has shown a decided dislike to the going.

Another thing, Jeff's speed will have to be built up, and, most important of all, he must get his hitting eye. He is particularly lacking in the true hitting that made him champion of the world, and the only manner in which he can "come back" in this regard is to do more boxing.

The fact that he is shy of the hitting eye adds to the speculation aroused by his failure to take up boxing earlier in the game. Jeff knows that his hitting eye must be perfect or his chance of victory will be reduced 50 per cent. A good line on his hitting eye will be given when Sam Langford and Jim Corbett join the camp. What Jeff should really do is to look around for several husky young heavyweights. "Farmer" Burns is not fast enough to give Jeffries the proper tryouts with the gloves, and Armstrong cannot be expected to stand up and take a pounding every day, and Joe Choynski surely cannot be expected to rough it with the big fellow.

Jeffries' warm friends are not overjoyed over the recent reports that the big fellow is easily nettled and in addition perspires profusely when engaged in trifling exercises. These conditions indicate that James J. isn't standing the rigors of training with old time cheerfulness. Blame it on Jimmy's nervous system. This organism is certainly a factor in the production of the high flow of perspiration, also churlishness. There is another point that might cut a figure. Jeff at his age and position of life hasn't the ring ambition of years ago. That layoff hurt. He doesn't fancy the hardships of training.

Preparation for a big duel in the arena isn't a soft snap by any means. May go finely for a day or two, but the novelty soon wears away. Denial of certain forms of food, smoking and other types of pleasure are most trying. Neat case in point—watch a football team just released from training. Men will rush for cigarettes and burn them with a whoop. Race jockeys, through their race and with nothing ahead, fairly fight to secure water and beverages. Six years ago Jeff was much younger, yearned for riches more than he does now. Therefore he doesn't take to training as of old.

Boston Convention Adopts Resolutions in Favor

Dr. Fred E. Jones, Edward H. Angier and Col. Henry L. Kincaide have placed their automobiles at the disposal of the committee who have in charge the entertaining of Hon. J. Hampton Moore and Hon. J. Humphrey Small, the two congressmen who are to speak at Alpha hall tonight under the auspices of the Quincy Historical society on the Atlantic Deeper Inland Waterways.

The automobiles will meet the distinguished gentlemen at the Parker House this afternoon and bring them to Quincy in time for dinner to be given by Brooks Adams.

Saturday morning the automobiles will convey the two gentlemen to Houghs Neck where a launch will be taken for a trip about the harbor. They will be taken to the Weymouth Fore river and shown the proposed outlet for the Narraganset Bay and Boston harbor canal.

At noon they will be given a fish lunch at Norteman's, Houghs Neck, by Capt. Henry W. Hunt of Neponset, Edward Hamlin, president of the Metropolitan Coal Co., George P. Hamlin, treasurer of the company; Charles E. Stratton, formerly of the Boston Park Commission; and Willard Walsh. After dinner the guests will be taken for an automobile ride about the City of Presidents.

During their trip about the harbor Saturday they will be accompanied by Hon. Brooks Adams, Hon. W. T. Shea, President F. T. Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, Judge Loyed E. Chamberlin of Brockton, Dock and Water Front Commissioner Frank Fessenden Crane, and the following committee from the Board of Trade who have been appointed to assist Secretary Emery L. Crane of the Historical Society—Col. H. L. Kincaide, Herbert S. Barker and Thomas L. Williams.

At the Boston convention on Thursday resolutions were adopted declaring in favor of an intercostal waterway as outlined in the plans of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association from Boston to Key West. President Loyed E. Chamberlain of the Massachusetts Board of Trade presided, and over 100 delegates from different trades attended.

The Globe reports the convention as follows: Lieut. Gov. Louis A. Frothingham, in the absence of Gov. Draper, who was at Greenfield dedicating an armory, extended the welcome of the state.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, in extending the welcome of the city of Boston stirred his hearers to considerable enthusiasm by his interest in the general canal project. He said he regretted that there was not more interest shown in the Atlantic deeper waterways project in Boston.

He believed, he added, that such a canal as is projected from Boston to Fall River would reduce the time of such boats as the Harvard and the Yale by six hours, and would allow them to become rivals of the railroads for the passenger traffic between this port and New York.

Pres. Chamberlain in behalf of the Massachusetts state board of trade, welcomed the delegates and made a carefully prepared address on the deeper waterways project.

OPERETTA OF PINAFORE

Women's Club Matinee for Women Only Tomorrow

There will be more women in City Square tomorrow than ever known before in its history, for tomorrow is the big matineee of the Quincy Women's club for the benefit of the Tuberculosis camp. Club members and "their sisters, and their cousins, and their aunts," from all parts of the city will be wending their way to Music hall to enjoy the performance of H. M. S. Pinafore. Some of the "brothers and their cousins and their uncles" will watch them go by with envy, but displayed with the sign "standing room only" will be another which will read "For women only."

It is hard luck on the men for their won"t be any business doing for them either, for all the buyers will be at the matinee. They might spread a few nets after the show for if the matinee girls have not spent all their money on checking their spring millinery, or buying homemade candy of the Exchange department of the club, they may wish to pick up a few bargains.

For weeks the Music committee under whose auspices the operetta is given have been busy rehearsing and arranging details until a perfect performance is assured.

Beautiful souvenir programs have been prepared, in fact no detail that would make the performance a typical metropolitan matinee has been overlooked by this untiring committee.

LADIES' NIGHT.

The Men's club of St. Chrysostom's church observed its annual ladies' night Monday evening which was largely attended. The president, J. Albert Severance, welcomed the ladies and gave a brief history of club and its growth since its organization three years ago by Rev. Albert Edwin Clattenburg. The speaker of the evening was J. J. Hurley United States Deputy Commissioner of Immigration of the port of Boston, whose talk proved most interesting. There was a pleasing musical program rendered by Mrs. Frank Musgrove and Mrs. Thomas Holland soloists and Miss Maud Alletzhouser celloist, and readings by Miss Bennett. After which ice cream, cake and punch were served by the entertainment committee, John W. Atkins, Thomas A. Holland, William H. Mann, William D. Purdon. The reception committee included the secretary John L. Hamilton, Theodore Parker, Archbald H. Briggs and Cornelius Manchester.

CHOIR CONCERT A SUCCESS

Receipts Go to Choir Fund of United Presbyterians

Thursday evening a concert was held in the United Presbyterian church under the auspices of the choir. The meeting was in charge of Rev. A. M. Thompson, pastor of the church.

The concert consisted of reading by Archie Tremayne, and singing by the choir.

The concert was great success and much credit should be given Archie Parsons, the director of the choir, under whose direction the concert was held. About 250 people were present and a good sum was netted. The money raised is in aid of the choir fund of the church.

The names of the choir members follow:

Soprano—Miss Hattie Marcus, Miss Chamberlain, Miss May McLean, Miss Marion Russell, Miss Arbella McDougal, Master Albert Rendle and Master William Rendle.

Alto—Mrs. Charles Campbell and Miss Jessie McLean.

Tenor—William Warmington and Fred Warmington.

Baritone—Harry Rendle.

Bass—George Davie, Edwin Purkess, Charles Vanner and Courtney Hocking.

Mr. Richards, cornet; W. Williams, flute; and Miss Annie Russell, organist.

WITHOUT PERMISSION.

It will cost the city $200 or more to remove the gravel and rocks from a piece of pasture land of Henry M. Faxon on the corner of Granite and Whitwell streets. It seems that when Granite street was rebuilt last year the foreman of the job caused the surplus gravel and rocks to be dumped on the land of Mr. Faxon. It is understood that no permission to use the land for a dump was secured. The gravel was allowed to remain all winter, but as Mr. Faxon now desires to use the land for pasturage the city was notified to remove the gravel. It is quite a job and several men and teams are engaged in the work. The gravel is being taken to Canal street, making quite a long haul.

ULTIMATUM FROM ORGANIZED LABOR

Uncompromising on Labor Issue Involved in Fourth of July Celebration

Executive Committee However Will Not Stand for It

With organized labor taking so positive a stand, as expressed in the Board of Trade rooms to the Executive committee on Fourth of July celebration Thursday night, that body will in all probability have to exert its best powers of diplomacy to avert catastrophe to at least one feature of the huge celebration planned.

The executive committee met to receive reports from the heads of the various sub-committees. The men present were Eugene R. Stone, president; James F. Burke, vice president; Arthur W. Stetson, secretary; Rupert Claflin, treasurer; Henry L. Kincaide, committee on parade; C. M. Gifford, committee on athletics; A. N. LaBrecque committee on publicity; A. L. Whitman, committee on music; G. H. Elcock, committee on fireworks.

In considering what had been done at the last meeting with reference to the claims of the labor unions, it was the sense of the body that the motion to have none but union printing, union teamsters and union bands employed in connection with the celebration was ill advised, and that this motion be reconsidered when a larger number of chairmen of committees should be present.

Henry L. Kincaide for the committee on parade, outlined a route which had been selected, subject to change, and described the plans for composing the procession and for the award of prizes.

The chairman of the publicity committee reported progress, and plans for acquainting the people of the South Shore with the celebration.

A delegate from the meeting was sent to a meeting of the Central Labor Union, then in session, at the close of which four representatives of the C. L. U. visit the Fourth of July meeting to present the ultimatum of organized labor. This they did in a flatfooted, and uncompromising manner. Either every sheet of paper used by the committee will bear a union label, every team driver and bandsman will wear a union button, or the unions will neither contribute money nor personal effort to make the celebration a success.

Since no conclusion could be reached, the matter was allowed to rest, the Fourth of July committee being unalterably opposed to creating a Labor Day parade to celebrate Independence Day. Through the efforts of Henry L. Kincaide and Eugene R. Stone the matter may be amicably settled.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Who wouldn't be a matinee girl tomorrow?

May we sit on the wall and see you go by?" is the popular refrain with tenor and baritone soloist to say nothing of the full deep-voiced chorus.

Tuesday night the board of aldermen of Beverly after long debate and an adverse recommendation of the ordinance committee, voted to raise the salary of the city clerk to $1.500 and the order providing for $2,000 for the Mayor was passed to a second reading.

The Metropolitan park system was designed almost wholly for Boston. people, and it is right that that city should bear the bulk of the expense. It is Boston people who frequent the Blue Hills reservation, the Revere Beach reservation, the Nantasket Beach reservation and the Middlesex Fells reservations more than people who actually live nearer. The last commission considered the valuations of cities the chief item in apportioning the cost five years ago, and the nearer all taxes keep to valuation the more equitable they will be. Even on a valuation basis the city of Boston should pay more than its mathematical proportion of thevaluation of the district, because the suburban cities and towns have been forced into the "Greater Boston' district just to help Boston. It is so relative to water and sewers as to parks and parkways.

Again it is the rich cities and towns that can better afford to pay park assessments than cities with less per capita wealth. Brookline, for example, has a smaller population than Quincy, but its assessed valuation is three to four times as large, and therefore it should pay three to four times as much as Quincy. It would be no burden upon Brookline if that town was assessed five times as much as Quincy for Metropolitan park. Another factor might be the automobiles owned in each city or town. A city with 500 automobiles should pay five times as much toward parkways as a city with 100.

Boston has recently paid 62 per cent of the expense of Metropolitan parks and parkways on a valuation basis, but it claims that it is paying too much, and will seek to obtain a population basis which would reduce it to 46 per cent. Mayor Fitzgerald claims that Boston supports an independent park system, but so does Quincy. The new commission met to organize today, and will later hold hearings.

DRIFT OF OPINION

Forty-five years ago the south was stricken and afflicted. Her countenance was scarred and changed. The fair prospects of her youth were hidden beneath the dreadful clouds. Upon her rested the agony of wounds, and yet greater agony from the blind surgery of so-called reconstruction. She was smitten within and without; for millions of her strong sons who might have actually reconstructed her fortunes wandered forth to challenge Fortune on new fields. That is nearly half a century ago.

"We have got some fool fellows among us yet, who don't realize that the war is over, and that the same flag and the same congress and the same president are as much ours as anybody else's. I want to see this country completely one in thought and sentiment and enterprise, as God Almighty intended it should be. I want it to be the re-United States."

These are the words of Senator Gordon, of Mississippi—a man of simple faith and good-will towards men— who fought, bled, bowed in defeat and rose again. When his voice was lifted in farewell to his peers in Congress, he did more than speak to the noble sentiments of a great undivided nation; he forever made ridiculous the ruthless men who, whether north or south, seek to climb to power or to hold it by stirring up passions that belonged to our youth but have no place in our maturity.—Framingham News.

EDWARD LAID TO REST AT WINDSOR

Eight Kings Follow Body In Funeral.

LONDON IS THRONGED.

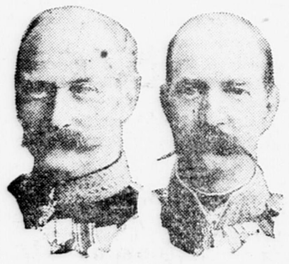

Thousands Line Route of Solemn Procession.

ROOSEVELT REPRESENTS US.

Women in Crowd Sob as Queen Mother's Carriage Passes.

London, May 20.—With bowed head and solemn countenance all England watched today the taking of the body of its deceased sovereign to its last resting place at Windsor. Edward VII. rests now near his mother, Queen Victoria, and his father who died two-score years ago. Today's ceremonious, mournful pageant, that marked the conveyance of the royal remains, was unsurpassed in recent history, rivaling and in some respects surpassing that which saw the laying away nine years ago of the body of the great queen.

From Westminster hall, where the body of the sovereign had lain in state three days, to Paddington station and thence through the pleasant Middlesex country to Windsor, the route of the funeral procession passed through rows of somberly clad Englishmen, attesting by their solemn demeanor the genuine sorrow they felt for the final passing of their king. It is a day of official mourning, to be sure, formally ordered by the dignitaries of the realm, but it is also a day of genuine, heartfelt sorrow among the populace. In that respect it resembles more the February day of nine years ago when the last scene in the long drama of the life of Victoria the good was acted than those earlier days, of unhappy memory for England, when the people rejoiced almost openly over the death of some particularly scapegrace royalty. As Victoria was mourned, so is her son. The twenty miles from London to Windsor seemed to give forth an almost audible sigh as the train conveying Edward's body moved slowly to its destination.

Services Throughout the Kingdom.

Throughout the kingdom today solemn requiem services were held for the king. Not alone in the established church, of which he was the titular head, but in the Roman Catholic sanctuaries and in the Jewish synagogues as well as in the churches of all shades of Protestant belief, crowds of worshipers paid religious respect to the sovereign's memory. It was the touching final tribute of the nation to the ruler who numbered Jew and gentile, Catholic and Protestant, among his personal friends. In virtually every church in the United Kingdom the services held. The mourning of the natio not alone in the bands at drape the sleeves of the people and in the solemn drapery of their houses, but also in their hearts.

The funeral procession in London was imposing and impressive in its size and solemnity. No less than seven ruling monarchs, besides King George, followed the bier of Britain's king, and other men, great, but uncrowned, shared with them the respectful attention of the populace. Much of the attention was centered upon Theodore Roosevelt, special ambassador from the United States.

The majestic figure of Emperor William of Germany, showing in his stern face the tokens of recent and deep grief for the death of his uncle; the pathetically young King Manuel of Portugal, mourning the loss of the man who was to him more than to any other a wise counselor and friend; Alfonso of Spain; Albert, king of the Belgians, recalling to the people the recent death of his uncle and predecessor; Frederick of Denmark and George of Greece, brothers-in-law of the late monarch, and King Haakon of Norway, but recently ascended to the throne with the advice of his father-in-law, the late King Edward—all took part in the funeral cortege of the man who was greatest of them all in his lifetime. With them were Archduke Francis Ferdinand, the heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary; the Duke of Aosta, cousin to Italy's king; Grand Duke Michael, brother of the czar and cousin of the new king of England, and representatives of every minor king in Europe as well as men representing the republics of France and Switzerland. A figure that attracted much attention was Prince Fushimi, representative of the mikado, King Edward's ally. Probably never before in the history of Europe—certainly not since the funeral of Queen Victoria—have so many distinguished men, titled and untitled, been gathered together in one place. Many of them attended Queen Victoria's funeral.

The monarchs who attended the funeral rode on horseback behind the gun carriage which bore the remains of King Edward through the streets of London. They rode for the most part with bowed heads, giving little or no notice to the attention of the great throngs gathered to see them pass. Even their horses, pacing slowly and solemnly behind the casket, wore the insignia of mourning and seemed to feel that they were taking part in a solemn, mournful ceremony. The route of the funeral procession was crowded with Londoners and visitors from the provinces, many of whom had stood for hours waiting for the procession. Shrewd proprietors of windows and places of vantage on the route had not permitted their public grief to interfere with their private gain, and seats from which the procession could be viewed commanded good prices. For some of them as much as 20 guineas had been paid, it was said.

Following the kings and princes on horseback came their female relatives in closed carriages. In the leading carriage was the bereaved queen mother with her unmarried daughter, Princess Victoria. The sight of the widowed queen's carriage, moving slowly in the procession, aroused the keenest sympathies of the loyal, silent crowd, and the silence was broken many times by the sobbing of the more emotional women members of the throng. The of soldiers and sailors, thousands in number, accompanied the body from Westminster hall to Paddington station, and a guard of honor watched the oak coffin, made from the wood of splendid Windsor trees, before and after its deposition on board the funereally draped mourning train, on which the royalties and other high dignitaries also took passage for Windsor. Throughout the mourning draperies one note of compliance with the wishes of the dead king was manifest. He detested deep black mourning of the usual sort, and in accordance with his wishes it was relieved today with a note of violet.

Last Services at Windsor.

Before the taking of the body from Westminster hall for removal to Windsor services were held in the hall, attended by the royalties and high dignitaries of the realm. The funeral services in St. George's chapel, the final resting place of the remains before their interment, were longer. The chapel is too small to accommodate all who attended the body from London to Westminster, and many had to remain outside. The carved stalls of the ancient and magnificent sanctuary had been removed to give place to long timber seats.

The arrival of the funeral train at Windsor was announced by the firing of minute guns. The roadway from the railroad station to St. George's chapel was lined with soldiers, who presented arms as the body of the king passed on its gun carriage. With solemn dirges the procession moved up the road, accompanied and followed by the officials whose hereditary and personal right it is to attend at the very last honors to be paid to a deceased British sovereign. There were the kings at arms, the heralds and the pursuivants, the lords in waiting, the lord chamberlain and the lord steward and a host of others.

The last touch of mediaevalism came when Sir Alfred Scott Scott-Gatty, as Garter king of arms and therefore chief heraldic officer of Great Britain, under the earl marshal, announced in solemn, ringing tones that the last earthly scene dealing with "his most excellent majesty Edward VII., by the grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas king, defender of the faith, emperor of India," was closed.

BAY STATE LECISLATURE

Income Tax Amendment Rejected by Senate

The Senate rejected on Thursday the income tax amendment to the United States constitution, the vote being 11 to 23. Senator Hultman voted no.

The bill regulating the hours of street railway men was killed, also the bill to require abolition of grade crossings in Charlestown.

The House put over until Monday the three mill tax bill.

The House refused 80 to 109 to reject the appropriation of $25,000 for a new fish hatchery. It defeated however the bill of $10,000 for propogation of game birds and animals.

The bill to annex a part of Chelsea to Everett was defeated overwhelmingly.

The stand of Representative Langelier of this city against the loan company bill was the subject of a half column scare head story in the morning Journal. He will raise the point of order that as the bank commissioner recommended transferring the supervision of "all loan companies under his supervision" under police authorities this bill is special legislation in only providing for one company.

FAREWELL PARTY.

Miss Eva Marden of Orchard place, who removes to North Hanson next week, was given a farewell party Thursday evening by Mrs. E. C. Shores at her rooms in the Adams building. During the evening there were vocal solos by Harry Hudson and Rex Farnsworth, also dancing. Light refreshments were served. The evening was one of rare enjoyment to all. Among those present to bid farewell to Miss Marden were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baron, Mr. Spinney, Harry Hudson, Rex Farnsworth, Benjamin Golbrunson, Charles Parker, David Rowe, J. Reynolds, Henry E. Teasdale, Edward Merrick, Herman Kinder, Daniel Hoffman, Albert Nelson, James Taylor, Miss Marion Teasdale, Miss Gladys Doane, Miss Josephine Scholter, Miss Catherine McMann, Miss Ernestine Shores, Miss Viola Hayden, Miss Vena Dean, Miss Fannie Taylor, Miss Olga Nelson, Miss Edith Olson, Miss Agnes Dean.

COMET NOT VISIBLE.

Quite a large crowd gathered on Presidents hill Thursday evening to get a view of the comet which was supposed to make its appearance in the western sky in the vicinity of 7.30 o'clock. A few saw something in the sky which they thought might be the comet, but it was so slight that they were not sure whether it was it or not. Tonight is supposed to be the best time to see the celestial visitor and many people will doubtless be on Presidents hill, Third hill and other vantage points straining their necks

BRIEFS

At the closing night of the Eastern Star fair there was a large attendance. Most of the articles on the tables were sold, assuring large net proceeds. Dancing closed the fair.

The trustees are extending an invitation to the public to inspect the new Rice Pavilion at the Quincy City Hospital on Wednesday afternoon, May 25. The ward will be open from half past three until five.

Branschied & Martens, the enterprising newsdealers at Atlantic and Norfolk Downs, have bought the tract of land near the Atlantic station and contemplate erecting a business block.

Houghs Neck may soon expect improved service in the running time of the electrics as the new feed wire will soon be in position. The wire is being taken from the power house at the Point, across the river and marshes.

Holmes & Hall are still doing business at the same old stand notwithstanding they became happy fathers this week. The little Hall girl and Holmes boy will soon be big enough to make things lively when they visit their father's shop.

The Rev. J. Howland Harkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Harkins, was ordained into priesthood this morning at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Boston. He will celebrate his first high mass at St. John's church, this city, at 10.30 o'clock on Sunday.

WATERWAYS

President Chamberlain pointed out that our present interests are found in the Atlantic deeper waterways plan, of interest to $40,000,00 people and a saving of life and property as well. He outlined the plans of the deeper waterway association, and said to connect the docks of Boston with Long Island sound was a matter presenting three possibilities. These were: First, a cut across cape Cod from Buzzards bay to Barnstable bay, a work now being done by private capital; second, a ship canal from Mt. Hope bay through the Taunton river to Fore river in Weymouth and thence to Boston harbor; third, from Hingham bay inside the coast to Taunton river, there joining the second plan.

Railroad service is congested by lowcost bulky freight, he said. Water can give a better service to high-class traffic and can give a better rate. He believed railroads should not be allowed to reduce rates when in competition with water and to recoup by higher charges elsewhere. He also emphasized the need of preventing the railroads from acquiring competing water lines.

Addison B. Burke, secretary of the Atlantic deeper waterways association, gave an illustrated talk upon the general canal project from Boston to Key West, showing by means of pictures and charts the small amount of work necessary to make an almost continuous still water course from Boston to Key West, and the fact that in many places rivers and canals already make the plan not only feasible but a practical affair.

Lieut. Edward Parrish, assistant engineer of the war department, stationed at Newport, R. I., gave a brief paper, treating the canal project from the engineer's standpoint and showing that it is practical and would be of great benefit in cheapening the cost of transportation.

Capt. Eldredge of Cape Cod, a chart maker for 40 years, and a master mariner before that, said he considered the plan perfectly feasible and practical. The proposed canal from Fall River to Boston would mean a reduction of from 20 to 30 percent in the cost of delivery of cargo, he believed.

Gen. Samuel M. Mansfield of the state harbor and land commission said the plan for a system of canals from Boston to Key West was a practical matter, and not only that, but the federal government should be glad to construct it because of the value it would be in time of war in furnishing an inside course for small war vessels and thus protecting them from storm and the fire of an enemy.

John F. Lisconb and J. F. Goldthwaite, representing Maine, F. T. Dunlop of Manchester, N. H., Edgar E. Durant of New Haven, Conn. Thomas P. Corcoran of Pawtucket, R. I., and E. Tudor Gross of Providence, R. I., all spoke in favor of the deeper waterways plan, after which a number of the delegates from the more important trade associations of Massachusetts were heard in support of the canal proposition

The Fairies In Ireland.

There are many sorts of fairies in Ireland. The trooping clans, the friendliest, wear green jackets, and the solitary fairies wear red. According to McAnally, a peasant once witnessed a battle between them, and when the trooping fairies began to win he was so overjoyed "to see the green above the red" that he gave a loud hurrah. Immediately all vanished from view, and he found himself thrown headlong in the ditch. In Mr. Peats' classification the weird but not unkindly merrows, or sea fairies, come next, then the fairy doctors and witches, who inhabit puddings and pots, bewitch butter, steal milk and the like; the banshees, not always harbingers of death; the leprecaun, or fairy shoemakers, "the only industrious persons among them," for they dance their shoes away in a single night; the pookas, first cousins of the Scotch brownies, who for their sins are obliged to help the housewife with nightly elfin labors; the giants, the ghosts and the satanic race of demon cats, and last, the "kings, queens, princesses, earls and robbers."—Sarah H. Cleghorn in Atlantic.

METROPOLITAN OFFICER

Quincy Man Gets Appointment at Middlesex Fells

Reserve Officer Henry Hathorn of the Quincy police force has been appointed a member of the Metropolitan Police department and assigned for duty in the Middlesex Fells and will go on duty June 20.

Metropolitan Officer Hathorn was born in Brooklyn, New York, and when 19 years old, enlisted in the regular army, July 28, 1898, during the Spanish-American war, in Battery A, Fifth Heavy Artillery, and was first stationed at Fort Hamilton, New York, and at the close of the war was assigned to the 83d Co., Coast Artillery. After two years' service at Fort Hamilton, the company was stationed at Governors Island for a year, and then returned to Fort Hamilton, and from there to Sandy Hook and back to Governors Island. At the end of his term he received an honorable discharge and re-enlisted in the same company and was given a corporal's billet, and was later raised to a sergeantcy. The company was ordered to Fort Revere, Hull, in 1902, where it remained until the expiration of his term of service in July, 1904.

After leaving the service he secured employment on the Old Colony Railway as a conductor, which position he now holds. Three years ago he passed the civil service examination and was appointed a special police officer of this city and was recently appointed a member of the reserve force of the department. In addition to his work on the street railway he has for the past three years been assistant court officer of the District Court. Officer Hathorn is married and has four children. His home is at 77 South street.

GOES TO CEMETERY FUND.

Mary A. Myers of this city, a half sister of Catherine B. Hollis, will not share in the estate of the latter valued at $3,500. Mrs. Hollis, who died May 3, 1910, left a will in which her piano is bequeathed to Henry P. Sherman, who is named as executor, and the rest of her estate she leaves in trust with the City of Waltham, the income to be used for the care of burial lots in Mt. Feake cemetery, which are uncared for by reason of removals of relatives of persons buried there. This bequest she makes as a memorial to her husband, Edwin A. Hollis, and is to be known as the Edwin A. Hollis Fund. As her husband was a member of the Grand Army she directs that soldiers' lots be given the preference. She provides that in case the City of Waltham declines to accept this trust, the residue of her estate is to go to the Leland Home for Aged Women in Waltham. There are two other heirs at law besides Mrs. Myers, namely, C. W. Burlingame of Fitchburg, a brother; and Elizabeth W. Lynde of Lowell, a sister. The will is returnable at East Cambridge May 24. Attorney B. B. Johnson of Waltham represents the executor.

Happiness In Sleep.

I saw once how like sleep was to life in the deep waters. A man who to my waking eyes looked cold and starved and ragged sat upon one of the benches on the embankment. He was sleeping, and I knew from his face that then at least he did not count himself miserable. But presently a policeman came and shook the sleeper into waking life. Then all the violence of the world seemed to be let loose upon this wreck of a man. He shook and blinked his eyes and breathed with heavy spasms. It was just as when a fish is caught out of the depth of the sea and suddenly cast into a basket. I have seen mackerel shake and gasp like this poor man suddenly caught up out of the native depths of sleep. Or if you think that a fish thus dying is only an amusing and not a painful sight then think of what it might be if some giant of fable could catch us up out of our native air into the space between the stars. Would we not willingly sink back again into the depth of air? So it is when the loud world lets us glide down into sleep.—London Outlook.

Walking.

The Almighty has not freighted the foot with a single superfluous part. Every inch of every foot is meant for use. When a man walks in the right way, speaking literally, the back of the heel strikes the ground first. Then the rest of the heel comes down, after which the outer edge of the foot takes the bulk of the burden until the forward movement shifts the weight to the ball of the foot and finally to the toes. The ideal step is a slightly rocking motion. At no time should the entire foot be pressed against the ground. Heel to toe is the movement. Try it and see how much farther and more easily you can walk. It's the Indian's way, and what poor Lo doesn't know about footwork can go into the discard. —New York Press.

Made a Noise.

"He didn't win the prize in the life race, did he?"

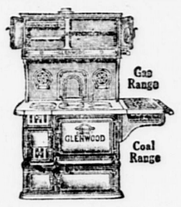

"No, but he hollered like he had it, and some people died envyin' of him." —Atlanta Constitution.

Malay Weapons.

The national Malay weapon, the creese, is said to have been invented by a Javanese monarch of the fourteenth century. Its varieties are said to exceed a hundred, and there are in Javanese no fewer than fifty names for them. It varies in size from the two foot wavy blade of Sulu down to a mere toothpick. But the peculiarity is that the weapon is never ground, but kept rough and sawlike in edge by scouring with lime juice or the juice of an unripe pineapple, sometimes mixed with arsenic, and it is on this account that creese wounds are so dangerous. Old specimens are so eaten away by this practice that the blade seems formed from a bunch of wires roughly welded up. Such creeses are highly valued, and some of the ancient ones, heirlooms of chiefs, with grotesquely carved and inlaid hilts and sheaths, are almost unpurchasable.

FRAMINGHAM PLAN.

Next Friday, and, in fact, every Friday during the summer, will mark an important epoch in South Framingham as the natural trading centre for the 50,000 residents in this and neighboring towns. By reason of a "get together" spirit manifested by enterprising and progressive business men, South Framingham is to have on every Friday what is to be known as a great "Co-operation Sale." Each Friday will prove a day of distinct bargains.

Original in their inception, these co-operation sales had their origin with the Merchant's Committee of the Framingham Board of Trade and are made possible because 35 leading South Framingham merchants have pooled their interests and united to make this town the one great place to shop during the summer months.

Every Friday the 35 stores will each advertise, for that day only, a single article at a decided reduction in price. This is to be done through the columns of The Evening News and every Thursday, beginning this week, the "Co-operation Sale" advertisement, will be found occupying the entire sixth page of this paper. On this page space is to be taken by each of the merchants to set before the public a single article at a bargain price on the following day.

By this it will be seen the scheme is not entered upon as a money-maker, but as a plan to stimulate and emphasize South Framingham as the great trading centre that it should be and is. In no town and in few of the cities of this Commonwealth are there stores, it matters not in what line, that surpass or even equal ours in South Framingham, both for the variety and quality of goods in stock and the prices at which they are offered.

With steam and electric car lines centering here from every direction and with our town the natural hub of a wheel that revolves within a radius inhabited by 50,000 people, it is natural that South Framingham should become the trading center for all this population. And this is just what these enterprising business men propose to make our town, even at expensetot hemselves.

Be on the watch then for next Thursday's edition of The Evening News! Don't forget to read the sixth page carefully next Thursday and every Thursday!

Read what each merchant has to say!

Visit the stores and take full advantage of South Framingham's Bargain Day!

And when you visit each store note the variety and quality of goods and the very reasonable price at which each article is offered, even though it may not be included for that day's special attraction!

Patronize the "Co-operation Sales" and help to boom Framingham as the best trading centre in Massachusetts. —The Evening News.

COMET'S TAIL DODGES EARTH

Extreme Curvature Causes Delay In Enveloping Planet

ASTRONOMERS GIVE OPINIONS

Disagree as to Whether We Shall Make Passage Through Celestial Wanderer's Appendage—Scientific Authorities Puzzled Over Its Appearance In East When They Had Agreed It Would Appear In West

Boston, May 20.—An opportunity for a great astronomical controversy has arisen. Did we or did we not pass through the tail of the comet, and shall we do so during the present call of that comparative stranger?

On these points the astronomers do not seem wholly agreed. Almost all who secured any sort of an observation are united in saying that we did not enter the tail at the scheduled time Wednesday night. The great point at issue is, therefore, whether or not we shall make the passage at all.

Professor Jacoby of Columbia believes that we shall not encounter the tail, and in this Dr. Campbell of the Lick observatory, the opponent of Dr. Lowell's Martian theories, agrees with him. On the other hand, the Yerkes observatory in Wisconsin, the Mount Wilson observatory in California, and Professor Russell of Princeton believe that the passage will yet be made. A report from the Transvaal observatory at Johannesburg says that the earth missed the comet's tail Wednesday night.

Among the authorities who hold the view that the tail of the comet has not reached the earth are the observers at Harvard university, Dr. Henry N. Russell, professor of astronomy at Princeton university, and Professor Asaph Hall, of the naval observatory at Washington.

Professor Russell's explanation of the apparent delay of the comet in keeping its engagement is the great curvature of the tail. The head or nucleus of the comet, which made its transit across the sun on schedule time, containing the more ponderable constituents of the body, moves along steadily under the influence of gravitation.

On the other hand, the tail, nebulous and light, and subject to disturbances from unknown causes, is curved away to such a degree that it was far behind the head and thus failed to envelop the earth at the time expected.

The Harvard astronomers, watching the sky under exceptionally favorable conditions, report that no illumination, meteoric display or other manifestation was noted.

Professor Hall, in Washington, reported that from 2 o'clock till dawn there was visible in the east, extending from the northeast in a southerly direction, a dim beam of light of the comet's tail. As the moon descended in the west the shaft athwart the heavens grew plainer and was easily visible to the naked eye.

Shattering all scientific calculations and completely puzzling astronomers, the glowing tail of Halley's comet appeared in the eastern sky Thursday at a time when the world's comet authorities had agreed it would be in the west. Such eminent astronomers as Professor Mitchell of Columbia university, New York; Professor Frost, head of the Yerkes observatory staff, and Professor Barnard of the University of Chicago, agree that the glow of light they saw in the east was the comet's tail. No adequate explanation, however, is forthcoming.

BELLE MOORE FOUND GUILTY

First Conviction as Result of Rockefeller White Slave Probe

New York, May 20.—Belle Moore, a mulatto, was found guilty last night of selling girls into lives of shame. Sentence will be pronounced next Thursday. Her counsel asked a week's delay, that he might review the minutes to prepare motion for a new trial.

The case was the first brought to trial under the indictments recently handed down by the Rockefeller grand jury, which has been investigating the traffic in women.

Duelists Are Punished

St. Petersburg, May 20.—Alexander Guchoff, president of the duma, and Count Uvaroff, a member, who settled a political quarrel on the field of honor, were found guilty of dueling. Guchoff was sentenced to four weeks' confinement in the fortress and the count to three weeks' in the central guard house.

Coal Strike In Illinois

Peoria, Illis., May 20.—Negotiations between the United Mine Workers and operators of Illinois will probably be broken off and a strike declared. Both sides have refused to yield on the three leading questions.

French Aviator's Good Flight

Mourmelon-Le-Grand, France, May 20.—M. Schourt flew in a biplane with a passenger to Chalons-Sur-Marne and return, a total distance of about thirty miles, at a speed of 46½ miles an hour.

BIG GRANITE SHIPMENTS.

Returns from the two shipping terminals for the month of April show that the total amount of rough and finished granite shipped from Quincy last month was 22,448,306 pounds, an amount considerably larger than the previous month. This shows that the local manufacturers are shipping many monuments that will be set up in cemeteries throughout the country before Memorial day. Of the total amount shipped West Quincy forwarded 15,123,280 pounds and South Quincy 7,325,026 pounds.

LONDON'S SENSATION.

"The Baggage of Fortune," which will begin in the Boston" Daily Globe Friday, May 20, is the story sensation of London, where it is appearing in the Daily Mail. The Boston Globe has bought the New England rights and thus secured a great treat for its readers. To sammarize the fascinations of this remarkable serial would be impossible. The principal characters are two multimillionaires, who, having made their fortune in the United States, transfer the scene of their terrific financial rivalry to London.

Another Daily Globe feature of great interest is the series of letters by William E. Curtis, the famous traveler and correspondent. The Globe prints every day a letter from Mr. Curtis who is making a remarkable tour along the Dalmatian coast and among the strange peoples of the Balkan states, Asia Minor and Turkestan.

WINE AT LAUNCHINGS.

"I think it's a shame that wine should be used at launchings. We temperance women are going to try to stop it."

"After all, instead of kicking about it, why not use the custom to point a moral?"

"How do you mean?"

"Why, simply by drawing attention to the fact that after her first taste of wine the ship immediately takes to water and sticks to it ever after."

Our Few Real Needs.

As civilization and culture make people more prosperous and more comfortable they are prone to forget how few and simple their real needs are. We need sleep, but not much of it, and most of us are asleep exactly when we ought most of all to be awake. We need food, but it is not necessary that food should be cunningly disguised with a thousand devices to tickle the jaded and surfeited palate, for the main trouble is that we eat too much and not too little. We need clothes to wear, but the one suit of fur that lasts certain animals all their lives is so beautiful that some men spend their whole time in search of it. We need heaven and the sense of a higher power directing our lives and our destinies, but we spend most of our time refuting and denying the possibility of anything bigger or better than we are. We need the love of friends, and therefore it is the more strange that we should spend our time not in improving ourselves, but in decorating our bodies, filling them with food and hustling them about over the earth in search of ever freshing sensations.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Verdict.

The lecture was over, and the gentleman who did the talking strained his ears as he followed the audience out of the hall to gather in, so far as he could, what sort of an impression he had made. As he drew near to the doorway two old gentlemen who were making their way out just ahead of him rendered a verdict.

"Well, Bankside," said one of them, "what did you think of it?"

"I've heard worse," said Bankside.

"Did you think it was at all illuminating?" asked the other.

"In an old fashioned way, yes," replied the venerable Bankside.

"I don't quite catch your point," said the questioner.

"Why, it was illuminating, but it struck me as having more gas than electricity about it," explained the critic.—Judge.

The First Telegraph Line.

After the formal opening of the first telegraph line built for commercial purposes between Washington and Baltimore Professor Morse and his associates offered to sell the invention to the United States government for $100,000, but the price was considered too high. The government had appropriated $30,000 toward the construction of the Washington-Baltimore line, but after a short period of operation the postmaster general, to whom President Polk had referred the matter, wrote, "Although the invention is an agent vastly superior to any other devised by the genius of man, yet the operation between Washington and Baltimore has not satisfied me that under any rate of postage that can be adopted its revenues can be made to cover its expenditures."

A Remodeled Text.

"Perhaps you could preach us a sermon about the condition of things in our town," says the resident pastor to the visiting one. "Saloons, gambling houses and the like run wide open all the time, and the officers pay no attention to them."

"Yes," agrees the visitor; "I might take as my text, 'There's no arrest for the wicked.'"—Judge.

BANKER HALL PLEADS GUILTY

Is Sentenced to State Prison For at Least Twelve Years

HE ROBBED BANK FOR YEARS

Estimates His Stealings at About $370,000, but Is Convicted on Indictment of but $104,000—Doctors Call Him a Degenerate, With No Sense of Responsibility In Money Matters

Worcester, Mass., May 20.—After a plea of guilty to an indictment charging the larceny of $104,000 from the Southbridge Savings bank, and a subsequent recital of his disposal to charities, relatives and in bad investments of a sum of money which he estimated at $370,000, John A. Hall, defaulting treasurer of the bank, was sentenced to serve not less than twelve nor more than fifteen years in the state prison at Charlestown. One day of this sentence is to be passed in solitary confinement.

Characterizing Hall, the man who handled hundreds of thousands of dollars as treasurer for twenty years of the Southbridge Savings bank and as treasurer of the town of Southbridge and of the Southbridge Y. M. C. A., as a degenerate, with no sense of responsibility in money matters, three physicians testified in his behalf. They declared Hall's mother to have been hopelessly insane, and said that the defaulting treasurer had many of her traits.

Hall's peculations had their beginning about twenty years ago, he said on the stand, when he took $100 out of the cash drawer in the bank to take a flyer in railroad stock. His investment, like most in later years, was unsuccessful.

Although he kept no record of the amounts of money which he took from the bank, nor of what he did with the bank's funds, Hall said he estimated the total amount of his stealings at about $370,000. His conviction was on a charge of taking but $104,000 and expert accountants who have gone over his books at the bank since the discovery of the shortage state that about $600,000 is missing.

Hall stated his living expenses to be $7500 a year for the past several years, and said that his salary as treasurer of the bank was but $2500.

Although he could not account for all the money he took from the bank, Hall declared that "it is all spent and gone beyond recall."

He admitted on the stand that he had been drinking heavily for a year prior to his discovery and that he had been in the habit of taking vacation trips as he pleased. His general bearing on the stand was that of an impartial witness, one stating facts, without any apparent personal interest.

"KICKED HIM UPSTAIRS"

Platt Thought He Was Responsible For Roosevelt Being President

New York, May 20.—"Instead of 'shelving' Roosevelt I must plead guilty to the charge of 'kicking him upstairs.' I believe Roosevelt himself would convict me of this."

So wrote Thomas C. Platt in his autobiography, of which part is published in the June number of McClure's Magazine. The senator dealt with two nominations of Theodore Roosevelt—that for governor of this state and that for vice-president in the Republican national convention of 1900 in Philadelphia.

Senator Platt sought to answer the critics who had asserted that in nominating Roosevelt for vice president Platt sought to send him to the political mortuary chamber in which vice presidents have reposed.

Serious Charges Against Keliher

Boston, May 20.—That William J. Keliher was told by George W. Coleman himself that the money Coleman lost trying to break the faro bank in New York was stolen from the National City bank of Cambridge and that Keliher persisted in urging Coleman to take more, even after the latter had decided to stop altogether and demanded restitution of at least a part of the hundreds of thousands stolen and lost, was alleged at yesterday's trial by Attorney Garland, who is prosecuting the case for the government.

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE

Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove will do anything, from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed —and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

The nickel finish with the bright blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

CARTER DE HAVEN AND MISS JESSIE MILLWARD
In "The Girl in the Taxi" at the Tremont Theatre, Boston.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

For one week beginning with a matinee Monday afternoon Miss Charlotte Hunt and her Company will appear at the Majestic theatre in "The Great Divide," by William Vaughn Moody. The story of the play is as follows: Ruth Jordan, a girl from Milton Corners, Mass., is living with her brother on a Arizona desert, engaged in the cultivation of cactus plants. The brother has occasion to leave the girl alone at night. Three drunken men, one a half breed one a "greaser" and the other an American, break into the cabin. She tells the American that she will give herself to him "under the law" if he will save her from the others. He accepts the offer, buys off the Mexican with a string of gold beads and shoots the Mexican. Her people find her and take her back to Massachusetts. The husband appears and pleads ,then the woman capitulates and a happy ending is logically brought about. "The Great Divide," aside from its acting value affords splendid opportunity for scenic investiture and Miss Hunt will take every advantage of this fact in staging the play. Miss Hunt will play the part of Ruth Jordan and Mr. Buhler that of Stephen Ghent. For the week beginning Monday, May 30, Miss Hunt announces that she will present the popular drama, "Camille."

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

There will be both novelty and excitement in "Brewster's Millions," which the John Craig Stock Company will act at the Castle Square next week. Brewster has just inherited a million and more from his grandfather, when his uncle leaves him ten millions on condition that he spend his first legacy within a year. Brewster may not throw the money into the river, or give it away to the poor, or gamble it into the air. He must spend it and tell nobody why he is doing so. This is the theme of "Brewster's Millions," and as may readily be guessed, it is an ingenious and an amusing one. The laughter is incessant from first to last, and the progress of the plot takes the characters from shore to sea and finally aboard a yacht which Brewster charters for a cruise around the world. Somewhere in the Mediterranean, they encounter a storm, lose their rudder and are obliged to signal for help ,and the monetary demands from a rescuing vessel finally enable Brewster to spend his last cent and thereby win the ten million. It is needless that a love romance runs through the course of the plot, and that it is as rich in sentiment as it is in humor.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

With the Boston theatres one after another either closing or going into pictures, Keith's continues to go on its way giving even more remarkable bills than at the height of the season. In fact, there are just as many headliners and of the same class every week as there were during the winter and this accounts for the crowded houses every evening. The coming week, for instance, Julius Steger, who has long been a legitimate favorite, both as an actor and as a singer, will come with a new production from the German, entitled "The Way to the Heart," which was adapted by Ruth Comfort Mitchell of San Francisco. Mr. Steger is supported by a splendid company of six people and the production is one of the handsomest ever seen in vaudeville. Of an entirely different character will be another large company of favorites, Gus Edwards' School Boys and Girls. This will be the second appearance at Keiths of this troupe, their first engagement being for one week only, when had it been possible the management would have kept them for a run.

PARK THEATRE.

What has proven to be the most recarkable theatrical success in the annals of Boston, is that of William Hodge, in "The Man From Home" at the Park theatre. Mr. Hodge in his beautiful American play, "The Man From Home" opened Jan. 3d, it has broken all records and has established a new mark in the history of the Boston stage. "The Man From Home" is unquestionably the best American play that has been offered the public in many moons. It is so clean, so wholesome and original in construction, so distinctly different from everything gone before, so fascinatingly entertaining, so admirably enacted by a cast the equal of which has not been seen on any stage, that it appeals to all classes. Mr. Hodge has occupied the Park theatre stage for twenty-one weeks; he might profitably remain all summer, but there must be an end to all things and those who have not availed themselves of seeing the play would do well to take advantage in the next few weeks. The Park theatre management make a special feature of filling mail orders. Seats can be secured two weeks in advance.

Depew's Great Speech.

"When I was a very young man," Senator Depew once related, "I went out to make a political speech with some older men one night. They wanted something red hot, and I handed it out.

"I just turned myself to skin the opposition, and, on the whole, the audience seemed to like it. The more they cheered the more I warmed to it. I was immensely pleased with my success. But after I got home I was worried. I had roasted the other side awfully. I lay awake wondering if it wouldn't react and injure our side more than the opposition.

"Then I bethought of some personal allusions I had made that might easily be constructed as libelous. I got a good deal excited and slept very little. In the morning I hurried down to see whether the papers had roasted me. The meeting was reported all over the front page. I plunged into it, shivering in nervousness. But I needn't have worried. What it said about my speech was in the last two lines:

"'A young man named Depew also spoke.'"—New York Telegram.

The Poor Fish.

This melancholy tragedy happened in Holland. A fisherman who caught a salt herring placed the fish in a tub full of salt water. Every day he took out some of the salt water and replaced it with fresh. In a few days he had the herring living in fresh water. But, not content at stopping here, he decided to try another plan. Every day he took a little water out of the tub until none was left, and the herring was still alive. The next course was walking. In a month or so the herring had developed feet and learned to walk, and he accompanied his master on his journeys. One day as they were crossing over a narrow bridge the herring caught sight of the water. Reminiscences of former days flashed through his head, and he resolved to try the water. But while still gazing at it he fell in, and before his master could aid him he was drowned.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Halley, the Astronomer.

At fifteen years of age Edmund Halley was the captain of St. Paul's school and already an accomplished astronomer. At twenty-two he was elected a fellow of the Royal society, and before he was thirty he had encouraged Newton to produce his "Principia" and published at his own expense that famous work, in which Newton gave to the world his great discovery of the law of gravitation. For eight years Halley was editor of the "Transactions of the Royal Society," and he was only forty-seven when Oxford made him Savilian professor of astronomy. At fifty-nine he observed and predicted the circumstances of the total solar eclipse of 1715, and at sixty-four he became the astronomer royal of Great Britain. In his seventy-fifth year he announced to the Royal society that he had made 1,500 lunar observations. He was then in receipt of a salary of £100 a year, with no allowance for an assistant.

CURTAILMENT IN NEW ENGLAND MILLS

Much Machinery to Be Idle During Next Few Months

Boston, May 20.—A further slackening up in New England cotton mill machinery has been decided upon, and during the summer and fall months a heavy curtailment of production is looked for.

Many of the corporations which have their head offices in Boston will curtail from 25 to 33 1-3 percent during the next few months, it is announced, or until the new cotton crop is available. Next week numerous mills will be stopped for a few days, and on the following week others will be idle.

The Amoskeag corporation will shut down all its cotton mills in Manchester, N. H., next Thursday, until June 1. The company, which is the largest cotton concern in the world, employs 15,500 operatives. In Fall River twenty or more corporations, employing 15,000 hands, will shut down May 27 or 28 until June 6.

MURDER AND SUICIDE

Motorman Strangles His Housekeeper and Then Takes Poison

Danvers, Mass., May 20.—Daniel S. Doherty, aged 49, a motorman on the local car lines, strangled to death Mrs. Beatrice Rice, his housekeeper, aged 45, and then drank two ounces of nitric acid, dying several hours afterwards.

The double tragedy took place in Doherty's home here. The police say that Doherty killed the woman because she upbraided him for drinking, and when she attempted to leave the house he grabbed her by the throat and choked her into insensibility. He then tied a rope around her throat and fastened one end of it to a door knob, leaving the rope taut, so as to make sure of her death.

BRIEFS

Lost, a comet.

Work on the Houghs Neck sewer is to be commenced at an early date and the City Engineer's department is busy getting the plans and lay out ready.

Mrs. N. B. Furnald of Washington street is observing quietly today her 79th birthday. Although she is not entertaining, several relatives and friends have called and she has also been the recipient of many gifts and messages of love.

The degree team of Mayflower lodge, No. 4 of Brockton will exemplify the work at the class initiation of Quincy lodge No. 261 New England Order of Protection, this evening. All members of the order are cordially invited.

Now and then a straw hat is seen in City Square, but they will probably not become general until the warm weather becomes more settled. It would be a good idea, however, to get out last year's straw and have it cleaned up unless you can afford a new one.

There is great rejoicing at Atlantic because of the removal of the unsightly billboards near the railroad station. The land has recently changed hands and the new owners ordered the boards removed. Thus civic improvements gradually come about a little at a time but surely.

The exchange department of the Home Economics committee of the Quincy Women's club has become so interested in the operetta Pinafore that they are making candy so that it will seem just like a matinee. Matinee girls always eat candy you know.

Two Quincy gentlemen were on Thursday appointed on committees of the general association of Congregational churches. Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy is on the committee on brotherhoods, and Delcevare King on the committee on morals. Rev. Morris H. Turk formerly of Quincy Point is on the Sunday school committee.

The flag on City Hall and the Coddington school are at half mast today out of respect of King Edward of England whose funeral is being held. The flags at half mast caused many inquiries to be made who it was for, as it was at first thought some present or former city official had passed away.

SUBMARINES FOR DEFENCE.

It has been decided that six of the Quincy built submarine boats shall constitute a part of the defence of Boston. These are the Grayling, Bonita, Narwhal, Stingray, Tarpon and Snapper. Later the Salmon will be included in the fleet.

CLOSED WITH SPELLING MATCH.

At the ladies' night and annual meeting of the Men's club held in the vestry of the Wollaston Methodist church on Thursday evening, the following officers and committees were elected for the ensuing year:

President—George Taylor.
Vice President—E. H. Ewertz.
Secretary—S. N. Belcher.
Treasurer—H. B L. Dimmock.
Entertainment Committee—J. A. Sedgwick, E. H. Ewertz, George Taylor, A. N. Murray.
Refreshment Committee—A. B. Cassidy, F. A. Sutermeister.

The evening opened with the reports of the secretary and treasurer, and a brief address by Rev. W. J. Heath, retired, a former pastor of the church. There are two thinks necessary to success in life," said the speaker, "enthusiasm and a definite aim." After giving some concrete examples of these Rev. Heath dwelt on the effect the Methodist religion has had on the world the past decade. Rev. W. J. Heath has been in the ministry for the past 53 years His last pastorate was in Atlantic where he went from Wollaston.

Readings by C. M. Houghton followed and two brief papers on "The place of the eMn's club" by J. A. Sedgwick, and "The Men's club—the possibilities" by A. B. Cassidy.

C. J. Hogue, ex-president of the Wollaston Congregational club who was en interesting guest was an interested guest, was called upon to speak, and responded with a few well chosen remarks.

The evening closed with a genuine old-fashioned spelling match with J. A. Sedgwick and F. A. Sutermeister as captains. There is a great dispute as to which side spelled down" the other as some of the words propounded by President Taylor never saw the inside of a dictionary, however comprehensive. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

Halley's comet with its lengthy tail will have to take a back seat tomorrow when the Deweys of Weymouth, champions of the Old Colony baseball league and the Makarias, the idols of Quincy, will clash at Merrymount park at 3.30 P. M.

The Deweys are known both near and far to be a ball team of no mean standing, being classed with the best in the state for the past six years, and Charlie Ganzel and Manager Frohwein did a wise thing in landing them for a game before the league season opens. The Makarias, too, have come fast in the last two seasons and under the watchful eye of Charlie Ganzel have closed the season with a long string of victories.

The Deweys will present an entire new combination. Dobbin the man who won the pennant for them at Brockton will twirl, and Giroux, the heavyweight backstop will again do the receiving. "Coon" Rudderham is at centre field, and Coose, a Braintree lad, is putting up a good game at third.

The Makarias will present their regular line-up and with Coach Ganzel on the bench to direct them should be able to make the visitors work overtime to land a victory. "Honey" Curtis, "Wes" Ganzel, "Matty" Nicol, Jimmy Michael, "Stan" and "Russ" Bates, Walter Troupe, "Rup" "Ganzel, Eggleton and "Mac" McKenzie are all due to receive a big reception tomorrow ,and it would not be surprising to see them land on the Dewey twirler. If they do, it would be fitting for them to sing, "Put on your old grey-bonnet, and come in strong on the line, "We'll hitch old DOBBIN to the shay."

Regardless of anything else put in an appearance at Merrymount park tomorrow afternoon and do your share of rooting for a Makaria victory.

COMET PARTY.

Over 200 took Third hill as a vantage point to view the comet on Thursday evening. Long before sunset people began to gather in groups of three or four until at the appointed time the reservoir and surrounding heights were black with people. Many waited for a long time, but were finally obliged to give up in dissappointment. They were treated to the view of a most beautiful sunset, but saw no sign of that which they eagerly sought the comet.

FOOTBALL PLAYS ILLUSTRATED.

At the Knights of Columbus club rooms Thursday evening Leo Leary, former football player and at present coach for the Harvard football squad, spoke on the subject of football. Mr. Leary explained the game under the old rules and what it is likely to become under the present modifications. He said that teams of the future will probably be composed of light men since the game under new rules requires speed rather than great weight and power.

As lantern slides of the last Harvard-Yale and Harvard-Dartmouth games were shown, Mr. Leary pointed out certain plays and explained them, and told how they will probably be worked out under the new rules. The talk was very interesting and the speaker was accorded a vote of thanks.

It was announced that John J. Williams lodge of Boston will exemplify the first and second degree on Sunday. The event will be one of the largest of its kind held in Quincy.

DEWEYS VS. MAKARIA.

The Dewey team of Weymouth always puts up a good ball game, and the Makaria team must work to win at Merrymount park on Saturday. The game is called for 3.30 and the line-up will be:

Deweys	Makaria
Lord, rf	Curtis, lf
Orcutt, 1b	Eggleton,cf
B. Reynol' ss	R. Ganzell, rf
Giroux, c	McKenzie, 2b
Reilly, 2b	R. Bates, 3b
Rudderham, cf	Troupe, c
E. Bates, lf	W. Ganzel, 1b
Dobbins, p	Nicol, ss
Coose, 3b	Michael, p

Stanley Bates, last year's phenom of Quincy High, may go into the box for a few innings.

SPORTING NOTES.

Makaria vs. Deweys tomorrow.

There are 30 entries for the eleven classes at the Old Colony Driving Club at South Weymouth on Saturday afternoon. India Panis is matched against Young Bayard, and Altro L against Willie J.

Everett Prout, '12 ,and Robert Cranshaw, '11 will represent Quincy High in the 100 and 220 yard dashes at the Harvard Interscholastic track meet, Saturday, May 21. Franz Marceau, '09, will probably enter the mile.

LIVELY TENNIS SEASON AHEAD

More Tournaments Than Ever Scheduled This Year.

FOREIGN PLAYERS ARE COMING

English and Australian Cracks Will Compete In Tourneys—Pacific Coast Experts to Play In East—Westerners to Cut Big Figure This Season.

Even the most pessimistic of lawn tennis players—and there are always a few at this time of the year—are willing to join with the optimists in agreeing that the 1910 season on the American courts promises to be the most representative that this country has ever experienced. The signs of material progress are writ so large that he who runs may read. Fundamentally the remarkable increase in the championship and tournament schedule list affords the best indication as to the growth of the sport. Then there is the promise of a visit from famous foreign players, an excellent prospect as to the Davis international cup team, drawing from the top classmen, and the stimulation of another skirmish by the brilliant California wielders of the racket upon eastern courts. Indeed, the program that the officials of the United States national association have mapped out is a most inspiring one.

Carried to completion with a zeal that may be expected, the standard of the American game is surely destined to reach a lofty place, which will broaden the scope of lawn tennis in a manner hitherto unknown in this country.

To begin with, that wonderful pair of Californians, Maurice F. McLoughlin and Melville H. Long, are to visit the east this season to play through all of the important tournaments right up to the national championship at Newport. They learned the ways of the eastern stars last year, and they believe they can take the honors back to the Pacific coast.

The Californians undoubtedly have hard work before them. Anthony F. Wilding, the great Australian, is to play in this country. Possibly the English cup team of challengers may be at Newport also, for it is pretty certain at present that the team named by England will cross the Atlantic ocean again to try the ties for the blue ribbon of the courts.

So William A. Larned, the national champion in singles, and Frederick B. Alexander and Harold H. Hackett, the doubles holders, seem to be in for the trial of their lives. It is predicted that Larned is due for a defeat this year. The hope is that one of the younger Americans may save the title from the foreign invasion.

The figure westerners are to cut in national lawn tennis promises to set a new standard for the game. Since their achievement in arranging the Clay court championship of the United States after the hottest controversy ever known in the sport they declare the tournament will surpass that at Newport in every respect. The tournament will be held on the courts of the Kansas City club. Probably a match will be arranged with the national winner at Newport to demonstrate the merits of the clay court and turf games.

Johnson Swiftest Twirler.

Walter Johnson, the star pitcher of the Washington Americans, is the speediest twirler in baseball today.

Following this meeting a jump will be made to Butte, where the runners will hold forth from July 23 until Aug. 29.

Cheyenne will hold a meeting commencing Sept. 1 and finishing the 20th. Returning to Salt Lake City, the final meeting on the intermountain circuit will begin Sept. 24 and conclude Oct. 20.

Pirate Players Not Handsome Chaps.

The most unattractive team today in major league company is the champion Pittsburgs, says Tim Murnane, the noted baseball scribe. They are picked for winners as much for their steady habits as their great ball playing qualities.

Fred Clarke picks men who attend strictly to business. They plug away from the drop of the flag until the line is crossed, condition counting at the finish.

Atlantic States Entitled to Appropriations for Development of Waterways

Congressmen Moore and Small Speak at Quincy

Congressman J. Hampton Moore made it clear at the Waterway meeting in Quincy last night that New England was entitled to whatever appropriation it might ask of Congress for development of its rivers and the building of canals. That government aid on the Atlantic coast had been infinitesimal compared with appropriations for the Mississippi river, the Pacific States Texas and other states.

Congressman J. Hampton, Moore, of Pennsylvania, who is president of the Atlantic Deeper Inland Waterways Association, and Congressmen John Humphrey Small of North Carolina, have been attending the convention in Boston this week, and the Quincy committee brought them to this city late in the afternoon by automobile, when they were guests of Brooks Adams at the historic Adams mansion on Adams street.

The meeting at Alpha hall was under the auspices of the Quincy Historical Society, and Brooks Adams, Esq., the president introduced the speakers. There was a large audience. President Adams said at first he did not see the connection between waterways and history, but reflected that we would have had no country but for waterways. The site of Washington, D. C., was selected because it was the terminus of the proposed canal from the Ohio valley, and the development of the country hinged on waterways.

Congressman Moore after a tribute to the noble ancestry of the presiding officer, said he had been interested in the waterway movement for four years, and it was necessary to make a study of the history of the country. At first he started to improve the Deleware river, but soon included all the Atlantic states. There seemed to be a natural chain of inland waterways which only needed to be connected.

Mr. Moore reviewed the growth of railroads, and said they were the great civilizer of modern times, but the time had come when the waterways must be opened up to provide competition. The transportation by rail and water should not be controlled by one company or the same men.

Mr. Small had ascertained that ap-

MARRIED IN WASHINCTON

Miss Laing Bride of John M. D. Knowles

Mr. and Mrs. John M. D. Knowles of Washington, D. C., are in Quincy enjoying their honeymoon. Mrs. Knowles was formerly Catherine D. Laing of Trafford street, this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Knowles were married Monday, May 16, a"t 4 P. M. in the home of the bride's mother, in Washington, by the Rev. Dr. E. W. Bliss. The bride who was attended by her sister Isabell as maid of honor, was beautifully gowned in a white embroidered robe trimmed with val lace and carried a magnificent bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The groom, supported by his brother William as best man, wore his uniform and sword of a warrant officer of the U. S. Navy.

Mrs. Laing in honor of the occasion had her home decorated with flags of the nation and daises. The happy couple were the recipients of many handsome presents, among which were a silver tea service the gift of the petty officers of engineers' force; silver bureau toilet set from the warrant officers mess; and a carving set bearing the card of Lieutenant P. W. Foote. Many presents were from friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

Immediately after supper at which function the bride proudly cut the bride's cake with her husband's sword, Mr. and Mrs. Knowles started on their trip North. At the union station they were met by twenty girl friends, who showered confetti on the newly wedded travellers. The itinerary includes Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Qhincy and Bennington, N. H. the home of the bride groom. After a few weeks the couple will return to Washington.

A week previous to the wedding Mrs. Knowles was surprised by her friends with a shower of hand embroidered linen, including a beautiful hand embroidered parasol.

A CRUEL JOKE.

It was reported by telephone yesterday afternoon, to his parents, that Joseph Grossman of 341 Water street had been struck by an East Milton trolley and instantly killed in front of the office of the Lavers Granite Co., where he is employed. The time of the accident was stated as 3.20.

The young man's family was prostrated by the news and a brother rush to the place of the supposed accident to learn particulars. As he entered the office the sight of his brother still alive overcame him and he fainted. Grossman's mother was also severely shaken. The report is thought to have been a practical joke.

MERCHANTS' PROGRAM

Parade of Fire Department One of the Features

Two weeks from today the grand Merchants Week for which the local merchants have been working so industriously for some weeks will be inaugurated, and will continue through the following week. The local merchants will make unusual efforts to have their stores unusually attractive and all will offer some rare bargains for shrewd buyers. Many things to attract people to Quincy that week have been planned including band concerts, field and track sports and a grand parade and play out of the entire fire department of the city.

Decorations will be confined mainly to large banners announcing in letters large enough so that he who runs may read, that this is Merchants Week. Several hundred of these banners have been sold to the local merchants, and there will not be a building in City Square and practically no business house throughout the city that does not display a banner of some kind to boom the occasion.

It is expected that during that week there will be thousands of strangers in the city, and many families have planned to keep open house and entertain on a lavish scale, so that taking all in all there should be something doing from the opening day, Saturday, June 4, until late Saturday night, June 11.

Not the least among the attractions will be the illumination of City Square, and unless all signs fail the Square will be illuminated at night as never illuminated before. This is the first affair of the kind that the city has ever had, and all should unite in making it a rouser.

SCHOOL MASTERS CLUB.

The School Masters club of Quincy are holding their first field outing today at Squantum. The masters began to wend their way toward the goal at Squantum early this morning, and by 11 o'clock most of them on the ground ready for the frolic. The plans for the day included a series of sports and it was confidentially expected that more records would be broken and shins barked than usually happens at a field meet. Unfortunately, however, the rain put the field in such a condition that outdoor sports had to be omitted. Several of the masters have been putting in all of their spare time for some weeks practicing for the great game which was to have been the crowning event of the day. The make-up of the two nines was not officially announced, but each nine is said to contain some good old-time ball twirlers, so that a stormy day was a great disappointment. The shore dinner planned came off on schedule time, however, at Lee's Inn.

TO LAY KEEL NEXT WEDNESDAY

For Dreadnought Acorazado to be Built for the Argentine Republic

Argentine Commission Planning Ceremony for Occasion

Activity at the Fore River shipyard in this city will date from next Wednesday, May 25, when the keel will be laid for the battleship Acorazado to be built for the Argentine Republic.

Plans are not complete for the eventful date, but it is said that there will be more ceremony than usual, as it is the wish of the Argentine commission now in this country to make it a memorable day. In the past, some of the keels for the U. S. battleships have been laid without ceremony.

A comparison of the new dreadnought with the U. S. battleship Dakota will be of interest:

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The city of Quincy might take the marsh bounded by Canal, Coddington and Newcomb streets, or the swamp bounded by Valley, Coddington, Woodward streets and Edgemere road, which would give Ward One a playground.

Winthrop parks commissioners have taken 67 acres of salt marsh and tidewater, at $58,000, and are to have the land drained and the water outlined to make a place to play games of various kinds. The Massachusetts salt marshes are coming into use for various purposes, but not for producing crops, as was forecasted some years ago.—Worcester Telegram.

The beautiful custom of strewing the graves of loved ones with flowers on Memorial day is becoming more common each year. It is to be hoped that we may have a few warm days to bring out the wild flowers into full bloom as they have a charm all their own. At this season of the year the florists will be especially rushed and it is well for prospective buyers to get their bouquets and wreaths ordered early or else they may fare rather poorly.

Just now the comet is holding the attention of the world and other matters for the time being are obliged to take second place. In spite of the assurance of astronomers and scientists in general that there was nothing to fear from the celectial tramp many people had serious misgivings and last Wednesday night was an anxious one for many especially when in many localities there were severe electrical disturbances. The old globe still rolls on however and a miss is as good as many miles.

Mount Wollaston cemetery grows more beautiful each year as the improvements continue and the trees and shrubbery are getting larger. The lawn effect is being caried out and in years to come will present an even velvety green lawn up and down each avenue, where now are many paths and lots at every grade. Work to this end has been carried on extensively this spring along the Sea street side to the north of the entrance gates and the improved appearance is remarkable and also pleasing. Mr. Nicols the faithful superintendent is early and late at his post and his fondness for floriculture is manifested everywhere. The improvements of a few years ago outside the entrance gates makes a fitting gateway to the beautiful city of the dead. The young trees set out by the Women's club a few seasons ago along the sidewalk edge also adds to the general well kept appearance.

DRIFT OF OPINION

At a recent meeting of the Malden board of trade members made a demand for better lighted business streets and the subject was discussed as one of importance to the business men. The question of an industrial building was introduced and before the meeting adjourned more than $8000 had been pledged toward a fund to erect such a building to be let to manufacturers. Waltham business men have raised a sum for a similar project.—Chelsea Record.

BRAINTREE PHILERGIANS.

The May outing to the Blue hills on Wednesday the 25th, under the auspices of the Philergian club, promises to be as interesting and enjoyable as the excursion last year. A very delightful route has been laid out for the club, taking in new trails and paths and covering an entirely new section of the reservation. Every arrangement has been made for the pleasure and convenience of the party.

The walk has been planned with a view of pleasing those who want an "easy" walk, at the same time giving aditional climbs to those who desire something more strenuous. By taking the options offered the more ambitious will find ample scope for their love of exercise.

There are some special features this year which will make the trip very unique. The outing is planned as follows: Special cars will leave the Braintree station at 9 o'clock, and will proceed to South Braintree square, taking up passengers en route. The party will leave South Braintree for the Blue hills via Randolph and Mattapan. The special cars will go through to destination without wait or change.

On arrival at Heminway pond, on Blue Hil avenue, a team will be in waiting to receive lunch boxes, extra wraps, coats, etc., so that the members of the excursion may go on the walk unhampered. After reaching Canton avenue the party enters the private estate of Professor Rotch(by special permission) and in a few minutes, after a pleasant stroll through charming grounds pass into the reservation.

The path then leads through shaded woods and by babbling brooks between Hancock and Heminway hills, by way of Breakneck ledge; a most rugged and picturesque view being had. Those who desire the walk may climb to the summit of Hancock hill and descend on the opposite side to Hillside street. The easier path will be to the Administration road where both parties will meet for the few minutes walk to Hoosic Whisick pond.

Here boats have been chartered to take the party to the grove on the opposite shore. Luncheonwil l be eaten in the beautiful grove, with hot coffee and ice cream served to all who desire the same. Two hours or more will be spent in rest and recreation with opportunities for boating on the beautiful little lake.

The afternoon walk will be to the summit of Great Blue hill via Coon Hollow Path and Wild Cot notch. For the convenience of any who may not wish to climb Great Blue, barges will run from the grove to the special cars which will be waiting at head of Hill side street.

The cars will then proceed to the station at the foot of Great Blue to wait for the party coming over the summit, or those arriving on the car from Hill side street may climb Great Blue and return with the party.

The most ordinary walker need not hesitate to take this trip and the more sturdy and ambition climber may have a walk equal to his desire. Comfortable clothes and shoes are desirable. Bring lunch and drinking cup. Extra wraps may be useful during the noon rest and on the cars. Fare on special car for the return trip 50 cents. Tickets including hot coffee, ice cream and use of team 15 cents.

If carriage is taken from Grove to cars 10 cents each person riding in the same. Tickets for trip may be procured of Mrs. Gallagher, Mrs. Tinkham, Mrs. Bent, Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Crathern. Tickets only to the seating capacity of the car will be sold. If you are going you should get your tickets at once. Tickets must be purchased by Tuesday noon. After that time only by applying to Mrs. Crathern, telephone 15-4 Braintree. Any person who desires may participate in this outing of either sex. The friends of the club members and general public are cordially invited.

—Now that the smokeless locomotive has become an actual reality, the next step, and one that would be especially welcomed by all who appreciate a night's undisturbed slumber, should be the discovery of some method by which the puffing of the engine may be done away with. To anyone living within hearing distance of a freight yard, and that distance is a variable quantity according to atmospheric conditions and the direction of the wind, the inordinate puffing o fa switching engine, while making up a train in the still hours of the night, is not conducive either to slumber or good humor on the part of the disturbed sleeper.—Milford Gazette.

ADVOCATES RECIPROCITY

Foss Improves Opportunity to Make Attack on the Tariff

SAYS PEOPLE ARE BUNCOED

Thinks Butchery of Revision Scheme as Promulgated In Republican Program Was Intentional—Flays Stand-Pat "Heirarchy" and Demands Extra Session of Congress to Accomplish Real Tariff Revision

Washington, May 21.—Representative Eugene N. Foss, the newly elected Democratic representative from Massachusetts, a former Republican and a leading manufacturer, signalized his beginning of active participation in the house with a sensationally radical attack upon the Payne-Aldrich tariff.

The speaker announced himself as favoring the creation of a tariff commission, but he wanted the commission composed of non-partisan men, whose report would be made direct to congress rather than to the president. Referring to the provision in the pending sundry civil appropriation bill for an appropriation of $250,000 for a tariff commission to report to the president, he said:

"Naturally, it looks a little strange to some of us—after all this long delay—and after the people themselves discovered the worst evils of our tariff system, which such a commission could have exposed years ago—that it is now brought forward at this eleventh hour. They evidently have in mind the panicky feeling that pervades for instance the 'stand-pat' section of this very chamber, as well as of the other chamber, and the Republican machine the country over.

"It cannot be denied that the people have, rightly or wrongly, come to regard this whole 'revision' scheme of the Republican party leaders, as planned in the last national campaign and as promulgated in their platform, and as finally butchered in the special tariff session of congress, as an intentional and deliberate bunco game from start to finish."

Mr. Foss urged reciprocity with foreign nations as the proper middle ground between the protective tariff and free trade. He recounted how Republican leaders, such as Hay and Dingley, endeavored to obtain reciprocity with Canada, and how "McKinley, almost with his dying breath, affirmed reciprocity as the ruling keynote of his prospective second term.

"We recall," said he, "how the nefarious 'stand-pat' influence in the Republican party by all sorts of underhand means succeeded in defeating all these treaties, nullifying all this effort and treacherously betraying and assassinating 'reciprocity in its own house.' The 'stand-pat' hierarchy sowed the wind and we all are reaping the whirlwind. Reciprocity was sacrificed to self interests and mercenary influences by the politicians against the people's interests, prostituted by them to the purpose of hoodwinking the public, just as now recently they have prostituted 'revision.'"

In voicing his demand for another special session to revise the tariff, the speaker said: "The people demand that the revision and reduction of the tariff which was promised two years ago by the Republican party be carried out by the Democratic party as soon as the new congress can convene. The Democratic party ought to raise the issue that there shall be an extra session convened next spring to do the work which this congress has proved faithless to. The people have made the immediate reduction of the tariff the issue and the Democratic party must pledge itself in a most distinct and specific way to carry out this course; in order that the mandate shall be a compelling one; that the victory shall be so complete that the Republican executive will be forced to acquiesce in it and call congress together.

"And on the most momentous and practical question, that of Canadian reciprocity," said Foss, "which confronts us today in our commercial relations, I would urgently recommend as one good means of attaining that great end, that we entirely remove, at this special tariff session of congress next spring, the duties on the principal Canadian products and reduce the rest to the level of Canada's own tariff.

Mr. Foss advocated the placing of all raw materials and food products upon the free list, and declared that the burdens of protection were felt as keenly by the employer as by the employed.

MRS. MARY CLARK DAVIS.

Teachers of the Wollaston school were grieved to learn of the death of Mrs. Mary Clark Davis at East Sullivan, New Hampshire last Saturday. Miss Clark resigned her position as teacher at the Wollaston school last June. While here she won many friends whose sympathy goes to her husband and family. She had a peculiar gift of attaching every one to her, her heart being a tender and warm one and her affections deep and abiding. A New Hampshire paper speaking of her death says: "Mary Clark Davis, daughter of Albert and Addie Dodge Clark, died in East Sullivan last Saturday after a short illness. She was born in Henniker about 32 years ago, and graduated from the High school in 1896. For ten years she was a popular teacher in Henniker and other towns. About a year ago she was married to Lester Davis of East Sullivan. Mrs. Davis was a most estimable woman and leaves many friends in Henniker and other towns in which she has been to mourn her."

The evening closed with a duet by Helen Seiders and Edna Grey, and a vote of thanks to the supper committee. Rev. Joseph Walther asked the blessing and during the evening brief remarks were delivered by the pastor, E. L. Durgin and H. J. Christopher upon the Christian Endeavor work.

It was after this inspection that the quarantine was placed upon the block which is commonly known as Little Syria, because of the fact that this section of the city is inhabited principally by Syrians. Police officers have been stationed at every door of the block to prevent any of the tenants from leaving or entering while the quarantine is on.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

QUINCY BOAT TO RESCUE

Ill Fated Schooner Towed to Safety by Kingston

Editor Quincy Daily Ledger:

We wish to make a correction to an article which appeared in several Boston papers of May 18, and think your paper a good medium to make such correction.

One paper says that: "The power boat "Victory" manned by the Wood End life savers, one of the first boats to reach the burning schooner, averted this possibility by cutting loose the schooner from the Densmore, at imminent risk of being blown to pieces and towing it toward the beach."

The power boat "Victory," at the time of the explosion, was over a mile away from the burning schooner, the Estelle Nunan. She was lying off the shore near the Long Point light house, and did not reach the schooner until she had been cut loose and was being towed away from the Densmore by the power boat "Kingston," owned by the Electric Boat Company, and manned by Edward Quarry of Edison Park, Quincy.

Mr. Quarry, with the aid of Capt. Kennedy and several Provincetown fishermen, succeeded in getting a line from the "Kingston" to the burning schooner and towed her away from the tank-ship, thereby preventing what might have proved a more serious disaster.

The force of the explosion had blown the schooner's chain box and chain overboard, which, acting as a drag, made towing very differcult.

The fire had been raging for fully 25 minutes before the power boat "Victory" arrived on the scene, and Mr. Quarry with the "Kingston" had the schooner well out of the way of the storeship by that time. The power boat "Victory" when she did arrive threw a line to the "Kingston" and assisted in towing the burning boat towards the beach.

This story can be verified by anyone connected with the Union Fish Company which has it's storehouse on the end of Railroad wharf, anyone connected with the Electric Boat Company of Quincy, that is at Provincetown on the trials of the submarine torpedo boat "Salmon," and hundreds of other spectators.

While not depreciating the valuable work done by the "Victory," who reached the scene as soon as possible, the fact remains that they did not get there until the burning schooner was out of harm's way, and any credit that can be attached to this incident should be placed where it rightfully belongs. Fair Play.

Provincetown, May 19, 1910.

BRIEFS

The Westland quartet sings at the Universalist church in Brockton Sunday evening.

The Naval appropriation bill was debated in the Senate yesterday, and there was opposition to building two battleships. No vote was reached.

The patients at the Quincy City Hospital received much pleasure from the musical hour afforded them by Misses Teresa and Ruth Keating on last Sunday.

It took the Chief of Police Thomas Fitzgerald of Weymouth and Chief Amos Loring of East Braintree less than ten minutes to catch the boys who rang in the false alarm from box 39 Sunday afternoon and caused a big amount of excitement as the box is in the wharf district. The boys came from Quincy and after pulling in the box started for that city, but were over-hauled on Quincy avenue by the police.

Tuesday morning there will be a regular meeting of the Quincy lodge of Elks in Alpha hall. There will be a short business session followed by an interesting entertainment.

The Col. Abner B. Packard camp, S. of V., met for their regular meeting last night in Grand Army hall. The regular business of the meeting and initiations were quickly disposed of and a dinner served. After the repast the commander spoke and stories were told and songs sung. The gathering broke up at a late hour having spent a really good time.

propriations by the government for waterways from 1789 to 1907 aggregated $550,000,000, of which only $140,000,000 went to the Atlantic coast states which do the bulk of the shipping. France has expended $714,000,000. The time had come for the development of the rivers and waterways of the Atlantic coast. A small expenditure would link up 1,800 miles of inland waterways from Boston to Key West, and the Brockton canal was a part of this system. Because of the disasters and loss of life on the shores of Cape Cod, Boston should demand the canal. It was also needed to reduce the cost of transportation of raw materials for New England industries, and to reduce the cost of coal.

New England has depended too much on one kind of transportation, the railroads. We now propose that government improve the waterways, and connect them by canals free of toll. All the Atlantic states should unite for commercial advantages.

Congressman John Humphrey Small of North Carolina followed, and was very complimentary to Massachusetts and was pleased to see ladies interested in waterways. He also showed familiarity with Quincy history, and related some concerning Roanoke and old Fort Raleigh.

He believed the Atlantic States should have intercostal waterways, and hoped we would soon get an appropriation and begin construction. Quincy ought to be intensely interested, for Quincy is sure to be on the line of these waterways. The cost will not be prodigious as only six links are necessary. The first is from Boston to Narragansett bay.

New England is lacking in raw product and needs coton, wool leather, coal, etc. Transportation by water costs one-fifth the price by rail. The speaker said he was not prejudiced against railroads, but they should be operated for the benefit of the people, and people who create corporations should control them. Waterways would help railroads and harmonious relations should exist.

In closing Mr. Small noted that the population of Quincy was now 39,000. He expected soon that it would have 100,000, and that its industries would be trebled.

President Adams voiced the sentiment of this meeting in extending thanks to the speakers of the evening. They returned to Boston by automobile for the night.

The funeral was attended by a great number of the relatives and friends of the deceased and the floral contributions were the greatest in number and beauty that have been seen for some time.

The interment was made in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy. The pall bearers were Daniel Ring, William Thompson, Thomas Elcock, Daniel J. Deasy, J. H. Dinegan and Timothy Crowley.

RECEPTION.

Mrs. Mary L. Wade and her pupils of the Home Economics class at the Quincy Mansion school gave a reception at Mrs. Wade's home 112 Elm avenue Friday evening from 7.30 to 10 o'clock to the teachers and pupils of the school. It was a delightfully informal affair, and is given each year by the young ladies, who do all the planning, cooking, and decorating.

The refreshment table was daintily appointed, the color scheme being pink and green, the lace centre piece was twined with smilax, and daybreak carnations filled a large cut glass vase; the candelabra had delicate green shades, and above the table the electric lights were softened by the greenery of smilax.

The menu included chicken salad, bread and butter sandwiches, pimento, olive and cream cheese sandwiches, salted almonds and pecans, pink and green mints, Ceylon frappe and assorted cakes, served by Miss Helen Richards and Mics Lorraine Richards of Wilkles Barre, Penn., Miss Lucile Cook of Canajosarie, N. Y., and Miss Elizabeth Burbank of Providence, R. I., of the class, assisted by Miss Helen Wade and Miss Alice Day.

The affair not only showed much credit due Mrs. Wade as a teacher, but that her pupils are happy and enthusiastic in their work under her instruction.

MILTON.

C. F. Thompson has returned from California and is at his home on Brackett street.

Peace Day was observed with fitting exercises by Huntington F. Wolcott Woman's Relief Corps, on Wednesday under the direction of patriotic instructor Mrs. Jacob Lincoln.

The choir of the East Milton Baptist church was entertained Wednesday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Irad Hardy.

Milton hasn't been troubled in the past by a celebration of the Fourth of July in any manner that couldn't be called "safe and sane." Its people are not inclined to rowdyism and the strict rules of the police have kept the small boys' enthusiasm within bounds, so that there has been no difficulty in securing plenty of sleep the night before, and few accidents have happened. The movement for an organized celebration this year, therefore, is not in the line of repression of undesirable methods; rather it is in the direction of the introduction of new methods and the teaching of a new system. If the plans now under consideration are carried out the town will have more of a celebration than it has had before in a long time and it will be "safe and sane." The town has voted the money for the sports that are to be the features of the forenoon and for the band concert that is to occupy the afternoon. Now the citizenship committee of the Education society comes forward with a plan whereby individuals can help out on the fireworks that are to be the evening feature. It won't cost very much to have an excellent display of fireworks and this will be just the thing to round out the day's events.

—Broken lenses matched. Oculists prescriptions for glasses carefully filled at short notice. Williams, optician, 1473 Hancock street, Quincy Tel. 279-3. Residence 323-3.

A good point in the arrangements as contemplated is that the events will be well scattered so that each section of the town will have something and residents of other sections will have to travel a little and get acquainted with all parts of the town. Athletic events at East Milton, a ball game at Mattapan, band concert at the center and fireworks at the Lower Mills ought to make all sections feel that they have had a part in the celebration.—Milton Record.

—The way in which the cost of living enters into this problem was very forcibly states by Sec. Ellsworth of the state board of agriculture. He showed there are 35,000 farmers in Massachusetts ,of whom 30,000 are engaged in the milk business. He showed that the relative cost of the feed of cattle in 1896 and last year has doubled. Corn-meal has gone from 75 cents a bag to $1.65. Oats from 27 cents a bushel to 64. He might well have included the rise in cost of farm labor.—Boston Record.

HOME ENDORSEMENT

Hundreds of Quincy Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement the public expression of Quincy people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Quincy reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

W. Charlesworth, 33 Cranch street, Quincy, Mass., says: "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were very severe at times and cold or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew that my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give them a trial and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had taken the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

"GOLD BRICK" OPERATIONS

Said to Have Been Conducted on a Very Wide Scale

ARREST OF TWO "BANKERS"

Philadelphia Men Who Moved In High Society For Past Three Years Without Suspicion Alleged to Have Worked Mine Swindle Which Netted Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars—They Are Refused Bail

Philadelphia, May 21.—Bail has been refused by the United States authorities for E. A. Starkloff and George W. Post, who, though they have been moving in main line society here for three years under the supposition that they were enormously wealthy retired bankers, are declared by the postoffice authorities to be two of the cleverest "gold brick" swindlers in the country and "pals" of "Red" Adams, who recently was convicted in New York, following his arrest while posing as a retired capitalist and mine owner in a fashionable Flatbush district.

Starkloff and Post were arrested by government officers in the Broad street station on the charge of using the mails to defraud.

The prisoners occupied two of the most elaborate residences at fashionable Wynnewood Manor. According to the government officers they moved in the most exclusive circles on the main line, working a "gold brick" and mine swindle which netted them hundreds of thousands of dollars. Their operations, it is asserted, extended throughout this country and Europe.

Telegraphic advices received from various sections of the United States indicate that Starkloff and Post are wanted in many cities to answer charges of swindling. From New York came the information that the latter was implicated in defrauding William J. Lea and Mrs. Martha Moore of London of $25,000 each in a "gold brick" scheme.

Both men are impressive in dress and physique. Each is more than six feet tall and weights more than 200 pounds. They hav eall the marks of being the retired bankers that they represented themselves to be.

The two had just alighted from a train and were engaged in an earnest conversation with two prosperous looking companions when Chief Postoffice Inspector Cortelyou, Inspectors Ryan and Furness and Deputy Marshall Meyers accosted them. The prisoners were taken at once to the federal building, where they were held in $5000 bail by United States Commissioner Craig for a further hearing on Tuesday.

That the men possessed much wealth was shown an hour after the hearing, when cash amounting to the bail in which they were held was produced through their attorney, John R. K. Scott. It was refused, however, by Commissioner Craig.

At Wynnewood Manor, where the two occupied costly homes, opposite each other, surrounded with large lawns and with stables containing driving and saddle horses, they were looked upon as eminently respectable citizens and church members.

Starkloff was looked upon as a man devoted to his wife and daughter, upon whom he is said to have showered all the pleasure and comfort they could desire. Post is married, but has no children.

REPLIES TO CHARGE OF LABOR LEADER

None Wilfully Killed In Steel Trust Hospital, Says Dr. Dinan

Bethlehem, Pa., May 21.—"It is an awful accusation and makes Mr. Holder liable to prosecution at my hands," said Dr. R. A. Dinan, who was formerly superintendent of the Bethlehem Steel company hospital, in answer to the charge of A. E. Holder, legislative agent of the American Federation of Labor, before the senate committee at Washington that the steel manufacturing concerns in Pennsylvania are "veritable slaughter houses."

"It is absolutely untrue that men injured in the steel works were wilfully killed in the hospital conducted by the Bethlehem Steel company to prevent them becoming cripples and thereby charges on the company," continued Dinan.

The hospital referred to by Holder has been abandoned nearly a year. It was in operation only about one year and a half and Dinan was in charge of it nearly all of that time.

WHITE WILL NOT RESIGN

Neither Will Mayor of Lawrence Hire Counsel to Defend Him

Lawrence, Mass., May 21.—Mayor White of this city, under indictment of conspiracy to bribe, declares that he has no counsel and he doesn't know as he will have any. "An honest man doesn't need any lawyers. I may defend myself," said the mayor.

When asked if he would see Governor Draper at once about having a speedy trial he said he was too busy to do that this week, but he might see him if the trial wasn't set for an early date. He declared that he would not resign, as had been rumored, until he was found guilty. Many citizens claim that White stated during his campaign that if he was indicted he would resign. He denies the statement and declares that he never will resign until he is convicted.

PRISONERS IN BARGE CABIN

Plight of Two Girls When Discovered by a Deckhand

SAY THEY WERE KIDNAPPED

Accepted Invitation to Ride In Sailboat After Making Acquaintance of Stranger at Waltham, Mass.—Rowed Out to Boston Harbor, Forced to Climb Aboard Barge, and Carried to New Jersey

Elizabeth, N. J., May 21.—On the statements of two girls who declare they were kidnapped at Waltham, Mass., and carried to Elizabethport as prisoners in the cabin of the coal barge Langsford, Captain Jerome Malloy and Isaac Hirsh were arrested in a raid upon the barge, during which the girls were rescued.

The girls are being held until an investigation of their charges may be made by the Boston police. The arrests were made after the police had learned that the girls were being held prisoners in the cabin of the barge from special policemen employed by the Lehigh Valley railroad here.

After the girls had been taken from the boat and detained as witnesses against the prisoners a formal complaint was drawn against the two men by Assistant Attorney Hague.

The girls gave their names as Irene Goodwin, 17 years old, of Waltham, Mass., and Elizabeth Kelley, 18 years old, of West Newton, Mass.

According to the statements of the girls they became acquainted with Hirsh last week while watching a balloon ascension in a park at Waltham, Mass. They met frequently during the week, and on Sunday afternoon accepted an invitation to accompany him in a sailboat to East Boston.

When they entered the boat, the girls asserted, Hirsh sailed across Boston harbor, finally bringing up alongside several coal barges, from one of which a rope ladder was dropped to the sailboat. Hirsh compelled the girls to climb to the deck of the Langsford, where they met Captain Malloy.

As soon as they were safely on the deck of the barge the girls told the police it was released from its moorings and, despite their protests, started down the bay. The two men told the girls that the barge would return in a short time, and they were locked in the cabin.

When the boat reached Elizabethport, the girls assert, the presence of the girls was discovered by William Johnston, a deckhand on a canal boat lying near the Langsford. He was also arrested, but later was released on the statement of the girls that he was attempting to assist them in escaping at the time the raid was made. John Myck, a deckhand on the coal barge, was also arrested and is being held as a material witness.

One of the girls told the police that she had found a letter signed by Malloy in a coat in the cabin directing Hirsh to bring two girls with him when he returned to the boat last Sunday. The police searched the boat for such a letter, but could not find it.

GUILTY OF SMUGGLING

Federal Jury Convicts Wife of Man Who Owns Line of Steamships

Trenton, May 21.—Mrs. Fremont B. Chesborough, wife of the Newton, Mass., lumber merchant who owns a line of steamships plying between Boston and southern points, was convicted last evening by a federal court jury on the second of a series of five counts of an indictment charging smuggling at the time of her return to America from a trip to Europe in May, 1909.

With the verdict of guilty there was a recommendation for clemency. Sentence will be imposed later. The government will be content with a fine, the amount to be fixed by the judge. The maximum penalty for the offense is a fine of $2000.

Says Coleman Gave Keliher Money

Boston, May 21.—Wilson L. Lockhart, who is held in $25,000 bail on the charge of having falsified the books of the National City bank of Cambridge, testified in the trial of William ("Big Bill") Keliher that last November he accompanied George W. Coleman to New York, that they were met at the Grand Central station by Keliher and that they went to Hotel Belmont, where he say Coleman hand Keliher a roll of money.

Cotton Case Indictments Dropped

Washington, May 21.—Justice Gould of the supreme court of the District of Columbia set aside indictments against Theodore H. Price of New York in connection with the cotton report leak case.

HOLDING BILL BURIED

Governor's Proposition Knocked Out In the Massachusetts Legislature

Boston, May 21.—The house of representatives, without debate, accepted the report of the joint committee on railroads and banks and banking, "no legislation is necessary," on Governor Draper's inaugural recommendation that the bonds of the Boston Holding company be made legal investments for savings banks.

The action was not a surprise, as Draper gave up his advocacy of this plan after it had been strongly opposed.

Governor Draper has another recommendation which is in the hands of the committee on railroads, namely, that the holding company be allowed to issue preferred stock, which issue is untaxable, in order to raise the money for the development of the Boston and Maine.

MONEY FOR EVANGELIST

Chapman to Have $200,000 Fund For Spreading the Gospel

Atlantic, N. J., May 21.—Announcement was made before the general assembly of the Presbyterian church here that John H. Converse, late head of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Philadelphia, created a fund of $200,000 to carry on evangelical work under the direction of Dr. J. W. Chapman, the leading evangelist of the Presbyterian faith in America.

The bequest was placed at interest by its donor and will pay $8000 a year to the work of spreading Presbyterian doctrines.

CUTS BABY'S THROAT, THEN STABS HERSELF

Deed of Springfield Woman Who Suddenly Becomes Insane

Springfield, Mass., May 21.—Seized with a sudden fit of madness, Mrs. Jennie Bergquist, 25 years old, cut the throat of her 3-year-old daughter, Mabel, placed the dying child in its crib, turned the knife upon herself, inflicting wounds that physicians say will probably result fatally, and then, bleeding profusely, jumped into a bathtub and turned on the water in an attempt to drown herself.

When her husband returned home last evening the mutilated body of his little daughter was the first sight that greeted him. Following a crimson trail, he found his wife in the bathtub, weak from her wounds, but none the worse for her attempt to drown herself.

Until a day or two ago no evidence of Mrs. Bergquist's abnormal mental condition was noted. Yesterday, however, she is said to have been seized several times with fits of insanity, culminating late in the day in the murder of her child, and probably the death of herself.

SUICIDE OF DE CRESPIGNY

Said to Have Been Prompted by Infatuation For Young American

London, May 21.—Behind the death of Captain Claude C. De Crespigny, who committed suicide, is a story of infatuation for a prominent young American woman, who, since her marriage two years ago, has been living here, where she is well known and extremely popular.

For some time past there has been a good deal of gossip concerning the evident strong attachment between the officer and the young woman, the culmination being reached a few days since, when De Crespigny is understood to have been served with papers in a divorce suit brought by the husband of the woman.

The captain took the matter very much to heart, and it is supposed that he believed the only possible chance to save the woman's name and honor was to commit suicide.

ROLLINS PLEADS GUILTY

Former Governor of New Hampshire Pays Fine of $2000 For Smuggling

New York, May 21.—Frank W. Rollins, ex-Governor of New Hampshire and now head of a Boston banking house, was indicted on a charge of smuggling. His son, Douglas, and Mrs. Rollins were not included in the indictment. Rollins later pleaded guilty. He was fined $2000, which he paid, and was discharged.

Rollins, his wife, Catherine W., and his son, Douglas S., were arrested last week after their arrival on the Lusitania. It is expected that the charges against Mrs. Rollins and the son will be dropped.

MAY HAVE BEEN ACT OF AN INCENDIARY

Big Fire Starts In Schoolhouse Filled With Young People

Clinton, Mass., May 21.—The splendid control over the children attending St. John's parochial school by the nuns of the Order of Presentation was evidenced when, with the school ablaze, 400 boys and girls responded to the fire drill and escaped safely from the premises. The fire is thought to be incendiary and the police are investigating.

The installing of fire escapes in the building two years ago was all that prevented loss of life, as when the children rushed into the main hall they found the stairway ablaze and had to make quick retreat through the rear of the building.

The fire destroyed the front part of the building and did damage of about $10,000. The fire originated in the boys' lavatory.

All through the excitement there was scarcely any disorder and when later it developed that the school had been cleared in 51 seconds both the pastor and the nuns were delighted with the success of the fire drill.

BRIEFS

Hose 3 was called out to extinguish a brush fire on Centre street on Monday.

The Norfolk Social club will hold a dancing party in Wollaston hall on Wednesday evening.

Congressman Small and Congressman Moore were both accompanied to Quincy by their young sons who enjoy travelling.

Beginning today the Tubular Rivet and Stud company adopts its summer schedule and the employes have their Saturday afternoons.

A picnic whist party will be given early in June at the home of Mrs. Frank A. Page, Winthrop avenue, by the Alliance sewing committee.

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION.

Editor of Daily Ledger:

Shall there be a modern scrap over a present day problem, or shall all celebrate America's great National festival day?

Can it be possible that when all nationalities, sects, trades and sections of Quincy are planning for a gala day, and a suitable honoring of great men in the past, that a group of our citizens can be so thoughtless as to attempt to impose a set of conditions favorable (as they think) to their union?

Surely our tax payers and patriotic citizens in general will promptly protest, and decline to be a party to such a "counterfeit celebration of Independence Day.

Unions have their rights, but may they also have dignity, consideration and true generous patriotism.

Citizen.

Quincy, May 21, 1910.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE

Close Finish and Probably a Tie

The first four teams in the Grammar school league are now running neck to neck with the close of the season only one week off. During the week there has been a noticeable change in the standing, Wollaston having dropped to fourth place, Gridley Bryant has taken second and Willard third.

It looks as though there might be a tie at the finish, and if the first four teams win all their games next week ,all four will be tied. None of the four play with each other.

The standing to date furnished by Dr. J. Gardner Smith is:

	Won	Lost	Percent
Cranch	7	2	.778
Gridley Bryant	6	2	.750
Willard	6	2	.750
Wollaston	6	2	.750
Hancock	5	4	.556
Quincy	4	5	.44
Washington	4	5	.444
Massachusetts Fields	3	4	.429
Coddington	3	5	.375
Lincoln	2	7	.2 2
Adams	0	8	.000

The games next week will be:

May 23—Adams vs. Gridley Bryant. Coddington vs. Wollaston.

May 24—Coddington vs. Cranch. Quincy vs. Willard.

May 25—Gridley Bryant vs. Hancock. Lincoln vs. Massachusetts Fields.

May 26—Massachusetts Fields vs. Wollaston. Washington vs. Willard.

Date Undecided—Cranch vs. Adams.

PLAYERS' BATS DIFFER.

Some Big Men Wield Small Sticks, and Midgets Use Big Ones.

Baseball players' bats differ in size and shape as much as the players do in physique. And the strange part of it is that many of the big fellows use a small, well shaped warclub, and a couple of the "rabbits" wield something resembling a wagon tongue.

An instance of this is the woodpile that "Rebel" Oakes, a former Cincinnati star, but now with the St. Louis Cardinals, uses. A man can scarcely imagine such a little fellow swinging so large and heavy a bat as Oakes does. The opposite side of the case is represented by Bresnahan, who, while large in stature, hits with a reasonably small club.

After a glance at the Hans Wagner bat one would think that the "Flying Dutchman" might just as well go and pull up a young but promising tree and use that to destroy the hopes of young and old pitchers alike. No balance to it, large and heavy all over, the average man could hardly swing it. It takes a person of immense strength to use it properly, and Hans is that. Being so heavy, the great batsman can meet the ball either on the handle or the very end and make a hit where another player would put up a pop fly or weak grounder.

☞ If any one was asked to give an honest opinion of the Sunday papers of this generation we doubt if one could be found who really cares for their bulkiness and space filling columns. It would seem as though the Boston Sunday Journal with its newsy readable columns of few pages would be a welcome relief and meet with succes from the start.

JULY FOURTH BALL GAME

Three Clubs Claim Championship of City

That moss-covered legend, "How old is Ann?" might well be placed at the bottom of the list by those fortunate enough to hear the arguments before the committee on baseball for Fourth of July celebration held at the Board of Trade rooms last evening.

The committee sent out notices to the Copeland, Makaria and Atlantic clubs and representatives from each club were present when Peter M. Sullivan, the chairman, called meeting to order. James E. Neary, instructor of apprentices at the Fore River shipyard, was elected secretary and the above mentioned, with Joseph Elcock comprised the committee.

Mr. Sullivan stated that the meeting was called to find out the strongest team of the three mentioned, in other words, "Who were the champions?"

Manager Frank J. Egan of the Copelands was asked to state his views. He said in part, "As I understand the situation, there must be a preliminary game played, the winner of which will meet the strongest team, on the Fourth of July. In view of the fact that we defeated both Makaria and Copeland clubs last season, I do not see why we should be called upon to play a preliminary game. We are the strongest of the three clubs."

Manager Paul Frohwein of the Makarias was the next speaker. He said: "I cannot see why the Copelands should call themselves champions. They won that title from two teams in a game and a half and as matter now stands our fellows do not care to meet the Copelands in a preliminary game unless it is desired by committee."

Manager Patrick Duggan of the Atlantics was asked to give his view. His story was as follows: "I have heard Mr. Egan state the Copelands were champions of Quincy. Anyone that knows baseball or any sport will believe, as I do, that no team can rightly be called champions with one victory and that is all they have to their credit over us. I think the preliminary game should be played between Copelands and Makarias. We were weakened by loss of star men when we played the Copelands last season and I believe we can be called the strongest."

The committee, desiring to learn everything possible, started a series of questions and each club were put through a severe test. During this discussion managers were allowed to answer each other and several arguments resulted.

Manager Egan of the Copelands had to keep an appointment and left early but he was ably defended by John D. Smith. After reviewing nearly everything that took place last summer, it was moved and seconded that the entire matter be left with committee, to give them power to act as they thought advisable.

The warriors of the diamond departed, satisfied that they would receive due consideration from the committee.

NEW CLUB ROOMS.

The Prosit club gave a ladies' night last evening in their new quarters on Revere road. The guests were entertained by piano, violin and vocal selections by Gilbert Booth, Charles Moyle, Walter Murray, Chas. Main and others. Dancing followed the musical program, and during the intermission ice cream, cake and lemonade were served. The party thoroughly appreciated the efforts of the club members to entertain them and enjoyed the evening to the fullest extent.

THE SALMON SPEEDY.

A Provincetown dispatch to a Boston paper says: The submarine Salmon built at Quincy which is being given her builders' trials here preparatory to the arrival of the naval board for putting her through the standardization tests, has been showing a remarkable speed. While the government contract calls for a speed of 9 1-2 knots submerged ,the new boat has made two and three knots more than that speed, and it is believed that when the figures are given out it will be shown that she is one of the fastest, if not the fastest, of her type in the world.

Quincy High Wins by Score of 13 to 2.

"Broodus" Chapman, Russ Bates, "Terry" Murphy and Bechtel each crossed the home plate twice.

Hingham had its inning for runs in the first, when catcher Breen and Wallace scored. Both sent flies to the right hollow, and Wallace put the ball so far down that he passed all the bases, making a home run.

BROCKTON CANAL IN GREAT SYSTEM

Will Link New England with Florida Says Congressman Moore

Inland Waterways Receive Impetus from Quincy Visit

That Congressman J Hampton Moore and John H. Small were favorably impressed with Quincy's superb and unsurpassed water front was self evident to those who accompanyed them Saturday on their trip about Quincy bay. Dock and Water Front Commissioner F. F. Crane who had charge of the party had planned in addition to showing them Weymouth Fore River and the proposed outlet to the Brockton and Boston canal had planned to take the party up the bay as far as South Boston. The lateness in the partys arriving in Quincy and the extremely inclement weather however obliged him to cut the water trip somewhat short. The party was due to arrive at Houghs Neck from Boston at 9.30 but owing to delays in starting from Boston it was nearly noon before the automobiles of Col. H. L. Kincaide and E. H. Angier that brought them from Boston arrived.

On the wharf to receive them were T. L. Williams, H. F. Barker and Ex-Mayor John O. Hall of the Board of Trade, Dr. Edwin N. Hardy, Capt. Henry W. Hunt and Willard Walsh of Boston, Judge Loyed Chamberlin of Brockton, and Dr. F. E. Jones. Col. H. L. Kincaide and Commissioner Crane accompanyed them from Boston. On account of the stormy weather and the apparent heavy sea that was running it was thought the water trip would have to be omitted. The visiting Congressmen however were not afraid of rough weather and insisted on taking at least part of the trip. One of Harvey's launches was in waiting and soon the party was on its way up the river. Passing under the Quincy Point bridge and by the Fore River plant the launch proceeded up the river to a point near the former location of the Fore River plant near the Quincy avenue bridge. On the way up Commissioner Crane who has all the advantages that may come to Quincy by the developement of this water front and the building of the canal, saw to it that nothing was missed. The return to the steamboat wharf was made at 1 o'clock.

Arriving here the party entered Norteman's cafe where they were served with a dinner, which as one of the Congressmen said was unique and was one of the best that he had ever partaken of. The menu was strictly a fish one. Starting with clam chowder, baked blue fish, fried clams, fried cod, fried lobster and broiled live lobster were served in their turn with side dishes of cucumbers, tomatoes, pickles and olives, the crowning dishes including ice cream, crackers and cheese and coffee. Rev. Dr. Hardy asked the blessing and for the next hour the party enjoyed social conversation while the various numbers on the menu were being served. During the dinner a telephone message was received from Mayor Shea extending his welcome and expressing his regret that unavoidable business engagements prevented him from coming down as he had intended. A telephone was also received from the Dorothy Q house where the Colonial Dames were holding a reception extending an invitation to the Congressmen to visit them before they returned.

The dinner over Commissioner Crane said that the quests had been doing so much talking of late that he would not call upon them on this occasion. He said that ever since he was fifteen years of age he had been talking of the advantages that were to come to Quincy from its water front. That he had been called crazy by a prominent citizen when he spoke of the developement of Quincys water front, yet his crazy ideas were being realized. Land to the value of $184,000 in cash had been sold on the water front and an industry that represented $280,000 had been established on this same despised water front. He also referred to the interest taken by John O. Hall who was the Mayor of the city at the time the Fore River plant was started and of T. A. Watson the advisor and financier of it. He was the man who made it a sucess After the Fore River Co., had been established the first man to congratulate him was the very man who a few years before had said he was crazy.

It is not so much what men say as what they do. It is the man who gets there whom we want to tie to. We have two men with us today who get results. The very best things at the Atlantic Deeper Waterways is the bright class of men we meet. Men who are not excelled in the United States who have worked without thought of personal gain or favor. Three men who had done much for the Brockton canal were Judge Chamberlin of Brockton and W. S. Green of Fall River and if ever Massa-

FIRST MASS BY REV. FR. HARKINS

Native of Quincy and Former Altar Boy at St. Johns

St. John's church was thronged Sunday with the many friends of Rev. Howland J. Harkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Harkins of 86 Main street. Fr. Harkins was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop O'Connell last Friday, and he celebrated his first mass on Sunday at St. John's church, where he had been an altar boy.

Assisting Fr. Harkins at the mass were the pastor, Rev. John J. Coan as deacon, and Rev. John J. Casey as sub deacon. The musical part of the mass was sung by the regular choir under the direction of John Mahan. At the offertory, Miss Helen Galvin sang "O'Salutaries." The sermon was preached by Rev. Fr. Coan.

After the mass, Fr. Harkins administered the blessing to several hundred who presented themselves at the altar.

Sunday afternoon Fr. Harkins held an informal reception at his parents' home, which was very largely attended. He received a number of gifts, among which was a gold chalice and pyx, and hand embroidered surplice and a stole.

Rev. Fr. Harkins was born in Quincy in 1883, and received his early education at the public schools and Adams Academy. He entered Boston college in 1901, and was graduated in 1905. He then entered the Niagara university at New York, where he has been studying for the past five years.

COLONIAL DAMES.

The annual spring reception of the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames was held Saturday afternoon at the Dorothy Q house on Butler road. The weather was inclement yet that in no way interfered with the attendance which was very large. The guest of the afternoon was Mrs. Henry F. Dimmock of New York, president of the George Washington's Memorial association, and a sister of Henry F. Whitney. Congressmen J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania and J. Humphrey Small of North Carolina were also present but their stay was short.

Mrs. Barrett Wendall, state president of the Dames, introduced Mrs Dimmock who spoke informally of the auditorium which the George Washington Memorial association intends to erect near the national capital at Washington. The plans she said call for a gigantic national auditorium which may be used for inaugural balls and state functions, as well as an assembly hall for the societies which meet in annual session in Washington. It will also be suitable for the holding of the international congresses. The object of the George Washington association is to raise $2,000,000 to erect the building, also an endowed fund of $500,000 for the maintaining it. Many thousands of dollars had already been subscribed.

After the address the annual planting took place, a rhoddodendron being substituted for a tree.

Later luncheon was served in the old dining room of the house, tea being served by Mrs. I. Tucker Burr and Miss Barbara Burr.

A BAD SCARE.

Charles H. Brooks has lost several pounds in weight as the result of a terrible scare and shock to his nervous system. On opening the safe this morning at Johnson Brothers' market out jumped a little kitten which had been locked in since Saturday night. Charlie thought he was "seeing things." Physicians state that his friends need not get unduly anxious as the patient is recovering from the shock as rapidly as could be expected under the circumstances.

BRANCH AT WEST QUINCY

Public Library Secure Building And are Fitting It

Should one be interested in reading the report of the Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library for the year 1899 he would notice therein a reference to the question of branch libraries as something to be hoped for in the near future. Several times during the past ten years has the matter been brought to the attention of the public in the same manner. In the meantime through the weekly delivery baskets the outlying sections of the city have continued to be more or less accommodated, but it has been felt by the librarian to be of necessity a very unsatisfactory service. However, it has been the best that could be done while the yearly appropriation has been insufficient for any further extension of the library's privileges to those remote from City Square.

Some three years ago the weekly delivery of books to West Quincy had to be discontinued for the lack of a place where the basket could be sent. It has, therefore, been in the minds of trustees and librarian that, inasmuch as this was the least accessible ward without special library facilities of any kind, the beginning along this line should be made here as soon as the funds at the command of the trustees should warrant the expenditure. The generosity of the City Council in its appropriation this year has made possible the opening of one branch reading room in the city.

Accordingly, the building owned by Thomas J. Lamb, facing the Parkway an attractive situation, has been secured and is being fitted up for occupancy. James F. Burke, the member of the board who is on the committee having the matter in charge, is untiring in his attention to the details of the necessary changes in the room, furniture, etc.

It is hoped to be ready to open the reading room some time next month, with magazines and newspapers, a small deposit of books, and a weekly service from the Thomas Crane Public Library.

SCAVANGER WORK.

The scavanger work of the city which has been done in the past by contract, was taken over by the Board of Health this morning, by whom it will be done hereafter. The Board of Health has supplied itself with the wagons, etc., necessary to do the work and the city has appropriated the necessary money to enable them to carry it on. The ordinance placing this work in charge of the Board of Health was passed at the last meeting of the City Council and has been approved by the Mayor.

SCHOOL MASTERS ON OUTING

Base Ball, Sports and Dinner At Squantum

Although Saturday was stormy the Quincy School Masters' Club had a good time on their outing at Squantum. About 25 of the masters were present and to prove that they were not made of sugar and water they started a ball game in the wet. The two nines were made up of masters of the High school captained by Ralp W. Currier and Masters of the Grammar schools captained by William R. Kramer of the Willard school. Prof. Fouche, the supervisor of music carried the bats and umpired the game. Two innings only were played and at the end of the second innings the sound of the dinner horn cut the game short with the score 3 to 3. As for honors, they were evenly divided. It would take hours to write of all the features that took place in those two eventful innings. It is better therefore that the curtain should be rung down without more being said.

The dinner was one of the shore kind and included clams, etc. After dinner there was a brief business session during which Melvin T. Holbrook was elected president of the association, Supt. Albert L. Barber, vice president and H. Horace Wilson secretary and treasurer.

The weather was still wet and the track heavy yet it was decided to hold some of the field sports the principal of which was a running race but like the ball game of the morning it was declared a tie and the best athlete among the masters is still a matter of doubt.

PINAFORE A DELIGHT FROM BEGINNING TO END

Topical Song by Sir Joseph Porter on Quincy Women's Club a Great Hit

Best Amateur Entertainment Ever Given in the City

Amid loud applause waving of handkerchiefs and cries of "bravo" the curtain fell on the final act of "Pinafore" on Saturday afternoon at Music hall. It was undoubtedly the finest amateur performance, musical or dramatic, ever given in Quincy, a credit to the Music committee which carried it through to success and to the Quincy Women's club whose members showed so much talent and versatility.

After weeks of anticipation the day and the hour finally arrived when the doors of Music hall opened for the performance of "H. M. S. Pinafore." As early as half past twelve the women began to arrive and when the magic hour of two came it would have been difficult to have found a vacant seat. Mrs. N. G. Nickerson was head usher assisted by Mrs. Clarance Burgin, Mrs. Paul R. Blackmur, Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, Mrs. Charles C. Hearn and Mrs. Albert E. Avery.

The Exchange department of the Home Economics committee had charge of the cloak room, and also had sweets to sell during the performance, and did an active business, the supply soon being exhausted.

While waiting for the curtain to rise time was had to look over the fine

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Anniversary week is with us. Wonder if it will rain straight through.

Fourth of July without a noise would be as flavorless as an oyster stew without salt.

An exchange says only a few more days to June and its roses, brides, sweet girl graduates and dull lawn mowers.

Between rents, market prices and commutation rates suburban residents may have to move back to town to economize.

The only reason the catchy music of Pinafore is not being whistled on the streets of our city today is because the performance was attended by women only.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Veal Loaf. Mince three pounds of raw, lean veal and a quarter of a pound of the best fat pork Sprinkle through the meat half an onion grated fine, half a teaspoonful of powdered thyme, a scant saltsspoonful of powdered sweet marjoram, the same amount of summer savory, one tablespoonful of salt and a half a teaspoonful of pepper. When the meat is minced and the seasoning added, mix in about two-thirds of a cup of cracker crumbs, half a cup of veal gravy, the yolk of an egg and the whites of two eggs well beaten together.

Macaroni With Cheese. In selecting macaroni choose that having a yellowish color—that which has a blanched, white appearance is decidedly inferior—and remember in cooking it increases in quantity about fourfold. Cook in a quantity of salted boiling water until it yields easily to pressure between the fingers, drain in a colander, and cover with cold water until needed. Put in a saucepan one tablespoonful of butter and two of flour; stir them together over the fire until they form a smooth ,thick paste; add half a pint of boiling milk and stir briskly if thicker than pudding sauce, add a little boiling water; when the sauce has boiled up once, add salt, pepper and a grating of nutmeg. Put in the macaroni and while heating, grate two ounces of dry cheese, and mix it with the macaroni ,which can be served as soon as it is hot.

Lemon Pie. One cup sugar, one cup milk, three eggs beaten separately, one tablespoon of flour, and a little sa't; rind and juice of one lemon. Beat yolks and add them to the sugar; then flour, lemon and milk; but do not put in the whites of the eggs until the pie is ready to go into the oven.

Aunt Amy's Cake. Take two eggs, one and one-half cups of sugar, one cup of sour milk, one-half cup of butter, two cups of flour ,and one teaspoonful of soda. Spice to taste. This is a good cake, and one which is also very inexpensive. In baking, use a moderate oven ,and bake in loaves rather than sheets.

Punning His Specialty.

"So you have made up your mind to be a specialist—in what line?" was the question put to a struggling doctor by a friend.

"I don't know," was the answer. "I have been considering various advantages in different branches. A chiropodist can generally get a foothold, no matter how bad business is; a manicurist has usually something on hand, and an ear and eye specialist can often get a hearing when there is anything in sight. I haven't dwelt on the possibilities of throat or dental or hair experts because the two former always look down in the mouth and the latter may get but a bald living or be expected to dye for his patients!"

BROCKTON CANAL

chusetts has a canal it will be due to their efforts.

Judge Chamberlin said that he found recreation in this canal work. Massachusetts must be awakened to the possibilities that had not been dreamed of. The visit of these gentlemen has made an impression and redeemed the promises we made them. Their coming to Masachusetts has been very beneficial. Their engaging personality has endeared them to Massachusetts and we hope to have them with us again soon.

Capt. Henry W. Hunt also spoke briefly of the great possibilities that were sure to come from the developement of our water front. He wished Quincy would loan Mr. Crane to Boston.

Ex-Mayor Hall spoke of the meeting of the Massachusetts Mayors of Friday at which the two Congressmen were present. He was proud of Quincy as a city, for its history, its beauties and its people. You gentlemen have seen something of what is possible as an outlet for this canal. It has brought together the north and the south. All admire that unbounding duty that makes for the welfare of the state. We must keep in touch with these gentlemen and must meet them again.

Congressman Moore said that he had been making one night stands and had not time for recreation. You have entertained us in a helpful and hospitable manner. He had been all over the course of the proposed canal as covered by the engineers of the yovernment. He realized that there was still some feeling between the north and south among the older generations but among the younger generation those old times were matters of mere history. We are living in hope for the future and the things possible to do. He had observed that we do not constitute the whole earth and that there was still waste land everywhere. There is still much we can do for ourselves. He had seen these in the south and north and the inborn idea to see them united. He realized when we could meet as we have done and fratenize there has been no difference in the man who is ambitious. Today there is no influence in the land that will restore that old love for each other as the deeper water wave. He had found in Boston and Quincy men who could meet as man to man and he had found the same warmth of friendship that prevailed in the south. The same spirit of fellowship and comradeship. The glory of my position is not so much of the work but of the real good that will come of the information. He had observed that if the man in Florida could be linked with Boston by the great system of canals there was something to work for. No one understands better than I the importance of having one ready to help like Mr. Crane. The state of Massachusetts has been luke warm and it had been much pleasure to find such men as Mr. Crane who still stand for what they believe is the bes t for the state. He did not expect monuments to follow but that common sense will bring the people to understand the movement aright and that Massachusetts will be the terminus of this great chain of canals.

As the Congressmen were obliged to take the 4.12 train for Boston there was no more speaking as the hour was then but half an hour from the time of the departure of the train. The automobiles were then taken and the party made a flying visit to the Dorothy Q house.

The dinner at Norteman's to the visiting Congressmen and committee was given by Capt. Henry W. Hunt, Boston's expert on Water fronts; Charles Hamlin, president, and George P. Hamlin, treasurer, of the Metropolitan Coal Co., and Willard Walsh the Boston real estate dealer.

Jewett—"Cutter has a terribly cadaverous appearance. He is not possessed of what would be classed a full countenance."

Morton—"On the contrary, his is a regular hatchet face. But then he isn't ashamed of that. He rather prides himself upon it, and for good reason. A lasso was thrown over his head by a cowboy out on the plains, but his face was so sharp that it cut the rope and so saved his life."—Boston Transcript.

FOSS RECEIVES A CALL-DOWN

In Spirited Colloquy With Ways and Means Committeeman

HIS ATTACK ON THE TARIFF

Hill Says No Word Was Received From Him When Payne-Aldrich Bill Was Being Framed—Bay State Man Replies That He Had Been Ruled Out of Republican Party Long Before That Time

Washington, May 23.—The maiden effort of Representative Foss in delivering a set speech in the house was followed with more confusion than has yet marked the campaign arguments which have been waging back and forth across the house aisle which divides Republicans and Democrats. It was likewise greeted with enthusiasm.

Mr. Foss' difficulty came in a colloquy with Representative Hill (Conn.), a member of the ways and means committee, which had been severely criticized by Foss. The new member from Massachusetts had refused to yield to Hill while he was reading his speech, and for this he was taken to task when he had concluded his remarks, and his sincerity was likewise questioned by the member from Connecticut. Hill asked Foss why he did not appear before the committee when it was framing the tariff bill, at which time, he declared, Foss was a Republican, and preach the doctrine he preached to the house Saturday.

"No word was ever received from him," said Hill, "or from the institution with which he was associated. No word from the great capitalist that he was in accord then with the views which he is now advocating for the reduction of the duty on his own product!

"Now, when the gentleman from Massachusetts comes and says that all these products could be assessed at a lower duty, I ask him why he did not come as a Republican before the ways and means committee and testify to it then?"

Replying to Hill, Foss said: "I want to say to the gentleman from Connecticut that I was ruled out of the Republican party a good deal more than a year ago, five or six years ago, by the leaders of the state of Massachusetts."

"Why did not the gentleman come before the ways and means committee?"

"I considered myself at that time a member of the minority party," declared Foss.

"What difference does that make?" interrupted Hill.

"No particular difference," answered Foss, "but the people knew exactly where I stood; that has been in evidence for some time. I have not been in sympathy with the tariff policy that has been sending capital out of the country for the last ten years. It has been sending $300,000,000 of capital across the line to build up branch industries to compete with us in the foreign market today."

Evidently Foss did not enjoy his first experience in participating in the debate of the house. He was noticeably nervous when he began his speech, but as he got into the subject, which he has expounded so frequently in Massachusetts, he got his bearings and made an excellent showing, being frequently interrupted by applause.

Unusual interest was developed in Foss' speech because of the fact that his campaign was conducted strictly on the tariff reform, reciprocity and income tax issues, denouncing the Payne-Aldrich law and the reactionary Republican state and national machine, while his oponent practically identified himself with the machine and with stand-patism, his election being urged on this ground alone by leaders such as Senator Lodge and Governor Draper, who stumped for him against Foss.

It was a time of the liveliest interest in these issues—the people being aroused and informed upon them. They fully understand that at this "by-election" they were really speaking for the people of the country on these issues as well as for themselves.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Melrose Pastor Occupies a Wollaston Pulpit

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

In exchange with Rev. Carl G. Horst Rev. Thomas J. Horner of Melrose occupied the pulpit of the Wollaston Unitarian church, on Sunday, taking as his subject the story of Martha and Mary. He began by contrasting the two women, the one busy, industrious, anxious; and the other thoughtful, meditative, in trospective. Two types of women found at all times and in all places. Into this home came Jesus many nights during the last part of that period of His life which was most trying to his sensitive soul. Here, after the disappointment and stress of the day, He found a haven of rest ministered unto by these faithful friends to whom his return menat so much, and in such different ways. Martha's hospitality was of the distinctly practical sort and hers a nature that found it difficult to comprehend the finer fiber of Mary's welcome to the Man of God. She offered to Him the hospitality of soul and the receptivity of heart and mind of a large nature, seeking to refresh itself at the springs of life—the fine companionship which must have been such a solace to Jesus after the disheartening events of those last days.

Very sympathetically the preacher hinted that Jesus' rebuke to Martha may have lost much of its tenderness as the story has come down to us through so many generations, and in a few concluding words pointed out that the lesson gained from the simple narrative is a question of values. Shall we place the emphasis in life upon passing and external matters, or shall we live in the realm of permanent, deep realities? Shall we be so concerned with conditions and superficial details that we shall forget to live?

We are glad that so large a number in the parish are planning to attend the Unitarian Anniversary meetings in Boston this week. Interesting addresses on vital topics will be given by the foremost leaders in the church, and it is always a pleasure to meet the delegates that gather from all parts of the country, including Canada. The reception will be held at the Somerset this evening. President and Mrs. Samuel A. Eliot and Chief Justice and Mrs. Marcus P. Knowlton will receive the guests, and Hon. Curtis Guild, Jr., will deliver a brief address.

The National Alliance meeting will be held Tuesday at 10 A. M. in South Congregational church, the special delegates to it being Mrs. Frank A. Page and Mrs. George W. Bennett.

At the American Unitarian Association meetings on Wednesday our church will be officially represented by Rev. Carl G. Horst, Mrs. W. E. Simmons and Mrs. Charles S. Comins.

Miss Gertrude Lacey, Mrs. E. T. Turner, and Mrs. E. J. Cummings are the special delegates to the Unitarian Sunday School Society meetings on Friday in King's chapel.

Harry Hooper, Leon D. Browne and Miss Simmons will represent the Wollaston Y. P. R. U. at the annual business meeting of the National Y. P. R. U. in the Second Church, Boston, May 26.

The Unitarian May festival will be held in Tremont Temple. His Excellency the Governor Eben S. Draper will preside. The speakers are Rev. Charles E. Park; Hon. Joseph Walker, speaker of the House of Representatives, Hon. John D. Long and Rev. Theodore D. Bacon of Salem.

The June meeting of the Norfolk county of conference of Unitarian churches will be held with the Wollaston Unitarian church, Wednesday, June 8.

All who have children to be christened this year will please communicate with the minister.

Rev. Carl G. Horst yesterday morning occupied the pulpit of the Congregational Unitarian society in Melrose and in the afternoon that of the First Congregational parish in Sharon, and in the evening attended the meeting of the Unitarian Fellowship for Social Justice in Arlington Street church, Boston.

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S CHURCH.

He dwelt on the unity of the Godhead, the true faith. God the Creator, Jesus the Nazarene, and the Holy Spirit, not one only person, but three persons in one substance making the adorable and eternal trinity, without any difference or inequality.

The offertory anthem was "Lord, we pray Thee." George M." Campbell was the soloist.

The Power of Paderewski.

A hard headed business man went to hear Paderewski play, says A. E. Thomas in Success Magazine. The man is not a musician. He spends his days trying to buy cotton when it is low and sell it when it is high. This is how he described his experience at the piano recital.

"You know, I'm not easily stirred up, and I don't know anything about music. I wouldn't know whether a man was playing the piano extremely well or just fairly well. But I do know that Paderewski played one thing that afternoon that stirred me up as I never was stirred in my life. I don't remember what it was. I couldn't have told whether he was playing an hour or five minutes. All I know is that it stirred up feelings within me I had never felt before. Great waves of emotion swept over me. I wanted to shout and I wanted to cry, and when the last chord was struck I found myself on my feet waving my umbrella and shouting like a wild Indian. I went out of that hall as weak as a rag and happier than I'd been in years. I can't account for it. I've tried, but I can't explain it. Can you?"

Burglar's Besetting Sin.

The burglar's besetting sin is heedlessness. The chances are that it was heedlessness that first drove him out of honest employment and made a burglar of him. The burglar ransacks a house and carries away a spoon holder, a card tray or some other inexpensive souvenir of the occasion, and he overlooks the thousand dollar bill on the dining room table and the rope of pearls on the towel rack. This heedlessness seems to be common to the whole fraternity. We do not know what the experience of other cities is, but in Newark the burglar leaves an astonishing amount of portable wealth behind him invariably. When he reads on the day after the robbery that he took Mrs. De Stile's chafing dish and ignored her $500 ruby bracelet beside it or that he upset the Pompleys' dresser drawer to get the revolver and failed to see the government bonds that lay in plain sight on the washstand, how he much gnash his teeth and hate himself for neglecting to develop his powers of attention and observation in his youth!—Newark News.

What "Garbler" Once Meant.

"Garble," "garbled," "garbler," are words which nowadays convey quite a different meaning from that which was formerly accepted. "Garble" originally signified simply "to select for a purpose." At one time there was an officer, termed "the garbler of spices," whose duty it was to visit the shops and examine the spices, ordering the destruction of all impure goods. His duties were similar to those of the inspector of the modern health department, who forbids the sale of decayed vegetables or tainted meat. The word comes from a root meaning "to sift." The impurities sifted out have in the course of generations corrupted the term till a "garbled report" is no longer a report wherefrom all uncertainty has been removed, but one that is full of misrepresentation and made misleading with deliberate intent.

Siberian Camels.

The native camels of Siberia are a source of constant wonder to travelers. On the Mongolian plateaus, for instance, the thermometer often registers a temperature of 40 degrees below zero, but the camels do not mind it at all, walking about as blithely as if the weather were as balmy as spring. On the other hand, the temperature on the Gold desert in summer is sometimes 140 degrees above zero, and the beasts mind that heat just as little as they do the extreme cold.

—The people who tell us with tiresome iteration that this is a commercial age and that nothing is thought of but money ought to take notice of the great number of men who are devoted to science and Philanthropy without prospect of pecuniary reward, and ought also to observe the popular recognition of distinction in any line—the honors paid to scholarship and scientific discoveries and public services of all sorts. There was never a time when more men and women were devoting themselves to extending the area of knowledge, relieving distress, searching for means of preventing disease and seeking to arouse the intellectual and moral sensibilities of mankind, or a time when such efforts received more general recognition from the world ,of one sort and another.—Newport News.

PINAFORE

souvenir programs, which contained sixteen pages bound in handsome green covers. On the front cover was a picture of the Quincy Women's clubhouse, which made the program of value as a souvenir. Considerable time was needed to peruse the books for beside many advertisements of local merchants there was much miscellaneous reading. There was the club hymn written by Mrs. Irene Chipman Tirrell, a prologue by the Music committee, the story of Pinafore, cast of characters, synopsis of scenes, musical numbers , patronesses and several bright anecdotes. The prologue was as follows:

"O many a time, in spirit's sombre night,
When our rehearsals hadn't come out "right,"
We've sought our patron saint at close of day,
And begged that she would keep us by the way;
That fairest Hope would lead us 'gainst all fear
Lest we might fail—the "Opera" not appear.
She served us well; and our reward is great;
We bid you welome! and we leave to fate
The chance we may not please you; but we trust
That you will all be kindly, as you're just,
And find today in this brief hour of fun
Enjoyment keen; for then, the victory's won.
If we but entertain you, as we would,
And you but spend the hour to find it good,
Then shall we deem our labors all a jest;—
So pass the laurels—if we do the rest."

A few minutes after two Mrs. John G. Worster, conductor, and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, pianist, took their positions. Each had been presented with a beautiful bunch of pink roses which adorned piano and desk. As the curtain rolled up the deck of the good ship Pinafore was disclosed and a group of natty sailors who sang the opening chorus with a snap that gave evidence of the good performance to follow.

The performance was a delight from the beginning to the final chorus; each actor so perfect that it hardly seemed that it was by amateurs. So well were the parts cast that they seemed written especially for each actor instead of the actors being fitted to the parts. The costuming, voices, acting and every detail was perfect. The cast was:

Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B.
Miss Alice Gertrude Coe
Captain Corcoran
Miss Annie Dean
Ralph Racksstraw
Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell
Dick Deadeye
Mrs. Frank A. Emery
Bill Bobstay Mrs. Ernest V. Fitts
Bob Beckett Mrs. Oscar A. Blaisdell
Sergeants of Marines
Mrs. George L. Badger and Mrs. Victor E. Miller
Josephine Mrs. Frank J. Moore
Hebe Mrs. Frank A. Page
Little Buttercup
Mrs. George H. Ryder

Chorus of "Sisters, Cousins and Aunts" of Sir Joseph—Mrs. William F. Cummings, Mrs. W. Marsh, Mrs. Fred E. Drake, Mrs. J. Francis Merrill, Mrs. Harrison S. Loud, Mrs. William G. Shaw, Miss Norma C Lowe, Mrs. George A. Sidelinger and Mrs. Robert R. Smith.

Sailors—Mrs. Carroll E. Bates, Mrs. Maurice P. Spillane, Mrs. Horace G. Crocker, Miss M. Lillie Taber, Mrs. Jesse I. Litchfield, Mrs. William O. Wellington, Mrs. Edward E. Miller, Mrs. Henry M. Wright, Mrs. Arthur W. Ryder and Mrs. Charles D. Young.

First honors go to Miss Annie Dean of South Weymouth, who took the part of Captain Corcoran at a few weeks' notice. She was perfect for the part, in acting and voice. Miss Alice Gertrude Coe as Sir Joseph Porter was capital, in fact it is hard to place the honors in an all-star cast. Miss Tirrell never sang better; Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Ryder and Mrs. Page, were true to the parts, and sang delightfully; Mrs. Emery as Dick Headeye had a difficult part which she carried through cleverly; Mrs. Fitts, Mrs. Blaisdell, Mrs. Badger and Mrs. Miller all sustained their parts well as did the chorus. Flowers were constantly passed over the foot lights, all the stars receiving bouquets.

The topical song by Sir Joseph Porter made a great hit. It was as folows:

Now ladies ,all who listen to me,
If you wish to climb the social tree,
Don't try your shoulders with the rich to rub,
But send your application to the Women's c'ub,
For the Quincy Women's club, you see,
Will elevate its members in society.

REFRAIN

At the club they cannot all agree,
To remove their hats and let the others see;
They hug the corners and they line the wall,
So they will not have to bother with their hats at all,
And the officers are a sorry lot,
It was voted they had better wear their hats than not.

When told the membership is full
Don't think your application won't give you a pull,
The secretary, in a big round fist,
Will write your honored name upon the waiting list
That waiting list is a guarantee,
Its members all belong to high society.

REFRAIN

At the club on many a meeting day
Is dispensed a generous hospitality,
There's always plenty and enough to spare,
And where it all is gathered up, you needn't care,
Its from A or Z or the middle set
Its not from any person, but an alphabet.

The club house stands upon a hill,
And the ladies find it isn't hard to fill,
At the Brackett house they will pay a dime,
To sit upon the stairs, and have a real good time;
And the Brackett house looks good to me,
Although I am the ruler of the Queen's Navee.

REFRAIN

I think that I have not the time,
To sing any more of this classic rhyme,
I have not forgotten ,though it seem to be,
That I'm Sir Joseph Porter, and a K. C. B.
From the ocean broad if ever I am free,
I think good old Atlantic is the place for me.

Between the acts fair maidens sold candy and the libretto of the opera, making it seem just like a regular metropolitan matinee.

The entire production was staged and directed by J. R. Pitman the well known stage director of Boston, whose able directing brought the opera to success. Praise in no unstinted measure should go to Mrs. Worster, who so ably conducted; to Mrs. Smith who accompanied at the piano so understandingly; to the committee having the production in charge, Mrs. William H. Doble, chairman, Mrs. Frank J. Moore, Mrs. C. W. Smith, Mrs. H. W. Tirrell and Mrs. J. G. Worster, also to Mrs. Isabelle Davis who was behind the scenes assisting in the make-up.

Financially, as well as socially, Pinafore will go down in club history as a great success, as a goodly sum was netted for the fresh air camp for which the operetta was given. So enthusiastic was the audience that several curtain calls were necessary at the close, Mr. Pitman joining the performers in receiving the hearty encore. Many regretted that an evening performance could not be given that the men might also enjoy the fine production.

It was quite the finest thing ever given in our city. No "man" can dispute the assertion and we know no woman will.

The Crows and the Snake.

"Strolling in Burma one day," says a writer in the London Field, "I came to a ditch bridge, and about ten yards off there was a mass of black soft mud caused by buffaloes rolling. On the bridge was a small brown snake about two feet in length. This snake is an ordinary jungle inhabitant and is very venomous. Surrounding him were a mob of some dozen crows. Whenever the snake attempted to escape the nearest bird would jump in and jerk it back by the tail. The crows generally kept just out of the snake's reach, but on three separate occasions the birds were struck.

"Immediately on being bitten a crow flew over to the wet mud and swallowed three or four mouthfuls without a pause. It then perched up in a tree and took no further part in the fight. The incident ended in the snake escaping between the planks of the bridge. What interests me is why did the stricken birds eat the mud? Was it taken as a kind of antidote or what was the reason?"

Mississippi Steamboating.

The steamboat age on the Mississippi began about 1821 and flourished for fifty years. As early as 1834 the number of steamboats on the Mississippi and its tributaries is estimated at 230, and in 1842 there were 450 vessels, with a value of $25,000,000. But the golden era was from 1848 till the war. Never did the valley and steamboating prosper more than then. Thousands of bales of cotton were annually shipped to southern markets, and the wharfs of St. Louis and Memphis and Vicksburg and other large ports were stacked with piles of merchandise and lined with scores of steamers.—Travel Magazine

SUBMARINE RECORD

Quincy Built Viper Goes Five Hundred Miles Alone

The old cruiser Montgomery, recently refitted and commissioned for work as a submarine training ship and tender, has arrived at Tompkinsville with the story of a voyage of submarines that has broken all long distance trips for craft of that class says a special dispatch to the Herald.

The Montgomery, with the auxiliary cruiser Prairie, left Charleston 10 days ago, each of the ships having submarines in tow. The Prairie had the Viper and the Tarantula, while the Montgomery had the Cuttlefish, the flagship of Lieut. Frederick V. McNair, the submarine division commander, in tow.

The cruiser kept the submarines in tow until they were off Cape Lookout, just south of Cape Hatteras. Then the Viper and the Tarantula broke away from the Prairie. The sea was running high and the little vessels were tossed up and down like corks.

After much work they were recaptured, but again broke away from the Prairie, and it was then decided that Midshipman L. P. Warren, commanding the Viper, and Ensign Theodore G. Ellyson, commanding the Tarantula, should try to make Annapolis, some 500 miles away, without convoy.

The Viper was the first to get away, and arrived in the Severn off the naval academy reservation, with a record for submarine long distance going that was never equalled before. When she finally reached her destination she was still supplied with enough fuel, water and food for 100 miles more.

The Tarantula, under Ensign Ellyson, made a good showing, but it did not equal that of the Viper.

The Cuttlefish was intow of the Montgomery until she reached a point off the Virginia capes. Then she left the Montgomery and made the voyage to Annapolis, 150 miles away, unattended.

The Viper, Tarantula and Cuttlefish were all built at Quincy.

DOWN TO SLEEP.

(Louise Chandler Moulton.)

We lay us down to sleep,
And leave to God the rest;
Whether to wake and weep
Or wake no more be best.

Why vex our souls with care?
The grave is cool and low,—
Have we found life so fair
That we should dread to go?

We've kissed love's sweet, red lips,
And left them sweet and red;
The rose the wild bee sips
Blooms on when he is dead.

Some faithful friends we've found,
But they who love us best,
When we are under ground
Will laugh on with the rest.

No task have we begun
But other hands can take;
No work beneath the sun
For which we need to wake.

Then hold us fast, sweet Death,
If so it seemeth best
To Him who gave us breath
That we should go to rest.

We lay us down to sleep;
Our weary eyes we close;
Whether to wake and weep
Or wake no more, He knows.

ARRESTED FOR MURDER

Homesick Man Runs Into Arms of a Detective as He Returns

New York, May 23.—Homesickness besetting him for nine years, during which time he roamed through the west a free and unsuspected man, finally drove William Whiteway, 36 years old—"wanted" as one of a trio who murdered Theodore Johnson here in 1901—back like a homing pigeon to New York, to fall into the clutches of the police, who for the nine years have been on the lookout for him.

He came back disguised by beard, moustache and the changes wrought by years. Feeling thoroughly secure from detection he slipped from the freight train which brought him here, "broke" but happy.

For hours he tramped the familiar streets, for love of which he had risked his liberty. Then, exhausted and starving, he accosted a man on the street.

"Please give me some money. I must eat," he pleaded.

The man looked straight into his eyes. "Hello, Whiteway," he said. It was Detective Hart, who nine years ago looked high and low for the man. A few minutes later Whiteway was a prisoner. At first he resolutely denied his identity. Later he broke down and admitted it.

BALLOONISTS ARE MISSING

Fear That Three Men Met Disaster In Long Island Sound

Pittsfield, Mass., May 23.—Anxiety is expressed here over the fate of the three men who made a balloon ascension from here Saturday noon and have not yet been heard from. William F. Whitehouse piloted the balloon, the Pittsfield, taking up with him Philip Carroll and Lorimer Warner.

The balloon started off in a southerly direction and before rising Whitehouse promised to send back word immediately upon landing,

The balloon was heavily loaded and under ordinary conditions would have come down before getting very far into Connecticut. The possibility that the balloon may have reached the sound and sunk there, however, causes anxiety.

DE LESSEPS FLIES ACROSS CHANNEL

Makes Nearly Sixty Miles an Hour During the Passage

London, May 23.—Count Jacques de Lesseps, grandson of the engineer of the Suez canal, made a flight across the English channel in record time. He was actually over the water twenty-five minutes, went at a speed of sixty miles an hour part of the way and made the whole passage at nearly that pace.

He occupied ten minutes in circling over the starting point and in making a landing. He used a Bleriot monoplane carrying a fifty-horsepower motor. He beat Bleriot's time made last July 25 by five minutes.

As a feat of daring this flight was the most remarkable yet made. All the other aviators who have set out to cross the channel have waited for decent weather. De Lesseps planned to fly by the calendar and he made the passage with a thunderstorm in the air, fog so thick he could see nothing, and an unruly and capricious wind blowing. It was a performance that aviators would have declared impossible last season.

TREASURY IS FATTENED

Sunday School Association Elects Noted Men as Life Members

Washington, May 23.—President Taft, Mrs. Taft, Theodore Roosevelt, King George of England, President Diaz of Mexico and William J. Bryan were made life members of the World's Sunday School association in the convention here amid scenes of great enthusiasm.

For each of those so honored $1000 had to be subscribed, and in the case of Roosevelt the chairman of the convention, by popular demand, limited subscriptions to $1.

The nominaion of persons of less public renown continued until $65,000 had been pledged for mission work.

NEVER HEARD OF TAFT

North Dakota Farmer Had Long Forgotten Name of Roosevelt

Minot, N. D., May 23.—John Brama, a 52-year-old farmer, born in southern Indiana, but living for the last seven years twenty-eight miles south of Minot, in the "bad lands," said that he had never before heard of President Taft, and that he "might aheard" of Roosevelt, but had long forgotten the name.

Brama was the only one selected out of a special venire of fifty men for a jury to try Robert S. Noah for murder.

Rescuer Dragged to Death

Lakeville, Mass., May 23.—Locked in the frenzied hold of John J. Gallagher, whom he had carried to the surface, Adam Bopp was drowned with Gallagher in his attempt at rescue when he was unable to free himself from the "death grasp" of the man he tried to save. The double drowning occurred on Lake Assawampsett.

QUEEN VICTORIA

Is Deeply Affected by Loss of Her Baby

QUEEN DEEPLY FEELS LOSS

Victoria Weeps Bitterly Over Outcome of Accouchement

MALE CHILD IS BORN DEAD

King Alfonso In London When Confinement Which Was Daily Expected Occurs—Two Sons and a Daughter Survive In Spanish Royal Household—Body of Dead Infant Will Be Buried Without Ceremony

Madrid, May 23.—Queen Victoria was delivered of a male infant, stillborn. The unhappy outcome is attributed to a premature accouchement, which, however was otherwise natural. The body will be buried without ceremony in the Royal Pantheon of the Escurial monastery.

When told of her loss the mother wept bitterly. King Alfonso is still in London, where he attended the funeral of the queen's uncle, the late King Edward.

The past few weeks has been most trying for the queen. Early in the present month the approach of confinement was noted by the royal physicians and twice during the days that followed the officials of the court were summoned under the impression that the birth was imminent. While this state of doubt existed, the king was obliged to go to London for the royal obsequies.

According to custom, Premier Canalejas y Mendez bore the body to a room adjoining the queen's chamber for the official inspection by the members of the royal family and the court functionaries, who had been waiting.

The present is the first instance of a still birth in the Spanish royal family, although a child of Queen Isabella II lived only long enough to receive the lustral water.

Queen Victoria is the mother of two boys and a girl.

Queen Victoria, formerly Princess Ena of Battenburg, and King Alfonso were married at Madrid on May 31, 1906.

When she first went to the Spanish court the queen's beauty was frequently commented on. As a princess she was one of the most beautiful in Europe.

When she came out one of her intimates declared: "If she were not a princess she would rank as a reigning beauty." The queen is tall and stately, with regular features, but her chief charm lies in her exquisite coloring. She is very fair, with blue eyes, a pink and white skin, and has—for a blonde—the unusual charm of jet black eyelashes. For royalty, the queen has a long list of active accomplishments. She dances well, can drive a motor as well as her own pony cart, and is a fearless horsewoman. She also enjoys gardening, and has a practical knowledge of horticulture.

Lately it has been said that the queen was losing some of her early beauty.

DOES NOT LOSE HIS VOTE

But Ex-Governor Rollins Is Barred From Holding Federal Office

New York, May 23.—The conviction of former Governor Rollins of New Hampshire of a felony operates to prevent him from holding federal office in the future. Whether he loses his citizenship and consequently his right to vote or hold office in New Hampshire depends wholly on the provisions of the laws of that state.

The federal statute which makes the offense of smuggling or attempted smuggling a felony was enacted in the latter part of last year, and provides that any offense punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year constitutes a felony.

Concord, N. H., May 23.—The conviction of ex-Governor Rollins does not in any way affect his rights either as a citizen of this state or in the matter of holding office. There is nothing on the statute books of the state bearing upon such a case.

BARGE MEN ARE HELD

Charged With Wrongfully Taking Two Young Girls From Boston

Elizabeth, N. J., May 23.—Jerome Malloy, captain of the coal barge Langford, and Isaac Hirsch of Boston were each held in $1000 bail, charged with abducting Eileen Goodwin of Waltham, Mass., and Elizabeth Kelly of West Newton, Mass., at Boston and taking them aboard the coal barge for the purpose of forcing them into white slavery. In default of bail the two men were committed to the county jail.

The girls were committed to the county jail, too, on a technical charge to insure their presence in court as witnesses against Malloy and Hirsch. John Wyke, engineer of the barge, was also arrested and sent to jail for thirty days. He is held as a witness.

Prosecutor Swift of Elizabeth says he will take up the case with the United States district attorney.

BOTHA AS PREMIER OF SOUTH AFRICA

He Is Summoned to Cape Town to Form First Cabinet

Cape Town, May 23.—General Louis Botha, premier of the Transvaal, has been summoned to form the first cabinet of United South Africa, of which Viscount Gladstone is the first governor general.

United South Africa was formed recently by the federation of the British colonies of Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal and the Orange River state.

The four original colonies have become provinces of the union and each province will have its own council, consisting of as many members as the province is entitled to send to the union parliament. The latter will consist of a senate and house of assembly and will be the general legislative body.

Cape Town will be the seat of the legislature and Pretoria the seat of the executive government. The union was formed with the consent of the individual parliaments.

PANIC AT A CIRCUS

Main Tent Burns While Fifteen Thousand People Are at Show

Schenectady, N. Y., May 23.—Fifteen thousand people were thrown into a panic when the main tent of the Barnum & Bailey circus burned. Circus employes and police succeeded in getting the frantic men and children safely from the blazing tent. One woman was injured and hundreds fainted and were carried out by the police and firemen.

The fire is thought to have started from a lighted match being dropped by a boy in the bleachers. It started on a guy rope and climbed to the ceiling, where it communicated with the canvas, and the entire tent was consumed in less than half an hour.

RICH INDIAN IS DEAD

Nason Accumulated $300,000 by Dealing In Land and Farming

Seattle, May 23.—Charles Nason, a Yakima Indian, worth approximately $300,000, died at his ranch in Nanum Canyon. He was the wealthiest Indian in the northwest and made his money buying and selling la in the early days.

Nason has been for more than ten years farming in the rich valley where he owned 1000 acres, and by intelligent methods had made a big success growing grain and fattening catttle. Nason's catttle when shipped to coast cities always brought the highest price.

STAR GAZERS ARE ANXIOUS

Hope to Make Valuable Observations at Harvard

ECLIPSE OF MOON TONIGHT

Will Last For Three Hours, During Which Time Efforts Will Be Made to Discover Whether Moon Has a Satellite, Concerning Which Much Skepticism Has Been Expressed Among Astronomers

Boston, May 23.—The astronomers of the country will be interested tonight in observing the eclipse of the moon, which begins at 10:46 o'clock and lasts for three hours. Astronomers are hoping for a clear night, as they are anxious to do a great amount of photographing and measuring. The eclipse will be of no service in observing Halley's comet, as the comet sets before the eclipse takes place.

Tonight's eclipse will be visible to North and South America, the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and in part to southwest Europe, the western portions of Africa and the extreme eastern parts of Australia.

The moon will enter the shadow of the earth at 10:46 and leave at 2:22. The eclipse is caused by the earth passing between the sun and the moon, and occurs at "full moon." The sun being over a million times larger than the earth, causes the shadow cast by the latter toward the moon to be conical in shape. The length of this shadow is nearly four times the distance from the earth to the moon, which is about 240,000 miles, and the moon, when eclipsed, passes through the broader part of it, the breadth of the shadow where the moon crosses it being two and two-thirds times the breadth of the moon.

As the moon overtakes the earth's shadow from the west, a lunar eclipse always begins on the east side of the moon, as her eastern limb first enters the shadow and the eclipse ends on the western side, differing in this respect from an eclipse of the sun, which runs an opposite course.

Even in total eclipse the moon is observable through field glasses. Astronomers will pay particular attention during the eclipse to stars which are too light to be studied and measured when the full moon is shining in the skies. They will also seek a satellite of the moon in the skies, which has always been suspected, but is not observable when the moon is shining brightly. Much skepticism is expressed among astronomers as to the existence of this satellite, but some maintain that it will some time be discovered.

Halley's somet sets tonight at 10:05 o'clock, and, weather conditions permitting, may be seen for three hours prior to that time, as the sun sets at 7:05 p .m. The comet is then 83,000,000 miles from earth, pointing toward point of setting sun.

Harvard astronomers, who have been on the qui vive for the past week to observe Halley's comet, were again disappointed last night. While reports were received from other points to the effect that the mysterious traveler of the solar system had been observed, absolutely nothing could be seen of comet or its tail at the Cambridge institution.

Telegrams from other observatories indicate that the comet has resumed its tail and is flying at top speed off toward the other extremity of its elliptical orbit, whence it returns seventy-five years hence.

There will be two weeks or more in which to view it, constantly growing fainer, and then, until the spring of 1911, it will be observable through telescopes, perhaps 500,000,000 miles from the earth, or as far away as the orbit of Jupiter.

Woman Accepts Baby Boy, but Wants to Reject Two Daughters

New York, May 23.—When she rallied from the anesthetic and saw triplets as the stork's first gift to her Mrs. Lokodia Rorosky of this city refused to believe they were hers. Her husband had hard work convincing her that the boy and two girls were her own.

At first she gladly accepted the boy, but insisted that the girls belonged to another woman, who was trying to foist them on her.

It was only after long pleading by Rorosky that his wife grudgingly consented to accept the two little girls as her own.

The Cotton Buyer

How He Traded In the South During the Civil War and Why He Quit.

By ALBERT CHITTENDEN

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

In 1862, when President Lincoln feared that the want of cotton by the English and other foreign manufacturers might lead to intervention, he issued an order to his generals to give every facility in their power to persons desiring to purchase the article and permit them to ship it on the army wagons going north empty for supplies for the troops. At the time cotton could be bought for a song in the south, and before the war closed it had risen to a dollar a pound in the northern states.

I was then young and eager to make money. Having some capital, I went down into Virginia and rode among the plantations in the neighborhood of the Union armies, buying cotton wherever I found an opportunity to get it within our lines and send it north. One day I had been out a few miles beyond the Union vedettes to a plantation where I had been told was stored a large stock of cotton. There was no enemy in that direction, and if there were I considered my vocation a shield against interference, for I was a citizen engaged in assisting the southern planters to turn their cotton into money. I bought fifty bales on condition that I could get transportation for them and rode back to the Union lines.

Something about the arrangement of the camps looked different from what I had left. Indeed, I found a great deal of difference. While I had been away the corps I had left had moved and another had taken its place. The officer of the picket post would not allow me to go where I liked, but took me to the provost marshal, Major Campbell.

I noticed that the moment the provost marshal looked at me he gave a faintly perceptible start. I told him who I was and the business I was engaged in. He listened to my story, then said he would report my case to the general commanding. He left me to do so and was going so long that, tired of waiting, I was about to mount my horse and ride away when a sentry stopped me. I asked him why he detained me, and he said that he had been ordered not to let me leave till the provost marshal returned.

Major Campbell rode up as I was talking with the sentry. He asked me to come into his tent and, getting out the army demijohn, invited me to have something. He chatted in a familiar way, seeming much interested in my cotton purchases and asking me a number of questions pertaining to the business. He told me that the general would like to see me, but was too busy to receive me till the next day.

I had left my belongings at a house a short distance in rear of the army, and when the conversation lagged I arose and said I would ride there, return in the morning and call on the general. Major Campbell said that there was no necessity for me to go away, since he would be happy to give me a cot in a tent with a subaltern officer and my meals at his mess. But I said I wished some clean linen and would prefer to go. At that he told me as politely as possible that the general had directed him to bring me to his headquarters the next day and he would not dare risk losing me.

This was equivalent to telling me that I was a temporary quasi prisoner. Nevertheless I did not think much of the matter, for if permitted to go I might find it inconvenient to return. In that event the major would be liable to censure for disobedience of orders. So I made a virtue of necessity, saying that I would be happy to accept his hospitality.

During the evening I played the army game with the major and several other officers in his tent, the army game being draw poker, with greenbacks in lieu of chips. Somehow it seemed to me that I was an object of interest. Every now and again an officer would come to the tent to look over the game. But, glancing up at these gentlemen, I invariably noticed their eyes fixed on me rather than on the cards. I was puzzled. What was there about a civilian engaged in cotton buying to interest officers of the army? However, the game interested me, and speculation of this kind did not take root in my mind. We played till midnight, when the party broke up, and I was conducted by my tent mate to my place of rest. I noticed that he kept an eye on me while I took off my outer clothing and did not take it away till I stood in my undergarments.

While going to sleep the circumstances of my detention, the interest I had excited, this watchfulness of my tent mate, altogether found a firmer lodgment in my brain. Yet as I pondered over the matter I could not think of one act sufficiently noticeable to signify anything in particular. As for my visit to the general the next day, it might be an advantage. I had expected to arrange for cotton transportation with the quartermaster. Possibly I might derive some advantages by interesting the general in what I was doing.

The next morning I waited till 11 o'clock for Major Campbell to take me to the general, when, becoming impatient, I asked him the cause of the delay. He told me that the general was busy. I inwardly cursed these military nabobs who made every one await their pleasure and were treated by their subordinates as princes of the blood, if not sovereigns. It was not till 3 in the afternoon that the major told me to mount my horse and go with him.

We found the general about to ride out on a tour of inspection, and I was invited to join him. I did so, and for awhile he kept me beside him, asking me what seemed to me a lot of stupid questions. I tried to tell him about my cotton buying, but he wouldn't listen to it. He seemed more interested in learning where I had been during the day I had come into his lines and the day before that and as far back as I could remember. Then suddenly he ceased to take any further interest in me or my whereabouts and, calling his chief of staff, waved me back with the others.

Major Campbell rode with us—why I didn't know, for he was not of the general's personal staff. Judging from his interest in me, I fancied that he might have been brought along for the purpose of entertaining me. He kept calling my attention to this feature of the position and telling me things about the number and disposition of the troops. They would not have interested me in the slightest had not his statement of the different divisions and brigades he declared were on the ground appeared much overdrawn. But why should he bother me at all with these matters, and why should he desire to make it appear to me that the army was stronger than it really was? I was a citizen with no military knowledge whatever and was content that these fiery soldiers should slaughter one another ad lib. provided I could make a fortune.

The general called Major Campbell to him and said something in an undertone. Then the major dropped back beside me. As he left the general the latter said loud enough to be heard:

"That plan would never do in the world. He who has eyes to see can see for himself. I'll issue the order as soon as I get back to headquarters."

I had no idea what this meant, nor did I take any interest in it. I was getting disgusted at being kept idle all this while by these autocratic military men. I wanted to get at the quartermaster, since the general took no interest in my business affairs, and secure transportation for the last lot of cotton I had bought.

But a terrible surprise was in store for me. We had no sooner got back to camp than I was placed under arrest, with two soldiers standing over me, ready to shoot me at the slightest provocation. I was not only indignant—I was frightened. No officer came near me, so that I was unable to ask any one what it all meant, except my guards, who told me that all they knew about it was that they had orders to shoot me if I made the slightest move to escape.

The first information as to my real position I received was when an officer approached me and began to read from a paper he held in his hands. I was too agitated at first to listen to or understand it, but presently I gathered from it that I was charged with being a spy and was to be tried for that offense by drumhead court martial that very evening.

Everything now gradually became plain to me. On the supposition that I had come into their lines for the purpose of gaining information the provost marshal had reported the fact to the general, leaving word that I should not be permitted to go away. The matter of my identity being suppositious, I was not to know that I was suspected until they were sure of their case. This accounted for the interest I had excited and for my tent mate watching me while I took off my clothes. He wished to know if I was armed. Then while on the tour of inspection they had thought of permitting me to go back to where I came from to report a greater force than they mustered. But the general had quashed this plan, saying, "He who has eyes to see can see for himself." The order he said he would issue was for my trial, which also meant execution.

In the evening I was taken into a large tent where a number of officers sat around a pine table lighted with candles. One of them stated that I had been lurking about their camps and had been arrested. But before being placed in proper confinement I had taken to my heels, tearing up a paper as I ran. I had escaped, but the bits of paper collected had contained drawings of their position and memoranda of the number of their troops.

An officer acted as my counsel, but as he knew no more about me than the others his defense was worthless. Unfortunately I had recently sent a lot of business papers north that would have proved my identity. As it was I was mistaken for some one they had their grip on before and who they supposed was still plying his vocation as spy under the guise of a cotton buyer.

I was condemned to be shot in an hour. Ten minutes before the time appointed for my execution an officer rode up and called out:

"We've retaken that fellow who got away last week. He's been concealed by a southerner."

The moment he looked at me he started back in astonishment.

"I'd have sworn," he said, "that I left you only a few minutes ago. You must be his twin brother."

I was not "his twin brother," but when I saw him the next morning just before he was shot I saw that his resemblance to me was remarkable.

I had had enough of cotton buying. I concluded to go north and recover from the shock I had received.

SHOWED TWO GOLD BRICKS IN BOSTON

Alleged Swindlers Are Held In Heavy Bail In Philadelphia

Philadelphia, May 23.—E. R. Starkeloff and George F. Post, accused of being green goods swindlers and confidence men, were held in $12,000 and $11,000 bail, respectively, for a hearing on June 1 on charges of using the mails to defraud.

It is alleged that their method was to address letters to deceased persons abroad, telling of the discovery of gold mines in which the men, who they addressed as still living, was interested. One of these letters was mailed to William H. Lee, London, and fell into the hands of his heir, Kenneth Lee. The latter came to America and met two men by appointment in Boston. They showed him two gold bricks said to have been the product of the mine, and induced him to advance $25,000 for the purchase of an adjoining claim.

Soon after Lee reached home he received a letter, it is claimed, telling him that he had been duped, but to keep quiet about it, as it would only create a laugh. Postal inspectors allege that the men under arrest are the men with whom he had dealings.

Savoie was single and was an expert stone setter. During the past three years he has been building a large, comfortable pleasure motor yacht, and he was intending to live on board during the coming summer.

Miss Addie Newcomb of Campello was a guest over the week end of Quincy friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Howland, nee Beatrice Tisdale, of Adams street welcomed a young son to their home on Saturday.

The men of Mr. Wrigley's choirs at Braintree, Wollaston and Quincy will sing "A Carnichal Idel and Comrades in arms at the concert in Colonial hall on Friday.

The Naval bill is expected to pass Congress today, and there is a safe majority in favor of two new battleships. Quincy is anxious to learn whether the eight hour clause will remain.

Senator Hultman had an order put through the senate late last week, in which the commmittees on agriculture metropolitan affairs, railroads, banks and banking, water supply, street railways and ways and means were ordered to report on all matters referred to them by May 25.

There came very near being a serious automobile accident at the corner of Hancock and Dimmock streets Sunday morning. A large touring car, numbered 6585, containing a lady and child besides the driver, came up Adams street at a good clip. Just after passing the corner of Dimmock street the wheels of the automobile slipped in the mud, and the car skidded striking a passing electric car with a bang. The force of the collision smashed the lights on the car and tore off the step of the electric car. Fortunately the electric car was not moving at the time and no one was injured.

CLEVER ARREST.

William Kelley was arrested by Inspectors McKay and Goodhue and Detective Leman of Boston on Saturday night at the Boston post office, for the larceny of a suit of clothing and a small sum of money from Eugene Doherty at a boarding house at 102 Chubbuck street, Quincy, some days ago. Kelley and Doherty occupied the same room. One morning Doherty woke up to find a new suit of clothing valued at $28, and a small sum of money gone. Kelley was also missing.

The loss was reported to the police, but nothing was heard from Kelley until last week, when the boarding mistress received a letter from him. The letter directed her to receive his money, retain what was due her for his board, and forward the balance to the Boston post office. A decoy letter was sent as directed, and Inspectors McKay and Goodhue were sent in. They with Detective Leman of the Metropolitan agency laid in wait. About 6 o'clock Inspector McKay and Officer Leman went out to lunch, leaving Officer Goodhue on guard. Shortly after Kelley showed up and inquired for the letter. His arrest followed.

Kelley told the police that he had pawned the clothing in a Pleasant street pawnshop. He could not give the number of the street where the clothing was pawned, but thinks he could find it.

He was arraigned in the Quincy court and pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

MAKARIAS DEFEAT DEWEYS.

(By Rube.)

Despite the heavy rain that fell all day Saturday, Charlie Ganzel's Makarias and the Deweys of Weymouth got in four and one-half innings of all kinds of baseball at Merrymount park, which resulted in a victory for the Quincy lads by the score of 6 to 3.

Nash, at the head of his Dewey outfit, wore a worried look as he came onto the field, for Dobbin and Giroux, his star battery, were among the missing. After a glance around, he decided to send "Coon" Rudderham to the slab and picked Coose his third baseman to catch his slants. Ganzel nodded to "Stan" Bates to start the game, and promptly at 3.30 Umpire Moorehouse called "play ball."

The Deweys went out in order in the first, and the Makarias were unable to score. In the second, "Stan" Bates again sent them out in order getting two strikeouts, but the Makarias scored two. With two out, Orcutt fumbled "Wes" Ganzel's grounder; Nicolls sent one that Foster fumbled; "Stan" Bates singled and W. Ganzel scored. Foster's second error on Curtis' hit let Nicols score.

The Deweys scored one in their half of the third, and the Makarias got three runs on four bases on balls and two wild pitches. Score, Makarias 5, Deweys 1. In the fourth the Makarias scored another.

The fifth found the Deweys hot under the collar, and they went at "Stan" Bates with a vengeance. "Chet" Foster, a Quincy lad, fouled out to Troupe; Smith drove the ball over Curtis' head for two bases; Monshnichka singled, scoring Smith. Coose walked and a wild pitch let in the Deweys second run of the inning. The rooters were getting worried, for the ball was extremely hard to control or throw, the rain falling hard. E. Bates walked but "Rup" Ganzel and Eggleton made two great catches and won the game; Umpire Moorehouse calling the game at this point.

DISASTROUS FIRE IN LARGE CLOTHING HOUSE

Stock of Remick Bros. in Music Hall Block Damaged by Smoke and Water

Firemen Do Prompt and Efficient Work, But Loss is Heavy

The alarm from Box 23 at 6.50 this morning summoned the fire department to a lively fire in the rear of the store of Remick Bros., situated in the Music Hall block on Hancock street. The fire started in a small room in the rear of the main store and must have been smouldering sometime before it broke out. Officer Dhooge says that he went to the rear of the building between 3.30 and 4 o'clock, and turned off the electric light that is kept burning nights in the rear of the building, and was in back of the building again in the vicinity of 6 o'clock. There was no sign of a fire at either visit.

Shortly before 7 o'clock James Halligan a driver of the Quincy Home Wash Company discovered the fire as he was hitching up. At that time the heat blew out the rear window. This gave the fire vent and it immediately burst into flame. John Brown, another employe of the wet wash, ran to Box 23 and sounded the alarm.

George Smallet and Alex Ourr two other employees ran out a line of hose from the rear of John Hall's stable and turned on the water, but the line was too short to do any good. They were assisted by E. A. Stolber of the Kincaide block.

When the apparatus arrived Chief Williams had a line of hose laid from the hydrant on Hancock street to the front door of the store.

Unable to force the door open the glass was smashed and the chief with Jack Desmond and James Gallagher jumped through with a line of hose. A sheet of flame and black blinding smoke was then rushing toward the front of the store. So dense was the smoke that Gallagher was over come and had to be carried out by his brother firemen. He was taken to Emerson's office where he latter revived. Desmond and Chief Williams were also nearly overcome, but they stuck it out and the force of the water from their line of hose drove the fire back and kept it from spreading all over the store. A few minutes delay would have meant that the whole store would have been ablaze.

Other lines of hose were taken to the rear of the building and to the roof, and the water poured down through the ventilators directly onto the burning mass of clothing. These three streams had a telling effect and the fire was soon under control but in the short time it had been burning it had made a wreck of the rear end of the store and the fire with the smoke had done thousands of dollars damage.

Mr. Remick was notified of the fire by telephone and was soon on the scene. He said that where the fire was hottest were his best suits of clothing, and they were ruined. In the little back room where the fire started is an electric iron heater, and Mr. Remick belives that the fire started from that in some way. Near this heater were two $25 suits of clothing that had been sold late Monday night and were to be pressed. They were burned to a crisp.

As soon as the fire was under control the firemen commenced to clean out the back room, and to shovel the still smoking clothing out of the back door. At that time a dead line of hose was on the room. Suddenly the water was turned on this line, and the water pressure caused it to double up and fall off. In falling the heavy brass nozzle came within a few inches of striking Chief Williams in the head.

Employes of the Real Estate Trust, the owners of the building, were early on the scene, and opened up the doors and windows in Music hall. The hall at this time was full of smoke and while no fire reached the hall the walls were discolored and will all have to be repainted.

Just what Mr. Remick's loss will be is hard to tell, but it will be several thousands of dollars. The fire at this time is particularly unfortunate. Mr. Remick is one of the enthusiastic members of the Quincy Merchants' association and was planning for a large sale during Merchant's Week. The fire has made this impossible. His stock was covered by insurance and while this may aid, it cannot recompense him for the loss to his business during that week.

As Mr. Remick controls the store formerly occupied by the F. D. Fellows Co., it is possible that he may open up their until his present store is ready for occupancy again.

The firemen deserve great credit for the good stop they made and keeping in check what at first looked like a fire that would sweep the block.

When seen after the fire, Chief Williams said the loss on the building would be upwards of $4,000, and that the loss on the contents would be about the same, bringing the total loss over $8,000.

CLEE CLUB BANQUET

Jollification at Close of the Season at Wollaston

With their ladies and associate members of the Wollaston Glee club closed their season's work with a banquet in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church on Monday evening.

At the head table were President and Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, Secretary and Mrs. Frank K. Linscott, treasurer and Mrs. E. R. Johnson Director and Mrs. J. A. Crowley.

An excellent menu well served by a corps of deft waiters consisted of:

Grape Fruit.
Chicken Broth and Rice
Olives Radishes
Fillet of Halibut
Duchess Potatoes
String Beans Fresh Vegetable Salad
Roast Tenderloin of Beef
Delmonico Potatoes
Cake Ice Cream
Toasted Cheese Crackers
Rolls Coffee

The catering arrangements were in charge of Beaudry and LaBarbera of Boston.

The after-dinner speaking with Herbert J. Gurney as toastmaster, was witty and well received by those present. "The club is bound to live and succeeed" said Mr. Gurny in his opening remarks, "and when Halley's comet next takes a notion to swish it's tail across us it will find the Wollaston Glee club still on deck."

Dr. E. R. Johnson reported the club's finances saying although the balance was on the wrong side, he looked upon it as a good thing, for the club could only earn money by singing and therefore he looked forward to some good concerts next winter.

Frank K. Linscott reviewed the work of the year, and took a most optimistic view of the future, saying that one would get out of the club just as much as he put in it.

Frederick H. Bishop, called upon as one of the original members, extended the cordial greeting of the club to its guests.

The musical program of the evening opened with the "Song of the Dare-Alls" and "Kentucky Babe" by the club, accompanied by William E. Weston. A baritone solo, "Bandelero" by A. L. Hayden, was especially effective, while Miss Grace Parker's whistling, to her own accompaniment, was enjoyed by all. Two solos, a French song, and "A son of the desert" by J. Barraja-Frauenfelder, accompanied by Miss Irene Smith, were loudly applauded. The evening closed with "A soldier's farewell" by the club and "Auld Lang Syne" and "Good night ladies" by the entire gathering.

The Wollaston Glee club has just completed it's ninth season and at present numbers about 30 active members and an associate membership of 76. The club holds two concerts each year, the last one this spring exceeding all previous records both for attendance and proficiency. But three original members are now numbered among its ranks—Herbert J. Gurney, Dr. E. R. Johnson and Frederick H. Bishop. As a factor in musical circles of Quincy and vicinity the club holds an enviable position.

Among those present on Tuesday evening were:

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney.

SENIORS ENTERTAINED.

Mr. and Mrs. Richards of Pennsylvania entertained Mrs. Willard, two of the teachers and members of the Senior class of the Quincy Mansion school at dinner at the Touraine, Boston, on Saturday evening, their daughter, Miss Helen Richards being a member of the class. The table was beautifully decorated with the class colors in yellow and white, a mound of flowers in the centre and at each place, basket shapes of yellow and white daisies for the cards. Seventeen in all, a merry company about the table. The bright yellow daisies truly expressive of the thought, a golden happy hour, with anticipations of more to follow for the dinner was not all, for at its close they were to go to the theatre. Mr. and Mrs. Richards having chosen the Park, "The Man from Home" was the play enjoyed, and nothing more could be needed to round out what could surely be called a perfect evening for this graduating class of 1910.

UNDER EIGHT HOUR LAW

Retained by Senate in Battleship Appropriation

Our telegraphic news today reports the passage of the Naval bill by Congress. The Senate retained in the bill the provision inserted by the House, requiring that the two battleships and the fleet colliers shall be built under the eight-hour law. The Senate also added a provision that not more than one of the battleships shall be built by the same company.

Efforts of President Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company to strike out the "eight-hour clause" were unsuccessful, and the action of Congress may strike a serious blow to the large shipyards of the country.

President Bowles told his employees at a mass meeting in the shipyard April 15, that should the bill pass with that clause it would mean that no private shipyard could build the ships.

Hundreds of employees of the Fore River shipyard thereupon signed letters to Senators Lodge and Crane, remonstrating against the eight-hour clause which the House had inserted in the Naval bill. But labor unions supported the amendment and succeeded in having it retained.

As passed by the Senate the bill provides:

Two first-class battleships, to cost not exceeding $6,000,000 each, and when equipped with armor and armament about $12,500,00 each.

Two fleet colliers to cost not exceeding $1,000,000 each.

Five submarine torpedo boats not exceeding a total of $2,500,000.

Six torpedo boat destroyers to cost not exceeding $750,000 each.

Should President Taft sign the Naval bill as passed, it is hoped the Fore River Company may establish the eight-hour day, which is sure to come in the near future in all trades, that it may obtain the contests for one battleship one collier, perhaps all five fo the submarines and two or more of the torpedo boat destroyers.

Having taken the contract for the Argentine dreadnought in competition with the world, on a nine-hour basis, the Fore River company cannot be expected to adopt the eight-hour day until the completion of this contract; at least until the launching late in 1910, but the contracts for the new battleships may not be awarded for six months or more.

The Fore River company is better situated to adopt the eight-hour day than most of the shipyards, as some of these now work on the ten-hour basis, and none less than nine hours.

ARGENTINE CENTENNIAL

Date Selected for Laying Keel of Battleship

An interesting event will take place at the Fore River shipyard in this city at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the keel of the new Argentine battleship which will probably be named "Acorajado," will be laid. Just what ceremony there will be is not definitely known, as Admiral Garcia is not in town today, and will not arrive at the yards until tomorrow.

The Argentine naval officers stationed at the yard are particularly anxious that the keel should be laid Wednesday, for that day is the centennial anniversary of the independence of the Argentine Republic. May 25 is to that nation what July 4 is to the United States, and they think the laying of the keel of their new battleship on that day would be very appropriate.

All of the Argentine naval officers will be present, and as the first piece of the keel is laid there is likely to be something doing.

In Buenos Ayres, where the capitol building is located many buildings have been erected for a centennial exposition which opens this month, and U. S. battleships have already arrived.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Upon being called downstairs, Miss Wilbur was treated to a perfect shower of useful articles. Games followed refreshments were served, and the party departed at a late hour extending their congratulations and best wishes for the future to Miss Wilbur.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The move to raid the State treasury to secure payment of taxes on State land in different cities and towns, look like a Boston scheme, as the State has land valued at $856,500 in Boston. Outside of Boston it has land valued at 1,204.658, of which $344,380 is in Worcester. All the above land is occupied for institutional purposes. It is bad precedent to establish, however, as other cities will demand taxes for land taken by the State for reservations like Blue Hills; reservoirs like that of the Metropolitan Water board on Third hill; sewer stations, like those at Moon island and Nut island, etc, etc.

Peculiarities of the Opossum.

The American opossum is one of the most curious animals living in the United States. It is the only one that carries its young in a pouch like the kangaroo. It is the only animal that can feign death perfectly. It is remarkable for hanging by its tail like a monkey. It has hands resembling those of a human being. Its snout is like a hog's, while its mouth is liberally furnished with teeth. Its eyes are like a rat's, and it hisses like a snake.

FOR TWO NEW BATTLESHIPS

Strong Argument Is Put Up In the Senate by Lodge

BEST GUARANTEE OF PEACE

Fighting Ships a Preventive, Rather Than a Menace, as Without Them War Would Be Certain—American Navy Declared to Be Near Point of Adequacy—Points Out That China and Turkey Made Mistakes

Washington, May 24.—Senator Lodge, during a discussion of the naval appropriation bill, made a formal reply to the two objections which, he said, always attended the passage of the bill, namely, the objection to the increase of navy because of the cost, and the suggestion that the maintenance of the navy is a menace to peace.

He was speaking particularly against the amendment of Senator Burton providing for one battleship instead of two. He cited the revenue cutter service as an example of wise preventative measures analogous to the naval expenditure. The amount of smuggled goods actually seized, he said, would go a very short distance toward meeting the cost of the service, but the amount of smuggling prevented by this sea police is so great that it cannot be estimated.

SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE.

"We are not entering into competition with Great Britain or any other power," said Lodge. "We are merely maintaining a navy adequate for our own defense. I concede that we have nearly reached the point of adequacy. The abolition of our navy would mean war within a very short time. The peace of the country is more dependent upon a strong navy than any other one thing."

Senator Lodge said he agreed with Theodore Roosevelt as to the desirability of disarmament, but for one nation to offer itself up as a solitary sacrifice would do no good at all. We will be in a better position to work for world disarmament with a strong navy. China, without a navy, has foreign countries in control of her ports, foreign courts sitting upon her soil. Turkey, as late as the sixteenth century, was the strongest military force on the Mediterranean, of which the Turk was master through his fleet.

Voting down by 26 to 39 an amendment offered by Burton to authorize only one new battleship instead of two, the senate finally passed the naval appropriation bill. It carries an appropriation of almost $134,000,000.

ALBERT SNELL IS DEAD

Inherited Fortune of Murdered Millionaire, but Squandered It All

Chicago, May 24.—Albert J. Snell, son of the millionaire, Amos J. Snell, whose murder here in 1888 by a burglar created a sensation, was found dead in bed at a cheap rooming house here.

He was 50 years of age. He inherited a fortune from his father and is said to have set a fast pace while the money lasted. For several years past he had made a hand to mouth living running errands on the docks.

"Willie" Tascott, who was accused of the murder of the elder Snell, was never found by the police.

HETTY GREEN LOSES A CASE

Scolds the Jury and Calls $569 Verdict an Outrage

New York, May 24.—Mrs. Hetty Green, sometimes called the wealthiest woman in the world, scolded the jury which found against her in a civil suit for $569 brought by the Safe Deposit company of New York for box rentals.

"This is an outrage," she vociferated, when the verdict was announced. "Is there no justice for women in this land? Now a whole horde of blackmailers will be encouraged to descend on me."

THEY PART WITH KISSES

The Kaiser Takes Leave of His Royal Cousin In England

London, May 24.—Emperor William left for Port Victoria, where he is to board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern for his return to Germany. King George accompanied his royal cousin to the railway station and at parting the emperor kissed the other twice.

The Duke of Cornwall, the Duke of Connaught and the members of the German embassy were also at the station to bid the kaiser farewell.

Kress Under $25,000 Bail

Newburyport, Mass., May 24.—Samuel Kress of Lawrence was arraigned here on twenty-one counts, charging bribery and conspiracy to bribe in connection with the so-called Lawrence municipal "graft" cases. He pleaded not guilty and was released on $25,000 bail.

Historical Museum Burned

Albuquerque, N. M., May 24.—Hadley hall, the science department of the University of New Mexico, was burned. The famous Indian historical museum and geological collection were destroyed. The loss is $100,000.

PROVES HIS CLAIM TO $25,000 ESTATE

Return of Hostler Thought to Have Been Dead For Years

Worcester, Mass., May 24.—Although he had not seen his sister, who supposed him dead, for thirty-eight years, William Venna, a hostler of San Mateo, Cal., was able to prove himself the only heir to her $25,000 estate and yesterday Judge Forbes of the probate court allowed his claim.

The estate involved was that of Mrs. Jennie S. Miller of Athol, who died on July 2, 1908, leaving no known heirs. The court appointed a public administrator to take charge of the estate at the time, but recently Venna appeared and entered a claim to the property.

Venna and his sister were born in Ireland and both came to this country before the Civil war. Venna worked as a hostler in Boston until the war, when he enlisted, and his sister later went to New York, where he last saw her in 1872. Venna removed to California, and the sister married an Athol man. She told her friends in Athol that, as he had not been heard from for many years, she supposed he was dead.

CAT ADOPTS BABY MICE

"Jim Crow" Manifests Her Maternal Instinct In Curious Way

Richmond, May 24.—Naturalists as a rule have classed the cat and the mouse as instinctive enemies, but there are occasions where the calculations of naturalists, as well as those of ordinary mortals, are turned topsy-turvy.

In the Virginia bonded warehouse here there has arisen a case that is said to be without a parallel. Jim Crow, a huge and heretofore ferocious mouser, has adopted as her own a family of five young mice, and she fondles and guards them with great care.

Jim adopted the mice after a litter of kittens had been taken from her.

DRAPER'S WILL FILED

Most of Estate of $6,358,487 Consists of Personal Property

Hopedale, Mass., May 24.—An estate of $6,358,487 was left by the late General William F. Draper of Hopedale, who died at Washington last February. The inventory of the estate was filed in the probate court at Worcester by the executors under the will, Oliver H. Lane, the secretary of the deceased, and Attorney W. K. Richardson.

The inventory shows personal property of the value of $6,334,087 and real estate worth $24,400.

Woman on Trial For Murder

Cambridge, Mass., May 24.—Mrs Elizabeth Richmond was placed on trial for her life in the Middlesex superior court, charged with the murder of Stewart McTavish in a manner atrocious in its details and sordid in its motives, while he was a temporary lodger in the establishment she operated under the name of "Hotel Florence," almost directly opposite the Cambridge courthouse.

Tax Amendment Rejected

Boston, May 24.—By a vote of 134 to 90 the house of representatives refused to adopt the proposed amendment to the state constitution by which the people would have been allowed to vote upon a proposed change in the tax laws of the state.

More Earth Shocks In France

Paris, May 24.—The entire region in the department of Bouches du Rhone has experienced severe seismic shocks. Walls fell at Lambesc and Rognes. The population is wild with terror.

Grace Before Meat.

The Zulu admires a woman according to her weight. The Zulu can respect a 200 pound woman, but it is only a 300 or 400 pound one that he can really love. We enlightened persons, on the other hand, have been taught to like grace before meat.—Exchange.

An Ancient Custom.

"I wonder if men have always complained about the food their wives prepared for them," said one woman.

"I guess so," replied the other. "Adam started it."—Washington Star.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

By Clarence C. Eaton, C. S. B., Member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church

In Post Office Block, Braintree, Sunday Afternoon, May 22

A large audience of Braintree, Quincy and South Shore people greeted Clarence C. Eaton, C. S. B., who lectured Sunday afternoon at the Christian Science church, Braintree. His address follows:

Christian Science or Divine Science may be defined in brief as the knowledge of, or truth about, God and His universe ,including man—the science or knowledge of God's unchanging law and its fulfillment; or, I may say, it is the science or true knowledge of Christianity.

Christian Science is not the name for a new or improved religion, but rather is the most appropriate designation given by Rev. Mary Baker Eddy, to the system of divine metaphysics which she, after an exhaustive study of the Scriptures ,formulated. Its advent less than half a century ago was by way of the rediscovery and restoration to this age of the knowledge of the divine law of righteousness ,and its availibility in the adjustment, government, and control of human conditions and circumstances, not excepting the mitigation and ultimate destruction of all the ills and suffering which mankind seems heir to. Aye, it is the reclamation of the saving Gospel of Love; even the divine method of forgiveness, pardon and redemption which the great, loving and tender friend of humanity, Christ Jesus ,revealed as the inevitable operation of God's eternal law of justice and immortality.

Mrs. Eddy's Discovery and Writings.

Mrs. Eddy discovered Christian Science in 1866, and formally made known her discovery in the following year, when she established the first school of Christian Science mind-healing. In 1875 she published a book containing a thorough exposition of the subject and gave to it the title "Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures."" This volume is the authorized text-book of Christian Science ,and is the only work published which correctly sets forth its teaching and the method of its demonstration. It does this with much elbaoration ,and with such clearness of statement that individuals of ordinary mental capacity can by a systematic study of its contents acquire sufficient understanding of the rule of Christian Science practice as to be able to successfully apply it in the healing of sin and disease.

Moreover, in the later editions of this wonderful book you will find a chapter entitled "Fruitage," which consists of copies of a large number of letters giving authenticated cases of healing resulting entirely from the reading or study of its pages. The long lists of ailments therein enumerated includes many of the diseases regarded by materia medica as absolutely incurable. This book advocates the highest conceivable standard of morality. It admonishes obedience to God and to His Christ, and teaches a strict observance of the Scriptural injunctions concerning true Christian living.

God as Defined by Christian Science.

Christian Science, as the Science of Life, and being, advances to the solution of the perplexing prbblems which confront us by discarding all mortal speculation, theories and superstition about God, His being and intent, and His relation to that which He created. Although disagreeing with the old theological schools and those who have assumed to know all about God and to teach men thereof, Christian Science does not announce a new, strange ,or irrational God, but unfolds and declares a correct comprehension and a right understanding of the one God, His nature, qualities and law. One infinitely good God is all it recognizes and proclaims.

It demonstrates that God is supreme in intelligence, wisdom, power, justice, Truth and Love, and therefore includes the consciousness of absolute and infinite good. It proves that He is the Mind, Spirit, Soul, Life, and substance of all that actually exists; also that He is the author of all true being—the origin and source of all entity or existence ,the only cause and creator, and that His works are spiritual, righteous, unchanging, and eternal. Christian Science declares that God is the Principle of His creation; hence the conscious, energizing, governing, sustaining presence of the universe, whose law means the completeness, perfection and harmonious operation of all that is. It declares that He is infinite Love; hence He is compassionate, merciful, tender, warm, comforting ,true. In a word, it teaches that God, our heavenly Father, is All in All.

The True and False Creation.

In this connection Christian Science calls attention to the fact of the existence of two distinct and widely differing records of the creation, and insists that they bear no relation to each other. The first record clearly indicates the creating or revealing by an omnipotent and omniscent God of an absolutely perfect and everlasting universe. In its analysis of this account Christian Science uses the term man in a generic sense as meaning the full, complete, and perfect reflection of God; His divine image or manifestation, which includes every idea that expresses good, not excepting your true, invisible and eternal selfhood.

Now, reason tells us that emanations from infinite and unchanging good must be perfect and the conclusion is irresistible that a perfect creation governed by the very law of perfection is incapable of change or defilement. Christian Science holds unequivocally to the first record of creation as it appears in the inspired writings, and contends that it is consistently true and real, and shows that the record contained in the second chapter of Genesis, in which man is represented as having been formed of the dust of the ground and named Adam, is antagonistic to the first, hence is inconsistent, false, and unreal.

Evil Exists Only as a Lie.

While no reasonable or satisfactory explanation as to the origin of evil or the devil appears in the Bible, or has ever been formulated by theologians, yet we note that modern Christianity is founded upon the assumed existence of a definite evil being which theology claims caused the downfall of God's perfect man—a self-evident impossibility. Very recently a religious writer, in discussing this question from the standpoint of scholastic theology, made the sweeping assertion that the "whole Christian superstructure is built upon the belief in a definite evil being who brought about the fall of man." This same writer further avers: "Destroy the devil, and we at once destroy all reason for man's present deplorable condition," and asks the strange question: "Are we willing to endanger the whole Christian superstructure by removing a foundation-stone ?"

Thus the writer makes the unique claim that the doctrine of the verity and power of evil is essentially Christian and that the destruction of evil would involve the demolition of Christianity. Turning to the teaching and practice of Christ Jesus, the founder of Christianity, we note that his mission included not only the destruction of the works of evil, but evil itself. That he never taught that the doctrine of the reality of evil was fundamental in Christianity is apparent from his words and works.

Christian Science and Theology Contrasted.

Inasmuch as the Christian Science church stands for the rehabilitation of primitive Christianity, it of necessity deals with the question of evil on the basis of its unreality, as did the founder of Christianity. And while Christian Science has been severely criticized on this point, we find that on comparing its teaching and that of scholastic theology with the teaching and practice of Christ Jesus, theology suffers most by the comparison. En passant, we may be pardoned for asking the question, how much of God, good, can there be in a Christianity which recognizes the devil or evil as one of its foundation-stones?

Today, notwithstanding the teaching, labor and the tremendous sacrifice of the Master, and all the efforts upon the part of believers inthe various phases of religious doctrines

CAMP TO BE DEDICATED

Dr. Worcester, Jeffrey R. Brackett and Others Expected

Camp Mt. Pleasant, the new anti-tuberculosis camp off Quincy avenue, will be opened for public inspection on Saturday, beginning at 3 o'clock. It is the intention of the society to have some speaking after the public have had an opportunity to inspect the several buildings. Among those who are expected to make brief remarks are Mayor William T. Shea, Rev. Ellery Butler, Alexander Wilson, who is superintendent of the Boston camp, Dr. Alfred Worcester, and Jeffrey R. Brackett. These gentlemen have been invited to speak but acceptances have not been received from all of them.

WIDOWER GETS COLD FEET

Quincy Man Answered "Ad" of Fitchburg Woman

A newsy bit of gossip of local interest appeared in Daily Sentinel of Fitchburg on Saturday, which is reprinted:

Armed with a marriage license from his home city and a new suit of black clothes in a new dress suit case, a middle aged widower came to this city from Quincy to get married this week, but after telling his plans and discussing with her next door neighbors the habits and temperament of his intended bride, he returned to Quincy declaring that he never again would answer an advertisement for a husband or take stock in the word of a woman looking for a husband.

The woman, a Ward 5 widow, advertised through a marriage agency for a husband and represented herself to be a lone widow of quiet and home-like tastes and of some property. She was seeking a husband she said in order to reestablish herself over a home, and would like to meet or correspond with a gentleman of similar tastes and means.

The Quincy man answered the advertisement with a long letter telling of property he owned in Quincy and money in the bank, and also that he was lonesome since his first wife died a few years ago and wanted to place the right kind of a woman at the head of his household.

They corresponded back and forth for a couple of weeks and finally arranged for a meeting which took place in Boston a little over a week ago, at which bank books were compared and each told the other of their longing for a home and of their habits and temperament, and agreed to meet in this city, Thursday morning, to be married.

By the plans agreed upon the groom was to come here on a train due to arrive at 11 o'clock and was to go direct to the bride's home and thence to a minister, but for some unexplainable reason he came on the 9 o'clock train, two hours ahead of time, and found the bride not at home, and the house locked up.

He made inquiries of near neighbors and was told that it was not an uncommon thing that house was closed as the woman was frequently away from home and that the neighbors never bothered their heads over her whereabouts. One thing let to another and in the course of further inquiries the groom heard things which surprised him mightily and also made him change his plans.

He told of answering the advertisement, the correspondence which followed, the meeting in Boston, and arrangements for the wedding, and then without waiting for the bride to come home, he hot-footed it to the depot and took a train back to Boston, declaring that he would look for a wife nearer home and would never again answer an advertisement for a husband or take the unsupported word of a woman looking for a husband.

Just what happened when the bride-to-be returned to her home that morning is not being told by the neighbors, except that she sat in the window in a waiting attitude for the rest of the day and has not been at home since then.

AT STATE HOUSE.

Both Representatives Thomas and Langelier voted against the constitutional amendment to allow the classification of property for the purpose of taxation, which was killed in the House on Monday 90 to 134. A two-thirds vote was required, but it failed of a majority.

The smoke bill for Boston and vicinity was ordered to a third reading.

The eight-hour bill for public employees was enacted by the House.

The Senate killed the Cape Cod canal bill 12 to 14.

The senate passed to third reading without a word of debate, the Berkshire trolley bill; also the bill to extend the authority of agents of the Mass. S. P. C. A.

Representative Langelier has another contest on his hands in supporting his committee's report on House bill 1703, which was unanimously reported by the committee on Harbors and Public Lands, but which is adversely reported by the Ways and Means committee. This bill seeks to expend $5,000 for the purchase of additional land by the Mount Everett State Reservation Commission, the commission stating in their report that without this additional territory the Mt. Everett Reservation will be incomplete.

As Representative Langelier has succeeded in turning over one Ways and Means adverse report this year, namely his bill for $5,000 for a sanitary on the Wollaston and Atlantic shore reservation, it is likely he will also succeed in establishing a precedent for forest preservation in Massachusetts by winning out on this report.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

O TEMPORA, O MORES.

Editors of Daily Ledger:

Judging from the reports concerning the proposed plans for the celebration of the Fourth, it would seem that such plans were more fitting for a Labor Day demonstration, and rather stringent and arbitrary even for that. We were under the impression that the Fourth was a day upon which we celebrated the winning of our "Independence" and all that that implies, and that it was against unfair and unjust discrimination and the tyranny of domination over our rights that our fathers fought for, and winning, made possible the celebration of this day.

If only members of unions can take part in this celebration and if the display of union badges is made imperative for all those representing labor in the affair, it would seem that the celebration of our independence was but a travesty. We trust at least that those not affiliated with the "Labor Trust" may be allowed to view the procession and watch the festivities with impunity and without being "tagged."

AID OF CUPID SOCIETY

Has Proved Valuable to the Lovelorn and Unhappy Couples

Trenton, May 24.—Phenomenal is the success of Trenton's Cupid Wing club, an organization comprised of young matrons, whose object is the mending of broken hearts and the effecting of domestic felicity, according to the reports just presented by members to the president, Mrs. Charles Howell.

During the last two months the organization has been instrumental in bringing about twenty-two weddings, preventing eight divorces and reuniting twelve couples separated because of domestic unhappiness.

Thirteen of the weddings would probably never have taken place, owing to disinclination of the couples involved to enter the state of wedlock because of poverty. The club members aided them financially, and if the newlyweds are honest in their endeavors to prosper they will receive further succor.

Nine of the couples had been separated through "love spats." The sleuths of the organization attended to these cases.

WOULD SINK THE VENUS

"Fighting Bob" Would Stand No Resistance From Nicaraguan Ship

Washington, May 24.—"If I were in command of the Paducah and the Nicaraguan armed vessel Venus returned to Bluefields and even indirectly threatened American life and property I would make her drop her anchor and put a guard aboard until I found out what disposition the government wanted to make of her. If she showed the slightest resistance I would sink her on the spot.

"I think it very likely that Commander Gilmer will do the same if called upon by circumstances. My advice to the Venus is to keep as far away from Bluefields as possible, at least while there are American gunboats there."

This is how Rear Admiral Evans, retired, who has had some experience in maintainng the prestige of the American navy in foreign waters, feels about the present situation involving the American ships in Nicaraguan waters. Evans fully commends the stand taken so far by Gilmer.

SLIPS AWAY FROM CLOSE QUARANTINE

North Adams' Leprosy Suspect Is Now at Large

North Adams, Mass., May 24.—After having been held in close quarantine as a leper suspect since last Thursday night, John Anthony, aged 23, a Syrian, quietly slipped out of the back door of his flat and disappeared.

He was not ill and sat by the window reading or talking with the people below him a great part of the time. He was in good spirits and showed no disposition to get away.

It is evident that Anthony had planned well his escape. He was known to have quite a sum of money, as he had been a frugal fellow, and he also had many good clothes. It is thought he jumped a freight near his home and is now on his way to Canada.

Ennis will be 68 years old on June 4, three years younger than Weston.

"I got stirred up by a reported statement of Weston's that no one except a person born in America could do such a walk," said Ennis. "I've got a pair of good Irish legs and I thought I could turn out as good or better a stunt myself." Mayor Gaynor started Ennis on his long journey.

WATER WAGON RITES ON PIER

Lascars Celebrate "Feast of the Wazzo" In Brooklyn

NO JOKE IN NATIVE LAND

Unfortunate Who Falls From Indian "Sprinkling Cart" Sentenced to Death by His Own Act—June the Regular Time For Weird Feast, but Halley's Comet Prompts Sailors to Ward Off Evil Ahead of Time

New York, May 24.—There was a brand new native ceremony at the Bush Stores, and even the old timers around the China piers in South Brooklyn acknowledged that they had never seen the like of it before. About the only man who had witnessed a similar ceremony was Wilhelm Deidel, chef on board the Hansa line steamship Marienfels. He told how he had once been lost on the sands of the Indian shores and had happened in the midst of rites similar to those that amazed those who witnessed them on the pier end in South Brooklyn.

"This ceremony," said Deidel, "is called the Feast of the Wazzo. It sounds like a name in the comic section of one of your New York newspapers, but it means serious things. Over here the great joke is about the water wagon and how people fall off when they imbibe more than is good for them, but few in the United States know that in India among the natives there is a water wagon that is no joke and that the man who falls off practically signs his own death warrant. The water wagon in India is called the wazzo and is a small tublike affair something like the water barrels with wheels attached that are used for irrigating large estates by the gardeners when there is no water pipe service available.

"When a Lascar has committed some breach of the native law he must ride the wazzo. He must stand with one foot on either side of the barrel-like affair while two other Lascars pull the two-wheeled vehicle around over the roughest places possible in an endeavor to make the one standing on the barrel lose his equilibrium. If the unfortunate slips and gets his feet in the water, but manages to crawl up again, he has another chance, but if he falls off the wazzo to the road he is sentenced to death by his own act and has the choice of eating some poisonous plant or falling on a bowie knife.

"There is a regular feast day for celebrating the wazzo ceremony, and, once a year, there is general feast at which all hands among the Lascars pray that, first, they will not make themselves liable to the wazzo at all, and, secondly, that if they get within the clutches of the wazzo rule, that they will not be so unlucky as to fall off the water wagon. This annual feast is held some time in June, but our Lascars have become imbued with the belief that Halley's comet has something to do with their ritual and they are holding the Feast of the Wazzo so as to offset any influence the comet may have on their destinies."

As Deidel was explaining this the freighter's native sailors and firemen marched around the end of the pier in a circle, beating small wooden cymbals and now and then prostrating themselves to the rising sun in the east. There were visitors from other vessels that had arrived from the Far East, and these natives also joined in the ceremony on the pier, where the water wagon wazzo was being chanted into oblivion by the Marienfels' sailors.

Spain Inclined to Take Stock In Her Naval Experts' Reports

New York, May 24.—The Sun prints a special cable dispatch from Madrid, as follows:

The Spanish government has decided, it is said, to demand a fresh inquiry into the cause of the Maine disaster if the wreck of the battleship is raised.

The most prominent Spanish naval experts have already prepared elaborate reports upholding their version of the cause of the disaster, namely, spontaneous combustion in the powder magazine.

DISPUTE HAS EXISTED SINCE YEAR OF 1783

Agreement Fixing Maine Boundary Is Signed In Washington

Washington, May 24.—The international boundary between the United States and Canada along the southeast coast of Maine has been fixed, according to a treaty signed by Ambassador Bryce and Secretary Knox, as running from a point in Passamaquoddy bay between Treat island and Friar head and extending through the bay to the middle of Grand Manan channel.

This action, subject to the action of the senate, settles the one remaining boundary question between the United States and Canada, or New Brunswick, to be more exact. The exact location of this boundary had been in dispute ever since 1783.

SUNDAY WORK ABOLISHED

Striking Paper Makers Also Receive Other Substantial Concessions

Buffalo, May 24.—John Lundrigan, chairman of the state board of mediation and arbitration, has returned here from New York, where the board succeeded in settling the strike in twenty-five mills of the International Paper company, in this state and the New England States. By the terms of the settlement about 5100 workmen return to their places after ten weeks idleness.

"The men return to work," said Lundrigan, "under a contract which abolishes Sunday work, carries an increase of aprpoximately 5 percent in wages and makes eight hours a day the maximum in machine rooms, except in emergencies. We have settled a most complex situation to the satisfaction of all concerned."

HEALTH BOARD ACTS

Steps Toward Prosecution of Five Milk Contractors In Boston

Boston, May 24.—As a result of a vote taken while in executive session the Boston board of health decided to prosecute the five contractors who control the distribution of the city's milk for the alleged violation of the bacterial regulation.

The board of health will attempt to show that during the past month their milk has contained far more bacteria than permitted by the regulations.

The startling testimony at the legislative hearing relative to the age of Boston's milk supply and the conditions of inspection stirred the board of health into action.

promulgated since the dawn of the Christian era, the belief and conviction still remain that man is unsaved, and his misery undiminished. If the testimony of material sense is to be accepted wholly as evidence, then such would seem to be the fact with respect to man's condition. Christian Science, however, reasoning from the basis of the all perfection and harmony of God's creation, declaring with St. John that without Him (God) was not anything made that was made, is reversing the sense testimony and supplanting the belief in the human consciousness with knowledge and spiritual understanding. The conviction that evil is legitimate and a power must be dethroned in mortal thought.

Both Good And Evil Cannot Exist.

The demonstration of Christian Science is bringing about this most desirable result by correcting the errors that have been and are being perpetuated through false religious teaching. Christian Science contends that true Christian faith and practice can only rest secure upon the demonstrable truth that God is, and that He always has been and always will be; that He is unchanging good,. and that all things having actual and legitimate being were made by Him according to His infinite design, and that He hath done all things well.

There is included in such a declaration of religious faith the assurance that God is infinite and one, and that He is the only cause, source, or origin of the universe, and that He is its Principal, law, and government. This is to say, that He constitutes and embraces all being or existence, all power, all life ,all substance, all science or knowledge, all truth, all perfection, all presence. Question: Is this supreme, unchanging, all-inclusive being, cause, Life—this Infinity, whom we designate by the name of God—is He absolute good or is He evil? He must be one or the other. He cannot be both. Christian Science declares the only answer to be good, and hereby closes forever the controversy so long waged over the claim that both good and evil have existence. An answer which admits the actuality of evil at once denies the allness of God, good.

Evil is a False Belief.

The student of a scientific Christianity, however, recognizes the prevalence of a mesmeric belief in evil as entity and as potent, and it is this pernicious belief which its practice is endeavoring to dispel. Christian Science argues that the belief in evil is all the evil there is, and that the belief acting through or upon mortals and things procures all the phenomena of evil. Then, in working through educational and spiritual means to accomplish the destruction in mortal consciousness of this belief in evil, Christian Science strikes at the very root of all evil.

False Belief is Sin.

Inseparably connected with the question of the belief in evil and its inuuence is what is commonly regarded as sin. Now, a difficulty confronts us with respect to the subject of sin in the matter of our ignorance of what sin is. We read in the Old Testament of our Bible that "the thought of foolishness is sin," and in the New Testament "all unrighteousness is sin." Accordingly, sin primarily is what might be termed wrong thinking, and may be both ignorant and wilful. Then the presence in one's consciousness of a belief that is not good and right and in accord with absolute truth constitutes that one a sinner.

Recognizing, as we do, that the belief that evil is a verity is responsible for the existence of all that is classed as sin, then logically, sin will abound so long as that belief lasts. The sin of belief in evil has not only robbed God of His rightful place in each individual consciousness, but its prevalence throughout the past is accountable for the relentless reign of fear, sensuality, discord, and death which has desolated many generations.

Christian Scientists recognize the importance of waging a warfare of extermination of errors of thought of every name and nature, and thus compassing the destruction of sin. All false belief must be entirely obliterated from the consciousness and being of every mortal man, woman, and child ere God and heaven can possibly become their realization.

Tribute to Mrs. Eddy.

I have often wished that I might, with either pen or tongue, indicate fully what this great discovery of Christian Science means to the world. Were I able to do this properly, my effort would include, in more than parenthetical nature, reference to its discoverer and founder, Rev. Mary Baker Eddy. If you knew, as I know, what it means to be indebted to Christian Science for every breath you draw, I am sure you would also know a little of the just appreciation of the one who has made it possible for thousands and tens of thousands to become beneficiaries to the same extent. Christian Scientists, while appreciating and acknowledging the Christianly philanthropic service which Mrs. Eddy has rendered this age, confess their inability to grasp its full import and significance. But this we do know and bear witness, that her life of sweet simplicity, spiritual devoutness and self-sacrifice, her loving loyalty to God, the purity of her thought and purpose, and her devotion and faithfulness to the exalted ministry to which she was providentially called, has made possible the healing metaphysically of all manner of disease, sin, and suffering. Think what that alone means to humanity, and then ask yourself, What can I render in return for all these benefits and blessings?

We do not worship Mrs. Eddy, our leader in this great redemptive movement, but we do respect and love her, because she first loved us, and has unreservedly given her life to this cause for all mankind.

Yet, notwithstanding all this, no woman has suffered more unjustly from the persecutions of mortals. But with a prayer of tender forgiveness in her heart, she patiently, meekly, and humbly labors on in the way of God's appointing; preaching good tidings unto all, proclaiming liberty to the captives, binding up the broken-hearted, giving comfort and joy to those who mourn, beauty for ashes, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness, that all might be redeemed and that God shall be glorified.

In the matter of the organization and conduct of the affairs of this great and rapidly growing movement, Christian Scientists discern the need of a wise leadership and an obedient and orderly following. The former they unquestionably agree belongs to Mrs. Eddy, while to humbly follow is the perrogative and privilege of whomsoever will.

The Promises of Christian Science.

Now, briefly, and by way of summary and conclusion, what does Christian Science promise to do?

In answering every need of humanity it declares and reveals a God of infinite love and goodness, proclaims an irresistable Christ or Saviour, and an operative salvation, discloses the all-perfection of the real man and the harmony and eternity of his relation to his Creator, and spiritually interprets, and illumines the sacred Scriptures. It promises to establish a universal brotherhood, equalize the sexes, terminate strife between nations, impartially adjust and control civil, political, and social conditions, extirpate criminality and whatever incapacitates wrongs, or curses mankind. Christian Science promises to wipe all tears away, heal the grief-stricken heart, release those in bonds to sin and sensuality, and sweep away the fear, want, misery, agony, sorrow, and woe which have desolated many generations. It promises to abolish forever the belief in evil, sickness, death, and hell. All this, and even more than we can ask or think, it promises to do naturally, lawfully, scientifically.

FULFILLMENT OF ITS PROMISES.

What has the practice of Christian Science thus far resulted in? It has, in the restoration of primitive Christianity and its clear and comprehensive exposition thereof, effected the moral, physical and spiritual regeneration of tens of thousands who have accepted of its teaching. Included in this vast army of believers are those who have suffered from every known sin and disease. It has reclaimed the drunkard and the immoral, and rescued those enslaved by the tobacco, opium, and kindred habits. It has restored the mentally deranged, opened the eyes of the blind, unstopped the ears of the deaf, made the dumb speak, and the lame walk. Christian Science has reunited the members of disrupted families, dissipated the discouragement and despondency occasioned by poverty, misfortune, business failures, dishonesty, and injustice. It has removed the fear, doubt, and dismay entailed by affliction, sorrow, and grief. It has taught men how to love their neighbors as themselves, to overcome evil with good, and to be kind, forbearing, forgiving, gentle and true. Need I say more of the great good which Christian Science has already accomplished on behalf of the world in order to satisfy you that it is the true friend, and not the foe, of humanity?

Christian Science answers the agonizing demand which ascends heavenward from sinning and suffering mankind for a practical and healing religion—the satisfying and sustaining bread of life, and not the impoverishing stone of ecclesiasticism. Through its splendid complement of truth, logic, reason, revelation, and demonstration, it is proving that there is hope, healing and salvation for everyone through the purification and spiritualization of thought and desire. Earnestly desiring and seeking a better life, these prophetic words of Mrs. Eddy, found on page 566 of "Science and Health," fall upon our listening ears with gracious comfort:

SENSATION IN HEIKE TRIAL

Prosecution Plays Its Trump Card In the Sugar Frauds

SPITZER ON WITNESS STAND

Man Who Was Serving Two Years' Sentence In Penitentiary For Defrauding Government Is Pardoned by President That He May Appear Against "Men Higher Up"—He Gives Some Interesting Testimony

New York, May 24.—The trump card in the prosecution of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, the so-called "man higher up," was played at the sugar trust underweighing conspiracy trial when Prosecutor Stimson called as the government's first witness Oliver Spitzer, superintendent of the Williamsburg docks, who some months ago was convicted of underweighing and sentenced to two years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

When he took the stand John B. Stanchfield, for the defense, asserted that under the federal statute Spitzer, as a convicted man, could not testify. The sensation of the trtial was then created by the declaration in court that Spitzer had been pardoned by President Taft.

Heike is on trial in the United States circuit court with five former employes of the American Sugar Refining company on the charge of conspiring to defraud the government by underweighing cargoes of sugar imports. Spitzer, who was the dock superintendent at the time, was convicted with four checkers employed under him of connection with the conspiracy to perpetrate frauds whereby the government was cheated out of millions of dollars in sugar duties.

As Spitzer testified to the underweighing frauds on the docks it was developed that President Taft granted him an unconditional pardon on May 19 last. Spitzer went back to the years 1894 and 1895, when he said that an investigation he made developed the fact that the checkers were affecting the weights on raw sugar by placing small bags of lead on the beams of the scales, causing the recorded weights to drop below the actual, often as much as forty pounds on each draft. In addition to the bags of lead placed on the beams to affect the weights, Spitzer said it was also the practise to stuff paper under the floors of the scales for the same purpose. He added that when Deputy Surveyor of Customs Vail took office these devices were abandoned and the use of the steel corset spring instead was begun and continued.

Spitzer's testimony regarding the weight lessening device of the newspaper underneath the scale was an absolutely new development, and the jury as well as Heike listened to his testimony with tense interest.

Spitzer talked freely about the frauds by which the government was robbed of millions of dollars. He said the use of the steel springs was stopped after the sugar trust had paid the rebate to the government as a result of the federal suit.

"Did you arrange a system of signal lights in the scale houses?" suddenly asked the prosecutor.

"Yes," replied Spitzer, who then related that the signals were used to warn the weighers of any sudden danger.

"How were the lights worked?"

"By a switch in my office," replied Spitzer, who said that the switch was turned whenever a government official was seen to approach. Spitzer said that an electric light had been used in the scale houses for many years, but that he made a change in the signal system by installing red lights.

Spitzer said that in the fall of 1906 he received a certain telephone message which caused a letting-up in the frauds. He said he did not know who sent the message, which warned him to be careful of the wire springs, as the government was watching the docks.

Spitzer said that following the raid in November, 1907, by the government, he was informed that the weighers and himself would be taken care of.

"When the six weighers were discharged what happened?"

"I paid them the same wages every week at my home," was the reply of Spitzer, who said that the money was given him each week by a sugar employe, who left the money in a package at his garage.

"When did the money cease?"

"When I was sentenced last February," answered Spitzer.

Spitzer said he knew Heike, but did not connect him in any way with knowledge of the false weighing. Cross-examination of the witness was deferred. Prosecutor Stimson said Spitzer became conscious stricken while in prison and desired to tell all he knew of the alleged frauds.

The Central Labor Union has modified its demand on the Fourth of July committee, having notified the committee that they desired union labor as far as possible.

The Women's Golf Association of Boston opened its annual tournament today on the links of the Wollaston club, with the usual 18-hole qualifying round. The winner will receive a gold medal.

Mrs. William H. Doble, chairman of the committee which gave so successfully the operetta Pinafore on Saturday afternoon is recovering from the illness which caused her to go home during the performance. Every one regretted that her strenuous work caused her to break down just when success crowned her efforts.

PLAYGROUND PETITION.

A movement for a playground in Wollaston Park has been started by the Parents and Teachers' Association of the Mass. Field school. Petitions in the hands of a committee composed of F. A. Northrop, Mr. Besse and George Haskins, ask that the City Council purchase the lot bounded by Hamden circle, Rawson road and Willett street for a public playground.

It is claimed that owing to the building operations, and the moving in of a large number of people, that the open places and fields are gradually being closed in, and that, if some definite action is not taken in the near future, the children will have no place to play in but the streets.

The association is composed of the following officers and committee: President, Miss Ruth Taylor; vice president, H. A. Stevens; secretary, Mrs. Judson Smith; treasurer, Mrs. Larkin; executive committee, Mrs. Elisha Atkins, S. S. Crocker and B. A. Banks.

"Do you believe you can identify people by thumb-marks?" asked the man in the restaurant.

"I certainly do," replied the proprietor.

"Well, will you please look at this plate of soup and see which one of your waiters brought it in, and tell him not to put his thumb in my soup again?"—Yonkers Statesman.

COTTAGE GIRLS DANCE.

The newly organized club of Quincy Point, the Cottage Girls, gave its first dance last night in Electa hall, drawing an attendance of two hundred young men and woman of the city. The hall was decorated in a most tasteful manner with cut flowers.

The feature of the evening was a novelty dance by the members of the club who had bells concealed about them which jingled merrily to the motions of the dances, The gathering was entirely mystified. The members of the club are Misses Mary E. Ford, Mollie M. Gilcoine, Eleanor C. Moriarty, Annie E. Dorley, Edith M. Delorey.

SUNDAY SERVICES

HALL PLACE CHURCH.

There were a large number present at the morning service at the Hall Place M. E. church on Sunday. The pastor Rev. Carl H. Raupach, took for his text "We have found the Messiah, which is, being interpreted, the Christ." John 1-41. He spoke briefly of the discovery of America by Columbus, and the discovery of ether as an anaesthetic, and then drew attention to the more important discovery by two of John's disciples of the Christ.

The session of the Sunday school was held at the close of the morning service. The Junior League met at 3 P. M. Miss Maud Nichols led the Epworth League devotional service at 6.15 on "A measure for prayer." the service being well attended.

The pastor took for his evening subject, "A reasonable discrimination in the Christian life," this text being taken from Roman's 12-9 — "Abhor that which is evil, cleave to that which is good." There is a certain reasonable discrimination between what God expect of us and what we think He expects of us. God does not expect us to be perfect, only as regards the law of love and in that, we must "love God with all our heart, our soul, our mind, and our neighbor as ourself." Beyond that God does not demand perfection of every quality in our life, but He does expect us to improve every opportunity toward perfecting as near as we can, with His help, our lives.

The first quarterly conference will be held Tuesday evening in the vestry with Dr. Galbraith in the choir.

Choir rehearsal will be held this evening at the home of Mr. Fred L. Badger on Cresent street. Prayer meeting on Friday at 7.30,

WOLLASTON BAPTIST CHURCH.

The preaching morning and evening on Sunday was by the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther. Morning subject, "The Economy of Jesus,"—John 6: 12. "Gather up the fragments that remain that nothing be lost." Christ showed economy of time in power and energy Christ did not pray for angels to defend him while He was being arrested before His crucification but allowed God's will to be done. Jesus saved his own power and gave it to his diciples. The pastor spoke of several instances where power was lost. About 40 per cent of electricity is lost before it gets to where it can do actual service. Power is lost in the waves of the sea, and in the noise of machinery. Material that was once considered worthless is now being used in the manufacture of many useful articles. There are lost powers or unused powers in us that God can find and use if we will allow Him. A 30 shilling picture was cleaned up and brightened up so that it was worth 32 pounds. A dying woman asked that her days and months be given back to her that she might use all her powers in the service of God. He closed with the question, how can we be more useful?

The subject of the evening sermon was "A man that played the part of a fool."—I Samuel 26-21. Saul said, behold I have played the part of a fool, and have erred exceedingly. Because of sin Saul was rejected as King. He played the part of a fool when he refused to repent and when he rejected every warning that came to him. He died as he lived a poor fooled man. Saul is typical of many men today. A fool will not make any provision for the future. Fools ignore the danger signals of God. Be sure your sin will find you out. Let us pray, Lord be merciful and lead us to our home in Heaven.

The Sunday school was largely attended. A young men's class has been lately organized which promises to be very interesting and helpful. Young men 17 years and over are cordially invited to attend and become members.

Young peoples meeting at 6 o'clock was full of interest. It being a union meeting of the junior and senior society. Special music was rendered and a very encouraging report of the junior work was given by the superintendent, Mrs. Harriman who has done splendid work during the year.

BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Whall of Webster street have returned from an extended trip through the west.

Clifford Fratus of Hancock street will spend the summer traveling abroad.

Officer James W. Murray, who has been confined to his home for some weeks has so far recovered that he was able to resume his beat in City Square this morning.

The Elm Hill Milk company of Dorchester have leased the large stable of Osborne Rogers on Hancock street, and will use it as a distributing station.

The Rev. William H. Cundy of Ohio occupied the pulpit of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening. The Rev. Harry M. Fishel read his resignation after the morning service on Sunday. He leaves the ministry to become a teacher. Mr. Fishel is a student volunteer and intends later to teach in the foreign field.

The Quincy Women's club has a most versatile corresponding secretary in Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell. She has written a hymn for the club; is a singer and understands music thoroughly and on Saturday at the Pinafore matinee also surprised her friends by her dramatic ability. This is not all for the clever prologue and topical song were written by her and her helpfulness and interest contributed in no small measure to the success of the presentation.

His Name In the Directory.

"One funny thing I have learned about human nature," said the drug store cashier, "is the habit many people have of marking their own names in the city directory. They do that because the directory is the only place where their names ever get into print, and it has such a fascination for them that they can't resist calling attention to it. A funny old man who likes to talk tells me that he has made special trips to different parts of the city just to mark his name in the directories of the neighborhood. He puts a little cross in red ink before it. I asked him what good it did. He said none possibly, although he is a teacher of languages and may get a few calls on account of that queer advertisement. But his is an exceptional case. Not many persons spend time and money hunting city directories, but every time they happen to see a new one they can't help looking up their names and putting some kind of a mark around them."—New York Sun.

Tommy's Reason.

"Tommy," the schoolma'am asked, "why are you scratching your head?"

"Cause nobody else knows just where it itches."

Is "Three Fingered" Brown Really the Master of Mathewson?

As has been the case for the past few years, rivalry is again intense between "Three Fingered" Brown of the Chicago Nationals and Christy Mathewson of the New York Nationals for the pitching honors of the country. Recently a New York critic claimed that Mathewson was the greatest twirler the game ever produced, and many thousands will agree with him. But Chicago fans claim this is not so and say that their idol is the peer of any twirler in the country. To prove this they point to the records of the men when they have opposed each other for the last six years.

MATHEWSON.

BROWN.

Brown and Mathewson have pitched against each other in seventeen games, and Brown has won almost two games to Mathewson's one. The Chicago star is credited with eleven victories and the great Giant rival with six. Last season the New York pitcher won two of three games from Brown, but Mathewson's first victory over Brown last year was the first in four years. This season Mathewson is in better shape than Brown and may eclipse the latter's performances this year. The following shows what the great pitchers have done against each other:

BROWN'S VICTORIES.

	Score.	Hits.
June 13, 1904	3 to 2	4 and 6
July 12, 1905	8 to 1	12 and 3
July 17, 1906	6 to 1	9 and 7
Aug. 18, 1906	6 to 2	12 and 8
May 21, 1907	3 to 2	8 and 9
June 5, 1907	8 to 2	16 and 7
Aug. 2, 1907	5 to 0	9 and 4
July 17, 1908	1 to 0	7 and 6

Paull After Mile Record.

Mike Murphy is training Captain Billy Paull of the Pennsylvania track team to lower Tommy Conneff's American mile record of 4 minutes 15 3-5 seconds.

Smallest Umpire Is Not Five Feet Tall.

Barney Briceland, who is umpiring in the Central league this season, is the smallest indicator holder on any ball field in the country. He stands less than five feet in height. Briceland is light in weight, but is all grit. He has worked in the Ohio-Pennsylvania league as a substitute and at one time held an indicator in one of the western leagues. Briceland is a potter by trade.

DIAMOND CHIRPS.

Bobby Byrne, the Pittsburg's third sacker, is hitting 'em "where they ain't." He is running the bases like a deer and playing a great all around game.

President Tom Lynch would make no mistake to put several so called wits who are seen on the National league coaching lines in the same class as the photographers.

Manager George Stallings of the New York Americans has picked up a jewel in Harry Wolter, the Boston Red Sox discard. Wolter surely looks like an altogether different player than when he wore one of John I. Taylor's uniforms.

Baseball teems with inconsistencies. The managers seek pitchers who can't be hit and batters who can hit any pitcher. They also hunt catchers who can throw to bases with such speed and accuracy that base runners can't steal and speed boys who can steal on any catcher.

It looks more and more as if the spitball has been the undoing of Ed Walsh, the Chicago Americans' star pitcher. Until last season he was the terror of the American league. He rounded to form late in the summer of 1909. This spring he has been troubled with a lame arm that has failed to yield to treatment.

Mansfield's Coaching.

"Richard Mansfield," said an actress who played in his company, "was a great teacher, but terribly relentless. I shall never forget a time when I was playing with him in 'The First Violin.' I could not, strive frantically as I would, do the thing he wanted. He was gentle at first, and then, persisting in my failure, he began to lash and whip and sting me with his words until I thought I should have to run away. In agony of impotent desperation I cried out:

"'I cannot! Oh, I cannot!'

"Mr. Mansfield threw up his hands in a gesture of relief, and a smile played about his lips.

"'Why,' he said sweetly, 'you're doing the very thing right now. No one on earth could do it better.' And then I knew what he meant, and those lines were a triumph to me all that season."—Detroit Free Press.

Many Families from Boston and Vicinity Already at Houghs Neck

Building Boom Continues and Cottages Are Being Enlarged

With Decoration Day, the opening day for most summer institutions, at hand and the close of the school year less than a month distant, the Adams Shore and Houghs Neck summer colonies will be rapidly filled with people from every suburb of Boston and even other states than Massachusetts seeking relief from the summer's heat. Every preparation for their reception is being made, cottages are being repaired or built ready for immediate occupancy, amusement pavilions are being placed in readiness for business, and such business enterprises as thrive at summer resorts are being opened. Building activities are very noticeable and the work in hand is being rapidly pushed to completion. In view of the large number of frame dwellings at Houghs Neck, the hose house will have a full quota of men on the alert to prevent any disastrous conflagration. Below are given the names of some of the arrivals and other interesting news of the Neck.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Whittemore of Boston have taken the Wall cottage on Charles street for the summer.

Mrs. Dicker of Boston has taken Youngs cottage on Sea street.

E. E. Cleary and family of Malden have converted the Esther cottage on Winthrop street into a permanent residence, which they will occupy hereafter.

John W. Collins will occupy the Arthur cottage on Crosby street. This cottage is very attractive.

John F. Keenan and family of Roslindale have leased the Maine cottage on Turner street.

George Davis of Gloucester has bought and repaired the Belle cottage on Sea street, and will occupy it permanently with his family.

Philip Catarius and family will occupy a new house on Great Hill.

Miss Bessie Kenelly of Rock Island Road is going to Manchester, N. H., for a month's visit.

Mrs. Collier of Rogers street has built an addition to her cottage.

Frank Alexander has painted and repaired his cottage on Charles street.

Capt. Philip M. Brown has made an addition to his cottage on Winthrop street.

Capt. Albert Tabor has made repairs to his Bell street cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. M. McIntyre of Reed's Ferry, N. H., are occupying the Merrimac cottage on Roger street.

Mrs. Barbara King has taken the Mauretania cottage on Turner street.

Frank Hall, well known in Houghs Neck, is receiving condolences of his many friends on the death of his wife who passed away in Scituate a few days ago.

Mrs. Darius Willard of Brockton, has taken the Tidal Wave cottage on Turner street. Miss Myrtle Holbrook also of Brockton is visiting her.

John County, chief of the Essex street post office in Boston, with his family, is occupying a new summer home on Winthrop street.

William F. Gaffney and family of South Boston are occupying the Lusitania cottage on Turner street.

Warren Carr of Brockton is occupying a bungalow on Centre street.

A row of stores is being built near the hose house and another near the end of the car line.

The Olive May cottage looks especially fine, having been repaired and a garden set out around it.

Several Houghs Neck residents have taken up gardening for pleasure or to get the best of high prices and there are numerous patches of ground in the process of cultivation.

ARGENTINA KEEL LAID

New Battleship Will Be Largest in the World

The Blue and White Waves Over the Fore River Shipyard

Today is a great day for the Argentine naval officers stationed at the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. yard, for in addition to being the one-hundredth anniversary of the independence of Argentina, it marked the laying of the first plate of the keel of the largest battleship of the world, which is being built at the Fore River yards for the Argentine Republic.

There was but little ceremony connected with the keel laying. It was intended that the first plate should be placed in position at 10 o'clock, but owing to missing train connections, it was an hour later before Admiral Garcia arrived. There was a brief informal reception at the building set apart in the yard for the use of the naval officers, after which they proceeded to the ship house where the concrete cradle was in readiness to receive the plates.

In the Argentine party were: Admiral M. D. Garcia; Commander E. Olievra, Lieut. Com. J. Yalour, Lieut. Com. M. G. Bianchi, Lieut. I. Espindola, Naval Constructor Manuel Bianchi, Capt. D. Aguirre, Lieut. Com. Carlos M. Valladaees, Senior Lieut. Oswaldo Fernandez, Electrical Engineer Desiderio Casanova, Naval Architect, Valerio Masjoan, Lieut. Com. Storni, Mrs. Oswaldo Fernandez, Mrs. M. G. Bianchi, Master Norman Bianchi and his nurse.

All of the party wore little rosettes of blue and white ribbon, while from the front of their headquarters there floated the blue and white striped Argentina flag with a sudden sunburst in the centre.

After being photographed, the officers with Admiral Bowles, mounted the short ladder leading to the top of the cradle.

Plate number three was then hoisted high into the air, and then lowered into its position on the keel blocks. The operation looked simple enough, but much careful work must have been done to have it fit into its position so nicely. After being lowered onto the block, Master Norman Bianchi, a lad of five summers, dressed in a white flannel suit, was placed on the keel, and he stood up and waved his hands to the spectators. This perhaps meant little to the boy today, but in years to come it will mark an interesting event in his life.

Immediately after the plate had been secured, the officers returned to their headquarters, where an informal lunch was served. This afternoon several of the officers will go to Provincetown on the yacht Starling to witness the trials of the submarine Salmon, which is making a great record.

There are twelve of the main keel plates. Each of these is 24 feet long and 5 feet wide. They occupy a space of about 300 feet. It is expected that about two thirds of these will be in position by night.

Several of the Argentine commission were guests during the noon hour of Capt. D. Aguirre at his residence at 65 Chestnut street. Mrs. Aguirre is recovering from the recent automobile accident but was not able to attend the ceremony at the shipyard.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS

By All Committees Working for Merchants' Week

The members of the Quincy Merchants' association are enthusiastic over the approaching Merchants' Week in Quincy and everything gives promise of its being a grand success. The members of the executive committee met Tuesday afternoon at the rooms of the Board of Trade, when reports from the several committees were received. The report of every committee was encouraging and showed that practically all arrangements were complete and those that were not completed at the present time were moving along favorably.

The report of the committee on finance was very gratifying, H. E. Crane, the chairman of this committee said that the association could count on him for about $1,000, for that was the amount pledged, and over $800 of this sum had already been collected.

The committee on advertising reported that 5,000 of the advertising sheets would be delivered Saturday morning and that their distribution would be commenced Monday morning. Also that the balance of the 15,000 copies would be delivered as fast as wanted.

The committee on sports said that their part of the program was progressing favorably and that the prizes had been purchased and that the entries for the several events were coming along all right.

The matter of an advertising car was not definitely settled. The committee were very anxious that a car should be fitted up to be sent over the street railway lines during Merchants' Week. This would serve to attract much attention to the fact that there was something doing in Quincy. By a vote of the committee, H. Everett Crane was appointed as a special committee to see General Superintendent Conway of the street railway company, and see if it was not possible to get an advertising car.

There was more or less informal discussion on the approaching event by the gentlemen present, and the sentiment expressed that there was no question about the week being a success. Several of the gentlemen said that they did not look for any great increase in their sales that week, but that the main thing was to have the city advertised and they believed that the city would get more advertising that week than it ever had before, over any one thing.

The matter of holding an outing of the merchants the coming summer was brought up informally, but action in regard to the question was deferred until the regular meeting of the association.

Outside of Merchants' Week, the event of interest to the local merchants is the dinner to the clerks which will be held at Alpha hall Thursday evening. The committee having this in charge reported that up to the present time 130 tickets had been disposed of, and it was thought by Wednesday noon this number would be swelled to 140 or 150. The dinner will be served at 6.30 by C. C. Whittemore. The after-dinner speakers will be ex-Mayor Carter of Somerville, whose address will be well worth hearing. Another gentleman who has promised to be present, and from whom something interesting may be expected, is Mr. Donovan of Rockland, the gentleman who fired some hot shots at things in general at a recent meeting of the association.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

If you want a sample of patience, look at Oyster Bay.

If Jeff gets much stronger before July 4, he might deliver a Chatauqua lecture or two.

The earthquake has taken the place of the revolution in the disquietudes of Central America.

Collier's Weekly now caps the climax by referring to Mr. Glavis as the "Dreyfus of American politics."

Estimates of the loss by the fire in the Music hall blocks took a wide range, but usually they are large, and Chief Williams' figures of $8,000 will be pretty nearly correct.

Mr. Roosevelt's expenses in Europe are said to be $250 per day. This, of course, makes it necessary for the colonel to write at least a quarter of a column every day, at $1.00 per word the usual rates.

If government contracts were the only work done at the Fore River shipyard there would be no hesitancy in adopting the eight-hour standard and figuring accordingly, but contracts on which the company make a profit are not with the United States government, and they are in competition with other shipyards.

As the years go by, the Grand Army of the Republic should have more assistance from the public on Memorial day. The organization should not be handicapped for funds, nor for speakers, nor for flowers, nor for refreshments, etc, etc. It is with considerable pride that the veterans march on Memorial day, and they would remonstrate against any change, but we would like to see the Grand Army ride in decorated automobiles on Memorial day, and have the route of procession cover the whole city. This might be done if several owners of automobiles would tender their use to Paul Revere Post. Should the Grand Army ride it would also be necessary to provide floats for the band, Woman's Relief Corps and other organizations. But let Quincy establish the precedent, perhaps another year, and make the veterans our guests of honor.

BROCKTON'S SOUVENIR.

The Brockton Merchants' Bulletin, the souvenir program of Brockton's Merchants' week are printed and on Saturday were sent to Boston to be bound. There are 25,000 of the volumes to be distributed, of which 15,000 are to go to outside towns and 10,000 copies will be for use in thecity. Edward Weston, the parcel delivery man has been awarded the contract to distribute them. He will use one of his automobiles and start the work on the outside towns May 26.

POND HOME DONATION DAY.

The eighth anniversary of Pond Home will be observed as Donation Day, Saturday, June 4th. Trains for Pondville leave South station at 12 noon. Fancy and useful articles will be fore sale also sandwiches, coffee, cake and ice cream.

The Cressy Memorial Chapel will be dedicated at 2.45 P. M. with an interesting program.

Gifts of money or articles for the home will be gratefully received. People unable to attend, and desiring to contribute, may leave their gifts with Mrs. Thomas Fenno, 538 Hancock street, Wollaston, or Mrs. C. W. Guy 42 Butler road, Quincy.

—Members o fthe Brockton Merchants' Association are to have their Merchants' week banquet on Friday evening June 10. Mayor Clifford will be a guest and post prandial exercises will be conducted by President Walter M. Dunbar.

SOMETHING HELD BACK

Heike Not Yet Hit by Prosecution In Sugar Fraud Case

New York, May 25.—Although the government's star witness, Oliver Spitzer, the former dock master, who walked out of the Atlanta penitentiary, where he had been sent after bossing for years the sugar weighing frauds on the Williamsburg docks, had a most interesting story to tell, it is not mainly on his evidence that the government relies in its effort to convict Charles R. Heike, the American Sugar Refining company's secretary, of a part in the conspiracy fraud.

The government, it is believed, has not yet shown its full hand against Heike. Little of the evidence has pointed directly the way of the trust secretary. As the "highest up" man so far prosecuted, however, the government will not be likely to neglect any point that might bear against him.

ROOSEVELT'S BUSY DAY

Visits Queen Mother and British Museum and Lunches With Editors

London, May 25.—Theodore Roosevelt was received in audience by the Queen Mother Alexandra and Dowager Empress Marie of Russia at Buckingham palace. Previously, accompanied by F. C. Selous, R. J. Cunninghame and Seth Bullock, he visited the British museum.

George E. Buckle, editor of The Times, Sir Arthur C. Doyle, Owen Seaman, editor of Punch, and L. J. Maxse, editor of the National Review, joined Roosevelt at lunch at the residence of Lieutenant Colonel Lee.

Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt drove alone to St. George's church, Hanover square, which was the scene of their wedding. The ex-president's throat, which was in bad condition, shows great improvement.

UNCLE SAM IS GOING INTO PIE BUSINESS

Contract For Big Plant In the Panama Canal Zone

Cincinnati, May 25.—Work on the Panama canal from this time on ought to be one grand round of pleasure. In order to lighten the burden on the heroes of the big ditch, and to carry them back in memory to the pies that mother used to make, Uncle Sam is going into the pie business to compete with mother's famous pies.

His agents have closed a contract here for a pie baking plant to have a capacity of 30,000 pies daily. The machinery is being built by the J. H. Day company. The plant will cost about $40,000.

There is now in operation in the Panama canal zone a pie bakery that is capable of turning out 10,000 pies a day. This is working day and night. So good are these pies that the appetite for pie there far exceeds the supply, so Uncle Sam is arranging to turn out 40,000 pies a day by the middle of the summer.

TWO SPREES A YEAR

Man Who Indulges More Often May Be Classed With Topers

New York, May 25.—While expressing doubt as to the efficacy of the measure, Mayor Gaynor has approved a bill passed recently by the legislature providing for the treatment of inebriates and sent it back to Governor Hughes for consideration. If the governor affixes his signature to the document it will become a law.

The bill defines an inebriate as one addicted to the constant use of beverages or drugs and who is arrested for public intoxication several times in one year. While the limit of "sprees" allowed is not specifically fixed, it is understood to be not more than two in one year.

INDICTMENT NOL PROSSED

Lockhart Goes Free Through Action by District Attorney

Boston, May 25.—The indictment against Wilson W. Lockhart, George W. Coleman's general utility man, which charged him with aiding and abetting Coleman in the misappropriation of the funds of the National City bank of Cambridge, was nol prossed by District Attorney French.

Lockhart was out under bail of $15,000 furnished by his father.

Carried to Death In Sewer

Boston, May 25.—John Gorham, an employe of the metropolitan sewerage department, was overcome by gas in the Kemp street sewer, and was carried through the pipe by the rushing water. His body was not recovered and is thought to have been swept out to the bay.

Publisher Nutt Drowned

London, May 25.—The London publishing world has been saddened by the news of the tragic death in France of Alfred Nutt. While driving by the Seine at Melun with his invalid son, the horse bolted, throwing the rig into the river. The boy was saved.

Recluse Kills Himself

Waldoboro, Me., May 25.—Meaubec Lash, 60 years old, killed himself by shooting. He had been in ill-health for some time, and despondent. He lived alone and had no known relatives.

TEAMSTER KILLED.

Michael Harris, aged 42 years, residing at 10 Smith street, Roxbury, was instantly killed at East Milton on Monday, when a wagon load of lumber which he was driving capsized on Granite avenue, burying him under the load. The team was going down a hill when the horses started to run. As they ran the team swerved from side to side until it capsized.

CITY RECORDS.

Mayor Shea and Commissioner Bainbridge are making plans to provide for additional protection for the city records at City Hall under the order passed by the City Council appropriating $3,000 for that purpose. A new door and new steel shelves will be put in the vault in the City Treasurer office. a new and larger safe in the Tax Collectors office, two new safes in the office of the Board of Health, and steel shelves will replace the wooden shelves in the large vault in the basement under the main entrance to the hall.

Mrs. Francis F. Brewer of Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution has been elected a district vice regent of the State Society D. R.

* * *

Taylor; recording secretary—Miss Elizabeth Hobart; corresponding secretary—Mrs. Joanna A. Cate; treasurer—Miss Lucy M. Crane; registrar—Mrs. Lavolne Crane historian— Mrs. George G. Saville of Quincy.

A FEW DONT'S.

The Home Economics committee of the Quincy Women's club would like to call attention of the club women of Quincy to the following dont's by Mrs. Walter McNab Miller:

Don't educate your grocer before you educate yourself.

Don't blame when you can praise.

Don't buy food exposed on the street.

Don't buy food exposed in dirty shops.

Don't buy food where employees are unclean.

Don't buy food where employees have no proper sanitary conveniences.

Don't buy food where cats and dogs are allowed.

Don't buy without reading labels.

Don't buy bargain counter food.

Don't buy without seeing food.

Don't hide any evasion of the Pure Food Laws which you find.

Don't leave kitchen and ice chest to servants.

Don't rest until your town has a salaried inspector.

This is the season when great care must be taken of the food supplies of the family. Does it not seem strange that for the next four or five months at just the season of the year when all can have the benefit of the fresh air with very little effort, that we begin to hear of bowel troubles, etc., as being very prevalent. In former years such troubles were laid to the eating of unripe fruit and green vegetables; but today there is no doubt that the filthy house fly is to blame for much of such illness. He has been called the "typhoid fly," he is also the "dysentery fly," and "Remember that where absolute cleanliness prevails there will be no flies.—Mary L. Wade, Chairman.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Mothers' Association holds its next meeting in Bethany chapel on Wednesday afternoon,, June first at three o'clock. Mrs. W. H. Doble will then give her talk upon "The Period of Adolesence." This is a subject which will especially interest the mothers with children just entering their teens. These meetings have been largely attended and it is expected that the good weather will make it possible for even a larger number this time. All women are welcome.

PINAFORE ECHOES.

Alas! the pity of it that all our friends masculine were barred out. Enjoyment is but doubled when shared with our friends and when it was the best ever—alas! alas!

And Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B., the highbred, condescending aristocrat, did he once let us forget the immeasurable distance between the flower of the nobility and those matinee girls who so completely filled Music hall on Saturday? "No, Never!"

Mrs. Tirrell was indeed the fascinating sailor-lover for our Josephine. If we rubbed our eyes at being thus newly introduced to our poet and soloist what wonder.

Did you ever see a finer captain? No, never! Well hardly ever:

Poor ugly misshapen Dick Deadeye, not an attractive part to take but how well interpreted.

Those Sargeants of Marines did not have much to say but weren't they fine to look at?

Bill Bobstay and Bob Beckett were natty sailors, and what jolly tars were the chorus of sailors.

Those "sisters, cousins and aunts" of Sir Joseph; well they were enough to demoralize any ship's crew with their facinating attire and how they did make eyes at the poor sailor lads.

May we look forward to "Mikado"' next season?

The Music committee is to be congratulated on its use of club talent. Every one knew that the club had some especially fine soloists but were surprised to find that with it was unusual dramatic ability. There are no heights to high for members of the Quincy Women's club. Think what the future has in store for those who enjoy being entertained.

Is it to be wondered at that Sir Joseph should be attracted to Josephine and poor Ralph Rackstraw's heart go pitapat when she did appear; such charms of manner and sympathy of voice would cause havoc on any deck.

"Little Buttercup, sweet little Buttercup," no two minds about that for never did one see a cuter one.

May we all be blessed with many "sisters, cousins and aunts" if they but possess the charm of Hebe. O what a world this might be!

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Somerville Bathhouse Bill Passed By House

The bill for a Metropolitan bathhouse in Somerville was passed 119 to 78, Representatives Langelier and Thomas both voting in favor. The House again turned down a committee on Tuesday, when by a large majority it substituted a bill to increase the tax on deposits in savings departments of Trust companies. If taxed the same as Savings banks they would pay $820,000 more than they do.

The House also refused to reject the bill to collect inheritance on property which is not in Massachusetts at time of death of owner, The tuition bill was rejected, also the anti-log rolling bill, and the appreciation for Mt. Everett reservation.

The Senate rejected the Ross amendment to the Knight anti-injunction bill, 13 to 20, Senator Hultman voting no. The bill was then killed. The Senate refused to reverse its action on the Cape Cod bill, Senator Hultman voting for reconsideration. Senator Hultman was againt the resolve to abolish the Charlestown grade crossings.

Senator Hultman and Representa-Langilier and Thomas attend on Tuesday evening the progation dinner of the Legislature at the Quincy House. Gov. Draper and Lieut Gov. Frothingham were among the guests.

A. O. U. W. ANNIVERSARY.

Norfolk lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen celebrated their sixteenth anniversary Monday evening, in Music hall, Atlantic. The hall was crowded. James Morrison, the guide introduced two grand lodge officers, Past Grand Master Workman James J. Reedy of Cambridge, and District Deputy Milliken to Master Workmen Cornelius O'Connell, John C. Ward presided at the piano. The Master Workman gave the address of welcome. Miss Ruth Cahill played several selections on the piano, after which the speaker of the evening, James J. Reedy of Cambridge was introduced.

Mr. Reedy spoke for a half an hour on the advantages of membership in the order. He pointed out the duty of men to uphold the cause of woman and the protection of the home and children. He drew a striking parallel between the straight life insurance companies and insurance in the Ancient Order of United Workmen. The organization has been in existence for thiry-three years, having started with but thirteen members, but now it has attained a membership of over thirty two thousand in New Hampshire and Massachusetts alone. The organization paid out last year five million dollars in benefits and yet has a surplus in the treasury reaching up into the tens ofthousands. He closed his speech by citing a number of actual instances where help has been given.

Joseph Mausett sang "Anchored." He was loudly encored. The lights were then turned out and pictures illustrating "Colleen Bawn" were thrown on the screen, while Mr. Mausett sang the song, the audience joining in the chorus. Miss Ruth Cahill sang "Songs of other days" as the illustrations were thrown on the canvass. After this scenes of famous mountains were shown. James Cahill gave one of the Uncle Josh selections, after which he read, by request, "James O'Brien." Ice cream and cake were served and the floor was cleared for dancing.

CONTROVERSY OVER SERMON

Leads to Resignation of Rabbi Magnes of Temple Emanu-El

URGED RETURN TO ORTHODOXY

"Co-operation or No Re-election" His Ultimatum When Congregation Showed Displeasure Over His Criticism of Reformed Judaism—Trustees Take Letter as Resignation—Declare Associate Rabbinate Vacant

New York, May 25.—The associate rabbinate of the Temple Emanu-El is left vacant by the action of the trustees and the members of the congregation regarding a letter sent to them by Rabbi Leon Magnes in the light of a resignation and accepting it. The severance of the ties between the synagogue and Magnes is no surprise to the congregation or in Hebrew circles, for it was known that his conflict of opinions with the congregation must inevitably lead to that development.

The incidents culminating in the acceptance of his resignation had their origin in his recent Passover sermon, which was regarded as diametrically opposite to the view of the congregation, or most of it. The expression of his views on that occasion convinced the majority of the congregation that a reconciliation between them and the rabbi, because of the divergence of views, was impossible.

In this sermon he called attention to the empty pews of the temple, to the absence of the younger generation of the children of the members, and predicted the decadence of the congregation unless it made certain changes in its method of worship. He called emphatically for the abandonment of the Union Prayer Book, which is the prayer book of the Reform Jews of this country, and the substitution for it of the old ritualistic prayer book, which reform had discarded and which contains prayers for the restoration of the Jewish state in Palestine.

He demanded also that the "confirmation" of the children of the congregation be abandoned, and that instead the old Jewish custom of Bar Mitzvah be reinstituted; he demanded the moderation of the price of pews, so that men of moderate circumstances could bring their families into the temple, and he demanded the increase of lessons in the Sunday school and the organization of adult classes in history.

"If, however," he added, "the congregation indicates that I am not to expect its co-operation in accomplishing the purpose I cherish, then I am constrained with regret, but without the least hesitation, to refuse a re-election to the rabbinate of the congregation at the expiration of my present term."

Dr. Magnes, who was called to the temple in 1906, preached in November, 1907, shortly after the marriage of Trustee Louis Stern's daughter to Baron Leo von Graffenried, a Catholic, a sermon deploring the marriage of Jews with Christians. Stern resigned a few months later. Magnes came from the Temple Israel, Brooklyn. He is a native of San Francisco, 33 years old, and is prominent in the American Federation of Zionists.

YOUNG LOTHARIO ARRESTED

But Not Until He Had Been Soundly Thrashed by Girl's Friends

Jersey City, N. J., May 25.—Sadie Buxbaum, 15 years old, of Jersey City, got acquainted with Fred Viano, 19 years old, in a street flirtation a few nights ago. She was reminded of the chance meeting by the receipt of a letter from Viano, in which he invited her to accompany him on a pleasure trip to Boston.

The girl showed the letter to her mother and Mrs. Buxbaum took the matter in charge. She dictated a letter which her daughter signed, telling Viano to meet the girl on the corner near her home last night.

The young man fell into the trap and Miss Buxbaum, her mother, her 17-year-old brother and four of the latter's friends were on hand to greet him. The boys thrashed Viano until he was almost helpless, when they called Policeman Hirsche and the youth was locked up as a disorderly person. He said he lived in Lexington, Mass.

MEAT PACKERS INDICTED

Agricultural Department Charges Evasion of Inspection Law

Hartford, May 25.—In the United States district court here two true bills were handed down by the grand jury against the Schwartzchild & Sulzberger Packing company of Chicago for shipping meat which had not been inspected in accordance with the meat inspection act of the department of agriculture.

The case is not brought under the pure food law, but by the department of agriculture through the bureau of animal industry.

The penalty for each offense is a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment, or both. The case will be tried on June 3.

SPACE FOR ANIMALS IN TRANSPORTATION

Federal Court Will Be Asked to Settle the Matter

Washington, May 25.—The department of agriculture, it is announced, has determined to institute a number of test cases and obtain rulings from the federal courts with relation to space that must be afforded animals in cars in transit from one state to another, controversy having arisen between railroads and some shippers of livestock relative to unloading and compliance with the twenty-eight-hour law.

This law provides that when animals are carried in cars "in which they can and do have proper food, water, space and opportunity to rest," they shall not be required to be unloaded.

The department of agriculture will not for the present raise the question of space if cars are not loaded beyond the minimum weight fixed by the tariffs, but railroads which load beyond the minimum and do not unload for the rest are to be prosecuted.

NEWS FROM THE COMET

Knapp Receives More Than He Knows What to Do With

Washington, May 25.—Captain Knapp, chief hydrographer, is getting more information about the comet than he desires. Some time ago he sent out a general appeal to all navigators to look out for the comet, take careful note of its position and peculiarities and report the results to him.

These results have been coming in so numerous that Knapp foresees the speedy exhaustion of the limited sum of money allowed annually by congress for telegraph and cable expenses of the office. They all come "collect" and the hydrographer can devise no way to turn them off.

DROWNS IN BATHTUB

Fate of an Infant Whom a Little Fellow Tried to Amuse

New York, May 25.—The effort of a small boy to amuse a neighbor's baby led to the infant's death in a tub of hot water. The little victim was Alice Alliger, 10 months old. The police say that while Mrs. Alliger was hanging out clothes in the yard Robert Cornell, although only 5 years old, turned on the water in the bathtub and lifted the baby up to watch it run. The baby slipped from his arms and the boy, frightened, ran home. The infant was dead when found by the frantic mother.

MAYOR FITZGERALD

Comes Out Strongly For Sunday Pastimes

MAYOR IS FOR SUNDAY SPORTS

Wants Boston Playgrounds and Parks to Remain Open

GOING BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Will Ask For Law In Interest of Young People, Making It Legal to Play Baseball, Tennis and Other Harmless Games on the Lord's Day—Says We Are Not Living In the Days of Pilgrim Fathers

Boston, May 25.—Mayor Fitzgerald announces that he favors an "open Sunday" for this city as far as harmless sports are concerned, and declares that he will submit a bill to the legislature next year providing for the making of Sunday baseball, tennis, golf, etc., legal. He states that he is in favor of keeping all of Boston's playgrounds open Sundays.

The mayor said in talking on the matter: "Sunday baseball will soon come in this town. I am in favor of allowing all of these harmless sports on Sundays. I am in favor too of keeping all of the playgrounds in the city open Sundays.

"The boys who now use the playgrounds find themselves with but little to do on Sundays. Idleness breeds mischief. If the boys had an opportunity to enjoy themselves in harmless sports in these playgrounds they would be much better off.

"At present scores of the boys hang on the street corners Sundays. Open playgrounds would do away with most of this and benefit not only the boys, but those who pass these corners and who are often the butts of the pranks of these youngsters.

"We want sports on Sundays as on week days. The time is coming, too, when the playgrounds and the parks will be thrown open on Sundays and baseball, golf, tennis and all other sports will be in full swing. The city will have to come to it. We are not living in the days of the Pilgrims; I shall do all I can to fight for Sunday pleasures. We can row a boat on Sunday, go automobiling, riding and driving, but we cannot play ball. Give the boys a chance and they will grow up to be citizens that we can be proud of."

The mayor has already begun his campaign for the freer use of the city playgrounds by directing that they be open Saturday afternoons, the same as on the other five days of the week, and he has asked the school committee to provide suitable apparatus.

Many Women who are Splendid Cooks

dread having to prepare an elaborate dinner because they are not sufficiently strong to stand over an intensely hot coal range. This is especially true in summer. Every woman takes pride in the table she sets, but often it is done at tremendous cost to her own vitality through the weakening effect of cooking on a coal range in a hot kitchen.

It is no longer necessary to wear yourself out preparing a fine dinner. Even in the heat of summer you can cook a large dinner without being worn out.

New Perfection

In compliance with the laws of our order, our established custom and general orders from headquarters, the comrades of this Post will observe MONDAY, the 30th day of May, as Memorial Day. Comrades, let us observe Memorial Day with reverence and thoughtfulness. Let us bring our fairest blossoms and with loving thoughts place them upon the graves of our departed comrades. The comrades who stood by our side on the march, the firing line, or behind the guns on the decks of our men-of-war. On this hallowed day we plant the flag and wreaths upon your last resting place as a loving testimonial to your country and flag.

The cannon no longer growls harsh on the hills.

Congress Has New Bill Providing For Tariff Board

OFFERED BY GOOD OF IOWA

Provides For Working Organization of Five Men at Salary of $7500—Information to Be Given to Congress If Wanted, Thus Overcoming Objection to Present Law—Carries Appropriation of $250,000

Washington, May 25.—Representative Good of Iowa introduced a bill calling for the appointment of a tariff commission. The bill is designed to overcome the obstacles which have confronted President Taft and those members of the house and senate who were endeavoring to assist him in making the present tariff board an effective working organization.

Mr. Good's bill provides that the commission shall consist of five members, to be paid $7500 a year, appointed by the president, with the consent of the senate. It provides that no member of the commission shall be interested directly or indirectly in the manufacture or sale of any article dealt with by the tariff.

The objection to the present law on the ground that the commission is is required to report only to the president, and that the executive communicates the result of the investigations to congress only at will, is met in Good's bill by providing that the evidence collected regarding the difference between the cost at home and abroad shall be available to the president when he wants it and to congress when it wants it, but not to be published except upon the express order of the president or congress.

The bill carries an appropriation of $250,000, the exact amount carried in the sundry civil appropriation, which went out of that bill on a point of order made by Representative Fitzgerald of New York.

The particular value of Good's bill is that, although it confers on the commission more power than is now allowed in existing law, it is not subject to a point of order.

It is known that the Good bill will be supported by a number of Democrats and Republicans who are now opposed to the section dealing with the same subject in the appropriation bill.

Chairman Tawney's amendment appropriating $250,000 to permit the president to obtain information bearing on the tariff was decided by Representative Mann (Ill.), in the chair to be out of order.

SCORNS FIGHT MONEY

Merchant Thinks Pugilist's Cash No Better Than a Murderer's

Traverse City, Mich., May 25.—The serious injury of Kathleen Slater, aged 12, by the automobile of Ad Wolgast, lightweight pugilistic champion, was made the occasion of a vigorous display of anti-fight sentiment by the girl's father, J. W. Slater, a prominent merchant.

"Wolgast's money is no better than a murderer's," declared Slater when a damage suit was suggested. "I wouldn't touch it."

The girl was riding horseback when her horse became frightened, and, it is said, jumped directly in front of the automobile.

SCARCITY OF MILK IN NEW YORK CITY

May Result If Producers Insist Upon Higher Prices

New York, May 25.—There may be a milk dearth in New York city if the milk dealers of Boston do not grant the demands of the producers in that territory. The question of payment for their product has become of such importance in Boston that leading dairymen from that section have met in this city dairymen of this region who take the stand that they, too, do not get enough money for their milk. This statement was issued:

"The milk producers met and heartily indorsed the crystallization of the interests of the producers in their efforts to obtain recognition of their rights, together with the consumers needs in pure milk."

Producers are planning a movement to raise the price of their milk. There has been a shortage of milk in Boston, and distributors there have been buying in New York city.

The commission says that the average cost per mile of running a train has increased from $0.939 in 1901, to $1.185 in 1908 and $1.138 in 1909.

HOUGHS NECK SERVICE

Railroad Commissioners Act on Associates Petition

The Railroad Commissioners have answered the petition of Houghs Neck people as follows:

The petitioners allege several grounds of complaint. These have been carefully considered both in public hearings and by further investigation.

1. The fall schedule of the company contemplates trips every thirty minutes between Quincy square and Houghs Neck. The Board recommends that this schedule be continued as an experiment during the coming winter months.

2. The Board believes that the company is able to give a better service through its present system of caring for passengers from connections by use of extra cars than could be obtained by a fixed schedule.

3. The Board recommends that whenever practicable the cars of the company be run to the extreme end of the line at Houghs Neck.

4. The Board is informed that the company is now installing improved feed lines.

A complaint was also made concerning the condition of the roadbed during high tides ,and these conditions the company is now seeking to remedy by raising the track. Eventually it is hoped the entire highway may be elevated to a grade sufficient to permit the company to establish its tracks at a grade high enough to avoid the results of unusually high tides.

HOLIDAY TRAINS.

Following its usual custom the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad will withdraw on Memorial day some of its local trains in and out of Boston. Notices have been posted calling attention to the trains discontinued and to others which will make extra stops. Those intending to travel on this day should consult these posters.

Jim Jeffries Is Three Men, Says McCoy.

"Jeffries is three men in one," is the comment of Kid McCoy. "He has the strength and vitality to fit out half a dozen fighters like myself. What the man who knows nothing about fighters fails to realize is that Jeffries is wholly unlike any fighter within the recollection of any living man. He is so tough and hard that blows that would end another heavyweight's career have no effect upon him, while with his enormous strength and vitality he can slam home a punch that will win him his fight after he has been fighting for hours and when another man would be so exhausted that he couldn't hit hard enough to dent a chocolate eclair.

"That retirement for five years hasn't done any harm, either. He has been doing some drinking in all likelihood, but not enough to affect that wonderful vitality of his, and, unlike other fighters, he hasn't been knocking around indulging in all sorts of dissipation. He is married and domestic in his tastes, and the quiet sort of life he has been leading has kept him just as fit for a fight as he was when he retired."

MANY YACHTS IN WATER

Activity in the Local Boat Yards on Town River

With the approach of summer and the holidays various pleasure crafts about Quincy are being fitted out for the season's sailing. Although about every type of boat is in use, the catboat seems to be the most popular and most boats of this type are already in the water.

The greater part of the large steam and gasoline yachts have left Bakers' Basin and those remaining are nearly ready to do so. The Wacondah is now on the railway being painted. She is a one hundred foot steam yacht, constructed of steel, single screw, of fine lines, and equipped with the latest accommodations. She has large cabins and decks with accomodations for a dozen or more persons. She is owned by Charles Hayden of Boston.

In the storage house are the Mydia, a deep keeled, twenty-five footer with speedy lines; the Edith, a fifty foot power boat, cabin over all; the Roberta of Providence, a long fast power boat; the Venture, a deep setting round bottom power boat with a commodius cabin, about thirty feet over all, and several small power boats.

In the water there are a few steamers and gasoline boats. The Totem is a fast looking, well built torpedo boat style gasoline launch, about thirty-five feet long. The Roque, owned by George A. Gardner of Boston, is a low black steam yacht with splendid cabin, about fifty feet over all. The Viator is about a duplicate of the Roque. Her owner is eMrrill Hunt, a Boston man. The Nashegon is as large as the Wacondah with a large cabin aft, roomy decks and spacious accomodations below. Her owner is William L. Douglas. The Prosit has a cabin over all with an engine room in the center; she is about forty feet long and stands high in the water; she is owned by John P. Shaw. The steamer Cape Cod, owned by the Cope Cod Steamboat Company is also in this basin receiving a final coat of paint.

The Barrows and Sprague yard next up the river has a collection of small craft ranging from fifteen to twenty-five feet in length. There is the Thelga, a solid seaworthy boat owned by W. G. Spargo; the Theta, a cat boat with a roomy cabin; and a yawl rigger, Alema, owned by J. J. Ayers. Others are the Shoofly, A. B. Davis formerly owned by R. E. Winslow; the Ponemah, Daniel J. Ring owner; the Arbutus, A. L. Merrill; Kittiwake III, A. W. Blodgett of Boston; the Argestes, a handsome auxiliary yacht owned by Frank Rich, the Adventure, owned by A. G. Noel of Boston, and the Alys, owned by Luther Crocker of Braintree. The Alys is the largest boat on the ways and looks to be very seaworthy and roomy inside.

These boats are all in the last stages of repair and will soon be in the water, as are a number of boats that have been hauled up over winter on private beaches. They will give Quincy a large and fine looking fleet of sail and power boats.

It is noticeable that the majority of the boats are contructed forpleasure though there are some few racers. The style in water line paint has changed from red to green.

LOST BY ONE RUN

Brockton High Evens-Up with Quincy High

Quincy lost their return game to Brockton on Tuesday by a narrow margin of 4 to 3.

The first inning for Quincy was real baseball; Manning walked and stole teh next sack in major league fashion, Barry singled and M. Chapman sent a neat sacrifice along third, scoring Bill. Murphy and H. Chapman fanned.

Brockton got one hit in the second and retired in order.

In the third, Brockton got three on three errors and three hits. Bowman hit one in Bill's direction and it got through. Killory got a hit. Chisholm hit for two bags, scoring Bowman. Sullivan landed on first when Murphy let loose an error. Washburn fanned. Roland got a single scoring. Killory and Sullivan scored on an error by Bates. Swanson went Rice to Murphy.

That ended the scoring. They were getting onto Rice so Currier put in M. Chapman, and Hill at short. After the fourth, Brockton couldn't get onto Mil, 11 getting left on bases.

Only one stole on Bootus Chapman, who was in great form. The Quincy boys hit the ball hard, and if they had been playing at Merrymount Park a few long ones by Manning and Mil Chapman and Bootus Chapman would have been home runs.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

Good afternoon friends.

* * *

Will Dr. J. Gardiner Smith, father of the grammar school league, drop in and see me as soon as possible ?

* * *

The monthly smoker of the Elks was held at their home last evening and it will long live in the memory of those who attended. Leo J. McMaster and Edward L. Bean planned the novel entertainment which consisted of singing, dancing and athletic sports.

* * *

Would it not be well for the committee on baseball for Fourth of July celebration to consider the team that is the best drawing for the big event at Merrymount park ? For instance the Makaria proved to be a great drawing card if we can judge by the large crowd that turned out Saturday in the face of such threatening weather. The Copelands play Saturday and a line can be had on their ability. The Atlantics will propably get going soon and the committee should see all in action and carefully consider everything.

Quincy High school baseball team fell before the resperesentatives of the Brockton High school atBrockton High school at Brockton yesterday afternoon by a score of 4 to 3. In view of the fact that Quincy and Brockton each have a game to their credit would it not be well for the managers to get together and arrange a game to be played on some neutral ground.

Col. Henry L. Kincaide, chairman of July 4th parade committee, is hard at work, with his assistants, getting the various clubs and societies interested in the big parade. They plan to have all clubs who boast of a baseball team foll ow the players, who are to appear in uniform, and ask each and every club to wear a badge, carry a flag or have some mark of recognition. Get busy fellows and help them out.

Mayor Shea, this morning, kindly consented to present the champions of the grammar school league with the shoes offered by the Quincy Department store as soon as the season is closed and the winners are known. The presentation will undoubtedly take place early next week at Merrymount park after school hours so that all interested parties can be present to congratulate the "champ."

RICE PAVILLION DEDICATED

New Ward at City Hospital Opened for Public Inspection

Keys Pass from Architect to Donors and Trustees

Wednesday afternoon from three to five, the new addition to the City Hospital,made possible by beneficence of the late William B. Rice, and named after him, "The Rice Pavilion," was opened for public inspection. For some time before three those interested in teh new ward arrived at hospital in carriages and motors to a large extent, on account of the sharp downpour of rain about that time. The visitors were received by Miss Blanche M. Thayer the superintendent. The nurses acted as guides to the guests and showed them through the building with many professional explanations which added greatly to the pleasure of inspection.

In giving the pavilion to the hospital, Fred B. Rice, the president of the board of trustees, and son of the donor, spoke briefly in behalf of the Rice family, to whom credit is due.

Edward F. Stephens of 9 Arch street, Boston, the architect, embodied the aim of the architects in planning the building in a few words, and presented the keys to Mr. Rice, who turned them over to Dr. John A. Gordon. Dr. Gordon received them in behalf of the executive board, and spoke in a very affecting manner of the late Mr. Rice and of his labors for the success of the hospital since its opening twenty years ago.

Mayor William T. Shea then thanked the trustees for their gift to the city, and thanked Miss Blanche Thayer and her corps for the work they have done.

The opening was attended by many of the best known Quincy people who inspected the new ward very minutely. The pavilion is now ready for occupancy and will be occupied in the near future.

An excellent engraving of the late William B. Rice was hung conspicuously in the corridor of the new pavilion, and was entwined with green. His widow and other members of her family were present. It was a proud day for them, and also for the members of the board of trustees, and the medical and surgical staff.

The new ward is fitted throughout with the latest and finest hospital equipment, the private rooms are large and open to light and air and the open ward is especially fine. This ward is solely for women. Through a door in the east wall of the ward the solarium, a glass enclosed piazza, is entered. The private rooms are very finely furnished in birdeye maple with the exception of the regulation iron hospital bed which is of ample size, the contract for the furnishing having been awarded to Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

On the second floor there are eleven rooms, a linen closet toilets and bathrooms. The hall is finished in natural wood. Over the door of every room is a small red lamp which lights to the pressure of a button at the patients bed, and also shows on the nurse's table to call assistance. This is also true of the lower ward.

Leading from the long corridor of the main building, the corridor to the new ward has on either side the linen rooms, toilets, doctors' and nurses' rooms, diet kitchen and isolation room.

Running from the basement to the top floor is an elevator large enough to accommodate a bed so that patients may be easily moved from one floor to another.

A very good system of ventilating has been installed, by which fresh air can enter each separate room as desired. Another noticeable thing is the absence of square corners, round corners having been constructed everywhere to avoid the accumulation of dust. Ample light is furnished the upper corridor by a large sky light. The ward will be heated by the new plant on Whitwell street.

Outside the building is of brick and stone and is 85 feet, 10 inches long, by 36 feet, 4 inches wides, with the sun rooms at the south end.

The extensive grounds about the Hospital are well kept and attractive, and are being enlarged to the south around the new pavilion, which will soon be a beautiful lawn.

Certainly Quincy is to be congratulated on having in its midst so large and well equipped Hospital plant, and should ayways be grateful to the late William B. Rice, to Mrs. Rice and to their sons Harry L. Rice and Fred B. Rice.

OFF FOR ALBERTA.

Mr. and Mrs. Stamford Hayden of 97 Willow street were in the midst of packing up preparatory for their departure for Alberta, Canada, June 1, when they were surprised on Wednesday evening by several of Mr. Hayden's associates at the A. T. Stearns lumber company at Neponset. A. C. Benson ,as spokesman, soon made known the object of the visit, when he presented Mr. Hayden a beautiful Waltham gold watch and fob, and extended the best wishes of the firm and employes. For eleven years Mr. Hayden has been with the firm. Mr. and Mrs. Hayden will be accompanied west by their son and daughter. They will take up a claim anl establish a farm, but Mr. Hayden also expects to go into the mill and building business with his brother who is now there. Another brother and sister will soon join them.

--"Advertising is no good," said the man in old clothes. "It never helped me none." The millionaire merchant smiled, "That is because you tried it, John," as the Indian tried the feather bed. An Indian took a feather, placed it on a plank and slept on it all night. In the morning he growled: "Paleface say feathers heap soft. Paleface heap fool, ugh!"

On Tuesday evening the Jolly Sixteen met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt, Elm place, for their social evening. The honors were taken by Frank Stoddard, George Dexheimer, Mrs. Dexheimer, and Mr. Hammond. Consolation, Mrs. Hammond and H. G. Johnson. Ice cream and cake were served. SITES FOR COURTHOUSE

Considered by Committee of the Board of Trade

A meeting of the directors of the Board of Trade and committee on court house site was held Wednesday evening. In addition to the directors and committee, there were present Judge Albert E. Avery, Judge E. Granville Pratt and Court Officer Marden, of the District court; John F. Merrill, chairman of the County Commissioners; and Representative William R. Thomas.

Several sites were discussed informally, among them being the Wilson Tisdale estate on Washington street, the Nightingale lot corner of Washington and Temple streets, the Faxon lot on Coddington street opposite the Library, and the Nancy Brackett lot on Hancock street. All of these lots possessed some advantages which were brought out in the discussion. No formal vote, however, was taken upon any of the lots. The question will come up for action at the next meeting.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

How dare the Kaiser call the Colonel a "civilian."

Men are "dear things," but women are a good many dollars dearer.

The Black Hand in Italy will rejoice to know that Caruso is taking home 200,000 fresh American dollars.

Free silver is referred to as a ghost. And most people are as firm as ever in refusing to believe in ghosts.

In some way, however, it is more desirable to check graft beforehand than to check it up afterwards.

It will be pretty lonesome in Europe after Mr. Roosevelt gets back to Oyster Bay.

It begins to look as if the Wright brothers had accumulated enough capital to enable them to pay any special rates demanded by accident insurance companies.

Camp Mount Pleasant certainly does have a "pleasant" sound. Eliminating the word tuberculosis is a good idea. With a cheerful name, cheerful camp and cheerful surroundings patients cannot help but travel the road to health and complete cure.

The summer recreatons of bathing and boating are soon to come into season to be enjoyed by many thousands of people in and about Quincy, and while Quincy has usually been fortunate in escaping water fatalities there is no reason to believe that it is insured against them. It is imperative that every bather and yachtsman be able to swim that he may save his own life, and if need be the life of another, a fact made plain by daily reports from every quarter during the summer, of the loss of life by those who are unable to swim.

The Y. M. C. A. has extended an invitation through the press to all parents to send their boys accompanied by a note to the association every Saturday morning for the next three weeks to be instructed in swimming. Too much cannot be said in favor of this offer and the acceptance of it. Beside the pleasure of swimming the sense of safety and the ability to save human life on the water by means of this acquirement are a great benefit. The Y. M. C. A. has made an intelligent and kind offer which every parent should use to advantage in the interest of humanity.

Tibetan Penal Code.

The Tibetan penal code is curious. Murder is punished with a fine varying according to the importance of the slain, theft by a fine of seven to one hundred times the value of the article stolen. Here, again, the fine depends on the social importance of the person from whom the theft has been committed. The barborer of a thief is looked upon as a worse criminal than the thief himself. Ordeals by fire and by boiling water are still used as proofs of innocence or guilt, exactly as was the custom in Europe in the middle ages. And if the lamas never inflict death they are adepts at torture.

Stories of King George V., His Queen and Their Family

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that King George V., as the new sovereign of the British empire will be known, is generally regarded as a colorless individual and has even been called dull he has not been without distinguishing traits. For one thing he is a good sailor, the most extensive traveler of all the royal personages of Europe, a capable business man, a devoted hunter and fisherman, a model husband and father, a quiet chap without fuss and feathers and withal on occasion a wit. The exhibitions of his humor have been rare, but that is not wholly a drawback. Here is one story that illustrates their quality.

Sample of His Humor.

He was present at one of the famous Savage club dinners, and, as is usual on such occasions, menu cards were circulated about the table for autographs. When a numerously signed card reached the then prince, with a generous space at the top for his signature, he ran his eye over the names upon it. Among them were Sir Henry Irving, James Bryce and Winston Churchill, and down near the bottom in a cramped handwriting was the autograph of Hall Caine.

"I am very glad to see that," the prince is reported to have said. "Now at least I can truthfully say I've read something Hall Caine has written."

He put his autograph on the card, and as he passed it on he remarked: "I wish Mistress Corelli were here and had signed the card. Then I could stop having to say almost daily that I had never read anything she wrote."

In his early days as Prince of Wales it was his custom to stroll through the mall of St. James' park, which adjoins the rear gate of Marlborough House.

But one night he suddenly changed his usual course and turned into Pall Mall, to see before him a stout, bristling gentleman, plainly from the country, looking perplexedly about him.

"Young man, you can earn half a sovereign if you will take me to the Criterion," said the gentleman. "The policemen here try to direct me, but I am sure to lose my way, and I am afraid to trust myself to chance guiding. But you seem to be respectable."

The heir prince burst into a laugh and said, "I accept the commission," and then led the countryman along Pall Mall to the door of the Criterion.

"You've well earned that money," said the countryman, putting the golden piece in his hand. "Be careful to make good use of it."

"I am extremely obliged to you for the tip," said the prince, "still more for the accompanying advice," and, jumping into a hansom cab, he bowled merrily back to Marlborough House.

Hater of Toadyism.

It is said that the new king hates toadyism. A few years ago he was taking part in a shoot. Early in the day a man came up to him and said, "I've been picking up your royal highness' birds." "That's all right," answered the prince. "How many have you?" "Thirteen, sir," answered the man. "That's funny," was the reply, "considering that I've shot only eight."

King George is a stamp collector and has one of the most extensive collections in the world, estimated to be worth half a million dollars. He used to exhibit it publicly. One day, examining the gallery, he noticed a sheet of early four anna Indian stamps which had been offered to him years before for $750 and which was then worth about $6,000.

"Ah," he said, "I have reason to envy Mr. Hansberg that sheet."

Prince Eddie, the heir apparent, is following in his father's footsteps as a stamp collector.

The new queen of England was the Princess Victoria Mary, daughter of the Duke of Teck. Before her marriage with Prince George she was engaged to his elder brother, Albert Victor, then Duke of York and second in line of succession.

Prince Albert Victor died on Jan. 14, 1892. The English people sympathized with Princess Victoria Mary, and on all sides people were saying that Prince George, the brother of the dead prince, ought to marry her, which he afterward did. In those days the new queen was most popular in England as the Princess May.

In her carriage and dress she resembles the present queen dowager, though she is not so beautiful or distinguished as the latter.

The new queen, like her mother before her, is a complete housewife. She is never without some form of needlework in hand to occupy fingers that abhor idleness. And she not only knits all the king's socks, but—and here is the touch—she sees that he wears them and makes him change them when he gets his feet wet.

Has a Menagerie of His Own.

Prince Edward is the eldest of the six children of the new king and queen. He will be sixteen years old in June and, with the other five children, has received a careful and common sense education, both mentally and physically. Prince Edward is as merry and light hearted a youngster as can be found anywhere. He has a whole menagerie of his own, to which he is devoted, and he is an ardent advocate of kindness to animals.

In 1908 he entered Osborne college, following the steps of his father along the paths that lead to the navy. He did not "put on any side," according to the young naval cadets at Osborne, and is exceedingly popular with his associates.

Prince Edward is not a brilliant scholar, but he is a hard worker. He is a healthy, wholesome looking lad of the Hanoverian type, with light hair and a somewhat plain, good natured face.

Albert, the second boy, is fourteen; Princess Mary, the only girl of the six children, is twelve; Henry, the third boy, who is a great reader, is ten years old; Prince George is eight, and Prince John is four and a half years old and is learning to ride.

Chief Executive Cannot Do Much With It, Inasmuch as Tariff Board Is Still Under Provisions of Existing Law, Which Does Not Permit Broader Range of Studies—Insurgents Preparing to Play Hard Game

Washington, May 26.—Hidebound protectionists of the Payne-Dalzell-Forney type have succeeded in sticking a knife into the back of President Taft. Although the sundry civil bill will carry an appropriation of $250,000 to enable the president to keep the tariff board at work, that work will be governed strictly by the provisions of existing law.

In other words, the tariff board cannot legally undertake a broader range of studies than would be necessary to keep the president informed whether or not the United States is suffering any "undue discrimination" by reason of the tariff laws or regulations of foreign countries.

The Democrats were encouraged by leading Republicans of the house to make points of order against all the Tawney propositions that were worth anything. That the Democrats played the game of the old guard does not relieve the latter from the responsibility for placing the Republican party in a position to forfeit the support of the hundreds of thousands of voters who desire a scientific tariff investigation and revision, according to prominent administration men.

It has been imagined that the senate might pull the party out of its hole by restoring the original Tawney provision to the sundry civil bill, thus making the appropriation available for a thorough study of commercial conditions here and abroad. Such a hope would appear to be delusive if the prototypes of Dalzell and Fordney in the senate follow the house lead.

The house insurgents are beginning to play brilliant politics. The introduction by Representative Good of a straight tariff commission bill puts the issue up squarely to the Republican party. The Republican insurgents are with him to a man and the old guard are thus placed in a position where, if they defeat the Good bill on a straight vote, they not only bowl over President Taft, but they fly in the face of the powerful low tariff sentiment of the whole country.

The house insurgents are not playing for Democratic support. In fact, they would rather do without it, and thus reserve for the Republican party the glory of cleaning up the tariff situation. If the insurgent plan fails, it can fail only because men of the stripe of Dalzell and Fordney can gather votes enough to beat it.

The house insurgents are now preparing to play a hard game. They talk of calling a Republican caucus on the Good bill. The regulars either must enter this caucus or become irregular. They have been condemning the insurgents for their hesitancy to caucus on the postal savings bank bill, which is an administration measure. The tariff commission bill, under the circumstances, is equally an administration measure.

The insurgents are doing double somersaults in their glee over the trap into which regular Republicans and Democrats alike have fallen. The position of President Taft, with reference to the situation, has not yet been definitely stated, but the men, like Tawney of Minnesota, who have been making the fight for him in the house are for the Good bill and they will expect him to be also. In fact it would seem that he could make no greater political mistake than to withhold his support from the new movement.

The tariff board appropriation as an amendment to the sundry civil bill was subject always and everywhere to a point of order as being new legislation, and the presiding officer, whatever his personal opinions, had no option but to rule it out. An independent bill has no such handicap, but, if it reaches the floor, must be discussed or amended only on its merits. Should the committee to which the bill is referred hesitate to report the bill out, it could be pulled out by a vote of the house.

A test vote of this kind would put every Republican in the house squarely on record for or against the progressive tariff policy of President Taft.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

The interclass outdoor track meet will be held tomorrow, at 2 P. M., at Merrymount park. The events include:—100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 440 yard dash, 880 yard run, mile run, running high jump, broad jump, hop step and jump, shot put, and class relay race. Each entry is free but the list closed at noon today. Class numerals will be awarded to every man winning five points. Contestants winning one point can buy their numerals from the athletic committee. With the many events, the time Friday afternoon will be fully taken.

* * *

Since many of the winners of first, second or third places in last year's meet have entered there will be a good chance to break records for the men have improved. For instance, Franz Marceau, '09, has been going the mile in much quicker time this winter and spring than 4 minutes 44 1-5 seconds, with which he established in 1909 a new record for the school. Graduates and friends of the school will miss some keen rivalry and contests if they fail to attend this meet. It promises to be the "best yet." The Seniors expect to win this meet, and tend to put up a fierce struggle for first place. Some of the athletic leaders of this class have been searching out all available material and urging the men to enter.

* * *

Quincy High was represented at the Harvard Interscholastic meet Saturday by Franz Marceau '09, Robert Crawshaw '11, Charles H. Kendall '10, Everett Prout '12. Franz Marceau '09, came in second in the mile, the winner spurting past him only a short distance from the tape. Everett Prout, '12, won the first heat in the 100-yard, but in the finals he came in fourth. In the 220 yards, Robert Cranshaw, '11, scored the fourth place, Charles Kendall '10 came in fourth in the half mile. The points gained by Quincy High men were six. All these men enter the interclass meet, so fast time may be expected in their respective events. After the events the men enjoyed the Harvard Interscholastic dinner at 5.30.

* * *

The next few weeks will be busy ones for some of the High athletes. Among the meets which they have entered or will enter are, the Interclass meet tomorrow, the Y. M. C. A. vs. Mohawk meet on Saturday, Merchants' week events June 4, Cunningham Gym meet, the Fourth of July events and others.

Friday afternoon at the park the High baseball team defeated Hingham High 13 to 2.

The baseball nine suffered its second defeat on Tuesday at Brockton, when the home team won 4 to 3. Quincy High and Brockton are about as evenly matched as two teams could be. It will be remembered that in the May 6 game Quincy won 2 to1. So in the two games each team has scored, altogether five runs.

* * *

The nine expects to go to Groton this afternoon. The team considers itself favored by Groton, for besides the arrangement for a game, Manager Veale reports they will furnish the Quincy players a stage-coach ride from Ayer, also a supper after the game. Naturally the players have many pleasant anticipations of the trip to Groton.

* * *

Wednesday June 1 the baseball team will play Everett High at Everett.

* * *

Manager Veale has added to his schedule a game with Arlington on Wednesday, June 8.

* * *

The baseball season is now about half over. Thus far Quincy has scored seven victories and only two defeats. Seven more games remain to be played, five away from home.

* * *

A meeting of the reception committee of the Senior class was held Tuesday. Wilson's orchestra was decided upon to furnish the music at Music hall. Plans for the dance orders and refreshments were also considered.

* * *

The speakers for graduation, Miss Grace DeWolf, '10, Miss Mary Cleveland, '10, Alfred Hanson '10, and Richard Favorite, '10, are busily practicing their graduation parts.

College Trial Examinations have already begun. They are held in the rooms of the respective teachers:

May 26, Miss Birge.
June 1, Miss Howe.
June 2, Mr. Currier.
June 6, Miss Chadbourne.
June 7, Mr. Roache.
June8, Mr. Weiss.
June 9, Miss Salsman.
June 13, Miss Bass.
June 14, Miss Brown.
June 15, Mr. Blazo.

These examinations are held that the teachers may become fully satisfied as to the ability of the student before recommending him for examination or giving him a certificate.

* * *

Memorial Day exercises will be held at the school Friday. There will be an address by Col. Porter and patriotic music by the school.

* * *

The Schoolmasters Club, ccmposed of the masters of the grammar schools and men teachers at High, had an outing at Squantum Saturday. The score of the baseball game was a tie 3 to 3. As to the line-up of the High school team it would seem that all the men teachers at High played on the High team as exactly nine of the faculty of the High school are men. A relay race was declared tied. The condition of the weather curtailed further sports. Melvin T. Holbrook teacher of Latin at High was elected president of the club for the ensuing year. The baseball team of the High teachers was captained by Ralph Currier, teacher of mathematics and coach of the school nine.

* * *

The chorus of the High school at Bridgewater will assist in the Memorial day exercises in that town.

The Chelsea High school will not hold its graduation exercises until June 24.

Frederic Allison Tupper, a former headmaster of the Quincy High schools, is prominent in the movementof pensions for school teachers. He is now headmaster of the Brighton High school and a trustee of the Boston school pension fund, and also a trustee of the Boston teachers' retirement fund. In a recent contribution to the Transcript he sums up twelve reasons in favor of pensions, and the first six are given below:

1. Pensions are merely a part of adequate compensation.

2. They relieve the teachers' minds from the fear of an old age of absolute poverty or humiliating dependence.

3. They tend to elevate the profession of teaching by attracting able men and women and by retaining them during the period of efficiency.

4. They make possible the retirement of the aged and the disabled without hardship, and, so promote the dignity and general efficiency of the corps.

5. They tend to enable teachers to live in a manner to some extent becoming their extremely important and useful profession.

6. They allow teachers to spend more money for travel, books, additional professional training, and for all those means of improvement so conducive to the welfare not only of the teachers personally, but also by their influence, to the welfare of the pupils, their communities and the state. The importance of the great law of imitation, whether conscious or unconscious, in the relation of pupil and teacher cannot be overestimated. Adequately paid, adequately pensioned, reasonably permanent teachers can perform during the period of efficiency immeasurably better work than is possible for underpaid, unpensioned teachers, struggling under disabilities, and yet compelled to work beyond the period of highest efficiency on account of the ever-present fear of poverty and unwelcome dependence..

--Lovers of birds and all persons woh realize how "commercialism" is forever seeking to diminish Nature's wealth will rejoice at the offer of Mr. Hawks of a large tract of land on Cape Ann, where the birds which frequent this clime may find safe shelter ,and a place to breed and rest. Multiplication of such "cities of refuge" inland and along the coast placed under the control of the Audubon society, would assist the campaign, which has begun none too soon, for promoting a cause that enlists the sympathy of an ever-increasing host of youth and adult lovers of beauty.

HOW THE FLORIDA WAS BUILT

Genesis of Great Battleship Just Launched at Brooklyn.

CAREFUL TO AVOID ERRORS.

After Plans Had Been Drawn on Blackboard and Parchment and Naval Architects Had Made a Wooden Model the Steel Mass Was Riveted Together Plate by Plate.

Most of those who crowded the stands and available points of vantage in the navy yard at Brooklyn and along the East river front to witness the launching the other day of the battleship Florida, the largest warship in the United States navy, were content, no doubt, with the collective impression and with the emotion inspired by a mass of buoyant steel moving with breathless momentum to the water.

But those who were present on March 9, 1909, to watch the laying of the first keel plate, who had seen the hull grow week by week, had more in their minds than the mere spectacle. The builder of a skyscraper or a locomotive may build it heavier than plans contemplated. No one will know it but the designer, and the earth or the steel rails will bear the extra weight and never tell. But there may be no such mistake in a vessel. Old ocean is an inexorable inspector and speedily exposes the errors of humankind.

To those, therefore, who had seen the Florida grow the launching had added significance, and that others may follow their thoughts the genesis of the Florida and the manner of her building are here set forth in a general way. In the first place, then, Naval Constructor Baxter, with the instructions from the navy department in hand, sat down to work out a general scheme involving the features demanded. This scheme outlined the type, functions and characteristics of the Dreadnought. The cardinal points which the constructor held in mind may be enumerated as follows: Structural and defensive strength, speed, steaming radius and offensive power.

Plans of the Architects.

Having worked out his scheme, the constructor turned it over to his naval architects, who began the work of drafting plans, tentative in their nature, showing in the main what the materials were to be and the way in which they were to be put together.

This was a task of six or seven months. When completed the naval constructor's force began upon their detailed plans and specifications. The work of actual construction began with "laying down the lines" in the big ocher molding loft at the navy yard. This loft has a blackboard floor, upon which the architects drew the shape of the entire hull and then proceeded to draw sections within the outlined hull. Of course all sectional calculations must be perfect, or otherwise the completed vessel might show discrepancies in construction sufficiently serious to render her useless.

Sections of the hull drawing were sent from the molding loft to the drafting room, where draftsmen transcribed the lines to parchment, on a greatly reduced scale, of course. A wooden model of one side of the battleship was made from these lines, and on the model the different strakes of plating were marked. The armor belt plating was also indicated, and sizes of each plate were marked. From this model the actual dimensions of each frame and plate were determined, and the results, in the form of orders, were sent to the steel workers for casting. The plates and frames were cast and forged in the order in which they were to go on the ship.

Keel Plates First.

The first plates to come from the foundry therefore were the keel plates. Keels of modern vessels do not consist of long bars of steel. Keels are built up of plates riveted together. With the keel plates all laid the work of riveting the frames, or the ribs, as they are popularly called, began. Each frame had been shaped at the foundry for the exact place it was to occupy in the hull. The frames were placed in position by huge traveling cranes, of which there were two in the work on the Florida. They towered as high as skyscrapers, way above the top of the red hull, idle today, their work all done.

With the frames in place, the cranes, traveling up and down on their steel rails, bore the great plates to places designated, where the riveters, with their powerful hammers, fastened them in their appointed places. While the work of plating was in progress ironworkers were busy inside the airy frames riveting the beams in place. These beams, to use a land term, were merely deck rafters. Ironworkers also were busy building up the steel girders for the various compartments and working the longitudinal girders—the backbones of the vessel—into the hull on each side of the keel.

When all this work was completed decks were laid, the bulkheads and casing finished, rudder and propellers were put in place, lighting and ventilating plans carried out, and the Florida was ready for her maiden plunge—in all a work involving about a year and a half, which is a creditable record for Naval Constructor Baxter and his assistants.

The Making of Lenses.

The essential part of any device for the study of the starry millions—the suns, planets, comets and the nebulae that are perhaps new worlds in the making—is the lens or the optical train that consists of a series of lenses. It is this that makes the modern science of astronomy possible. There is absolutely no other human occupation that requires the accuracy of observation and the delicacy of touch that are requisite for the making of the finest lenses. These are the most perfect products of human hands. It may convey some idea of the labor required in the making of a large lens to say that at least one year's time is required for the grinding and polishing of a thirty inch object glass. A little lens two inches in diameter requires the unremitting care and attention of a skilled workman for two or three days. It is easy, then, to see why it is that even lenses of high class photographic work are costly. A forty inch object glass for a large telescope cannot be made in much less than four years' time, and if everything does not go just right it may require much longer than that.—Kansas City Star.

Persian Jests.

An exceedingly ugly man, says the Persian Joe Miller, was once in the mosque, asking pardon of Allah for his sins and praying to be delivered from the fires of hell. One who overheard his prayers said to him: "Wherefore, O friend, wouldst thou cheat hell of such a countenance? Art thou reluctant to burn up a face like that?"

Another story the Persian jester tells is that a certain person with a hideous nose was once on a time wooing a woman. Describing himself to her and trying to make an attractive picture, he said, "I am a man devoid of lightness and frivolity, and I am patient in bearing afflictions!"

"Aye," said the woman. "Wert thou not patient in bearing afflictions thou hadst never endured thy nose these forty years!"

All of which is more witty than kind. —Harper's.

Bohemians and Wedding Rings.

"Here are two wedding rings that I have just made over," said the jeweler. "They are for Bohemian women. They lost their own rings, so they had their husbands' rings cut down to fit. That is a custom in their country. Both husband and wife wear wedding rings there. If the man loses his ring he has to buy a new one, but if the woman loses hers she wears her husband's. I do a good deal of that kind of work. Other women who lose wedding rings just buy another one and say nothing about it, but these women are too conscientious for that. Usually I have to make the man's ring smaller, but once in awhile it has to be spliced to make it fit. The women are always considerably chagrined over the splicing and offer all kinds of explanations to account for their big fingers."—New York Sun.

The Roulette Ball.

That capricious little ball that decides our fortunes at the ever fascinating game of roulette at Monte Carlo occasionally flies from the skillful croupier's hand, though not often. One afternoon it slipped from its manipulator's fingers and found its way into an Englishman's coat pocket. So impressed was the Englishman that he promptly lost a couple of hundred pounds. But the little ball once found a far stranger destination than that. Escaping from the croupier's hand, it flew straight into the mouth of a German onlooker, and he was so impressed that he promptly swallowed it.—London Bystander.

Tea In Paraguay.

When the natives of Paraguay drink tea they do not pour it from a teapot into a cup, but fill a goblet made out of a pumpkin or gourd and then suck up the hot liquid through a long reed. Moreover, the tea which they use is altogether different from that which comes from China, being made out of dried and roasted leaves of a palm-like plant which grows in Paraguay and southern Brazil. The natives say that this tea is an excellent remedy for fever and rheumatism.

Sparrowgrass.

It is stated that a well known riddle was written by a costermonger. The riddle in question is a charade and runs as follows:

My first's a little bird as 'ops;
My second's needful in 'ay crops;
My 'ole is good with mutton chops.

The answer, of course, is "sparrow grass," which the learned Dr. Parr always insisted on using in preference to the politer "asparagus."—London Notes and Queries.

A Real Poet.

"Poetry," said the literary girl, "is the art of expressing intense feeling in figurative speech."

"In that case," replied Miss Cayenne, "the man who writes baseball news is sure a poet."—Washington Star.

She Wanted to Know.

Bridegroom—Now that we are married, darling, we must have no more secrets from each other. Bride—Then tell me truly, Jack, how much did you really pay for that engagement ring? —Illustrated Bits.

She Was Numerous.

"I want a license to marry the best girl in the world," said the young man.

"Funny, isn't it?" commented the clerk. "That makes 1,300 licenses for that girl this season."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

I do not know of any way so sure of making others happy as of being so oneself.—Sir Arthur Helps.

HOUGHS NECK ASSOCIATES

Have an Animated Discussion over Trolley Freight

A special meting of the Houghs Neck association was held Wednesday evening. The meeting was called consider the question of the approval of the street railway operating a trolley freight. There was an animated discussion on the question after which it was voted to approve of the granting of the approval for a period of twenty years. Several motions and amendments were made, and it was declared that the motion as passed was contrary to parliamentary proceedings and therefore illegal. The question of the legality of the vote will come up at the next meeting.

Mayor Shea has granted permission to Rev. Harris of Weymouth to erect a gospel tent at Houghs Neck. Gospel meetings will be held every day and evening.

Ex-Representative John Bleiler and family have arrived at their summer cottage Die Wacht au Rhine on Sea street.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Bartausck are located for the summer in their cottage, The Victoria, on Bell street.

The estate of N. B. Furnald at Houghs Neck was sold by Auctioneer Frank Fessenden Crane Wednesday afternoon and was bid in by Daniel F. Fitzgera'd of West Quincy for $4,048.

The sensational story from Houghs Neck of several boys being poisoned by drinking from a bottle found in the street needs a large pinch of salt before it can be swallowed. Some of the boys have been sick and one of the boys said that he drank something out o fa bottle. The boys who have been mentioned in the case were sick for a day or two last week but are all right now. The Cahoon boy, who it was reported was sent to the City Hospital suffering from pneumonia, is not at the hospital, although it is true that he is ill with pneumonia. His illness however is not thought to be dangerous.

ADVISORY BOARD.

At the annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association held on Tuesday evening the Advisory Board was reelected as follows. Joseph A. Dasha, G. W. Gragg, H. M. Faxon, Thomas eFnno, C. A. Hobart and Dr. D. B. Reardon. This board was originally appointed in January 1910, and have met with the regular board of directors at the regular meeting since that time, adding strength in various ways to the work.

BRIEFS

Mrs. A. W. Mitchell is visiting her sister Mrs. William A. Fromm in Camden, N. J.

The bell on the Bethany church struck one blow about 10 o'clock Wednesday night.

The Electric Light Co., have started to string their wires about City Square for the Merchants week celebration.

Miss Beryl Arnold, contralto and Miss Pearl Carlton, 'cellist are to assist at Mr. Wrigley's concert on Friday evening.

If some of the rain we have been having of late could be spread over the hot season later on it would be better appreciated.

One of the hardest rains of the season passed over Quincy Wednesday evening, and for a time the water came down in torrents.

That large boot over Heffernan's shoe store makes one think of the long legged boots our grandfathers used to wear. Wouldn't give the gay colored hosiery of today much show would it?

Miss Alice White of the Crane Public library has bought a lot of land on Spear street at the corner of Francis court where she will probably sometime in the future build a house for her own occupancy.

The Maine Sportsman says that J. Henry Emery of Quincy, Mass., arrived Saturday at Upper Dam and with George Goodwin for guide, the first day caught five record fish; a pair of 3 pound trout, one 4 pound salmon and one of 3 1-2 pounds.

The garage which is fast taking the place of the barn is certainly much more attractive in architecture. The one recently erected for Robert T. Johnson on Maple street of cement with overhanging roof is receiving favorable comment from passersby.

—The Boston Herald the other day said that not much in the way of sobriety and law and order could be expected of a people who call their rulers such names as ""Teddy," and "Bill." Here is a baseball management in the west plastering the whole town over with signs labeled "Go see Taft," because the President was to be present at the game. It is an unworthy belittling of a high office. Americans are no toadys, but they ought at least to speak of their president as "President Taft" or "the President," their governor, as "Governor Draper" or "the Governor," not "Eben." Patriotism can be manifested in no better way than by dignifying the high offices.—Salem News.

DYSPEPSIA
"Having taken your wonderful 'Cascarets' for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to 'Cascarets' for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies but without avail, and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year." James McGune,

FINEST CRUISER AFLOAT

Von Der Tann Places England's Invincibles In Second Position

Washington, May 26.—Driven through the seas by her giant Parsons turbines at the rate of twenty-eight knots an hour, the great German capital cruiser, the Von Der Tann, has earned her right to the title of "the most powerful warship of her class afloat," She is in every way a remarkable ship; of 19,000 tons displacement, armored nearly as heavily as the average battleship and armed with twelve of Germany's latest 11-inch naval rifles, she is the match in battle of any vessel that sails the seas.

The only other capital cruisers in the world are those of England's Invincible class, but they are hardly to be compared with the Von Der Tann. One year ago the Invincible, Inflexible and Indomitable were regarded as the finest examples of cruiser construction. Today they take a second place as a result of the German ship's wonderful performance. Thus do navies advance.

NEW COW FOR TAFT

Thousand Dollar Animal Donated by Senator From Wisconsin

Chicago, May 26.—Wisconsin has achieved the distinction of supplying a successor to "Mooley," the cow which, until it was killed in an accident recently, supplied milk and butter for President Taft and his family at the White House.

Senator Stephenson of the Badger State is the donor of the new cow. "Pick out the best bred cow in the herd and the one most satisfactory for all purposes," was the order of Stephenson to Manager Torrey of his stock farm.

Hence "Pauline Wayne" has been selected to be the presidential cow and will be browsing on the green sward near the White House within two months.

As cows go "Pauline Wayne" is an aristocrat of the first water. She is of pure Holstein blood and is valued at $1000.

DOCTORS INDORSE CUSTOM OF SAVAGES

They Believe In Putting Imbecile Children to Death

Detroit, May 26.—The custom of savages, who destroy infants born hopelessly imbecile, was applauded at a clinic of the Detroit College of Medicine alumni at St. Mary's hospital.

Among the children submitted for examination was a baby girl bearing all the stigmata of degeneration. Dr. Pisek of New York, who was conducting the clinic, excused the mother from the room, and then, turning to the assembled physicians, said:

"Some surgeons operate in a case like this, trephining from the front to the back of the skull to give the brain room. I have watched the results of these experiments and I am convinced that the untutored savages were more wise than we in their treatment of such cases. They took children and——"

The sentence was completed by a significant gesture that drew a burst of applause.

LURED INTO WEDLOCK

Ten-Year-Old Wife Now Wants Court to Annul Her Marriage

Memphis, May 26.—Nellie M. Johnson-Lamar, 10 years old, has brought suit for divorce against her husband, Newlan Lamar, who is 32. Mrs. Lamar alleges in her petition that Lamar lured her into wedlock while yet she was too young to know her own mind. She was married a year ago, when she was 9 years old.

The wedding caused a big local sensation. When it became generally known that Lamar had thus imposed upon a mere child fierce indignation was rife and a hurriedly organized mob sought Lamar. He decamped instanter and escaped lynching.

When the hue and cry was raised against Lamar he disappeared, but after several weeks he came back and attempted to see his wife. The parents ejected him from the house.

MAYOR ORDERS PROBE

Milk Collusion Charges to Be Looked Into by Finance Commission

Boston, May 26.—Mayor Fitzgerald has directed the finance commission to make an investigation of the charges made by Frank B. Gallivan, a former chemist in the employ of the Boston board of health, against Dr. S. H. Durgin, chairman of the board of health, and Milk Inspector James O. Jordan, in which collusion with big milk contracting firms were the allegations.

A call for a special meeting of the finance commission was at once sent out in response to the mayor's request. Durgin and Jordan refuse to discuss the charges.

MORE BLOODY SCENES NEAR

Uprising In Nicaragua Has Reached Serious Proportions

BLUEFIELDS HELD BY REBELS

Government Troops Crumble and Fall Under Steady Fire of Insurgents—Estrada Willing to Risk Whole Force to Keep Strategic Position—United States Marines Must Fight If Lara's Forces Penetrate City

Bluefields, Nic., May 26.—General Estrada with his revolutionary troops continues to hold Bluefields, although reinforcements landed from the Venus are massed ready to make a final charge on the bluff overlooking the city, which would make the city untenable if the government troops gain the height.

Estrada's forces were reinforced by 1000 volunteers yesterday, and there are many Americans in his ranks.

General Lara, in command of the government forces, tried in vain to gain a strategical position near the city, but his troops crumbled and fled under the steady fire of the insurgents, whose ranks continue undiminished by death.

The American gunboats Paaducah and Dubuque are anchored not far from the Venus and it is expected that, if the government gunboat attempts to bombard the city, the American ships will at once order the firing to cease, and, if this is not sufficient, will sink the Venus.

The fighting for the past few days has been characterized by more than the usual daring and it is believed that the last stand of Estrada will mean a bloody battle. He has to hold Bluefields to succeed and it is his last strong post, so that he will be willing to risk his whole force to keep it in his possession, as it is the key to the situation on the Atlantic side of the republic.

Sounds of fighting can be heard plainly here and it is thought that the government troops and insurgents have engaged near Rama, where General Mena of the insurgent army has thus far resisted successfully every attempt of General Chavarria of the government to capture the town.

An attack on the bluffs has been expected for hours from the government troops landed from the Venus, but the height is so strongly entrenched by the insurgents that it is believed the Venus troops may be making only a demonstration there and that they may suddenly make a detour and try to cut off communication between here and Rama.

United States marines, who are guarding the custom house, will probably be drawn into the fight if the government forces penetrate the defenses of the city. The marines have machine guns sweeping every street that offers an approach.

Estrada announces that victory is in sight of the insurgents, but there is general uneasiness in the city lest the Madriz forces succeed in breaking through the outposts. More bloody scenes than have ever accompanied an uprising in Central America, which will probably involve the death of many Americans, are expected if the government forces gain possesssion of the bluff.

BUTTER IS GOING UP

Meat Packers Planning to Corner Output of Omaha Market

Chicago, May 26.—Following the announcement that the Chicago meat packing interests had contracts for about 8,000,000 pounds of butter, pracically all the output of the Omaha market during June and July, to be delivered at Elgin prices, it was decided that Chicago and Elgin butter interests should combine to raise the market prices and force the packers to cancel their contracts or lose a fortune.

The dealers say that this vast amount of butter in cold storage and in the hands of the packers would leave the market at their mercy in the fall, when prices are expected to rise.

HEAVY LOSER AT FARO

Coleman Never Left New York Gambling House With Winnings

Boston, May 26.—George W. Coleman told the judge and jury in the William J. Keliher trial yesterday the first chapter of the story of his downfall through gambling.

How he made between $20,000 and $30,000 in legitimate business enterprises, only to lose all except $200 playing the faro game in New York, was related in detail by the former bank bookkeeper.

Although he admitted having won some money during an evening's play, he said he had never left the house in New York at the end of the night's game a winner.

Beef Men Plead Limitations

Chicago, May 26.—The National Packing company, the beef trust, pleaded the statute of limitations when arraigned before Judge Landis in the United States court on demurrer to the indictment returned by the federal grand jury.

Pardoned Prisoner Is Exposing Sugar Frauds

HAVEMEYER IS NAMED

Knew of Sugar Frauds, According to Scale Juggler's Testimony

New York, May 26.—Oliver Spitzer, now pardoned, but until recently the convicted former superintendent of the docks of the American Sugar Refining company in Williamsburg, explained why he did not confess during the trial which ended last February with his being sentenced to two years at Atlanta.

He did not confess, he said on the stand, because confession would "have carried him to a cemetery." In other words, would have implicated a dead man—Henry O. Havemeyer, late head of the sugar trust.

Spitzer made this statement under cross-examination by the defense at the trial of Charles R. Heike, secretary-treasurer of the American Sugar Refining company, who, with five subordinates, is charged with conspiracy to defraud the government by underweighing sugar.

GLAD TO ESCAPE WITH THEIR LIVES

Fifty Persons Near Death as Steamer Is Sunk In Crash

Rockland, Me., May 26.—Coming to anchorage at Tillson's wharf during a thick fog, the turbine steamship Belfast failed to obey her wheel and crashed into the steamer James T. Morse, cutting her nearly in two.

The Morse sank within ten minutes after the Belfast pulled away from the gaping wound, and the fifty persons on board had a narrow escape from being engulfed.

The firemen and deckhands fled from their berths scantily clad, while the half dozen passengers who were occupying staterooms over night were glad to escape with only their valuables and personal effects. The Belfast was not seriously damaged.

BALLOON NOT LOST

Heart of the Berkshires Has Been Reposing In Freight Shed

Pittsfield, Mass., May 26.—The missing balloon, Heart of the Berkshires, has been located. For half a week all sorts of theories had been advanced in regard to the whereabouts of the aircraft which started auspiciously from this city, carrying three New Yorkers, but which failed to return in due course of events. There was a bit of worry all around until messages from New York said that one of the aeronauts had been seen in his club there, although he did not mention having taken a balloon journey.

Then the Aero club officers waited some more, but still the balloon did not appear. Finally, getting nervous, they started an inquiry, and the missing property was located in the freight house at Springfield.

It seems that the balloonists had landed not very far from that city, but had come down in a bad position in a swamp. When they reached the city they left instruction, as they supposed, sufficient for forwarding the balloon to its starting point, and then they went to their homes. Somebody failed to understand and the result was that the Heart of the Berkshires has been taking a rest-cure, while balloonists have been wondering.

PROBE SINKING OF THE DEWEY

Special Board Considering Mysterious Mishap to Dry Dock

IN SEVENTY FEET OF WATER

Plans For Raising Giant Structure, Which Cost $1,225,000, Have Already Begun—Many Reports of Attempts to Destroy It—Was Built Near Baltimore and Towed From There to Philippines In 1896

Manila, May 26.—Appointed by the naval authorities, a special board is investigating the sinking of the dry dock Dewey, which sank in seventy feet of water while stationed at Olangapa. Divers were immediately sent to the scene, and they are examining the sunken dry dock to determine the nature of the accident. Raising operations will be begun immediately.

Naval officers say that it would be easy for some mischievous person to evade the guards and tamper with the powerful valves, which are operated by electricity.

Many times since the Dewey has been anchored at Olangapo, Luzon, reports have reached the United States that disgruntled natives, discharged employes or Japanese agents have made attempts to destroy the great floating dry dock. These reports reached the officials of the navy department in Washington, but no verification or details of the reports ever became public.

The dry dock has been anchored off the Philippine navy yard since July 10, 1906, having been towed there from the United States by way of the Suez canal. The towing of the great structure through the three oceans to the island possessions was declared to be one of the greatest feats in maritime history of modern times.

Three years ago it was reported that a quantity of dynamite had been discovered hidden on board the Dewey in places that would mean the immediate sinking of the dry dock if the explosive was set off. This report was immediately followed by another which told of the stealing of a duplicate set of the official specifications and plans of the great dock.

The loss of time and money caused by all the federal vessels having to go to Hong Kong or some other Oriental port for repairs while stationed in the Philippine waters resulted in the building of the Dewey. The great dry dock was constructed by the Maryland Steel company at its plant just outside of Baltimore. It was completed in 1905 and cost the government $1,225,000.

The Dewey is 500 feet in length and 135 feet wide. Its side walls are 42 feet high and 14 feet thick. These are bridged and floated on three pontoons, the centre one being 320 feet in length and the ends 90 feet. Two million rivets were used in making the dock. Its draught with battleship afloat is 35 feet and with battleship sunk 62 feet.

PRIEST ELOPES AND WEDS

Disappears With Bride Immediately After Marriage Ceremony

Trenton, May 26.—Love proved a stronger force with Rev. Father Alphonse M. Consolazio, an Italian priest connected with the Catholic diocese of Trenton, than the priestly vows he had taken. He is on a honeymoon trip with his wife, who was Miss Katherine Johann of Trenton, with whom he eloped after discarding his frock.

The priest and the girl were married in the home of a friend in Atlantic City. Following the ceremony they disappeared. The parents of the girl declare that if the couple return they will receive parental blessings.

The bride is well known in Trenton and noted for her beauty. The priest met her at his church. His attentions became so marked to her that Bishop McFaul was notified and made an investigation. It was in progress when the couple married.

My Double

A Girl Graduate Sees Herself In Another Body on Three Occasions.

By DONALD WALLACE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I remember well the night I received my first shock. I received another later that affected me more than this one, but in a different way. The first was in the nature of a surprise; the second was a terror.

I was but eighteen at the time and was going home to my aunt, with whom I lived, having just finished my education. The journey was a long one, and I had somewhat broken down my nerves from hard study. I did not like to stay overnight at a hotel alone, but did not feel like taking a sleeping car. I was rather a timid girl anyway and had not been used to going about without a protector.

I reached the hotel about 9 o'clock and went immediately to bed and to sleep. I was awakened in the night by a noise in the hall. Several persons passed hurriedly and were talking rapidly. I have always been afraid of fire, especially in a hotel. I got out of bed, went to the door and opened it. At that moment I received my first shock.

Standing in the open door of the room directly opposite mine stood a girl in her nightdress peering out anxiously, just as I was doing. The corridor was lighted, and I could see her plainly. The marvelous feature was that she was myself. There was not the slightest difference between us. We were both in nightdresses, the hair of both was worn in a braid hanging down the back, and her face and figure were replicas of mine.

Both gave a little scream of surprise, and both drew back into our respective rooms. I shut my door and groped my way to my bed. All thought of danger was put out of my head in this remarkable apparition of my other self.

The physician in charge of the seminary I had attended had warned me that if I did not give up study I would break down. But, desirous of being graduated with the class as well as at the head of it, I had disregarded his warning. Now, it seemed to me, I was paying the penalty of my obstinacy. My mind must be giving way. It was long past midnight when I bethought myself that on opening my door I must have looked into a large mirror. I would have got out of bed and satisfied myself of this, but feared to find the contrary, and if I did I would not get any more sleep. So I comforted myself with the assurance that I would in the morning find a mirror opposite my door and dropped into slumber.

I was called early for the train, and when I left my room looked for the mirror. Alas, there was no mirror there, but a door just as I had seen it in the night. I had no time to make investigations, needing to go down to breakfast and to the station.

By the advice of my physician I spent July and August that summer at the seashore. By September I was much improved and spent the month in the mountains. This restored my health, but did not relieve me of an uncanny feeling at having seen myself or my other self at the hotel during my homeward journey. Two years passed during which I had gradually driven the matter out of my mind when I saw the vision again.

Singularly enough, I saw it under circumstances somewhat similar to those connected with its first appearance. It was the second summer after the one during which it had first appeared to me, when I was at —— Springs. I had a room in an extension of a hotel, facing another extension. One morning on arising I went to a window, and there at another window in the other extension stood my double. We were both, as before, in nightdresses and wore our hair plaited on our backs.

Nothing could have induced me to remain at that hotel for another day. I was with friends and surprised them by announcing that I would leave by the next train. They wondered, expostulated, pleaded, but to no purpose. One of them, a girl of my own age, with whom I was very intimate, begged me to tell her why I was leaving and what was the matter with me, for it was plain that I had received a shock of some kind. I would not have told her for the world. I declined to tell any one but my physician, and I wished to consult him as soon as possible. I was sure that I suffered from some kind of mental breakdown, and I only hoped that he would find means to arrest its progress.

On reaching the city I sent for him to come to me at once and told him of this second vision of myself. He tried to reassure me by telling me that I had seen some one who looked very like me. I refused to be comforted. I had seen myself or my exact counterpart. I told him that only one of my own flesh and blood could so closely resemble me and that I had no sister or even cousins so far as I knew. Besides, if this vision were a real person I would see her in a different dress from my own. The doctor explained this by saying that as I had seen her at night and in the early morning I would naturally see her in the dress I wore myself, both of us wearing nightgowns. I tried to consider this within the limit of coincidence, but it was impossible for me to believe that two persons could be so identical in appearance that they should meet twice and both times see each other in a nightdress. No; I had seen this vision first at a time when my physician had warned me that I was breaking down. I had been overstrained. What had I been straining? My mind; therefore it was my mind that had been giving way. This reappearance of the vision would naturally denote that my mind was again giving way. I shuddered. I saw myself confined in a lunatic asylum, a mental wreck.

My friends to whom my malady became known used every argument to disabuse my mind, some of them assuring me that my vision was a real person closely resembling me. Others averred that people in a disordered state of the system were liable to see all sorts of things. A theosophist declared that I had seen my spiritual self at moments when it had been lifted out of my bodily self. To this person I replied that when I had seen the vision I was very well fixed in my own body. I consulted two specialists in brain diseases, one of whom told me a great deal about the cerebrum, the cerebellum, the dura mater and other substances of which the brain is composed and their reciprocal relations, nothing of which I understood. The other told me that I was myself producing an image of myself. He admitted that the first vision might have been caused by a disordered system. His advice was for me to drive the matter out of my mind. Occupation and amusement would assist me to do this.

Young Dr. Penrose did more to reassure me than any one else. While he did not claim to explain my trouble, he told me that it was of no importance. He pronounced me in excellent health and assured me that a time would come when I would look back on my fears as entirely uncalled for. It was not so much his words that reassured me as his personality. He had such a cheerful and at the same time sympathetic manner. He evidently believed what he told me. Since he was the only person who could reassure me I made frequent visits to his office and found every excuse to call for him to come to my home. The result was a love affair. Whether his reassurances affected me because the little god had from the first wounded me or whether I loved him because he gave me comfort no one else could give I don't know.

I engaged myself to Dr. Penrose in the spring, and that autumn I came of age. I knew I was to be paid some money when I was twenty-one which had been in the hands of a trust company. Whether it had been left me by my father or my mother I did not know. I had no remembrance of either of my parents. I had lived with my aunt ever since I could remember anything and had understood from her that both my father and my mother had died when I was very young. I had arranged to be married as soon after I came of age as I could get possession of my property. My fiance was a struggling physician, with nothing but his income from his practice, and we needed my inheritance.

A few days before I was twenty-one I was notified by the trust company that any time I would call on or after that date, prepared to sign receipts, my property would be turned over to me, but they would like me to name a day and hour I would be there that they could have present such persons as might be necessary. I replied that I would call at the bank at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the day I came of age.

I had come to rely on Dr. Penrose for matters of importance, and as we were to be married within a few weeks after getting possession of my fortune I asked him to accompany me to the bank and see that nothing was done that should not be done. On the day appointed we went together to the trust company, were received by one of the officers connected with it and shown into a room where we were asked to wait a few minutes. Presently we were ushered into an apartment in the center of which was a long table. There, standing on the opposite side of the table, was the apparition I had seen twice before. I staggered. Dr. Penrose caught me and steadied me.

"My double!" I moaned, shutting out the apparition.

The doctor saw what I saw—a girl the exact image of myself, but dressed differently.

"Good!" he cried. "If that is your double you have been frightened at a real person."

A gentleman present said:

"I am told that you two young ladies need to be introduced. You are twin sisters and inherit share and share alike in the estate of Wilbur Langford, both being his daughters and heirs."

My sister on seeing me had shown the same evidence of shock as myself. We looked at each other for some moments; then both started with one accord around the table and met in an embrace.

Of that domestic trouble which separated our parents, one taking my sister, the other myself, of their subsequent early death—our mother of a broken heart—it is not necessary that I should give an account here. My sister and myself having been brought up separately, the trustees were instructed to bring us together when we came of age and received our inheritance.

It was some time before my twin and myself could be torn apart in order that we might sign papers spread out on the table to receive our signatures. The business having been finished, we left the bank with our arms about each other's waist, telling of out experiences after our two former meetings. She, too, had suffered, but nothing like myself, since she felt sure I was a real person.

At my wedding my only attendant was my sister.

HARMON WILL WALK INTO GOVERNORSHIP

Stepping Stone to Presidency, Says Prominent Railroad Man

New York, May 26.—That Judson Harmon, governor of Ohio, will be nominated for president in 1912 by the Democrats and will be elected was a prophecy made by Melville F. Ingalls, chairman of the Big Four railroad. Ingalls has been mentioned to succeed Senator Dick of Ohio in case that state should go Democratic next fall.

"The situation in Ohio," said Ingalls, "is very simple. There will be a state convention next month, but it will be practically unanimous. Harmon will walk into the governorship. I hardly think that a very great effort will be made to elect the Republican candidate, and, of course, that will mean that Ohio will be unanimous for Harmon for president in 1912."

Mr. Ingalls said that scores of Republicans thought their party needed a spanking as a lesson.

The matter will be taken up by the mayor, who announced that in view of the seriousness of the accusations he would imemdiately suspend Kohler if he found sufficient evidence to justify him. Otherwise the charges will be handed to the civil board for their action.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Quincy Men Vote for Labor Bill But it is Defeated

Both Representatives Thomas and Langelier voted on Wednesday in favor of the bill to authorize trade unions to impose fines to enforce strikes, but the bill was killed on roll call 97 to 108. Notice of reconsideration was given.

The House passed to be engrossed the bill to reimburse cities and towns for loss of taxes on land taken for public institutions; also the pension bill for Boston school teachers; and the Savings bank bill resulting from the Southbridge investigation.

The House refused to admit a bill of Mayor Fitzgerald, and a petition of Representative Callahan, relative to civil service.

The "L" merger bill was reported in the Senate and Bennett of Saugus gave notice of the amendment which he will move to permit the Old Colony and Boston & Northern to merge. If the amendment is thrown out on a point of order it will not affect the bill, but if it had been part of the orginal bill, the whole measure would have been killed.

Harvey of Waltham ,moved to substitute for the committee bill, a perfected draft, providing for the cooperative pension systen for cities and towns. The motion to substitute prevailed- 15 to 0, and the substitute was ordered to a third reading by the same vote.

BRIEFS.

Final arrangements for Memorial day will be made by Paul Revere Post 88 at its meeting tonight.

The insurance adjusters are out today going the stock of Remick Bros. which was damaged by the fire Tuesday morning.

City Square will look so fine with its new lights during the Merchants' week that the citizens will probably want them to remain all the time.

Several of the local business men have decided that they will not put their teams in the Fourth of July parade. They also say that they will not contribute toward the celebration.

All of the granite street crossings in City Square are being repaired. In some cases the crossings are being relaid and in other cases where the crossing is up above the street grade concrete is being put along the sides of the crossings. This will do away with the jolts that teams get when they cross them.

SEMI-FINALS TODAY.

The first round for the women's golf championship, played at Wollaston on Wednesday, resulted in victories for Mrs. E. C. Wheeler, Jr., over Miss Harley, Miss K. F. Duncan over Miss C. L. Duncan, Miss Osgood over Miss Underwood and Miss Morrill over Mrs. Davis. Semi-finals are being played today.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert Delacretaz of Boston was fined $50 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton. Albert E. Withers of Brookline was also fined $10 for overspeeding.

Donato Fa'rigio was arranged for assault at Quincy. Case continued until May 27.

SAFETY DEVICE FOR SHIPS IN FOGS

French Liner Equipped With New Wireless Compass.

SUCCESSFUL TESTS MADE.

Position of Other Ships That Answered Its Signal Told at Once—Captain of La Provence Located Vessels Which He Passed, Even In Thick Weather.

Captain Poncelet of the French liner La Provence, swiftest of Gallic merchantmen, arrived at New York recently after a foggy and rough passage from Havre, France, jubilant over a new wireless contrivance that he declares enabled him to find out in the fog the exact position relatively of any ship with which he could get into wireless touch and also to get his bearings with greater accuracy than he could when in touch with the submarine bells of lightships.

The apparatus is the invention of two Italian naval officers and is called the Bellini-Tosi system of radio telegraphy. The French government has equipped a station with this system at Boulogne, France, and while the Provence was less than half a day out from Havre she communicated with the Boulogne plant and got her exact bearings from it and its bearings from her.

Positions of Ships Easily Located.

The recording device consists of a dial with all the points of the compass. An indicator manipulated by the thumb and forefinger of the skipper by a little knob is turned until the sound that comes by wireless is strongest. Where the indicator resembling the compass needle points shows the direction from which the wireless message comes. Of course the indicator is connected with the wireless plant, and the skipper or whoever has charge of the apparatus has receivers at his ears to judge when the sound is strongest.

Captain Poncelet said that he had no trouble in locating the exact positions of the Potsdam, which he passed going east in thick weather; the Chicago, also bound the other way, and the Lorraine, for Havre. Captain Poncelet said he believed that the new system would be adopted finally by all lines, as it had been proved all right by the exhaustive experiments he had made with it on the Provence. He said the line had made a previous experiment with the system on a freighter and had been convinced that the apparatus would be an acquisition to the passenger ships, adding enormously to the safety of liners in time of fog, particularly off the banks.

Preventer of Collisions.

He had no trouble getting the exact bearing of Sable Island and satisfied the wireless operator there that the apparatus was a success. He had practically the same experience with Cape Race. As these stations are not fitted with the apparatus they could not tell his direction from them.

The captain said he believed the contrivance told the direction of a station or ship equipped with wireless within a point and that he believed collisions at sea between vessels fitted with such direction finders would be impossible in fog or shine. He looks on the system as likely to revolutionize transatlantic navigation, already made safe except in thick weather by the ordinary wireless, not to mention the submarine bell system. This new invention has an advantage which hitherto has been one of the greatest problems to solve in wireless telegraphy—namely, it makes a wireless message secret. Heretofore wireless messages have practically been public property—that is to say, a message sent from one station could be read by any station within the radius of the message. This new invention makes it impossible for any station but the one the message is intended for to understand it.

Further tests will be given the new system, and if it still proves its efficiency it will be installed on the large ships. Its cost, it is said, is not very great.

"My Maryland," New Version.

"Maryland, My Maryland," stripped of its martial lines and its pro-southern sentiments, is being sung by the children of the Baltimore county public schools in Maryland. It is a strange song to most of the children this new "Maryland, My Maryland," but they are drilled in it regularly at rehearsals for the music festival scheduled for May 27. On that day the public at large will have the first opportunity to hear the song sung to the original music, but with words so different that old timers will be unable to recognize them. John T. White, school examiner for Allegany, wrote new words for the music.

A Larger Customs Limit?

In writing of "Women and the Customs House" in the June Century Lillie Hamilton French makes the suggestion that since the $100 limit has not proved a full protection to the United States government a larger limit might be allowed "to those of us who have no intent to defraud the merchant." A limit of $300 or even $500, she argues, would in no way affect the rich, while it would be an enormous boon to women of limited means.

MT. JOY BASKET PARTY

Entertainment and Dance at Electa Hall

A largely attended as well as a very enjoyable entertainment, basket party and dance under the auspices of Mt. Joy Perceptory, Royal Black Knights, was held Wednesday evening at Electa hall. The entertainment opened with brief remarks by Murdock Campbell, Then followed a pleasing entertainment, the program of which included readings by Mrs. Jeanie Anderson and Miss Beatrice Budd, and vocal solos by William Warmington with Miss Bessie Warmington as accompanist. At the conclusion of the entertainment, an assortment of baskets were shown. These baskets were brought by the ladies, and aside from being attractive contained many good things to eat, that their fair hands had cooked. Murdock Campbell sold these baskets to the highest bidder, and all brought good prices. Once in his possession, the owner sought the name of the lady hidden beneath the cover. This found, he sought her out, and selecting some convenient seat the two proceeded to enjoy the contents of the basket. This created no end of fun, especially in the case of the man who unconsciouly had purchased the basket brought by his wife and was obliged to go over in the corner with her to enjoy the contents rather than with one of the attractive young ladies present.

Dancing was then in order until midnight. The committee in charge were Daniel McKinnon chairman, Thomas Hewson secretary, W. B. Jones treasurer, and Andrew Stewart, William F. McCalder, Malcolm McLeod and Wilbur Winot.

With such a fine list of prizes we may all look for a big field of starters,and a big proportion of them to finish.

Speak For Yourself, John.

The Lord Leicester of a century ago had no sons by his first marriage and, being well on in years, was anxious to see his heir apparent, a nephew, happily wedded. His wish was that a charming daughter of his neighbor, the Earl of Albemarle, should be the future Lady Leicester. With her and her sisters he used to enjoy his morning rides. One morning she came alone, and during the ride he asked, thinking to forward his nephew's interests, "Anne, my dear, how should you like to be mistress of Holkham?" "There is nothing I should like better," she replied. "Then I shall send my nephew William to court you," said the earl, glad that the fates seemed to favor his project. But the lady calmly and gravely answered, "I shall never be mistress of Holkham on those terms." "Why," exclaimed the astonished old gentleman, looking the lady hard in the face, "you don't mean to say you would marry me?" "Yes, indeed I would," was the answer, "and nothing I should wish better." And as a consequence the nephew did not succeed to the earldom.—London Chronicle.

JEFF'S STUNTS AT BEN LOMOND

Manner In Which Big Fellow Is Training Pleases Fans.

WILL HE BE OVERTRAINED?

Followers of Californian See Need of Older Head In Training Camp—What Jeff's Daily Task Is Like—Former Champion Faithful Worker.

By TOMMY CLARK.

If Jim Jeffries does not succeed in defeating Jack Johnson at the Emeryville race track July 4 it will not be the fault of any human being. Jeff's training at Ben Lomond, Cal., is being handled more carefully than any other pugilist that ever engaged in a championship battle. Every possible means within the power of man is being used to bring Jeff back to his old shape. Nearly all the great fighters that he has beaten are willing to contribute their bit to the big fellow's success in the coming battle; in fact, every particle of fight left in Jeff will be brought to the surface.

But—and this word is very significant—is it the assistance of these great old timers that will bring home the money for the Jeffries followers? Will any exclusive instruction in the art of boxing help Jeff come out victorious? At the present time Jeff's training corps is composed of Joe Choynski, Bob Armstrong, Farmer Burns, Billy Papke and Sam Berger.

The opinion seems to prevail that Jeffries is in need of some older head to map out his training, and there is some fear being expressed by his friends that he may injure himself by working too violently at this early period. So far Jeff has rounded to shape in a manner that was gratifying to even those who never figured his being able to go through a severe course of training work.

However, the recent stiffness which he has felt in his limbs after exercising briskly has caused anxiety among his admirers, and now there is a howl for some veteran like Billy Delaney or Billy Madden to oversee his training. While Berger is a useful man to the champion, he is a young fellow who does not know the finer points of training an athlete like some of the older heads.

Jeff has always been a hard, faithful worker when in training, but in this case it's going to need more than the hard work to keep the big fellow from leaving all his fight on those mountain roads around Ben Lomond. If Jeff makes any mistake this time he may hurt himself worse than the negro can hurt him.

There is another thing—a camp should have a single head, one man whose word is law to the fighter and to every one else. At present Choynski is superintending the training. Pretty soon Jim Corbett will blow along, and there will be three of 'em, to say nothing of a large bunch of confidential advisers, and there will be jealousy in the camp and bickerings, and poor old good natured Jeff will be sitting helplessly in the middle of plots and counterplots. This won't do. If Jeff cannot get Delaney, why not try Billy Madden? Billy is a veteran of the days when training was a cruel thing, the days when a man "dried out" before his fight, a real drying out, which left not an ounce of perspiration in the whole body. He has handled many fighters and made few mistakes with them in their training.

Jeff has laid out a daily schedule, which he intends to follow strictly until his battle with the negro. He rises at 6:30 a. m. and takes a cold bath and a rubdown. Then he takes a brisk walk of at least four miles and returns in time to have breakfast at 8. Rests for one hour, then takes light exercise in the gymnasium and is ready for handball at 10 a. m. Shortly after he is ready for a climb over hills and a run of eight or ten miles. Has lunch at 1 p. m., then takes one hour of rest. At 2 o'clock he starts boxing, wrestling, bag punching, rope skipping and another workout on the road until 5 p. m., then a bath and a rubdown, supper at 6 p. m., three hours of leisure and to bed at 9 o'clock.

RETAIL CLERKS BECOME INTERESTED

Tendered a Grand Banquet by Quincy Retail Merchants' Association

Good Speakers and Enthusiasm Over Merchants' Week

A grand success in every way was the first banquet tendered to the clerks employed in the stores of the Quincy Merchants association on Thursday evening. The affair was held at Union hall and was participated in by nearly 150 which included all of the members of the association, their clerks and several invited guests who included the Mayor and members of the press. C. C. Whittemore was the caterer, and he served a banquet that was pronounced by all to be excellent. There was plenty of food and the service was good. The only decorations were the Merchants' Week banners which ornamented the walls and tables.

The hour of the banquet was set for 6:30 as the local stores did not close until 6 o'clock and there are always some late customers it was nearly 7 o'clock before chairs were taken at the tables. There was one table across the head of the hall at which were the officers of the association and chairmen of the several committees on Merchants week and the invited guests. These gentlemen were: President Eben W. Sheppard, Mayor William T. Shea, Hon. George H. Carter, ex-Mayor of Chelsea, Albert W. Donovan of Rockland, Eugene R. Stone, president of the Board of Trade; W. H. Nichols, manager of the Citizens' Gas Light Co., Henry P. Dowst, Nathan Ames, W. G. Shaw, Robert E. Foy, Henry L. Kincaide, Albert Remick, T. L. Williams, H. E. Crane, E. J. Murphy, Walter Berry, M. J. L. Kennedy, George W. Jones and A. L. Whitman.

The other tables were arranged lengthwise of the hall, and there were three of these and every seat was occupied, so that some late comers were seated at the head table. Without any preliminary speeches the dinner was served. During the latter part of the dinner while the dishes were being removed for the ices T. J. Joyce of Joyce Bros. presided at the piano and as he played the popular airs all joined in singing the choruses. Again, after the diner, before the speaking he played and there was more singing, which served in a way to digest the dinner and put the party in good humor to enjoy the speaking.

President Sheppard presided at the after-dinner speaking, and in opening said this was a grand occasion . It is such a gathering as will make Merchants' week a success. Much time and money had been given to make this week a success and he cordially invited all to join in making it so. He was sorry that illness had prevented his taking an active part in the affair in the past, but he felt that the committees were to be congratulated on what they had done. Quincy has demonstrated what it can do when the occasion arises, and he had no fears for the success of the coming week. He desired to thank those outside of the association and the press for their help and he also wanted to thank John Johnson Co., for the cigars which the party were enjoying.

The first speaker to be introduced was Mayor Shea and never did a man receive more of an ovation. The party shouted themselves hoarse and arose as one man and gave three cheers loud and long for Shea, What's the matter with Shea? He's all right.

After the Mayor's blushes had whitened out some, he said it was a happy occasion for him, and he had enjoyed a good dinner, but as there were several good speakers to follow he did not intend to take up too much of the time. He was happy to see a gathering of this kind. It argues well for the city. He congratulated the members on giving such an occasion as this kind, and for what they were doing for the Merchants' Week. We are ready at City Hall to do anything that will add to the success of the occasion. When we see a body of men of this kind it means that we are waking up. That the city is progressing. The city is limited in the amount of money which it can expend. We want many things. He intended to ask the Council to appropriate $15,000 for permanent sidewalks which he considered one of the best assets a city could have, and for an appropriation of $10,000 for surface drainage. These are only a small part of what we should have. In closing he said that if there was anything he could do to help along the Merchants' Week he hoped the committee would call upon him. He would now turn the keys of the city over to our visiting friends.

H. P. Dowst who had charge of the committees advertising sheet was introduced to speak on "Salesmanship." He said that after Merchants' Week he hoped no one in the City of Quincy would have occasion to say "A little, louder, Quincy" as was said to a western senator who spoke at Buffalo. He looked upon Merchants' Week from the point of view of an advertising man. He congratulated the merchants on the fine spirit of cooporation that had been shown. The best advertisment you can send forth in Merchants' Week is in the quality of the goods. In affairs of this kind there are always a few who do all the work, but there is a spirit of loyalty that the clerks can show by their courtesy and politeness to customers. In that way you will do much for the city. He hoped this would only be the beginning of a series of Merchants' Weeks that will place Quincy the commercial centre in this vicinity.

E. R. Stone, president of the Board of Trade, after receiving the thanks for the use of his association rooms for the committees, was introduced. He said he had come here from the committee meeting at City Hall where he had been arguing for an appropriation for the Fourth of July. To see the merchants and clerks gathered together as they are here means that all

RUBBER SOCIAL.

The Dorcas society held a rubber social in the vestry of the Universalist church on Thursday evening, the admission being as many old rubbers as you could find and five cents. Some brought one pair and some as high as eight pairs. A good colelction was obtained and a good profit is sure to result. The entertainment consisted of piano duets by Mrs. Florence Cutter and Miss Edith Hyland, songs by Miss Sweetland, accompanied by Miss Humphrey; recitations by Master Joe Beal of Braintree, who proved popular last winter and was equally so Thursday night; songs by Miss Hyland, accompanied by Mrs. Cutter; and piano duets by Miss Hyland and Miss Reed. The musical part of the program was thoroughly enjoyed and listened to with great interest by the audience. Ice cream, candy and peanuts were on sale and found ready purchasers.

RECITAL AT ATLANTIC.

A large number of parents and admiring friends gathered at Atlantic Music Hall Thursday night for the recital by children who have been studying the piano under Miss Ella Horton. Previous years Miss Horton's recitals have been held at her home, but her classes have increased so, that it was necessary to have larger accommodations. The program which was greatly enjoyed by all present, consisted of selections by May Stevens, Zenith Kilpatrick, Mary Golden, Helen Hanson, Agnes Bradford, Louise Churchill, Elinor Phillips, Clara Von Emden, Marion Letteney, Charles Cullen, Jessie Welch, Marion Downey, Teresa Edwards, Laura Bean, Dorothea Tavender, George Dahlquist, Hazel Davison, kilpha Coombs and Margaret Reed.

MALTA DEGREES.

John Adams Commandery Knights of Malta, had as guests Thursday evening a large delegation of Uniformed Knights from Mount Hermonson commandery of Whitman. Also a delegation of the Uniform camp of St. Johns of Brockton and several Sir Knights from Gettesemane of Everett. The attraction of the evening was the working of the first degree of the order by the new degree team of John Adams Commandery, The staff presented a very impossing spectacle in their new uniforms, and after the work were highly complimented by Sir James W. Tyler, P. C. degree master of the M. B. degree staff of Mount Hermon; by Sir Silas A. Tucker, drill master of that commandery Malta degree Staff; and by Sir Thomas S. Delano, master workman of the fourth degree staff of St. Johns. A collation was served at the close of the meeting.

John Adams commandery will work the Malta degree on another class of novices before the holiday season, when the deputy will be asked for a dispensation to permit the commandery to cease labors during July, August and September.

June 6 the companions will visit St. Johns for the purpose of witnessing one of the higher degrees of the order.

SALMON BREAKS RECORD.

The Journal prints a special dispatch from Provincetown, which again places a Quincy built boat to the fore:

The submarine Salmon proved itself the swiftest craft of its kind in the world, and a terror of the deep that even the great warships of the Florida type may stand in awe of, on its trial tests off here Thursday. The craft established a surface record of thirteen and one-quarter knots an hour, and then plunging into the depths, again broke all records by travelling twelve and three-tenths knots an hour below. Four torpedoes were discharged while submerged and going at full speed, and the score was practically a series of bullseyes.

Grand Army men of Greater Boston are pleased that it has been decided that the circus is to parade on Tuesday instead of Memorial day.

FIELD DAY ON HOLIDAY

To Be Held by West Quincy Improvement Association

To prove to the citizens of Quincy that it is very much alive, the West Quincy Improvement Association is preparing a grand outdoor field day and celebration to be held June 17. At the last meeting of the association a committee was appointed to consider an outing. This committee made its report at the meeting Thursday evening. It was voted to hold a field day with monster clam bake at Elcock's grove, Braintree pond. This outing will not be for men alone for every man, woman and child is invited.

Mayor Shea and other prominent citizens will be included among the invited guests. There will be a series of field sports to include a game of ball for which suitable prizes will be given. The committee on transportation will make the necessary arrangements with the street railway to transport the party to South Braintree. One of the features of the day will be a monster clam bake. The several committees are hard at work perfecting plans and a special meeting of the association will be held next week at which final arrangements will be completed.

JULY 4 CELEBRATION.

A letter was received from the parade committee of the Fourth of July celebration asking for the cooperation of the association. A general discussion followed after which a committee of twenty-five was appointed to take up the matter of decoration of the business houses and residences along the line of the parade in West Quincy, and to assist in any way possible to make the day a success.

TROLLEY FREIGHT.

The matter of trolley freight was taken up and discussed, and a committee of five consisting of J. F. Lakin, John Evans, Joseph Walker, W. H. Teasdale and E. J. Sandberg was appointed to attend the hearing before the Railroad Commissioners next Tuesday and favor the granting of the franchise for a period of twenty years.

BAND CONCERTS.

It was voted that the Metropolitan Park Commissioners be requested to give two or more band concerts in the vicinity of Babble rock during the coming season.

Several matters of local interest were discussed informally but no definite action was taken on any of these.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Well every one saw the comet last night and did not have to take to the hills either.

Speculation is rife over the probable favorites of Yale for honorary degrees. We should say that Gov. Hughes would be a good guess.

An Atlanta policeman claims to have seen the comet five nights in succession. It would seem that the policeman doth protest too much.

Somehow it shrinks the breadth of our country when we know that an old man can walk across it, from sea to sea, in seventy-seven days.

Illinois is furnishing an illustration of the unpopular election of United States Senators. The way to avoid scandal and bribery is to elect them by popular vote.

At a London manuscript sale, the charter of the State of Rhode Island went for only $51.25. Every one, however, knew that Mr. Aldrich had the real title to the State.

The richest man in Texas is a bachelor, but whether this is a reflection upon his sagacity or an explanation of his wealth, the faithful chronicler does not undertake to say.

A woman in an address at La Grange, Ills, says there is nothing sadder than the spectacle of a boy having to spend his boyhood in a four room flat. But he dosen't while there's a ten-foot alley in town.

Court buildings are cheap out in Wisconsin, one in Munroe county selling for 30 cents for an unpaid weed tax. Chance for Quincy to buy a second hand one cheap and use all the money appropriated to buy a lot to put it on.

When the Grand Army make their annual visit to the cemeteries of the city next Monday to decorate the graves of departed comrades, there will be but one new grave to decorate, as the Post has lost but one member by death since last Memorial Day. That comrade was Samuel G. Curtis, a member of Co. G, 43d Mass. Vol. Inf., who died last January. With age creeping on, it is something remarkable that Paul Revere Post 88, should have lost but one member. All join in wishing that another year may see the Post equally as fortunate in not losing its members.

GYPSY MOTH PARASITES.

It is perhaps not generally known that the Gypsy Moth Commission have released a number of parasites in different parts of Quincy. The places where they have been released is where there are enough of the gypsy moths for them to feed upon. Up to the present time three inflicted spots have been supplied with the parasites. These places are near the Keenan farm on South street, at Faxon park, and near the Fuller spring on the Milton line. It is understood that three different kinds of the parasites have been released.

—There is a severe drouth on in Salem. Under no license there were only 10 arrests for drunkenness in the first 13 days of May ,against 134 for the same days last year under license. A REAL LOVE MATCH

C. C. Rumsey and His Bride, Formerly Mary Harriman

MISTRESS OF $100,000,000

Daughter of Late E. H. Harriman Is Bride of Sculptor

WEDDING CEREMONY IS QUIET

Performed In Presence of Relatives and Few Close Friends In Little Church at Arden—Heiress and Rumsey Both Have Great Love For Art and Horses, In Which Husband Won Fame

Arden, N. Y., May 27.—Miss Mary Harriman, favorite daughter of the late E. H. Harriman and mistress of a fortune estimated at $100,000,000, became the bride of Charles C. Rumsey of Buffalo, a graduate of Harvard, '02.

The utmost simplicity marked the ceremony. The little Episcopal church near the Harriman estate was decorated with greens and flowers gathered by the employes of the estate. In the church were gathered a few close friends, besides the couple and the pastor, Rev. J. H. McGuinness. The quietness of the ceremony was not due entirely to the fact that the Harriman family is still in mourning, for Mrs. Harriman and her children are noted for their simplicity.

The bride had but one attendant, her sister, Miss Carol Harriman. Formal invitations had been sent only to close friends and relatives of the bride and bridegroom. For the rest of their friends announcements of the wedding were used. Of the Harriman family there were present, besides the mother and sister of the bride, Mrs. R. L. Gerry, W. A. Harriman and Roland Harriman, both brothers of the bride.

Following the ceremony the party returned to Arden. It is there that the couple will spend their honeymoon, Mrs. Harriman and Miss Carol going to the Pacific coast and the Harriman boys spending their vacation in the west.

It is a marriage of love, pure and simple. An artist as well as very much of a man, Rumsey attracted the attention of the Harrimans by his achievements as sculptor. He is an expert horseman and polo player, too. Miss Harriman is fond of art, particularly of sculpture. She "dotes on" horses, as the feminine expression goes. The couple has these art and equine tastes in common. With this as a beginning, the acquaintance of four years ago naturally ripened to mutual love.

Possibly it was the masterly manner in which Rumsey rode Miss Harriman's horse to victory in the society races on Belmont track two years ago that gave the progress of love especial impetus.

Mr. Rumsey's home, where dwells his father and mother, is one of the show places of Buffalo. Like the rest of his family, Charles Rumsey went to Harvard and was a member of the class of 1902. Like his father before him, he became a member of the Institute of 1770, the Porcellian club and the Hasty Pudding, the best organizations at Harvard.

When he was graduated he decided to take up an artistic career instead of going into business. So he went to Paris and there studied for four years. Always a horseman like the rest of his family, he won the Concours Hippique. Fond of athletics, he took the gold medal for boxing among the students of the Beaux Arts, France's premier artistic institution, frequented by so many young Americans.

Then young Rumsey came back to New York and set up his studio. Among the first people he met were the Harrimans. Harriman was building his wonderful estate at Arden and Rumsey did the sculpture for him.

ANTIETAM AND FIVE FORKS

A Memorial Day Story.

It was a mild spring day. The trees were budding and there was a genial warmth in the breeze that came across the low range of hills to the south.

Jared Cross pulled open the gate in the meadow fence and slowly crossed the enclosure. He was a man well advanced in years ,a man of rather heavy build, who stooped a little and carried a thick cane. His hair was gray and he wore a stubby gray mustache. He was comfortably clad and he had a well fed and well satisfied look.

Jared particularly liked this path across the meadow because it gave him an excellent view of the surrounding farmland ,and more especially of the broad acres of that thrifty farmer, Jared Cross the younger.

As the o'der Jared neared the fence on the opposite side of the meadow he noticed that a stranger was sitting on a stump just beyond the stake-and-rider barrier. The fence was on the dividing line between the Cross farm an dthe Sedgewick farm, and the stump that bore the stranger was a Sedgewick stump.

Jared looked closely at the man on the stump. He was an old man, rather tall and tin and very straight and his chin was decorated with a slender tuft of white whisker.

"Mornin'," said Jared.

"Howdy?" replied the man on the stump.

Jared came a little nearer.

"Fine view," he suggested.

"It's a right smart farmin' country," admitted the stranger, "but I prefer my hills a little higher. 'Taint no ways like home."

He talked with a peculiar drawling accent that was quite the opposite of Jared's quick manner of speech.

"There's no better farmin' country in th' State," said Jared, "an th' hills are just as God made 'em'."

The strangers mild blue eyes were turned Jared's way.

"I reckon that's true," he drawled. "An' 'pears to me it's mighty lucky He didn't always think alike when makin' hills."

Jared leaned on the fence.

"I guess you're homesick," he said.

"I guess mebby I be," replied the stranger. "But I'm goin' to get over it."

"Course you are," said Jared. "Visitin' hereabouts?"

"I'm visitin' my daughter, Sally, Mrs. Tom Sedgewick," the stranger drawled. "She an' Tom want me to make my home with them, an' I dunno "but I will—ef I kin get used to th' hills."

Jared overlooked this studied slight on the landscape.

"I've always lived here," he said. "I was born on this farm. Th' old house stood where th' new one stands. I'm living with my son. He runs th' farm. My name is Jared Cross, Major Jared Cross."

He pushed out his chest a little as he uttered the title. It was his pet weakness. The expansion brought his G. A. R. badge into greater prominence.

The stranger nodded.

"This is only my second visit No'th," he explained, "an' the first one didn't count for much. My home is in northern Georgia—where God makes the hills higher I'm Cunnel Henry Magruder"

A frown gathered on the major's brow

"I understand you to say that you once paid a brief visit to th' North," he exlaimed "May I ask what part of th' North it was?"

The colonel's blue eyes opened a little wider."

"It was a part of Pennsylvania, sir," he slowly drawled. "The place was called Gettysburg."

The major suddenly snorted.

"I was there, too, sir."

"I don't doubt it, sir," said the colonel calmly. "There suttenly was a right smart lot of folks there at th' time."

"I was there with my regiment, sir," cried the major; "th' Ninth Michigan."

"I was in good company, too," said the colonel; "the Fo'teenth Georgia." His face suddenly clouded and he looked away. "We left a right smart lot of th' boys sleepin' on th' hillside," he softly added.

The major was angry. The stranger's coolness was exasperating.

"An' you fought against the old flag," he bitterly said.

"The best I knew how," the stranger replied. "Just th' same I'd fight for it now."

The major's face grew red.

"You are talking to a man, sir, who wore th' blue an' imperiled his life for that flag sir," he hoarsely cried.

The colonel acknowledged this this statement with a courteous wave of his hand.

"If you had been th' only one, sir" he mildly said, "things might have been different. But there suttenly were too many of you."

"Bah!" cried the major and turned abruptly away. He was hot with anger at this cool southerner who had no shame.

He stalked along the meadow path in the direction of the house. As he hurried homeward a shrill voice reached his ears.

His face grew scarlet.

The colonel was whistling "Dixie."

The major increased his "speed.

He would keep away from that disloyal corner hereafter.

But the next morning found him taking the meadow path again. It was his favorite walk and he didn't mean to be deprived of it by any lank and lean Georgian. Besides, the colonel might not be there.

But he was there on the seat.

"Howdy, major?" he pleasantly called.

"Mornin'," responded the major a little gruffly.

He leaned on the fence and stared at the man from Georgia. There was a smile in the mild blue eyes.

"I trust you slept well, major?"

"I always sleep well. I've nothin' on my conscience to disturb me, sir."

The colonel smiled.

"My conscience is well broke," he said. "It nevah interferes with my rest. I have an idea, sir, that some folks mistake nightmares for conscience."

The major made a queer noise in his throat.

"My digestion is as sound as my conscience," he remarked with some sharpness.

"You are a fortunate man, sir," the colonel politely observed. "I might have added that the only thing that ever keeps me awake is this game leg of mine. It stiffens up a little now an' then. It's a souvenir of Five Forks, sir."

The major nodded. He looked at the colonel's legs with some interest Perhaps the interest was increased by the fact that the colonel's discomfort was due to a Union bullet.

"I have a little trouble myself," he said, "with this right shoulder of mine. It gets a rheumatic twinge once in a while. That's a souvenir of Antietam."

The colonel gravely bowed.

"You have my sympathy ,sir."

The major was moved by this touch of humanity.

"Thank you, colonel," he said. "I'm glad to say that this was the only wound I received."

"I had five," blandly remarked the colonel.

The major was much irritated by this numerical superiority.

"I participated in seventeen pitched battles sir," he hotly announced.

"You have the advantage of me there, sir," said the colonel. "Disabilities prevented me from engaging in more than eleven."

The major felt better. His face showed it.

"Th' fortunes of war ,sir, are very unequally distributed he remarked with much magnanimity.

The colonel bowed in his courtly manner as if admitting the gross unequality of belligerent chances.

"You are quite right, major," he said. "And one proof of your statement—a very important proof—is found in th' final result of th' great struggle."

The major shook his head.

"It was the result that we of the North had foreseen from th' first, sir."

The colonel faintly smiled.

"I think," he slowly said, "that if we of the South had foreseen th' result as you foresaw it, sir, we would have fought you just th' same."

There was a little silence.

The major stared at the colonel and the colonel stared across the valley. The northerner's heart warmed. This was a foe worth fighting.

"But you admit you were fairly beaten?" he demanded.

"We admitted that forty-five years ago," said the colonel, sadly. Then he suddenly smiled. "An' I admitted it again twenty years ago, when I gave my Sally, to a no'therner."

The major nodded.

"You gave her to a good man," he said. "There ain't a finer fellow for miles around than Tom Sedgewick."

The colonel stroked his long chin whisker.

"You flatter my judgment, sir," he said. "An' you confirm my daughter's good taste. We are both undah obligations to your courteous nature, sir."

He said this with such a fine air that the major was much impressed.

OUGHT TO SET GOOD EXAMPLE

But President Spends More Money Than Congress Allows

TAFT SCORED BY DEMOCRATS

House Agrees to Appropriate $25,000 For Chief Executive's Traveling Expenses, but Money Cannot Be Touched Before July 1—Point of Order Against Making Fund Immediately Available Is Sustained

Washington, May. 27.—Although President Taft has spent all of the $25,000 given him by congress for his traveling expenses, the house refused to allow him any more money for the present fiscal year. Democratic members severely scored the president for his long absences from Washington and for making political speeches whie traveling at governmental expense.

It was finally agreed to appropriate $25,000 for the president's traveling expenses during the next fiscal year, which begins July 1, 1910, but not to allow him to spend one cent of it between now and that time.

It was Representative Macon (Ark.), a Dmocrat, who made the point of order against the language in the sundry civil bill, which made the appropriation for the next year "immediately available." At once an acrimonious debate began. When it was over the chair sustained Macon's contention under the rules.

Representative Fitzgerald (N. Y.) said the president ought to set a good example to the people by obeying the law and not spending more money than congress allowed him.

"It would have been more to the credit of the president," he said, "if he had shown sufficient strength of character to have declined some of the invitations, or else paid his own expenses.

"The country has a right to know how much these political trips; these life-saving expeditions have cost. On one of these trips the president went to New York. It was exceedingly bad grace for the president on that occasion, on Lincoln's birthday, to ridicule his political opponents after having expended the money of the whole people in order to get there."

Representative Tawney, chairman of the appropriations committee, said that the deficiency was not chargeable to the president, but to the members of the house, senators, governors of states and civic bodies all over the country who importuned the president to visit their states during the fiscal year 1910.

"Is that southern hospitality?" inquired Tawney. "Can there be a meaner thing than to invite a man to accept one's hospitality and then, when he does accept, turn around and kick him and charge him with board?"

"Can the gentleman cite an instance when the president was charged for board in Georgia?" demanded Representative Bartlett of that state. "That charge is not true."

Speaker Cannon took the floor in defense of the president's traveling expenses. He said that it was necessary for the president to know the country from one end to the other, and that if he had his way he would make such knowledge compulsory on the part of senators and congressmen.

KOHLER IS SUSPENDED

Says That If He Is Disgraced He Will Not Be the Only One to Fall

Cleveland, May 27.—Chief of Police Frederick Kohler, known as the "Golden Rule" chief and lauded by President Roosevelt as the best chief of police in the country, was suspended by Mayor Baehr on charges of gross immorality, habitual drunkenness and disobedience of orders.

The tentative date of Tuesday has been set for Kohler's trial by the civil service commission, and statements by Kohler and his accusers point to the development of sensational testimony which may involve many of the city's prominent men. Kohler has intimated that he intends to fight the charges against him to a finish and that if he is disgraced he will not be the only one to fall. He has retained one of the best known criminal lawyers in Ohio as his counsel.

Dayton, O., May 27.—Orville Wright made five flights here, in one of which he reached an altitude of 2700 feet, from which height he landed at terrific speed, reaching the earth in eighty-eight seconds, or at a rate of over twenty miles an hour, thus establishing a world's record for descent.

Many estates have been suggested for the new Norfolk county courthouse ,all in the vicinity of the Thomas Crane Public Library and the new Federal building. They are of various sizes but for the most part rectangular in shape, and contain from 13,480 square feet to 42,740, and can be purchased at from $5,000 to $50,000. All have a street frontage of over 100 feet and one about 300 feet.

The City of Quincy as a whole, and such organizations as the Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library, the Board of Trade ,the Civic League, and the Quincy Women's club, should be interested, as Quincy will never again have such an opportunity as is now offered to establish a beautiful civic centre.

The new court-house should have a good generous lot, that it may be surrounded by a beautiful lawn. A mistake was made in not securing a larger estate for the Federal building. If necessary the city should help financially to this end.

Here are some statistics about the ten sites suggested:

No. 1—Nightingale estate, corner Washington and Temple streets, including two houses and restaurant, contains 19,728 square feet, measuring about 140 feet on Temple street and 115 on Washington street. If enlarged to include Charles E. Bigelow property to line of Adams building would have frontage of 190 feet on Temple street and contain 30,111 square feet.

No. 2—The estate of the late Henry H. Faxon at the corner of Washington and Coddington street as far as Hancock chambers, contains 31,625 square feet, measuring about 170 on Washington and 145 on Coddington.

No. 3—The Faxon and Turner estates on Coddington street and Faxon avenue ,in the rear of the above lot and adjoining the Coddington school, contain 42,740 square feet. They measure about 165 feet on Coddington and 150 on Faxon avenue and are about 260 feet deep.

No. 4—The Laban Pratt and Ella L. Stetson estates on Washington street ,adjoining the beautiful grounds of the Thomas Crane Public Library, contain 21,895 feet, with a frontage of about 140 feet on the street and 160 feet abutting Library grounds.

No. 5.—The Tisdale property on Washington street, including three houses and stable contains 30,682 square feet, with a frontage of about 180 feet, and depth of about 160 feet.

No. 6—The Knowlton estate at the corner of Washington and Wibird streets contains 16,130 square feet, with about 110 feet on Washington street and 130 on Wibird. It could be enlarged.

No. 7—The Prescott estate on Washington street, comprising the entire block between Wibird and Canal streets, contains 13,480 square feet. There is a frontage of 115 feet on Washington, 137 on Wibird and 135 on Canal street.

No. 8—The three estates on Washington street between Foster street and the Y. M. C. A. building, contain 25,753 square feet, and measure about 300 feet on Foster street and 110 on Washington. About one-half of this is in the Page estate, which might not be used.

No. 9—The Faxon and Kingman estates at the corner of Washington and Maple streets, contain 17,735 square feet, about 95 feet on Washington and 225 on Maple street.

No. 10—The three estates at the corner of Maple street and Chestnut street as far as the brick block contain 35,910 square feet, of which 18,600 is in the Brackett estate (not including the Foster street lot), 13,167 feet in the Willis estate, and 4,143 occupied by the Advertiser building. These lots would give a frontage of about 280 feet on Chestnut street and 160 on Maple street.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

Editor of the Ledger:

The attitude of the Quincy labor organizations regarding the coming Fourth of July celebration, if correctly reported, is much to be regretted. Our great national holiday belongs to all the people, and for any one organization to attempt to control it for exploiting their own particular tenets is an exhibition of selfishness, bad taste, bad manners and bad citizenship which deserves the severest censure.

This is the great free republic of the United States of America ,and the inhabitants thereof number some ninety millions. A certain minority of this vast host are members of labor unions, the overwhelming majority not being thus allied. This fact of numbers, however ,is mentioned incidentally, and not as bearing on the question of equal rights for all the people. The labor union is a voluntary organization of ordinary citizens, banded together for a certain fixed purpose, which is ostensibly laudable and lawful. The people allow it to exist so long as it conducts its business in a lawful manner, and does not infringe the natural and constitutional rights of others. But the labor union is not a part of the body politic, and is not a fourth co-ordinate branch of the Government, along with the legislative, executive and judiciary departments; though the overweening arrogance of some of its national leaders might lead to that belief.

A member of a labor union, provided he behaves himself properly, is of just the same consequence in the community as anybody else, and no more; and he must not for a moment think that his union membership gives him a patent right to annoy, constrain, persecute or intimidate his neighbors who, for any reason whatever, do not choose to belong to the union. Especially is this true as regards the celebration of our great national holiday; and when labor unions thrust themselves to the front and attempt to exploit our Glorious Fourth as an occasion for advertising their order and attempting to curtail the rightst of their fellow citizens, they show an ignorance and indifference regarding the true significance of the day which must rouse the opposition of every thoughtful and patriotic citizen.

Is there need of a new Declaration of Independence? Are men no longer born with certain "inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness?" Who are members of labor unions that they undertake to prevent any class of citizens from earning an honest living and enjoying the pursuit of happiness in this free America? The thought is intolerable!

If certain union musicians and workmen are deemed fit to help in the Fourth-of-July celebration, let them be hired, by all means; nobody objects to them; and if certain other musicians and workmen, not members of the unions, are also fit and competent, let them also be hired, with no hint of discrimination whatsoever between different classes of citizens. By reason of their compact organization the unions would naturaly be somewhat prominent in the celebration, and this is the honor for which they should strive, instead of standing for a narrow and selfish policy.

Let the men of the unions thank God that their lot is cast in this great free America, where such a celebration is possible, and let them take the lesson of the day to heart anew, that in this country no union, organization, clique or party can presume to interfere with the right of each and every citizen to the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; which latter phrase means especially the right of every individual to earn an honest living unmolested, and enjoy the fruits of his labor without let or hindrance.

Every patriotic and fairminded citizen will look to the City Government and the Committee in charge to see that no favoritism be shown any particular class of people in the celebration of the nation's birthday; and it is believed that the unions, upon further reflection, will avoid the bad notoriety of placing themselves in antagonism to the true spirit of the day.

RETAIL CLERKS

are working to boom Quincy. During the past year the city has forged ahead. The hard work of some citizens has brought this about. We are trying to get Quincy on a business basis. He believed the cooperation of the merchants and clerks working together will accomplish the result.

WELCOME TO DONOVAN.

Alfred W. Donovan of Rockland, on his second appearance at the Merchants meetings, received an enthusiastic greeting concluding with cheers. He complimented the clerks assembled as being the best looking lot of clerks he ever saw, and said this banquet to clerks, was one of the best occasions Quincy ever had. Good help was the greatest asset of a merchant. Clerks as well as merchants should give customers satifaction. He had been making a round of the stores and he critised one or two for lack of courtesy. Merchants should interest the clerks. He pointed out some necessary improvements. Sapolio on the windows was not good advertising. It is not the way to help your local press If you expect trade show a good front. Your advertising sheet is a good one. It is about time you did more advertising.

There should be more of a cooperative spirit among Quincy merchants. You should get together. Merchants should have heart to heart talks occasionally with their employees, and solicit suggestions. This banquet will result in better work, as all realize theymust dig for Quincy. It is for you to see that there is no city quite as good as Quincy to live in or to work in.

Since my last visit I have seen every issue of your local papers, and I note rapid strides. Papers are a mirror of the city. Your "Ads" are the "Bumiest Ads" I ever saw. Some merchants try to get a month's adveritsing in a single issue for 30 cents. It is important to use very few words and no small tpye; have plenty of white space and borders to show them up.

I notice you have just dedicated an addition to the Rice hospital. That's the kind of an interest for a man to take in his city, and his deeds will live after him. How many cities are so favored as Quincy!

Merchants' Week promises to be a success, but trade should not be confined to one week. To build up trade, talk quality. Don't use printed wrapping paper for bundles. Get your publicity from the press, your show windows and your clerks. He hoped the clerks would resolve to do a little more. (Great applause.)

Ex-Mayor George H. Carter of Chelsea was then introduced as the speaker of the evening.

He said that after hearing so much eloquence and looking at the sign at the rear of the hall, he was reminded that it was better not to be "it" but it was well to be "exit." You have had so much advice from experts that it may last you for the next 287 years. It did seem to him that from what Mr. Donovan had said he must have served as an apprentice boy his bundle was so well done up. It was a splendid thing to know the appropriate thing to say. You are to be congratulated on the get together spirit manifested here. When you get the employer and employes together you have accomplished something that will bear fruit as time goes on. If we meet together, and eat together, we make acquaintances that will help us get on together. As competitors and rivals we listen to the evil stories that come to us, but as we get nearer we realize they are men, and get a clearer realization that they are brothers working for the same ends. So they do a great amount of good by drawing us together and each one gets something and profits by it. The days of cut throat competition have gone by. These are the days of cooperation if we want to prosper. The spirit of cooperation will accomplish all things. We can learn a great lesson of cooperation from the bee. This same spirit is being brought more and more into business and you merchants and clerks are to be congratulated that that spirit is growing in this city. Just as long as you show that spirit of helpfulness this city will be known as the industrious city, and you will need no granite monuments to tell the fact. As soon as you forget that spirit you will dry up into a dry dock. Selfishness carries you away. Unselfishness of spirit is the one great element of success. If you work harmoniously during the coming Merchants Week then it will be a success, but the man who lacks faith will not realize much profit from it. We cannot do anything in business without faith, and we must also have enthusiasm. One booster is worth a dozen knockers. Get into line and get out is the spirit of the hour. He had no respect for the clerk that was continually talking against the firm that employed him. If you cannot say a good word for your firm for the Lord's sake get out. He hoped that the clerks would be loyal and say something for their employers. If your employer has faults speak about his good traits. Try and speak of his good qualities. If you do this you will find that life will flow along smoothly. Every man has his outs, but that is no reason why we should advertise it. Let us make the best of our opoprtunities and advantages and bye and bye we will succeed. It is the man that makes the most of the things in his power and forges ahead that wins. If the man sees what he is seeking he usually gets it. If you wish to succeed it will be best not to see the clock by which you stop work but by seeing the man who pays you your wages. When a merchant finds a man he can not reform the only thing to do is to fire him. If you feel that your employer is not as progressive as he should be, try and help him and in a little while you will find that your efforts have accomplished something. If he does not appreciate your work there will be someone else who will. One who does these things is laying the foundation for success. If during the coming Merchants' Week every man will do what he can to help on the work then it will be a magnificent success.

During his address ex-Mayor Carter told many stories the better to illustrate the points he wished to bring out and as he sat down at its conclusion the party arose as one man and cheered him to the echo.

At the suggestion of President Sheppard, a rising vote of thanks was given to the several speakers of the evening.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

Upon the bulletin boards both of the Main hall and the Children's room may be seen three very instructive cards sent by F. William Rane, State Forester of 6 Beacon street, Boston. These show respectively illustrations in color of all stages of the gipsy moth ,the browntail moth, and a species of European beetle which is being imported to assist in destroying the two former, and also a native beetle which is likely to be mistaken for the European one. Upon the reverse sides of the cards will be found text explaining the plates.

We wish all the school children in town could come to their room of the Public Library during the next two weeks and see the "Song of Hiawatha" illustrated by photographs taken by Rev. A. T. Kempton from the drama of Hiawatha performed by the Ojibway Indians at Desbarats, Ontario. Older people would certainly enjoy the beautiful photographs as well.

An Italian newspaper, "L'Illustrazione Popolare" is now received fornightly and the current number may be found upon the reading room tables. The other numbers may be borrowed for home use.

Attention is called to the change of hours to the summer schedule beginning the first of June, notice of which will be found in another column.

EXPULSION OF JEWS IS BEGUN AT KIEV

Attitude of Russian Officials Appears to Be Very Harsh

St. Petersburg, May 27.—The exodus of Jewish families from Kiev has begun. The total departures from that city up to last night were 300 prescribed families belonging exclusively to the poorest classes. The expulsion is attended with harrowing sights.

The evicted ones were veritable paupers, lacking means of sustenance. For the moment the Jewish families possessing some means were undisturbed. Sobbing women clinging to their little ones, and sad faced men were alike escorted outside the town limits and told to return to the places of their birth.

A different procedure is adopted toward the Jews who have some wealth. They, however, are put to great expense, being obliged to return to their native towns to secure new permits for a visit to Kiev on the grounds of urgent personal business. These permits are issued for limited terms and so require frequent renewal at the mercy of the police officials.

LIFTING LID ON ALASKA

Great Efforts Made to Keep the Sutherland Episode Secret

Washington, May 27.—The lid is slowly but surely being removed from the secret hearing before a sub-committee of the judiciary committee on the charges to prevent confirmation of the nominations of Herbert L. Faulkner of Newton, Mass., to be district attorney, and John Rustgard to be United States marshal of the Juneau district of Alaska.

This last is the position from which Daniel A. Sutherland, formerly of Salem, Mass., was summarily removed by President Taft on charges which have not yet been published, preferred by Governor Clark.

Great efforts have been made to keep the whole Sutherland episode secret and it has been strongly hinted by many acquainted with Alaskan affairs that if the charges of both sides should become known the administration would be treated to a scandal that would make the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy tamer than a prayer meeting.

FORCED TO BORROW MONEY

Chicago Has Millions, but It Is Unavailable For Corporate Purposes

Chicago, May 27.—With more than $19,000,000 in its vaults, the largest cash balance it ever had to its credit in a single day, Chicago is poverty-stricken and forced to lose money in order to get ready cash. Of the $19,101,650 on hand only a little more than $3,000,000 is available for corporate purposes, and in order to raise funds to carry on city affairs, City Comptroller Wilson opened bids on a bond issue for $500,000, for which the city offers to pay 4½ percent interest. On the $16,000,000 or more not available for general use, but which must be kept inactive in bank, the city receives 2 percent interest. The money not available is tied up in special funds, such as the traction fund, and must be kept intact for future use.

The bids opened yesterday were on an issue authorized last Monday by the city council. The highest bid for the entire issue was 99.07 percent of its par value.

SUBMARINE SINKS WITH ALL HER CREW

French Boat Rammed by Packet In English Channel

Dover, Eng., May 27.—Twenty-seven men were drowned in the English channel when a French submarine was struck by the packet steamer Pas de Calais. The passengers on the later were thrown into panic and the ship herself was so badly damaged that she had to put back to Calais.

The submarine was crushed and went down within a few moments while all the crew were caught like rats in a trap.

This is the sixth serious accident in the French submarine flotilla in five years. Fifteen men perished on Oct. 17, 1906, when the submarine Lutin went down after an explosion. In the other accidents no lives were lost.

Thursday's disaster is one of the worst in the history of the development of submarines. The fighting ship was scudding along partly submerged when the steamer crashed into her. According to the reports reaching here the submarine spun around for a moment and the the water began to pour through the big rent in her plates. Before a man could escape she had foundered in one of the deepest parts of the channel.

A NOISELESS FOURTH

Bay State Abolishes Old-Time Racket on Independence Day

Boston, May 27.—Governor Draper yesterday afternoon signed the quieter Fourth of July bill, which is to take effect June 1. This bill prohibits the sale of certain pistols and explosives and authorizes the making of regulations relative to fireworks and firecrackers.

The new law makes it illegal to have blank cartridges, toy pistols, toy guns or toy cannon that can be used to fire a blank cartridge; have any fireworks containing picric acid; have any firecracker exceeding two inches in length and three-quarters of an inch in diameter.

COMPLIMENT TO ARGENTINE

Her Naval Officers to Be Admitted to Uncle Sam's Squadron

Buenos Ayres, May 27.—News that the government of the United States has practically authorized the admission of twenty officers of the Argentine navy to the American squadron is favorably commented upon here and has produced an excellent impression in all circles.

The idea is to afford these officers the best possible opportunities of training themselves to take charge of the two magnificent battleships which are to be built in this country for their own government.

WITCH DOCTOR IN NEW YORK

Blue Ribbons and Yellow Powders Figure In Treatment

STRANGE STORIES OF VICTIMS

Were Induced to Part With Money to Have Devils Driven From Their Home—Wife's Nail Clippings Wrapped In $20 Bill a Charm to Secure Love of Husband—Queer Cure For Woman's Stomach Trouble

New York, May 27.—"Human credulity is remarkable. Now I can understand why they burned witches in olden times," said Magistrate Kernochan as he held Mrs. Carmelia Rubino in $500 bail for trial after hearing witnesses swear that she attracted $500 from a family under the pretense of effecting a cure of stomach trouble by tieing a blue ribbon around the left leg, rubbing a yellow powder on the affected parts, burning a rag to exorcise the devils responsible for the malady and having $95 put in a pan and secreted somewhere as a lure to get the devils out of the system.

By these alleged operations the Rubino woman is said by Mrs. Conchetta Spinella and the Buffano family of Jersey City, to have reaped a small gold harvest from them. The Buffano family declares the woman got $350 from them.

Mrs. Rubino was arrested on a charge of practising without a license preferred by the Medical Society of New York county. Detectives Travucci and Castagnino arrested Mrs. Rubino, who is 28, a midwife and lives at 30 Grand street.

It was about March 1 that Mrs. Buffano called upon Mrs. Rubino and asked to be treated for stomach trouble. She was treated after the approved Rubino method, she said, and paid $20. She showed so little reluctance in the matter of the $20 that two days later Mrs. Rubino called at the home of the Buffanos and said that the task before her was greater than she had anticipated, inasmuch as the house was full of devils.

The Buffanos pleaded with her to tell them how to exorcise the devils, and finally she consented to reveal her method. It was simple. The Buffanos were told to put $55 in a pan and cover the money with sand.

"Now I will take the money away and bury it in a vacant lot and the devils will follow it," Mrs. Rubino said, according to the witness. Then she took the pan of money and sand away with her.

But Mrs. Buffano's stomach trouble grew no better and she paid another visit to Mrs. Rubino, she said, who rubbed a yellow powder over Mrs. Buffano and tied a blue ribbon around the victim's left leg.

The witness declared that Mrs. Rubino told her that the eldest Buffano son would be arrested, charged with murder, unless Mrs. Rubino obtained $35 from some one. Then $60 was paid to save the six smaller Buffano children from a dread malady about to be visited upon them, and later Leonardo Buffano, the husband, was rubbed with the yellow powder at a cost of $20 to cure rheumatism.

The next day, Mrs. Buffano said, she was told that Mrs. Rubino had learned in some mysterious way that Buffano was about to desert the entire Buffano family, and some clippings from Mrs. Buffano's nails, wrapped in a $20 bill, were necessary to make perfect a charm to hold the husband. Nothing smaller than a twenty would do to hold the nail clippings. Later Buffano, according to the witness, paid $20 to insure his remaining faithful.

BURGLAR IS HURLED TO INSTANT DEATH

Woman Battles With Him Until He Falls Through Window

New York, May 27.—Louis Gratch, 25 years old, a burglar, was discovered by Mrs. Dora Gietman in her apartment on the third floor of a Delancey street house, and after beating the man until he backed against an open window with a low sill, was smashing him across the face with a rolling pin when he toppled to instant death on the concrete paving fifty feet below.

Gratch, who got into the house by climbing up the fire escape, was searching Gietman's clothing for money when Mrs. Gietman awoke suddenly and screamed. She leaped out of bed and seized the man. Enraged more than frightened, Mrs. Gietman pushed him into the kitchen, where she seized an iron spider and struck him over the head and shoulders with it.

The man broke away and made for the parlor window. Mrs. Gietman pursued him and seized him by the collar. She held him until a boy who boarded in the house, who had been aroused, ran up and shoved a rolling pin at her. With this she belabored Gratch furiously.

Two or three blows were effective, and as the man struggled in front of the window at the side of the yard she struck him across the jaw. With a scream he toppled headlong into the yard. Gratch had died of a broken neck, caused by the fall.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

"The Prosecutor," a virile, American drama of modern city life, by Franklyn Searight, dramatized from William Hamilton Osborn's widely-circulated novel, "The Red Mouse," will be the attraction at the Hollis Street theatre, Boston, during the supplementary season beginning Memorial Day, Monday, May 30. The play deals with the story of a young man who married for money, and who because of his sudden accession to fortune without any responsibilities, neglects his wife and starts on a career of dissipation. A murder occurs. Challoner is accused and afterwards convicted. His wife is loyal to him through it all and makes superhuman efforts to free him from the terrible charge. The prosecuting attorney, who is trying the case, accepts the wife's entire fortune to free her husband. The reason for his doing this makes one of the most interesting motives of the drama. The play contains many thrilling climaxes and presents a powerful arraignment of certain abuses in the municipal government of the large cities. Two of the principal characters are said to be modeled after the present leader of Tammany Hall and former District Attorney Jerome. Through all the scenes of strenuous political activity runs a charming love story that is far away from the ordinary, and there are many comedy scenes that are highly diverting. The new play, by reason of its subject matter, promises to create much talk, and in fact is likely to be a sensation. The Mayor of Boston, the District Attorney and other prominent city officials are expected to be present on the opening night.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

Monday, May 30th, the Aborn regime at the Boston Opera House will undergo a transformation, throwing aside the mantle of grand opera and taking up that of comic opera. Opening with a special Decoration Day matinee Monday, the Aborn Comic Opera Company will begin its summer run with Reginald De Koven's and Harry B. Smith's famous comic opera, "Robin Hood," one of the greatest of all compositions of its class, as the offering for their initial week. "Robin Hood," with its quaint and familiar characters, richly humorous libretto and delightfully tuneful score including such numbers of real musical worth as "O Promise Me," "The Brown October Ale," "The Jet Black Crow," "the Tinkers' Song," "The Armorer," Robin's serenade, Marian's forest song and many others, is a happy and appropriate selection for the inaugural week of the comic opera contingent under the same Aborn management that has given to Boston so many excellent presentations of heavier operas. A complete new oragnization will come to replace the grand opera singers, both chorus and principals. For the second week of the Aborn comic opera season, beginning June 6th, the American comic opera classic of the first week will be followed by another of equal merit of the English brand: Gilbert & Sullivan's "The Mikado," with many of the same clever artists in the cast. Other pieces of the same high grade will be announced for each week following so long as Boston music lovers continue to want this form of diversion.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Now that the legitimate housed have closed, we are getting the best of what they have been offering during the season at Keith's for half the money, and of all the shows we have ever seen how many have really had more than 20 minutes of real life and fire. Coming to Keith's you will see two great players, one of them no less than William H. Thompson, than whom there is no better character actor on the stage today. For years Mr. Thompson has been making annual visits to Europe and has brought back to this country some of the greatest successes abroad. Next week at Keith's he will be seen in what is said to be the best short play that has been put on in England for many years. It is called "The Pride of the Regiment," and Mr. Thompson has a part not unlike the one in which he previously appeared on this side of the water and attracted a vast amount of attention. The entire bill for the week has not been announced, some of the strongest features being held in reserve, but those already given are but an indication of what is to come. Montrell, the juggler, will make his first appearance here in what is said to be one of the greatest acts of the kind offered in recent years, and other features will be Reidy and Currier, singers and musicians; and Mullen and Correlli, two of the cleverest acrobatic clowns the stage has ever seen.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Charley's Aunt," which Mr. Craig is to produce at the Castle Square next week, is a play of wonderful runs. In London, in Australia, in America and even in many European countries it has amused the public for week after week and month after month without cessation, and it would be impossible to count the millions of people who have laughed and grown merry over its humors. Mr. Craig is putting it on at the Castle Square because he knows how much it pleases the public, and because he is sure it will be doubly welcome after an absence of several seasons. It is around the part of Lord Fancourt Babberly that the plot of "Charley's Aunt" revolves, and who is better fitted than Donald Meek for that role? In it he will repeat the success he made as Aunt Abby in "The Country Fair" a few weeks ago. Mary Young will play the heroine, and the cast will include, as usual, the John Craig Stock Company. The play at the Castle Square during the week of June 6th will be William Gillett's famous war drama, "Held by the Enemy," Howell Hansel having been especially engaged by Mr. Craig for the role of Colonel Prescott. John Craig and W. P. Carleton will also appear in leading roles. The final play of Mr. Craig's season will be "Mrs. Temple's Telegram." On Monday evening, June

20th, begins the summer opera season at the Castle Square, opening with that Gilbert and Sullivan masterpiece, "The Mikado."

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

The genuine interest which the patrons of Miss Charlotte Hunt and her Stock Company are taking in her season at the Majestic theatre became evident in the past fortnight, when the charming little actress received, almost as though by preconcerted effort, a large number of letters requesting that she produce as soon as possible Alexander Dumas' famous emotional drama "Camille." As it is Miss Hunt's aim to place on the stage such plays as her audiences desire she decided to make "Camille" the third production of her season and she will appear in it for one week beginning next Monday, May 30. "Camille" is one of the most famous plays ever produced on the English-speaking stage. It has formed a part of the repertory of the distinguished players of every generation since Matilda Heron first produced it in the late fifties. It gives the actress who essays the leading part an opportunity to display rare skill and the proper interpretation of the role calls for a knowledge of the technique of the stage which is now possessed by few of our emotional actresses. The gowns of Miss Hunt and the feminine contingent of the company will be of the latest mode and will make a sartorial display of the late summer styles for the current season.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

The summer attraction at the Shubert theatre which is so well designated as a "summer hummer" seems to have settled down into a very successful warm weather run at this newest and most beautiful of Boston's playhouses which is so well suited to giving comfort and joyous entertainment to large audiences during the May and June weeks. The attraction in question is Jos. E. Howard in "The Goddess of Liberty" with Stella Tracey and an exceptionally capable company. The third week begins Monday, May 30, with an extra holiday matinee Memorial Day. There is not a little attractiveness, especially for out of town patrons, in the fact that the summer scale of prices provides for every seat on the lower floor at 50 cents, and every seat in the balcony at 25 cents at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees, and are all reserved. New features are being constantly introduced and a second or third attendance at a performance of "The Goddess of Liberty" is sure to provide much new entertainment. Next week an addition to the cast will be the appearance of Toby Lyons in a leading comedy part. He will sing for the first time Mr. Howard's new song, written especially for him, "Mr. Who's who."

PUTS BLAME ON OTHERS

Coleman Says Keliher and Leonard Induced Him to Rob Bank

Boston, May 27.—George W. Coleman, the wrecker of the National City bank of Cambridge, related on the witness stand in the circuit court the story of how he was induced, he declared, by "Big Bill" Keliher and his friend, Jack Leonard, to steal money from the bank and hand it over to them to play a fake faro game in New York and Buffalo, and to keep on stealing until he "had taken about all there was in the bank."

Coleman testified that since his arrest and indictment he had been induced, with Miss Laura Atwood as an intermediary between him and Keliher, to visit the latter at his home in Winthrop three times, so that the trouble might be fixed up. Keliher on one of the trips said he could get Coleman $100,000, Coleman testified, but it must not be given back to the bank, as it would incriminate "Big Bill." Coleman was offered $10,000 right away.

Anti-Oral Betting Bill Passed

ANTIETAM AND FIVE FORKS

"I am told that your grandson, now in college ,is a particularly fine youngster," he added as if to give good measure in return for the colonel's liberal praises.

The colonel gravely admitted the truth of the rumor.

"How could he help being a fine lad," he said, "when he comes of such fine stock?"

The major was a little shocked by this frank admission. His brow showed it. He came of good stock himself, but he made no boast of it. His boy was a clever boy, too, and he had two fine grandsons, but he never thought of advertising their superiority over other less gifted children.

"It's what a man does an' not who his grandfather is that counts up here in the No'th," he sharply said.

The colonel looked at him meditatively. He seemed much interested in his features.

"Pardon me, major," he said, "but were you at Chancellorsville?"

The major's face flamed. Chancellorsville was a sore place in his memory. The surprise and defeat of the federal forces had been to him a personal humiliation.

Did the Georgia colonel know this? Was his question intended as an insult?

He looked into the mild blue eyes. "I was at Chancellorsville," he snapped. "We were whipped, sir—surprised, betrayed ,stampeded. I admit it, sir."

"You don't have to admit it," said the colonel mildly. "I was there."

The major glared at him.

"You—you don't claim you saw me, do you ,sir?" he hoarsely demanded.

The colonel shook his head.

"There was such a right smart lot of dust an' confusion that I couldn't rightly make out much of anything," he said. "I couldn't even make out the man who clipped off a lock of my hair—an' maybe it was one of my own Georgians. There was a mighty lot of keerless shootin' goin' on."

The major's face still wore its unpleasant frown.

"Yes," he said, "I was at Chancellorsville," and he quickly added, "I was close by, too, when Stonewall Jackson was shot down."

The colonel turned quickly.

"I was near him when he fell," he cried. He drew his breath sharply. "He was my old commander. I—I helped to carry him to the rear. He knew me."

The man from Georgia stopped suddely and turned his face away. He seemed to have grown old suddenly.

"It was forty-six years ago," he murmured, "and yet the scene comes right back to me as vividly as if it were yesterday." He put his hand to his eyes. "He knew me," he softly murmured, "he knew me."

The major stirred uneasily.

"Stonewall was a good fighter all right," he said.

The colonel looked around suddenly. There was a steely glare in the blue eyes.

"He was a great general," he slowly said.

"He was a good fighter," repeated the major.

"He was a great general," said the colonel, and his face seemed to grow cold and hard.

The major hesitated a moment.

"He was a great general," he quickly said, and turned and strode away.

He listened for the sound of "Dixie" as he tramped along, but the colonel's whistle was stilled.

The next morning the major crossed the meadow as before and again the colonel was there at the fence awaiting him.

"Howdy?" the Georgia man cried while the major was still afar off.

"Mornin'," cried the colonel. "I want to make a personal explanation to you, sir. I spoke harshly yesterday. I was much wrought up at th' moment. I forgot myself, sir,. I hope you'll overlook it."

The major nodded.

"That's all right, colonel," he said. "I guess maybe I know how you felt. These old recallings are pretty hard on a man. An' I'm willing to admit that what you said 'bout Chancellorsville worked me up a good deal, too. Yes, sir. It seemed to me like a reflection on the bravery of the Union men, sir. It really did. Yes, sir. I'm sensitive about that. I'll admit we ran away, but it was because we were dazed—not because we were cowards. It was the surprise, the treachery—the suddenness of it all. I don't want you to say we were cowards, colonel,"

The colonel waved his hand deprecatingly.

"My no'thern friend," he said, "I have thrown no aspersion on your personal courage."

The major stubbornly came back at him.

"There was an insinuation in your allusion to the federal disaster that reflected on the courage of my comrades in arms," he said, with much dignity.

He had thought this speech out as he crossed the meadow. He was glad to notice that it seemed to impress the colonel.

"If there was in my words anything offensive, sir, I will withdraw it," he courteously remarked.

But the major shook his head. The major was a stubborn man.

"You may withdraw it," he said, "but the courage of my fellow soldiers remains clouded. That cloud must be removed.

The colonel looked at him mildly.

"An' how do you propose to remove it, sir?"

The major beckoned to the colonel and pointed to something that was lying on the ground in the fence corner.

"When I was on th' Gettysburg battlefield two years ago I found that shell," he said. "It looks like an old hand grenade, and I guess likely it was of home manufacture. Your people got pretty hard up for ammunition about that time an' there's no doubt that it came from your side, Do you recognize it?"

The colonel craned his neck.

"No, I don't," he said.

The major frowned.

"Well, sir, I toted that shell home from Gettsburg, and I toted it over here yesterday afternoon."

The colonel stared hard at the black ball.

"It looks mighty harmless lyin' thar," he said.

"Mebby tain't so harmless as it looks," remarked the major grimly. "That shell still holds its original load, sir. I have taken out the old fuse an put in a new one." He stared hard at the colonel.

"Go on," said the man from Georgia.

The major's wrinkled face took on an unusually solemn expression.

"I am going to prove the courage of the boys in blue, sir, by litin' that fuse."

The colonel opened his blue eyes a little wider.

"Such a test is not at all necessary, sir," he said in his mild way. "But if you insist let us make it a comparative test, sir—a test of the courage of the gray as well as the blue."

The major slowly nodded.

"Then you will remain?"

The colonel bowed.

"If you will permit me?"

The major drew forth a match and kneeling by the shell touched the flame to the fuse.

Then he arose and stepped back beside the colonel ,the old men leaning on the fence rail side by side.

A glorious spark ran down the fuse —whish! A puff of flame and white smoke streamed from the harmless sphere.

The major turned quickly.

"Colonel," he cried, "give me your hand. We are two foolish old men. Come over—let me help you. You're goin' up to th' house with me an' we'll drink th' health of all brave men in th' best cider you ever tasted. Come along."

And arm in arm the old soldiers went down the meadow pathway.—Boston Courier.

DRINKING IS NOT A SIN

But Even Moderate Use of Liquor Is Harmful, Says Dr. Eliot

Boston, May 27.—In his address before the annual meeting of the Unitarian Temperance society yesterday afternoon, Dr. Charles W. Eliot called the attention of his audiences to the following vital points. He said:

"It is wrong for any society to teach that drinking of alcohol is a sin. The moderate use of alcohol is not a sin, according to the New Testament. This society has never used such an argument, yet much can be said to show that the moderate use of alcohol is inexpedient.

"The real progress in the temperanace movement comes from the slow, steady movement, not from that movement which goes by leaps and bounds. The real progress is made by individual self-control, and further promoted by mechanical control.

"Society is divided into three classes, the abstainers, moderate drinkers and immoderate drinkers. The second class is the recruiting grounds for either one or the other.

"The progress of human society is in self control. No other control except self control has ever succeeded."

REBELS HOLD THEIR OWN

No Definite Results of Fighting In Vicinity of Bluefields

Bluefields, May 27.—The fighting outside Bluefields continues without definite results. The battle has waged without decided advantage to either side. General Mena of the insurgents is checking every move made by General Chavarria, who has directed his strength against Rama unsuccessfully.

The government troops landed from the Venus occupy a position on the coast, but have as yet made no definite movement.

The insurgents' strength in this city has been increased by the enlistment of 1000 volunteers.

Two years ago today Quincy had a 90 degree day.

Daniel Miller of Willett street is confined to his home with a severe attack of pneumonia.

Miss Orrie Barstow of Beach street is out of school with a severe case of measles.

Mrs. Alfred Jelinek of Botolph street has been called to Vermont by the sudden death of a relative.

The concert given by the pupils of Prof. Wrigley takes place tonight in Colonial hall.

The Signal Corps of Atlantic has been invited by the G. A. R. to participate in the Memorial Day exercises.

After Sunday night there will be no more evening services at the Memorial Congregational church until the winter schedule is again resumed.

About 1 P. M. there were heavy peals of thunder followed by a smart shower. Two blows were struck on the fire alarm.

Archbishop O'Connell has assigned Rev. Fr. Howland J. Harkins, a Quincy young man ordained to the priesthood last week, to St. Anges parish at Reading.

The familiar sight of Dr. Bruce's horse and buggy will be seen no more around Atlantic. The doctor has become the proud possessor of a new car.

Max Cutler while driving a horse and team on West street Thursday afternoon was quite badly scared when the horse ran away. The animal was guided into a thick clump of bushes to stop him.

Residents of Quincy had an exceptionally fine view of the comet Thursday evening. The sky was clear and the celestial visitor made its appearance in the southwestern sky early after sundown. It was not until about 8.30, however, that it was seen at its best.

MEMORIAL DAY IN SCHOOLS

Exercises at the High and the Woodward

Exercises appropriate to Memorial day were held this morning at the High school. Seated on the platform was Col. Charles H. Porter, headmaster James D. Howlett, also Mrs. Cora Carman, president of the Woman's Relief Corps and Mrs. Agnes Fletcher, another representative of the Corps. Clarence Fouche directed the music. After the school filed into the hall the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" was sung. Then followed the Austrian National Hymn "Land of greatness, home of glory."

The president of the Woman's Relief Corps, Mrs. Cora Carman, was then called upon to speak. Mrs. Agnes Fletcher told of an experience this morning of the desecration of the flag ,and recited "It was only a flag." Col. C. H. Porter was introduced and spoke on "The Veteran." At Mr. Howlett's suggestion the school rose as a tribute to the speakers and silent tribute to the dead. While still standing it sung the song "Tenting on the old Camp Ground." Much appaluse greeted the speakers. The exercises were closed by the singing of "Amrica" by all. Although the exercises were simple yet they were impressive.

Brief exercises commemorative of Memorial day were held at the Woodward Institute this morning. The program included a talk on Memorial day by Supt. Albert L. Barbour reading of a short poem by Miss Elizabeth Pattee, and singing of patriotic airs by the pupils.

Memorial day was observed at all the grammar schools of the city this afternoon and at some parents were entertained.

Butler; Vice President, Mrs. William Cummings; Secretary, Mrs. Walter Blake, Treasurer, Mrs. F. Anderson. Chairman of executive commitee, Mrs. Chase Pope, with an able corps of assistants. QUINCY 4, GROTON 3.

Groton school was the object of the High school ball team's trip out of town on Thursday and Quincy won, 4 to 2. This is the eighth win. The features of the game were the timely clouting of Allen and Bates, who were right there when hits were necessary; Mil Chapman hair raising stop of a liner while at least three feet from the ground, and the pitching of Rice, who struck out ten men and allowed only four hits. The playing of Hardwick, a Quincy boy, at third, was the feature for Groton.

OLD COLONY LEAGUE

Past Seasons Reviewed by Ledger Sporting Man

(ByRube.)

On next Monday morning, all over the Old Colony Baseball league circuit, the umpires will call out that familiar "play ball."

There is a world of meaning to that cry. It will cause at least fifty-four players to be on hand in new uniforms it will mean that all of the grounds wil l be cram jam full of enthusiastic lovers of the great pastime which, despite frequent arguments to the contrary, has no equal.

The Old Colony league started in 1908 with Stoughton, Randolph, St. Margarets of Brockton, Deweys of Weymouth, Rockland and Taunton as the clubs. During the first part of the season the Brockton team proved but a stepping stone for the others and they withdrew. The gap was filled by Somerville who completed the schedule, and Taunton won the pennant. After that successful season the directors decided to locate in a town or city where a rivalry would result among the other clubs. Quincy heard there was an opportunity to get in, and at once got busy. Ten game sports put up good cash and made their wishes known to the directors of the league. The rest is history for we all know Quincy was admitted.

The start of the 1909 season found all clubs very strong. Taunton, the pennant winners, were sure they would repeat, and "Bill" McCarthy was feared. At Stoughton "Happy" Hazelum was again at the helm promising all clubs warm battles; at Rockland, "Pop" Mahar of Harvard fame, was an unknown quantity; Quincy had "Sid" Patterson to guide the team; "Greg" Hoye stood pat at Randolph and "Foxy Tommy" Nash of the Deweys was as busy as a hen with chicks.

The start was made in a blaze of glory and all but the Deweys lost the opening games at home. In the afternoon Quincy broke over the traces by defeating Rockland 8 to 7 in ten innings. Among the faces on those teams were many who will start again this season.

The Deweys got going from the start and defeated Rockland, Randolph, Quincy and Taunton in the first four games and then Randolph beat them 5 to 3. Taunton and Randolph were going good but Quincy and Stoughton could not get their stride. Rockland looked bad taking only one game out of five.

Patterson got disgusted with his showing and threw up the manager's berth and George Gustin took the ribbons. The new manager's first move was to land a good pitcher and he got a dandy in Tommy Gilroy of Taunton who shut out Rockland by a score of 5 to 0. This game afterwards was played over, it being learned that Gilroy was the property of the Nashville, Tenn., club. This great victory put new life into everyone at Quincy and on the next Saturda y everyone went wild when the Granite speedsters took Stoughton's scalp. July 5 Quincy again landed two games and everyone was looking for the Quincyites to land the bunting as they were tie with the Deweys and Taunton for the top-notch position.

Rockland's luck had turned now and all eyes were in that direction for after the holiday it was learned that Martin, their pitcher, had pitched the Saturday game of July 3 and both on July 5, winning two out of the three. Everyone was asking who is this Martin? Stoughton released "Tokey" Thornhill to Mahar's outfit, and the change did the player a wor'd of good, for he hit the ball in great shape. We were all watching the teams, and noticed Rockland and the Deweys getting ready for a spurt. Quincy's showing was but a flash of the pan and Randolph was again in the cellar.

The following week found some great battles, Rockland taking Quincy's measure in a 14 inning game by a score of 2 to 1. Randolph and Taunton likewise went fifteen innings the big end falling to Taunton by 2 to 1 score. Randolph had bad luck all through the season, losing some star men by way of injuries and their signing with faster company. "Happy" Hazelum was getting frantic and a change was made in the box at Stoughton.

All eyes were directed on the Rockland-Dewey game at Rockland July 24, and in a 10 inning contest Rockland was the victor. Martin was coming fast and every game would put his list of strikouts into big figures. He was feared. On this same day Quincy was tie for second place with the Deweys while Taunton was on top. On July 31 Quincy gave Taunton an awful trouncing, winning 12 to 5, thereby tieing with the Taunton for first place. During the remainder of the schedule Rockland and Dewey crept up; Quincy kept going up and down like a thermometer outside of a bake-shop window while the remaining clubs were slowly being counted out.

Labor day brought two victories for the Deweys one being over Rockland, and it was thought by all that the Deweys would land the bunting. There were two postponed games. Quincy had a forfeited game with Rockland to play over and Stoughton had to meet the Deweys in a game postponed on account of rain. The results were a victory for Rockland and a defeat for Dewey. This tied up the teams. Managers Mahar of Rockland and Nash of the Deweys decided to play the tie off at Brockton, and a pretty game resulted in a Dewey victory by a score of 1 to 0, 12 innings.

During the past winter, Taunton had dropped out and Lincoln has been admitted. The outlook for a good season in all of the towns and cities is extremely bright , and the directors may rest assured that the fans appreciate their efforts during the past winter and now expect to see a winning team in each town.

The salary limit has been placed at $50, and any offence will result in a fine of $15, to the club breaking the rule, and in addition give the losing team, in each case, the credit for winning the game.

President Jerome F. Murphy has a fine staff of umpires in Charles F. King of American league fame; Cody with the league last season and Smith of Littleton, a man who everyone speaks well of. They will appear at the following places Memorial day:

MORNING.
Cody at Stoughton.
Smith at Quincy.
King at Rockland.
AFTERNOON.
King at Weymouth.
Cody at Randolph.
Smith at Lincoln.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

Martin, the Tufts college pitcher, who twirled for the Rockland team of the Old Colony league last season, has signed with the Philadelphia American league team ,and will don the uniform of that club at the close of the college season. It was expected that Martin would be boxman for Rockland again this year, and it will now be necessary to secure a successor as the constitution will no t allow a man under contract to a club in organized baseball to play in the Old Colony circuit.

* * *

The Saturday matinee of the Old Colony Driving club will be omitted this week but an attractive card is being arranged for an inter-club meet with the Dorchester Driving club, Memorial day.

* * *

I have received from President Murphy of the Old Colony league his selections of umpires for the coming season. They are Charles F. King of Brockton formerly of the American League and American Association; William F. Cody of Boston, the star "ump" last season; and Peter Smith of Littleton, who comes highly recommended by every player who ever saw him perform. President Murphy tried all last season to land this man but he would not leave the Lincoln club.

LOCAL SPORTS.

The finals of the Women's golf tournament on the Wollaston links is being played to day with Mrs. E. C. Wheeler, Jr., (nee Adams) and Miss F. C. Osgood as rivals for the championship. Both have won the honor twice in years past.

There are 54 entries for the inter-club meet of the Old Colony and Dorchester driving clubs to be held on Memorial day. These are divided among fifteen classes. Bud Posey is matched against Cascade and Charley King; India Panis against Carl C.; and Willie John against Ginger.

The Eastern Yacht club at Marblehead opened its doors Thursday for the summer season with Supt. Sheehan in charge. This year the sailor "Dons" of Spain will be the guests of the club for several weeks in August and a few may reach Marblehead in July. Some of the members of the club met the visitors 12 years ago in mortal combat.

The Makarias will christen their new uniforms which they bought from the Champion Rochester team of the Eastern League, when they line up against the strong Baracas of Boston at Merrymount park, Saturday at 3.30 P. M. On the morning of Memorial day they will meet the Medford Athletics at Merrymount park, and in the afternoon will play at Winthrop.

The final for the championship of the Woman's golf association of Boston was played on the links of the Wollaston Golf club this morning between Miss F. C. Osgood of the Country club and Mrs. E. C. Wheeler, Jr., (nee Adams) of the Wollaston club and was won by Miss Osgood 3 to 2. Miss Osgood and Mrs. Wheeler have been opponents in several good matches, and the contest this morning was close. Each of the two players has won the title twice, Mrs. Wheeler in 1902 and again in 1909 and Miss Osgood in 1903 and 1904. Today's win therefore makes the third time she has won the title.

CITY OF QUINCY WILL FIGHT

Orders from War Department to Widen Draw in Hingham Bridge

Question Will Be Taken to the Supreme Court

An order has been received by the Mayor from the War department at Washington ,ordering the City of Quincy to proceed to widen the draw of the Hingham bridge to a width of not less than fifty feet, said work to be completed by June 30, 1911. Similar orders have also been served on the towns of Hingham and Weymouth. At the hearing some weeks ago on the matter, the City of Quincy and the two towns appeared and objected to bearing the expense of the widening of the bridge. The government, however, has apparently overruled the objections and ordered the draw widened. To complete the work means the expenditure of quite a large sum of money and the city must bear its proportionate part of the expense thereof.

The city will not comply with the order without a contest and City Solicitor McAnarney said this morning that the question would probably be taken before the United States Supreme court.

The widening of the draw in said bridge is largely for the benefit of the war department to allow its vessels to get to the arsenal now building at Hingham and the contention of the towns interested is that the government should stand the whole or a large part of the expense.

COURT HOUSE LOCATION.

There seems to be a difference of opinions about the location suggested for the new court house. Many think the Faxon lot on Coddington street good on account of its outlook over the Library grounds. On the other hand, mothers and fathers object to the location next to a public school, believing it bad educationally and morally for children to see the patrol unloading criminals there every day. The Tisdale lot on Washington street seems to be growing in favor. It is directly opposite Foster street and opens up well; is large enough for green plots and driveways around the building and is easy of access from steam or trolley cars for those attending probate court sessions as well as for local business. The map of this location shown at the Board of Trade rooms has called forth favorable comment. It is hoped every one will think over the various locations suggested now and not after it is too late, as the County Commissioners will soon come to some decision.

"Would you send a man who uses profanity to Congress?"

"I dunno," answered Farmer Corntossel. "Of course I don't approve of profanity, but I'd want him to be able to hold his own in any of them arguments that come up."—Washington Star.

PROF. WRIGLEY'S RECITAL

All the Numbers of Program Finely Executed

At Colonial hall last night the pupils of Professor Frank Wrigley gave a recital, assisted by the choirmen of Christ church, St. Chrysostoms church and Emmanuel church, Miss Beryl Arnold, contralto and Miss Pearl Carlton, 'cellist.

The entire program was composed of classical selections which were finely rendered. Worthy of first mention was Mrs. Alice Curtis, who played wonderfully a composition by Bartlett. She was loudly applauded, and as an encore played a composition by Mr. Wrigley's father, "The Birds of the Forest," which was also very fine.

Frank Hayward Wright executed in beautiful style. He is a graduate of the English College of Music, having received his diploma at the age of thirteen years. A C. Peverly sang "If I were a Rose," in a fine tenor voice.

Others worthy of especial mention are Mildred Robertson, Norbert McAnarney, Violet Smith, Irene Langhorne, Cyril Wrigley, Eva Diack, Mildred Smith, Mildred Diack, Anna Dinegan, Carmel Brogan and Margaret Durand. The singers and 'cellist also performed in fine style, the glees sung by the choirmen having fine effect.

The recital was participated in by the youngest pupils of Mr. Wrigley who has a very large number of pupils. Those who did not play occupied the first four rows in the hall with their parents. The ushers were also pupils. They were Mrs. James Forrest, Misses Avis Antill, Ethel Randall and Minnie Barnicoat.

Every selection was finely played and every player showed the care and efficiency of his teacher in his work. The recital was very successful and Professor Wrigley is very much pleased.

SUMMER TIME TABLE.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. will put in effect June 5th, new summer schedule of trains. Trains between Braintree and Boston are insured a close adherence to schedule time as the South Shore, Whitman and Brockton sections will be run independently of each other, instead of being consolidated at South Braintree and Braintree as in the past. The operation of these independent trains gives the stations between Braintree and Boston improved express trains, and it is believed the service will be greatly benefited. Trains now leave Boston at 27 and 43 minutes past the hour. On the new card they will leave at 15 and 45 minutes past the hour, giving a better division of the time, and half-hourly service. During busy hours in the morning and afternoon, trains will be run which are best suited to the commuters. There will be some changes from the schedule now in effect. Folders with full information wil lbe in the hands of agents by Thursday, June 2.

MEMORIAL DAY IN SCHOOLS

Presentations at Quincy and John Hancock

Appropriate exercises were held yesterday in the different schools for Memorial day. The children all taking their parts in a very pleasing manner. Great credit should be given the teachers of the different schools for the patriotism which is shown.

AT JOHN HANCOCK.

At the John Hancock school eleven framed flag day cards were presented to the school in the name of Corps 103 by Mrs. Adelaide McGrath, patriotic instructor of W. R. C.; Mrs. Emma Marnock read a poem written by a past president of the corps; Mrs. Cora Carman, president of Corps, made a few pleasing remarks and told the children to always be loyal to our flag never let it touch the ground or be ill used in anyway. Comrade Dutton of Post 88 was called upon for remarks and said he was very much pleased with the exercises, and glad to see so much patriotism throughout the city. The "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by all present and the flag salute given. Mrs. Fletcher spoke of seeing the flag ill used in the morning and showed the flag to the children. Also spoke a few lines on same.

AT CODDINGTON.

A program of eighteen numbers was given at the Coddington school yesterday afternoon in observance of Memorial day. It included the singing of patriotic songs, recitations address by Henry Chubbuck of the Grand Army, flag salute, etc. Headmaster Bentley told "Why we celebrate Memorial day.

AT QUINCY SCHOOL.

A large delegation from W. R. C. attended the Memorial day exercises at the Quincy school Atlantic. On account of the unpleasant weather the exercises were held in the upper hall of the school. The children sung patriotic songs and gave their recitations in a very pleasing manner. The patriotism shown in this school even with the smallest children is very great.

Comrade Packard of Post 88 spoke of the G. A. R. and of our flag, and received a hearty applause. Mrs. Adelaide McGrath, Pat. Inst. was introduced by Mr. Sampson the principal of the school, and presented in the name of Paul J. Revere, W. R. C., 103, a beautiful bunting flag, six feet long by four feet wide. Mr. Sampson thanked Mrs. McGrath for the school.

As the weather had cleared away the children marched out on the sidewalk in front of the school, and the guests gathered in the school walks and on the steps. The flag was now hoited to the top of the flag staff by Comrade Dutton of Post 88. When the flag was unfurled a shower of pink and white clover blossoms fell on those beneath the flag. The children sang "America" and gave the flag salute. Mrs. Kate Blaisdell gave a reading on the flag and Mrs. Agnes Fletcher read a poem which she had written for the occasion. She spoke of desecration of the flag which she had witnessed in the morning.

FIREWORKS A BIG CARD

At Quincy's Grand Fourth of July Celebration

The Fourth of July Executive Committee met again last night at the rooms of the Board of Trade to consider plans for the celebration.

George F. Elcock, chairman of the Fireworks Committee, has with the assistance of various manufacturers, compiled a program of fireworks of the utmost splendor, numbering eighty pieces, which will consume more than two hours to display. This program is accompanied by a very complete specification, explaining the effect of each piece, and no such display will be seen even in Boston if all goes well.

The Finance Committee reports that it's work will start June 6, and that it is confident of success to a promising degree. There was a tone of confidence as regards the appropriation by the city of $2,000 toward the celebration, not one of the committee feeling any doubt of its being put through.

Contrary to reports and rumors the publicity committee desire to inform the public that no differences exist at the present time between the labor organizations of the city and the parade committee and the labor unions have through their representatives agreed to do all in their power to make the parade a success.

No differences existing it is hoped that every one will take hold to make the parade a success and a credit to Quincy. All clubs, societies, organizations, merchants and individuals are urged to co-operate and be represented. Liberal prizes are to be offered and contributions which will be acknowledged in the paper are solicited, these may be sent to R. F. Claflin, care of National Granite Bank, or may be given to the members of the Finance committee who will see that same are acknowledged. Liberal contributions are urged.

The parade will start at 7.30 o'clock A. M. sharp, and it is up to the citizens to make it a parade that Quincy and her citizens will be proud of

This parade will consist of:

Chief Marshal and Staff.

Div. 1—Military.

Div. 2—Societies, clubs, organizations, etc.

Div. 3—Antiques and horribles.

Div. 4—Floats, individual features, decorated automobiles, etc.

Div. 5—Civic and trades.

The Argentine and United States military and naval officers stationed in our city as well as prominent military officers of Boston are to be invited to parade on the staff, and it is hoped that our citizens will show these visitors the courtesy they are entitled to.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

HOLIDAY NOTICE,

The Daily Ledger office will be closed all day Monday—Memorial Day—no paper being issued. Tuesday's Ledger will report the observance of the day by the Grand Army, and all the local sports.

The people who have been laying up something for a rainy day will have to lay up a little more. A 10 per cent increase in the price of rubber-boots and shoes is announced.

We shudder to think what the increased cost of living probably has done to the watermelon outlook since last summer.

Although there have been many words of remonstrance that brand new white straw hat continues to appear each day and it is now thought that a petition will have to be resorted to, to restrain its owner as pleasant weather is wanted for Merchants' week. But then what matter to him if the wind does blow co(a)l and (ic)y.

It is not surprising that the G. A. R. men prefer to march on Memorial day instead of riding in carriages or automobiles. It is the grandest day of the whole year for them and as one veteran puts it "I shall insist on marching just as long as I possibly can as I feel it shows more respect for my comrades." It is a pleasure to be able to march and in the marching youth is renewed. When night comes there will be many tired veterans but with it a sense of loyality a duty well and cheerfully performed.

Having to remove all that gravel and rubbish on Granite street at the corner of Whitwell should teach our city a lesson not only in civic pride but in trespassing. The plot in question was a bit of low green meadow not unattractive to look upon but a sorry sight after its use as a dump. The question naturally arises by what right does the city enter upon private land and make it a nuisance? Has the city any more right than an individual to trespass without the consent of the owner? This using of vacant land as a dumping ground is deplorable. If there is a vacant plot all the people in its vicinity seem to think it is their privilege to clean up their cellars or yards and make it a dump. Are you guilty ?Have you such a place in your neighborhood? Such places should not exist.

At the dedication of the Rice Pavilion at the Quincy City Hospital on Wednesday afternoon the trustees, the doctors, and Mayor Shea paid just tribute to a woman, who as Mr. Fred B. Rice truly said, has made our Hospital her life work. For twenty years Miss Blanche Thayer, superintendent, has devoted herself to the work, and it is undoubtedly to her that through all these years the Hospital has so fully filled its mission in the community. The Quincy Hospital is known not alone in this city but far beyond its borders for its efficiency, its well trained nurses, and perfectly kept buildings. The superintendent requiring, in fact insisting on perfect equipment, giving personal attention to even the smallest detail. When it is known that she has had to be housekeeper, nurse, bookkeeper and superintendent all combined the results are marvelous. It is more than most hospitals expect or can find in one person and it speaks well for Miss Thayer's competency. She has been sought by other hospitals but so far Quincy has been able to retain her services. Fortunately for Quincy it is apparently more love of service with Miss Thayer than larger salary. In starting with the Hospital at its beginning it has come to mean home to Miss Thayer and all that a home stands for. Perhaps it is this atmosphere that makes our Hospital take the high position it does in our city.

TAFT RESENTS HOUSE ATTACK

Stirred by Colloquy Over His Traveling Expenses

"SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY"

President Says He Is Deeply Grieved Over That Particular Phase of Discussion—Tells Why He Grants Requests to Visit People In Their Their Homes—Tawney Agrees That Frequent Trips Are a Duty of President

Washington, May 28.—President Taft sent to Chairman Tawney of the house committee on appropriations a letter expressing deep resentment at the criticisms passed by Democrats in the house debate upon the traveling expenses of the president. The president says he is especially distressed by "suggested reflection on southern hospitality." The president's letter says:

"I am deeply grieved over the phase which the discussion of the appropriation for the traveling expenses of the president took yesterday. I think it is a legitimate argument in favor of such an appropriation that congressmen and many others press the acceptance of invitations to visit their sections and districts, because the urgency of such requests indicates the opinion on the part of the people that one of the duties of the president is to visit the people in their homes. But the intimation or suggestion that the acceptance by congressmen of the president's invitation to travel on the train with him in their respective districts or states was a reason why they should not vote their free opinions on the question of such an appropriation is to me a most painful one.

"In traveling upon the train they were not receiving my hospitality; they were making a little more elaborate the cordial welcome which they as representatives of their district wished to give.

"The feature of the discussion yesterday which was especially distressing to me was a suggested reflection on southern hospitality. The intimation that somewhere in the south board was charged has no foundation in fact, and I never heard it intimated until I saw it in this morning's paper.

"In all my experience, and I have enjoyed the hospitality of many sections and countries of the world, I never had a more cordial, generous, open and lavish welcome than I had in the southern states during my trip, and the slightest hint that puts me in the attitude of a critic of that hospitality gives me great pain.

"I am going to take the liberty of making this letter to you public."

Following the receipt of President Taft's letter, Tawney issued a long statement saying that the colloquy on the floor between himself and southern members regarding "southern hospitality" had been distorted. Tawney's statement follows in part:

"It is ridiculous to suppose that I would reflect privately, much less publicly, upon the floor of the house of representatives upon southern hospitality, which is proverbial and than which—as I can say from experience—there is nothing more cordial or more generous to be imagined.

"But I agree with the statement of President Taft in his letter to me that it is a legitimate argument in favor such an appropriation that congressmen and many others press the acceptance of invitations to visit their sections and districts, because the urgency of such requests indicates the opinion on the part of the people that one of the duties of the president is to visit the people in their homes.'

"I had spoken of a man who would ask the president to be his guest, entertain him, and then criticize him for making the visit, as 'in effect charging him board.' Mr. Bartlett of Georgia, evidently misunderstanding my remarks, then demanded to know of a single instance where the president was charged board, and Representative Hamer of Idaho, before I could reply, injected the facetious comment that he thought it was in Georgia.

"Of course, the president was never charged for his board when the guest of anyone in Georgia or anywhere else, and no such allegation was made."

WORLD'S BIG GUN RECORD

Sixteen Shots and Sixteen Bullseyes by the North Carolina

Norfolk, May 28.— A new world's record for big gun shooting, which incidentally emphasizes the superiority of United States naval marksmanship, has just been made by the new battleship South Carolina.

With her forward turret twelve-inch guns she made sixteen "bullseyes" target hits out of sixteen shots in four minutes and fifty-one seconds.

MT. WOLLASTON BEAUTIFUL.

Preparations for Memorial day in the Mt. Wollaston cemetery under the direction of Superintendent Nicols are now almost entirely completed, the lots and lawns having been mowed and flower beds cared for until the entire cemetery has taken on a very verdant and prosperous air. Along the Sea street front of the cemetery on either side of the main entrance the ground has been graded to a level surface sloping toward the street and away from the gate, sodded and seeded newly, and taken care of in the best possible manner, so that it may present as fine apeparance as possible in a short time. When this is developed the approach to the cemetery will be very finely laid out.

The gravel paths and roads that traverse the entire grounds are also being prepared. They are carefully scraped free of pebbles and weeds and will be kept so, thus adding neatness to the general tone. Near Greenleaf street new plots are being opened the grounds which are now arranged stones and gravel and sodded. During the summer certain portions of the ground which are now arranged in terraces will be graded and the stones in the section raised or lowered to conform to the grade. This will give a more regular and tranquil aspect to the landscape. All of the trees are in fine condition and some of maples are of great size.

Of the memorials about the cemetery it is hard to choose the most beautiful ,there being so many styles and kinds of granite.

There are massive rough stones just as from the quarry and great smooth, square, columned works resembling nothing so much as herwn tabernacles and simple little stones, great shafts and small of every description. There is one monument of three broken columns close together representing three brothers who died in war, a shaft to those who died of disease and wounds gotten in battles and in prison and numerous isolated graves with a flag to mark the burial place of some soldier of the Civil or Spanish wars. The G. A. R. lot is kept finely with its cannon guarding the comrades who are gone.

There are several new monuments and in the near future several more will be set ,all of them beautifully, carved stones.

Superintendent Nichols has proved a capable man to handle so large an area and give each section its share of care, and every part of the cemetery shows the effects of his attention and ability. He is now doing everything in his power to make his work as complete as possible for May 30.

STILL HAS BANK ACCOUNT

Coleman Thinks It Belongs to Him, Though He Robbed Bank

Boston, May 28.—George W. Coleman, who, while bookkeeper, stole $210,000 from the National City bank of Cambridge, yesterday told Judge Hale and the jury in the federal court that he still had money on deposit in Cambridge banks.

Coleman's definition of what constituted his own money was illuminated by Attorney Coakley in a cross examination. Coleman explained that although at times he was debtor to the bank for sums ranging into the hundreds of thousands, what balance remained to his own account was called by him his own.

Coleman told of hilarious times in the most expensive New York resorts with Miss Mamie Hightower, who is accredited with being his sweetheart.

SYSTEMS UNFAIR TO PRODUCERS

Probers Declare Against the Leasing of Milk Cars

REPORTS ARE SUBMITTED

Contractors Getting Fair Profit on Amount of Money Invested, While Producers Are Not—Inspection In Boston Stated to Be Manifestly Inefficient—Bill to Repeal Four Statutes Is Favored

Boston, May 28.—Recommendations that the present system of leases of milk cars to large contractors on the part of the railroads should be ended and that the railroads should carry milk just as all other freight, were the principal findings made last night in a report by the joint special committee which has been investigating the production, transportation and marketing of milk.

The committee, in a lengthy report, finds that the five large Boston contractors, if they act together, can exercise a monopoly over the price paid to the producers and the prices charged to the consumers.

It finds that the milk inspection in the city of Boston is manifestly inefficient and that this work cannot be satisfactorily done by the health officials of the cities and towns and should be vested in a central authority.

The contractors, according to the report, are getting a fair profit on the amount of money that they have invested; the producers, at the prsent prices paid, are not, states the report, as the farmer is unable to make a profit upon less than 4 cents a quart for his milk.

The railroads are scored for the manner in which they lease cars to the contractors, and the lack of facilities for the producer to ship his milk in competition and under the same conditions is termed intolerable.

The committee finds that the contractors, upon their own admission, try to restrict the supply by lowering the price to producers during the summer months.

The committee favors a bill now before the legislature to repeal four statutes covering the conduct of the milk business in the state, which would give to the railroad commission power over the freight of milk.

The committee believes that an investigation should be made of the "flat rate system" of New York and that it should be accepted in this state if it proves to be for the interest of the public.

Whether there is active competition among the contractors for markets the committee finds to be problematical, but it does find the system of leasing cars to contractors tends to restrain competition.

The majority report is signed by Messrs. Mellen, Warren, Gardner, Avery and Bean. The minority reports, submitted by Messrs. Tinkham and Meaney, agree generally with the majority report, but both believe that the present system of inspection is so inefficient and ineffective that there should be immediate corrective legislation.

Senator Meaney, in addition, believes that immediate steps should be taken to correct the present inequalities of the transportation system. He favors the "open car" and the "flat rate."

The committee was appointed May 5 and began to hold public hearings at which all sides of the present milk controversy were heard, the producers, the contractors and the consumers.

Besides the hearings, the plants of the contractors have been visited and observation has been made of the method of handling milk.

MINISTER TO MOROCCO

Taft's Secretary Resigns and Is Given a Diplomatic Post

Washington, May 28.—Fred W. Carpenter, secretary to President Taft, resigned and was at once nominated by the president to be United States minister to Morocco. The following statement was made at the White House:

"The appointment of Mr. Carpenter to Morocco was made on his own application to be relieved of duties as secretary to the president, which have been so heavy as to threaten his health. The president thought that as Morocco has a delightful climate, the change of duty which this would afford was wise, and consented to Mr. Carpenter's resignation of his present position. Mr. Dodge, who is the present minister to Morocco, is to be transferred to another post. No person has been selected yet to succeed Mr. Carpenter."

His trip as planned will cover about 2000 miles.

John Emery, the Montello leather dealer, has opened his summer home, Lovett farm, for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Emery and daughter Elsie will spend most of the summer here, but Miss Helen Emery is to pass the month of June at Alton Bay, N. H. Mr. Emery has been acquiring real estate in this vicinity for several years and now owns considerable land which will probably eventually be sold for house lots. One section, that lying south of the Lovett farm, on Washington street has been surveyed for a residential district.

Pipes are being laid by the water department for the extension of the water service on Plymouth street. It is to be hoped that the improvement in the water service, promised some time ago by the water board, will not be much longer delayed. At the present time this section of the town is likely to be left without water at any moment for indefinite periods of time. Aside from the inconvenience to householders, there is danger from lack of fire- protection, owing to constant low pressure and intermittent complete lack of water. At times suction backwards is caused so that some of the houses are shaken and the noise is unendurable.

ROBERT KOCH

Well Known Bacteriologist Succumbs to Heart Disease

DEATH OF DR. KOCH

He Gained Great Renown as Discoverer of Tuberculosis Germs

Baden Baden, May 28.—Professor Robert Koch, the famous bacteriologist, died here from a disease of the heart. He was born at Klausthal, Hanover, Dec. 11, 1843.

Professor Koch became distinguished as an investigator of microorgansms, but probably gained most renown as the discoverer of the bacilli of tuberculosis and cholera.

Professor Koch received decorations from the German and French governments for his discoveries. He visited the United States in 1908 and attended the international tuberculosis conference in Philadelphia.

DRAPER FULFILLS CAMPAIGN PLEDGE

Eight-Hour Bill Is Vetoed by Governor of Massachusetts

Boston, May 28.—Governor Draper has fulfilled his promise made in last fall's campaign that he would veto the "eight-hour" bill if the same measure reached him as that which the legislature of 1909 sent to him.

The veto message was received in the house yesterday. The governor states that the bill is practically the same as last year's, and that his reasons for withholding his approval are substantially those which governed his action last year.

"I think," he says, "that this bill would be a disadvantage to, and an unfortunate interference with, many contractors and business men of this commonwealth; would provide employment for men in other states which would be taken away from men in our own state; and thus make it harder for our business men and laboring men to be successful in their various classes of employment."

HOMESTEAD BILL PASSES

Will Assist Poorer Classes In Bay State to Own Their Homes

Boston, May 28.—The purchase of land and homes for mechanics, factory hands and laborers in the various cities and towns in which manufactures are carried on in this state is provided for in the homestead bill passed in the house by a vote of 113 to 72. The bill provides that a home may be secured by the purchase of $100 in bonds and the payment of $15 a month rent, the price of the bonds to go towards paying for the house.

Homes are to be purchased in the suburbs of manufacturing cities. The commonwealth will issue bonds of $100,000 for the purchase of land.

A homestead commission is appointed which has the right to take land by eminent domain. Houses can be bought at the cost of construction plus 5 percent.

MADE ROPES FROM SHEETS

Lunatics Remove Grating From Asylum Window and Escape

Foxboro, Mass., May 28.—Two insane patients have escaped from the state hospital at Foxboro. They are Eugene Fish, aged 35, of Attleboro, and Patrick Riley, aged 25, of Boston.

The escape was made by means of a rope formed from strips of sheets, by means of which they lowered themselves from the window, first removing the gratings on the window with a spoon which was secreted in the clothing of one of them.

Flight Stopped by Bad Motor

TWO STUDENTS EXPELLED

University Authorities Used Electrical Device In Probing of Thefts

Providence, May 28.—Electrical devices secreted in the pockets of clothing of students, hanging in the lockers of the gymnasium, for the purpose of detecting the persons committing the numerous thefts of watches, jewelry and money, led to discoveries that have resulted in the expulsion of two young students from Brown university.

Electric wires that were connected with a light bulb in the office of Fred Marvel, supervisor of the gymnasium, were placed in the pockets of the clothing of students that contained wallets and jewelry. In two instances the wires were wrapped around the wallet in such a way that the mere touching of it lighted the bulb in the office of Marvel.

Mr. Marvel was sitting at his desk when the light flashed up and remained burning. Instantly he went to the gymnasium, where he caught the two culprits. After a thorough investigation they were expelled from the university.

LOVE'S DREAM SHATTERED

Prelate's Daughter Who Married a Japanese Now Want Divorce

Reno, Nev., May 28.—Mrs. Gunjiro Aoki, formerly Miss Gladys Emery, daughter of Archdeacon Emery of Corte Madera, Cal., is living in Carson City, establishing her six months' residence, preliminary to seeking a divorce from her husband.

Archdeacon Emery, the woman's father, left Carson City after arranging details for his daughter's residence. A baby 10 months old and Mrs. Emery, mother of Mrs. Aoki, complete the little family group.

Gunjiro Aoki was a Japanese servant employed in the Emery house. Gladys was the archdeacon's only daughter. The Jap and the white girl fell in love and a stormy scene and scandal came when they announced that they must marry in order to be truly happy.

Public indignation arose and opposition was such that the couple, failing to secure a clergyman to perform the ceremony in California, fled to Seattle, where they were united.

SHIPPERS PROTEST INCREASE IN RATES

Action Under Sherman Anti-Trust Act Is Demanded

Washington, May 28.—Charging that the railroads west of Chicago and St. Louis have entered into conspiracy to increase their rates before the enactment of the administration bill, a committee representing thousands of shippers in Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Minnesota will appear before Attorney General Wickersham and formally demand that the government enjoin the railroads from enforcing the rates and institute proceedings under the Sherman anti-trust law.

This is the first formal action taken by shippers to protest against the action of railroads throughout the country in raising rates in anticipation of adverse railroad legislation. The delegation from the west are prepared to launch a campaign against what they declare to be unjust rates. Their first appeal will be to the attorney general.

SUES HOSPITAL FOR $5000

Negro Nurse Was Refused Admittance to Pittsfield Institution

Pittsfield, Mass., May 28.—Claiming she has been discriminated against because of her color, Sarah O. Henderson, a negress, has filed a claim of $5000 against Hillcrest Surgical hospital of this city.

Some time ago she answered a prospectus of the hospital relative to a post-graduate course for trained nurses and was accepted. She gave her nationality as American and made no mention of her negro blood.

When she arrived in this city, she says she was refused admittance to the hospital. She has retained an attorney.

Dr. Richardson, in charge of the hospital, stated that, had the woman stated her color, her application would have been turned down, as neither of the local hospitals enrolls negro woman for nurses.

TESTS NOT MET BY BALLINGER

Secretary Not Fit For Office, Declares Brandeis

HAS PRAISE FOR GLAVIS

Refers to Him as "Ideal Public Servant" and Says His Loyalty to American People Was Higher Than That Which He Owed Ballinger—Tells of Secretary's Connection With "Special Interests"

Washington, May 28.—In summing up the case of the so-called "prosecution" before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating commission, Louis D. Brandeis, counsel for L. R. Glavis, declared that it had been conclusively established that Secretary Ballinger is not a man "so zealously devoted to the interests of the common people, so vigilant and resolute in resisting the insidious aggressions of the special interests that he may be safely relied upon to carry forward the broad policy of conservation of our national resources. That he is subject to far severer criticism we firmly believe," added Brandeis.

Mr. Brandeis referred to Glavis as the "ideal public servant" and to Gifford Pinchot as " a man of character so high as to be even above the suspicion of self-seeking." He vigorously defended the action of Stenographer Frederick M. Kerby in making public confidential information of the interior department bearing on the preparation of the Lawler memorandum and said: "To criticize Kerby for this act involves a total misconception of the nature of our government."

The direct and ultimate issue, Brandeis said, requiring decision from the committee was, "Is the department of the interior in safe hands? Have the conduct and the associations of Ballinger been such, are his character and his conceptions such that he may be safely continued as a trustee of our vast public domain?"

That Ballinger does not meet the required tests, Brandeis maintained, had been conclusively established, and if this were true, the department of the interior should be under other guidance. Brandeis continued by giving a chronological resume of the Alaska coal land situation and Glavis' connection with it. He pointed out that the Cunningham claimants are Ballinger's personal and political friends and that they are powerful and influential.

"Was it a coincidence," he asked, "that the investigation by Special Agent Jones in the summer of 1907 was stopped shortly after Ballinger went to Seattle after the making of the agreement between the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate and the Cunningham claimants?"

Mr. Brandeis then took up Ballinger's action in acting as counsel for the Cunningham claimants after he ceased to be commissioner and reviewed the evidence in that respect showing that Ballinger, after having handled the claims as commissioner, felt no hesitancy in representing the claimants as counsel, yet when he became secretary of the interior, "he felt barred from representing the people because as he had stated he had 'incidentally acted for the Cunningham claimants.'"

Mr. Brandeis then turned his attention to the charge of insubordination against Glavis because he had gone over the head of his superior, in taking the case to the attorney general and afterward to the president when he saw that the interests of the public were about to be placed in jeopardy. He said there was a higher loyalty than the loyalty which he owed Ballinger. It was a loyalty to the American people. The same was true of Kerby.

USED FORK ON FATHER

Worcester Police Are Looking For Vicious Thirteen-Year-Old Boy

Worcester, Mass., May 28.—A 13-year-old boy is being sought by the police, charged with attempting to stab his father to death. He is Richard Carron, son of Elias B. Carron.

The case was reported to the police after the father's wounds had been dressed at the city hospital. The father said that the boy was noisy and he ordered him to bed.

During the night Richard arose, and taking a large fork from the kitchen, entered his father's room, crying: "I'll kill you!" He then stabbed at his father, but in the darkness his aim was uncertain, and the most serious wound was inflicted on the father's shoulder.

The King's Surgeon

Story of an Escape From the Guillotine During the French Revolution.

By MOLLIE K. WETHERELL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

One evening—it was the latter part of the eighteenth century—a carriage stopped at the door of an inn midway between Versailles and Paris. A gentleman whose dress and manner denoted that he was of some importance alighted, entered the inn, where the landlord stood obsequiously rubbing his hands, and ordered a supper. While it was being prepared the landlord was hopping about, now running into the kitchen to hurry up the cook and now returning to the gentleman to assure him that he would not have long to wait.

Meanwhile the gentleman went out on to the piazza for the purpose of stretching his legs during his halt. He found there something that interested him—a boy about sixteen years old, pale and emaciated, sitting in an invalid chair. The gentleman approached him and began to question him.

"You do not seem well. What is your trouble?"

"My right leg is drawn up, and I cannot straighten it. My back, too, is getting crooked."

"How long since this trouble came upon you?"

"Since a year ago when the young Marquis of Treville kicked me."

The gentleman's brow lowered. At that moment supper was announced, and he went into the dining room.

"Who is the boy outside with hip disease and spine curvature?" he asked of the landlord, who waited on him.

"He is my son, seigneur."

"He has a fine head and an intellectual face. It is a pity that he should suffer thus. He would if relieved make a good man."

"It was that little villain Treville."

"If you will send him to me at Paris I will see if I cannot straighten his leg and prevent the further curvature of his spine. I am the king's surgeon."

"If you will do that, M. le Docteur, we will all bless you, but I fear I have not so much money as you will expect."

"There will be no money to pay. I am going direct to Paris, and if you like I will take your boy with me in my carriage. He will travel more comfortably and be less liable to injury than if he is carried in one of your country wagons."

When the doctor was driving away, beside him, made comfortable with pillows and rugs, sat Jean Demaurier. That night he was placed in a hospital, and the next morning Dr. Du Faur began a course of treatment.

During the next dozen or fifteen years the American colonists had thrown off the kingly yoke and become an independent people with a government of their own. The French, who for centuries had been bled by their kings and their nobles, ground down to the very earth, encouraged by the Americans' example, had begun to turn upon their oppressors. One day a mob marched by the inn where Dr. Du Faur had stopped for supper, going to Versailles to bring the king to Paris. Jean Demaurier had forgiven the young noble who had kicked him, but he had not forgotten that so great was the power of the aristocrats that he had not dared resent his treatment. He had thrown himself into the cause of the revolution, and when the people marched by his farm he joined them. Then when they came back with the king in his carriage Jean continued on with them to Paris, where he became one of the minor leaders.

Then began that reign of terror based on a determination on the part of a people who had suffered oppression for centuries to wipe their oppressors from the face of the earth. In the Place de la Revolution they sat up a machine for carrying out their work. The prisons were filled with aristocrats, consisting of nobles and their sympathizers, and whenever the doors opened out poured a crowd who were to be eliminated by the guillotine from the problem of French politics.

Dr. Du Faur was not noble, but his wife was or had been, for he was a widower, and his daughter had married the young Count Destelles at the breaking out of the revolution. The doctor, having been the royal surgeon, was deemed of more importance than the other two and was arrested among the first. The arrest of his daughter and his son-in-law soon followed.

One morning the doctor was brought up before the citizen judge of his arrondissement for what was called a trial. The doctor saw a man apparently not yet thirty sitting behind a pine table who was to be his judge. The man looked at the doctor, and it was evident that some commotion was going on within the former's brain.

And well there might. The judge whose duty it was to find the prisoner guilty and send him to the guillotine was none other than Jean Demaurier, whom the doctor had found a cripple and made a strong man. Demaurier was a trifle bent and walked with a slight limp, but he was a very different man from what he would have been had it not been for the efforts of the surgeon. The judge gave one look at the man who had been sent to him that he might sign his death warrant, then, lowering his eyes to a sheet of paper before him, began to question him and take down his answers. For his own life he dare not favor his benefactor.

"Your name?" he asked.

"Alphonse Du Faur."

"Occupation?"

"Surgeon."

"I believe it is you who have kept the tyrant Louis Capet and his family from the grave where they should have laid long ago."

"I was the king's physician."

Those standing about scowled and expected that the next words would be "Take him to the guillotine!"

"And do you think," continued the judge, "that you who have kept alive this oppressor of the people should die the same death as other aristocrats?"

The doctor did not answer the question.

"Take him to the temporary prison in the Rue Veau Grand. I wish to consult the committee to learn if it is their pleasure that this man, who has been closer than any other in the confidence of the tyrant, shall die an ordinary death. He should be burned."

These words were spoken with all the bitterness the citizen judge could throw into them. Not one present suspected that his intention was to save Dr. Du Faur from the guillotine that morning and to place him where he might get access to him with a view to saving him altogether. The doctor was taken to the building mentioned, and another prisoner was brought up for condemnation.

The next morning Citizen Demaurier drove up in a cart to the prison where the doctor was confined and presented an order for him signed by the committee. The doctor was placed in the cart, and Demaurier, telling the officials that he needed no guard for the prisoner, being himself well armed, drove away. Pursuing his way down the street, he soon reached the river bank and the outskirts of Paris. Then he stopped and said to his prisoner:

"You do not know me, M. le Docteur?"

"You are the citizen judge."

"More than that. I am Jean Demaurier."

"And who is Jean Demaurier?"

"Have you done so many kindnesses as to forget those you have benefited? Do you not remember stopping for supper on your way from Versailles at an inn one evening fifteen years ago? There you found a boy who had been crippled by a noble. You took him to Paris and made quite a respectable figure of him. See, I scarcely limp."

He got down from the cart and walked back and forth.

"And you are that boy?" exclaimed the doctor.

"I am."

"What are you going to do with me?"

"Take you in my carriage—this cart—to the inn from which you took me to Paris in your carriage and not only save your back and your leg, but especially your neck. I shall hide you there as long as necessary and then run you over the border."

"You are very kind, but I do not care to leave my daughter and my son-in-law here to die."

"Where are they?"

"In the conciergerie, I believe."

"Very well; I shall see what I can do for them. I am thoroughly trusted, being known as the man who was crippled by a noble. I will take you to my home, return and possibly may bring those you love with me."

"But will I not be missed and you be charged with setting me free?"

"I think not. They have so many heads to chop off that the moment a prisoner disappears he is saved. If I am asked about you I will tell them you have been tortured and executed in private. Now lie down in the cart, and I will drive on."

Jean, before reaching his home, where his load was likely to be seen by his neighbors, stopped beside a field where there was grain in sheaf and put enough over his burden to conceal him, then drove on and turned in at his farm by a lane leading to the barn.

The doctor remained concealed in the loft of Demaurier's barn for a week. Meanwhile Demaurier was in Paris, endeavoring to find the Count and Countess Destailles. They had become separated, and Demaurier spent considerable time discovering where they were. Then after much difficulty he succeeded in getting possession of them. This he accomplished by bribing their jailer, and on pretense of removing them to another prison he took them to his inn, but this time the journey was accomplished at the dead of night. The meeting between the doctor and his daughter and her husband at midnight in the loft of a barn, though they could only distinguish one another by their voices, was indescribably happy.

The next morning Jean Demaurier put the three refugees in a deep farm wagon, in the bottom of which he had bored breathing holes, and covered them to the depth of several feet with grain. Then, opening his barn, he drove out and into the road, soon after turning into another leading northward. On that road he jogged with his load till evening, when he relieved the refugees from their uncomfortable position, and they slept in a wood. They dare not take any other conveyance, fearing to be recognized, so the next day they kept to their cart, traveling as grain, and at last crossed the border. There they knelt and, locked in one another's arms, gave thanks to heaven.

Jean returned to Paris. He was eventually guillotined, but, strangely enough, not for assisting in the escape of the doctor and his family. His fall was on account of one of those changes wherein one faction came up to dominate another.

THREE SUGAR MEN ADMIT THEIR GUILT

Motion For Dismissal of Remaining Indictments Denied

New York, May 28.—Harry W. Walker, Gene M. Voelker and James F. Halligan pleaded guilty in the sugar frauds trial. The three men were co-defendants with Charles R. Heike, secretary-treasurer of the American Sugar Refinery. Walker was former assistant superintendent of docks at Williamsburg and the other two were checkers.

After the introduction of letters of some of the correspondents of Charles R. Heike, the prosecution announced that it rested its case. Judge Martin announced that he would pass sentence on Walker, Voelker and Halligan later.

Motions for the dismissal of indictments against the three remaining defendants, Heike, Garbracht and Bendernagel, were made by their counsel and denied by Martin.

New York, May 28.—"Jim Jeffries is going to have a hard time in his fight with Jack Johnson. He has been out of the ring a long time and you must not forget that no man has been out as long as he has and has 'come back.' And, remember, history always repeats itself."

This was the opinion John L. Sullivan, the ex-champion, expressed when he returned from his honeymoon trip abroad and landed from the liner Mauretania. After a tour of Ireland and England lasting five weeks he looked in the pink of condition.

The question whether the School Committee will invite competition in the submitting of plans for the new school building at Montclair or whether it will select some one architect will be settled at the meeting of the committee next week. It is pointed out that the best architects are members of an association which does not permit them to submit plans in competition.

You don't seem to like Miss Gabbie, Mrs. Malaprop," remarked Mrs. Browne. "Why is it?"

"I detest her," replied Mrs. Malaprop, "because she nothing but a scandal mongrel and everybody who knows her will collaborate that statement."—Philadelphia Press.

OLD COLONY LINE-UP

How the Teams Will Play in Opening Games

The Daily Ledger has received late information from all the teams which will make-up the Old Colony League which opens the season on Monday.

DEWEYS AT WEYMOUTH.

The champion Deweys wil lopen the season at Stoughton where they promise to draw first blood. "Tommy" Nash has rounded up a speedy outfit to again capture the flag and it is safe to say the Deweys will be in the race from the start. In the afternoon the Deweys clash on their own links with the Rockland nine and a big opening has been arranged. A large flag pole has been erected in centre field from which the new pennant will be unfurled. A band has been engaged to furnish music and all that remains to complete the big day is a Dewey victory. Dobbin the hero of that memorable 12 inning windup will twirl this season; Giroux, the heady backstop will again catch and captain the team; "Wes" Ganzel a son of Charlie Ganzel of big league fame is following in his father's footsteps and playing a fine game at first base; at second "Joe" Reilly ,a Brockton boy will be seen; Reynolds a young chap from Danvers will hold down the short field position and either Orcutt of last season's outfit or Coose, a Braintree boy who played with the champion North Eastons in the Trolley league, will play the hot corner. In the outfield Rudderham of last season's team; Bates of South Weymouth who played with Brown university and Loud, who played two years ago with Taunton, comprise a speedy trio. In summing up the Deweys it is safe to say they will bear watching.

QUINCY.

During the past winter the directors of the Quincy club have been very busy. They have given dances, theatricals and other entertainments which have put them on good footing. John B. Bjorkland of Dorchester has been elected manager ,and "Brodie," as he is called, has a great group of artists to get under way with. Randolph will open the season at Quincy and all eyes will be directed in the direction of Quincy to see the big crowd that turns out to the opener. Simpson, a star with Reading last year will pitch; John Murray will again be back of the bat, and the infield will be composed of Briggs Fraser of Boston, Lynch of the Deweys last year and the popular Lonergan. The outfield will consist of Duggan, a Quincy boy, Bjorkland and Gunn, a star who was with New Orleans last year. Bjorkland promises the fans all over the circuit good games and his showing will be watched with much interest.

ROCKLAND.

The Rockland club will be very strong again this season, despite losing the services of their star slab artists, Martin who has gone to the Philadelphia Americans. D. M. O'Brien the owner of the club that fell short for the bunting has purchased Hartsuff park where the games are played and they will be in tip-top condition when Lincoln appears there on the holiday morning. "Pop" Mahan will again handle the team and has secured a strong nine. Vargus and Drake ,both local men, will do the pitching; Fred Smith a Quincy lad will again catch; Kaine with the Deweys last year will play first base; Wilder a star performer who has tried out in the N. E. league will cover the middle sack, and Hamilton of Brown and Thornhill, both with the team last year, will again appear at short and third. Hart, Mahar and Mansfield will again do the outfield work and if the pitchers hold their own Rockland will surely make the road rocky.

RANDOLPH.

With the opening of the baseball season so close at hand Randolph seems able to go out and upset some of the clubs in the league. "Greg" Haye has again taken the manager's berth.

The players he will bank on for a good showing are "Andy" O'Connor, Ford and Callahan pitchers; Shaughnessy catcher; Shaw will again cover first, and at second "Huck" Lyons, with the Deweys at one time, will be seen. Brennan at short and O'Connell at third comprise the infield. In the outfield, Dam. Henry of Tufts college ,and Willard of Thayer Academy, will turn in the star catches.

Reviewing the Randolph roster it is safe to say they will make a good showing at Quincy on the morning of the holiday.

STOUGHTON.

Stoughton ,the home of President Jerome F. Murphy, a great favorite all over the circuit ,is wide awake and reaching after star diamond artists. During the winter a change has been made in the management and instead of the erratic "Happy" Hazelum on the bench we will see R. E. Bigney a man who the Stoughton club expect to open the eyes of the fans everywhere. Graham and Hynes will twirl; Dunbar will again do the catching; first base will be held down by McGovern of South Boston; second base will be taken care of by Meloney; at short the balls will be scooped by "Tom" Greive ,the veteran Stoughton player and at third Coffey will again be the man in charge. The outfield will be in charge of Donovan, Reynolds and either Murphy or Stacko. With such a strong aggregation the Deweys will do well to land a victory when they appear there for the curtain raiser. Stoughton play Randolph in the afternoon at Randolph and these rivals promise to make the fur fly.

LINCOLN.

Last but not least ,by any means, comes the Lincoln club which have secured the franchise held by Taunton for the past two seasons. This club is a one man affair, William A. Blodgett, a dead game sport, being the man behind the check book if any thing falls through.

Mr. Blodgett appeared at one of the meetings at Brockton and asked for the franchise. He told his tale and impressed every director with his earnestness so that he was the unanimous choice to fill the vacancy. He has been hard at work getting a strong group together and the Lincoln club must not be under-estimated. The team Mr. Blodgett pins his faith in is as follows: Hicks and Eschelbach pitchers; Park, once with the Deweys, catcher; Barley 1 b; Murphy 2b; Ryan ss; Skilton or O'Connor 3b; Byrnes lf; Pond cf and Laughlin rf.

Last season Lincoln were classed as a bunch of "wooders" taking many a fall out of star boxmen, and Manager Blodgett figures this lineup much stronger than last year's which won twelve stranght ames. Lincoln opens the season at Rockland in the morning and appear at home in the afternoon with Quincy.

Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. baseball league opens today with Wollaston playing South Quincy and Atlantic playing Y. M. C. A. The league is composed of extension clubs and the main association.

In the afternoon the Intermediates play the Lynn Y. M. C. A. at Ward Two. The Intermediates recently gave a play and with the proceeds bought baseball suits.

Plans for the Sloyd and summer camp are nearly completed.

Mr. Clee, the boys' work director has forty tickets for the Harvard Cornell game, June 4.

BEAUTIFUL CUSTOM.

This afternoon at three o'clock members of the Woman's Relief Corps gathered on the Fore River bridge between Quincy Point and North Weymouth and strew flowers upon the waters in memory of the soldiers and sailors of the Civil war. The sentiment which conceived this custom is pictured on the cover of the Memorial Day number of the Youth's Companion. Columbia is there depicted scattering flowers on the sea in memory of her sons whose graves are in the unfathomed depths of ocean. The blossoms gleam against the dark blue of the sea and a squadron at anchor in the distance fires a salute to the nation's lost sailors.

THE OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY

Veterans of Both Wars Have Warm Place in Hearts of Quincy People

Many Services and Increasing Interest in the Day

Although the weather bureau promised fair weather for Memorial day, the morning did not look any too promising for the Grand Army. The air was a little cool and threatening and it was showery in the morning. The program of the day was carried out as outlined in the general orders issued by Commander Phillips and everything moved with army like precision.

Promptly at 7 o'clock the command reported at headquarters in full uniform when details were dispatched to the outlying cemeteries to see that the graves of heroes gone before were properly marked and decorated. A detail also proceeded to the National Sailors Home where services were held.

At 9.15 the command formed on Hancock street in front of headquarters, and at 9.20 moved in the following order over Hancock and School streets to the junction of School and Franklin streets where barges were taken for West Quincy.

Quincy Fife and Drum Corps.
Spanish War Veterans.
Drum Corps.
Sons of Veterans.
Officer of the Day,
Warren Dunbar.
Finnish Band.
Paul Revere Post, G. A. R.

AT WEST QUINCY

Arriving at the junction of Copeland and Crescent streets, the command alighted from the barge, and the line was reformed, and a march taken to the Hall cemetery. Details decorated the graves of comrades who are buried here, and then the command formed about the Willard Monument, where exercises were held. These consisted of remarks by Commander Phillips and brief remarks and prayer by Rev. C. L. Paddock, pastor of the Universalist church, who was the chaplain of the day. The exercises closed with three volleys by the color guard.

From the Hall cemetery the command proceeded to St. Mary's cemetery, where the graves of comrades were decorated. They then formed in the main drive where services were conducted by Rev. Henry T. Grady, pastor of St. Mary's church.

While this was in progress the members of John A. Boyd camp Spanish War Veterans with a detail from the 5th regiment visited the grave of John A. Boyd for whom the camp was named, as well as the graves of other of their comrades buried in this cemetery. They then formed in the main drive where exercises were held. These were conducted by Rev. Henry T. Grady, and included a brief address by Mayor Shea.

His Honor spoke briefly telling why we were assembled together on Memorial day, and the day was one that should be devoted to the memory of those brave men who did so much for their country. That the comrades who remain with us should not be forgotten and that on the morrow when we again take up the cares and responsibilities of life may we be better men by reason of the inspiration we get from Memorial day. He also paid a glowing tribute to the memory of John A. Boyd, for whom the camp was named.

COLLATION AT NOON

The duty at West Quincy performed the line was reformed and a march taken to the junction of Copeland and Crescent streets, where the barges were taken for headquarters for the noon rest and lunch, which was served at Faxon Hall.

The members of the Women's Relief Corps, the Ladies Auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans, and the Ladies Auxiliary of the Spanish War Veterans provided bountifully and in great variety, and there was a surplus.

S. OF V. SERVICES

For the first time, the Col. A. B. Packard camp, Sons of Veterans, held services at the grave of Col. A. B. Packard in the old Hancock cemetery at noon on Memorial day. Prayer was offered by the chaplain, and ex-Councilman Elisha Packard, the Colonel's nephew, delivered an address of historical interest, telling of the Quincy's prompt response to the call of 1861. He said in part:

It is eminently proper that the remains of patriots, statesmen and soldiers should rest in these grounds used as a burial place by the native Indians.

In 1830, the youngest of eighteen children, Abner B. Packard, a pale thin youth of ten years, was sent to a military school in Central Massachusetts, where he soon regained his health and acquired the upright soldierly exemplary qualities that clung to him through life.

From a boy he was always a leader. In 1852 he was elected captain of the local club which favored Franklin Pierce for President of the United States. From this club was formed company H, 4th Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia. Shortly after, a vacancy occuring, he was advanced to the rank of colonel.

This regiment was present at the great State muster at Concord, Mass., also in the parade in the City of Boston in honor of the Prince of Wales, the late King of England. A position on his staff at that time gave me an unusual opportunity for observation.

Closely searching the War Records, we find that on Jan. 21, 1861, a regiment from the North part of the State offered their services to our Legislature when such measure would be desirable.

But more than a month previous, in one of the many interviews with Governor Andrew, in answer to the question: "Do you think the Democrats in your regiment will agree to leave the State?" the Colonel replied: "In the event of war there will be no parties but the Union. My men will follow me anywhere. They are all ready to leave now." This the Colonel repeated to the Selectmen, the Hon. Charles Francis Adams, and to the editor of the newspaper in our city.

When Sumpter fell, and the sudden call came, the Colonel was walking up South street, Boston. Taking possession of a passing vehicle, he drove to the State House. There he found the Governor, the adjutant general, and a large number of civilians. It was some time before any of the other commanding officers put in an appearance.

Gov. Andrew said to him: "Notify all your men as soon as possible, except Hingham. I have already sent a messenger there. I want my townsmen first in the field." As a matter of fact, how ever, owing to the refusal of their captain to order them out, Co. I was the last to arrive.

All that day and night men rode throughout the 15 towns comprising the military district. It is needless to tell you that when the alarm bell on our old Stone church rung out there was nothing slow about the Quincy men. And I notice two or three of the surviving Minute Men before me now.

The regiment left the following day by Fall River with sealed orders, to be opened at sea, where they found they were bound for Virginia. Arriving at night in Hampton Roads, the grey walls of Fort Monroe loomed up in the distance. Imagine the anxious sleepless men waiting until the dawn, when to their great joy they saw the Stars and Stripes run up the flagstaff.

The men in the Fort were equally disturbed at the sight of this unexpected craft before them. Soon a signal from the Fort:

"What ship is that?"

"One thousand Massachusetts Militia for your relief."

The arrival was just in time, as a large force were gathering for its capture, and it was well known that many traitors were in this little garrison.

Listen to what Governor Letcher, of Virginia, said in a speech in Richmond three days before: "Munroe is on Virginia soil. It is the strongest Fortress in the world, and more important than the Capitol itself. It is the key of the South. Its walls are 35 feet thick, and a mile and a half round. It covers 65 acres of land, and is garrisoned by less than 200 men, most of whom sympathize with our cause. Whoever has possession of it wins this war."

Now, Son of Veterans, in this cemetery, rich in historic graves, are numerous inscriptions and epitaphs placed there by their descendants or Historical societies. I am personally responsible for the words on this tablet: "First of our citizens to respond to the call for "troops in 1861." And by that, I mean not necessarily Quincy or Massachusetts, but of the whole country.

The 4th Regiment was first to assemble in Boston, first to leave the State from Fall River, first to land on Rebel soil, and by the death of Francis L. Souther, the first to lose a man in battle.

Colonel Packard was of a sympathetic religious nature, the soul of honor, somewhat reticent in the presence of strangers, but generous and cordial to his friends and associates.

Sons of Veterans, I realize how unfitted I am to address you, but it seems highly proper that we should gather here at this time for this service, and you must remember that in a very short time the last Civil War veterans will be called hence, leaving you the heritage of Memorial Day.

The services closed with a salute and taps.

AFTERNOON PROGRAM.

The afternoon was cloudy and threatening but no rain fell until after 6 o'clock. The crowd which assembled in City Square to see the afternoon parade, and later attended the services at Mt. Wollaston cemetery was very large as usual. The procession formed on Hancock street in front of headquarters in the following order:

SAILOR DEAD REMEMBERED

Flowers Cast Upon Waters at Ebb Tide

Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps and Gertrude A. Boyd auxiliary to the Spanish War Veterans held patriotic services for the sailor dead at the Quincy Point bridge Saturday afternoon. The exercises of the Women's relief corps were under the direction of Mrs. Cora Carmen, the president and opened with prayer by Mrs. Eliza A. Penniman. Mrs. Kate A. Blaisdell recited a patriotic poem, after which flowers were cast upon the water. A delegation from the Washington school sang "Nearer My God to Thee," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "America."

After the Relief Corps services, Mrs. Bertha Weixler president of Gertrude A. Boyd auxiliary conducted services, and flowers were thrown upon the water and carried out to sea on the ebb tide. As she scattered the flowers the members of the auxiliary sang "Lead kindly light" and "Shall we meet beyond the River."

PERENNIAL REMEMBRANCE

Subject Rev. C. H. Raupach's Address to Veterans

A Memorial service in honor of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R. and kindred organizations of Quincy, was held at the Hall Place M. E. church, Sunday evening. At promptly 7.15 the Post accompanied by the United Spanish War Veterans, the Sons of Veterans, the Women's Relief Corps and the Auxiliaries to the Spanish War Veterans and the Sons of Veterans marched into the church while the audience stood.

The services opened with the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers" by the congregation. The Scripture lesson was taken from the 66th Psalm, the first to the fourteenth verses, and was followed by an anthem by the choir, "Stand up, stand up for Jesus." After prayer the choir responded with "Now pray we for our Country." Following the notices and offering, the choir sang "The Bugle Call."

Miss Cassie Thayer introduced "Tenting on the old camp ground" and gave a brief history of its origin, after which the choir, with Miss Olive Grant as soloist, rendered the piece in a touching manner.

Before beginning his address the pastor, Rev. Carl H. Raupach said, "There were many reasons why we desired your presence tonight and one is, because of the inspiration to patriotism your presence will afford us. I think I appreciate at least two things tonight. One is, that you have already enjoyed a full and interesting service in another church today, and the second is that the morrow holds in store for you arduous duties, and doubtless a long address would weary you, hence I shall try, if I can possibly be temperate, to cut short my part in this service.

But I have chosen a subject and a text of Scripture and one compliments the other. In thinking of this service this subject came to me, "Perennial Remembrance," and the only text that seemed to fit the subject were the words of the Master as recording in John 14-11, "For the very work's sake." Many tim"es we have referred

QUINCY GAME.

(By Rube)

The Old Colony baseball league season opened in Quincy, Memorial day morning with a victory for the home club by a score of 4 to 3.

Randolph presented a strong lineup with Dam on the mound, while Simpson, a Reading star, was the slab artist for Quincy. At 10.45 Umpire Smith called play in the face of threatening weather, which was undoubtedly responsible for keeping the attendance down.

Randolph crossed the plate in the third, Simpson forcing in a run by giving a base on balls with full bases. Quincy tied in sixth on Lynch's two bagger and Bjorkland's fine crack to left. In the eighth Quincy went after Dam with a venegance. Murray the first batter singled; Lynch flied; Lonergan reached first when Dam fumbled his bunt; Bjorkland singled to centre scoring Murray and Lonergan scored when Henry threw wild on the throw in. Bjorkland scored the third run of the inning as Dam uncorked a wild pitch.

In the ninth Randolph looked dangerous coming to bat in the rain. Donahar singled; Shaw flied; Henry

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Glad to note that the Kaiser did not kiss the Colonel, after all.

The colonel is not in the new census. However, the colonel is a census all by himself.

In those cities where there has been an unsatisfactory count of noses, tongues are beginning to be very much in evidence.

Rubber is now worth almost half as much as silver, pound for pound. Here is a chance for a more elastic currency.

Someone says Mr. Alfred Austin's latest poems "might be worse." We are not sure of that. Our idea is that if it were different at all, it surely would be better.

This new Ohio law requiring the nomination of Congressmen by direct vote will put some of the political wire pullers out of business. Ohio has most too many, anyway.

The commission on the high cost of living says the cause is to much gold in the country. Of course, then, gold will have to be abolished, or we must continue to pay high prices.

DRIFT OF OPINION

Several contemporaries are discussing the value of various forms of city advertising. Here and there one takes issue against the plan of electric lighting and of general devices calculated to call attention to a municipality. Yet we all know that when we go into a strange city there is nothing that takes hold upon us so strongly as the light and life and businesslike briskness that it may exhibit. Two minutes after people have left a train you will hear them praising a clean, lively looking town, and you will also hear them criticising and laughing at a town that is of the Sleepy Hollow variety, or that has a tumbledown, slipshod appearance in its streets. A city on dress parade is l ekia human being attired in good clothes—first impressions are bound to be favorable; and the first impressions of a carelessly dressed citizen, needing a shave and clean linen, are not favorable unless the nature of his business precludes the wearing of reasonably decent attire. So with a city; let there be handsome and modern buildings, and good stores, and handsomely decorated windows and street at night alight with electricity and looking as though the people had something to do other than to slumber, and people like the place, speak well of it, and like to visit. It is worth while to have a city "dressed up" just as often as it can afford to be.—Brockton Enterprise.

—Rev. Bruce Brown, pastor of Dean Avenue Christian church of Spokane, scored the hit of his life at the Mothers' Day exercises under the direction of the Young Women's Christian association on May 8, when he said among other things in the course of his addres to the young women: "For the maligned and mistreated tribe of mothers-in-law I want to speak a good word today. Almost every mother must some time in her life become a mother-in-law, and it will not be easy for you to have your boy put another woman first in his life. I lay upon the conscience of the many young women before me that they never become jealous of the love that their sweethearts give to their mothers. It is one of the tragedies of life for a woman, who has guided every step of her boy, to see him place another first in his affection. Some day you may taste the bitterness of that cup. So you should love your mother-in-law as you would be beloved."

CAMP MOUNT PLEASANT

An Ideal One to Restore Health to Patients

Camp Mt. Pleasant, the new tuberculosis camp, was formally opened Saturday afternoon when there was a public inspection of this ideal camp. Although showery, upwards of one hundred ladies and gentlemen were present. The camp consists of a main administration building in which are located the office of the superintendent, physicians' office, lavatories, kitchen and main dining room. This building has a broad piazza on the front and two sides.

Aside from this there are three sleeping shacks, two of which are completed, and the third is in the process of erection. These shacks contain two beds each for permanent patients, and if necessary three beds can be used in each. These shacks were the gift of Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Mrs. Herbert Lawton, given in memory of Lucius Lawton, and the third or uncompleted shack is the gift of the Quincy Women's club.

The camp will be in charge of William Campbell, a trained nurse, and Mrs. Elizabeth Clinton, who will act as cook and matron. The camp will be occupied by patients this week, and it is understood that there are now five or six permanent patients who will come to the camp. In addition to the permanent patients there wil be a number of day patients who will receive their meals at the camp and instruction as to how to care for themselves.

The regular visiting staff of physicians are Dr. heahan, Dr. Sargent, Dr. McCauslin, Dr. Hardwick, Dr. Reardon and Dr. Lynch. Each physician will be on duty two months a year. In addition to the regular visiting staff, Dr. Johnson, Dr. Hunting and Dr. Welch will be the consulting staff. As the expense of maintaining the camp will be considerable, the society hope that those who have contributed will be prompt in paying their subscriptions.

The opening excerises Saturday were brief. Dr. Hunting presided, and in opening said he was sorry for the rain, as it had doubtless kept many from being present. It is said however that there was a silver lining to every cloud and he thought that saying would be true as to the camp. He then introduced Mayor Saca.

The Mayor after congratulating those having the camp in charge, said that two years ago a few got together and formed the society which had built this camp. The land had been given by Henry M. Faxon for five years. He was also to pay for the improvements and taxes. If at the end of that time it was decided to abandon the camp he wil refund the expense for the sewer and water service, etc., up to $500. It must be a source of gratification to all to know we have a camp of this kind. He had a feeling that the citizens at large would give generously to its support, and if it becomes successful there was no doubt in a few years the city will take and care for it as it should. It was now a matter of experiment.

Dr. Arthur T. Cabot, chairman of the State commission on the care and protection of tuberculosis, said that about two years ago he spoke before the Quincy Women's club and this was the result of the enthusiasm created at that meeting. This sort of work was what was needed but the problem is to be largely handled by the State. The State now has 1200 patients. Many patients can not or will not go away from their homes. Yet it was important that they should be kept where they will do no harm. It is that class that these camps can care for. The State was ready to take any overflow that were turned in their direction. These camps, however, have a great advantage over the State camps where the patients do not get the education that they will here where the patients can be followed to their homes. It was important to teach patients that thedisease was curable in is early stages. That was one of the most difficult problems we have. That is to teach them to give up to it early and be taken care of. It is a hard lesson to teach, that if treated early there is a strong probability of being cured. It is a hardship to be separated from their family but it will be much harder when the patient tries to get well to find that it is too late and that the family must be left destitute. We must try to discover and treat it early. This camp seems admirably arranged for the treatment of cases. The surroundings are pleasant where the patients can stay and get their education. He could not too heartily congratulate Quincy on the achievement of what they have. Such work as this is an important function of Women's clubs. Some of your neighboring towns have not been able to get started and he hoped that when the Women's club get ready for another struggle they would get the names of these towns and see if they cannot arouse an interest there.

SUDDEN DEATH.

George Ruxton, a well known South Quincy granite manufacturer, died suddenly Monday morning at his home on Chestnut street aged 53 years. Mr. Ruxton had been in poor health for the past eight weeks and was planning to go to New Hampshire this week for the summer. Monday morning when he arose there was nothing to indicate that his end was near. He ate his breakfast with his family as usual. Shortly after, however, he had a hemorrhage and passed away half an hour later.

Mr. Ruxton came to Quincy from Barre, Vt. a number of years ago to assume the management of the granite manufacturing plant of McDonnell & Sons. He remained with that firm for a number of years, and then began business for himself at South Quincy, where he built up a good trade, and which he continued to personally conduct until taken ill. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, the Loyal Orange Lodge, the Knights of Malta and the Eastern Star. He leaves a widow who has been an invalid for a number of years, a son and daughter.

RUNAWAY.

Frightened by a passing automobile at the corner of Beale street and Prospect avenue Friday, the horses attached to a cart of the Eaton Ice Co. started to run away, scattering cakes of ice along their path. Running up onto the lawn of Charles W. Dill of Beale street, they were stopped by the piazza and when the driver arrived were making mincemeat of the lawn with their hoofs and browsing off the flower beds. Another team was telephoned for, to take care of the ice.

GET TOGETHER SPIRIT.

Arbor day took on a new significance in many places in Vermont this year, and instead of merely planting trees the residents of those communities turned the governor-proclaimed day into a time of cleaning up. One of the most notable successful trials of the experiment was in Hardwick. The success was made possible through the concerted action of all the people of the village, men, women and children co-operating in a manner which showed a good civic Spirit rests there and only needs an invitation to spring into usefulness. The village eyesores were obliterated in a twinkling, and after it all they held a celebration, as if in joyous self-congratulation over the deed done. And well they might celebrate the event, for th performance meant more than the mere temporary cleaning-up of the place; it meant that the people of Hardwick had given themselves a lesson in public-spiritedness in a small thing in a manner to give them an earnest of their power, provided they jointly put their shoulder to the wheel and push together. The mere physical changes about he place were good to note after the shovels, brooms and refuse carts had been put away, but better still was the display of common interest. Thus, if Arbor day in Vermont shall ever lose its significance entirely—which we sincerely hope it will not do—there is a partial substitute in this annual "clean-up" day; and at any rate a combination of the two will not be badly mated, as it is. The idea is commended to the other communities, and meanwhile let them make the necessity as little as possible.—Barre Times, Vt.

STATUE TO CHAMPLAIN.

The statue of Samuel de Champlain, by Hamilton McCarthy, will be unveiled on Queen Square, St. Johns, on June 24, St. John's day; on which, in 1694, the great explorer and colonizer discovered and named the St. John river. The statue on an artistic base in the centre of the Square, will look seaward over the course Champlain sailed into and out of the lonely harbor that is now the chief shipping port of the Dominion of Canada.

Mr. Smith: "Why, isn't he any better?"

Mrs. Smith: "Oh, yes! But he has slid down the banisters six times this morning, broken the hall lamp, two vases, a pitcher, and a looking glass; and I don't feel as if I could stand much more."—Harper's Bazar.

PERENNIAL REMEMBRANCE

to the brave deeds of our Soldier Boys and the sacrifice they made to illustrate some Biblical truth. To-night I wish simply to turn the tables and use this brief passage of Scripture to illustrate some things we would like to say concerning the part you played in the days of the war.

What is the thought of the text? Simply this, that the Master was anxious that his hearers should honor Him, if not for the sake of Himself, for the sake of the cause which He loved, and my application of the text is this; while I realize that no individual soldier of our nation will ever go begging for the honors of which he is worthy and while I realize that to a man none of you have come tonight, nor have you in all the past, ever attended a service of this kind simply to receive compliments, I know that in your heart there has ever burned the desire that as the years pass, the nation should hold in loving remembrance the cause for which the individual soldier gave his life. I have said for which you gave your life! For though you have always been known as the boys who went to the front yet were you thinking boys who knew why you went and what you must face and it was the cause that prompted you to go.

I wish then to speak of the cause and especially when I remember that the same factors which obtained in the cause of the '60's and of '98 are the same factors which obtain now in the best interests of our National life. First Isubmit to you that the best interest of the Nation involves her due recognition of the just demands of humanity, be it in the home land or abroad. And men! the world acknowledges that it was this that led you to the front in the days of the war. It is said "that fair play and freedom have ever been the ruling passions of Americanism" and I take it that when the American vision became clear enough to see that 4,000,000 or more of human beings were the objects of commercial life and the source of wealth rather than the subjects of the rights of independence that this American passion exerte itself and you fought for humanity's sake. I do not say that race problem is wholly solved nor will it for many a day but I claim that on all sides we may find illustrations of the wisdom of the ber 22d 1868, at the call of Gov. Anconflict which made an oppressed people freed men. And what I have said of the Civil War I may truly say of the war with Spain. It was not so much the sentimentalism of "Remember the Maine" and like expressions which were rife in those days but because there came a"cross the seas the needy cry of humanity. It was this that forced the issue and it was this that inspired you to fight and to win.

Another suggestion I would make is this, that a country is at its best only when its flag is loved and retained in honor. Here the speaker referred to the Doric Hall and the many tattered flags which on the memorable December 22d. 1868, at the call of Gov. Andrews were there deposited by the Massachusetts soldiers of the Union.

Friends, do you ever think how with the word prosperity we are wont to associate another term? I speak of peace. These two terms, hand in hand, peace and prosperity, are found in every public proclamation and in almost every public prayer. How we thank God for peace and prosperty. It is well. They must go hand in hand. There never was prosperity in the time of war and since as a nation we know this only too well the burning question of the hour is how we may influence all the nations of the earth to join with us in universal peace. And yet the worst that can be said of war is no thrust at our soldiers for paradoxical though it may sound I contend that you fought for peace.

In closing the speaker said "At the beginning of our remarks I said there were reasons why we craved your presence with us tonight. Here is one more. With no desire to stir your emotions or to borrow trouble as we might say we realize and comrades, you realize that these Memorial days for you will soon be gone. How soon? Be it far from me to even suggest. I only hope and pray that as you have listened tonight to the "Bugle Call of Christian Soldiers" and have listened to the echo from the "Old Camp Ground" that somehow in these last days you may be inspired to cast your lot with the greater cause, the Army of the Son of God.

The speaker closed with a touching poem anticipating the task of a Memorial Day just at hand. Throughout the discourse many touching and forceful incidents of the days of the war were used.

The church was very prettily and tastfully decorated with the Stars and Stripes and an abundance of flowers. Great credit is due the choir for their help in the service and for the manner in which they rendered the music, and special praise and thanks is due C. A. Goucher, who has been the choirmaster of this church throughout its history and whose faithful work in the choir helped largely to make the service a success.

MEMORIAL SUNDAY

Address to Grand Army by Rev. C. L. Paddock

A large audience assembled at the Universalist church Sunday morning when Paul Revere Post, G. A. R., the United Spanish War Veterans, the Sons of Veterans, the Woman's Relief Corps and the Ladies' Auxiliaries were special guests of honor. The church was attractive with flags large and small, over fifty being used in the decorations. On the platform about the desk were beautiful flowers. Anthems were sung by the choir and a quartet beautifully rendered "Someday."

Rev. Clark L. Paddock felt proud that the organizations had come to worship at his church again. It was an honor to have the veterans with us. The pastor emphasized the sense of gratitude which all should have for what had been done for us as a nation. He believed in appreciation of the services of these men while living. It was a pleasure to meet a man wearing a G. A. R. button. The blessings of liberty which we now enjoy are ours because of what the Grand Army suffered and did. We never can know just what defeat might have meant to this country. The preacher could not understand how people could have little interest in the Grand Army and their achievements. No favors are too great for these men. Let us make the pathway of the living bright. Memorial Day engenders patriotism. May we so use this day that we will also have reverence to God and his claim. What would the world have been today without the soldier of Christ? Pay respect to Him as well as the Grand Army.

The offering of the morning was given to the Grand Army.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH

Going to his own fatherland for the tradition of Memorial day, Rev. Carl G. Horst told of its origin in Germany, when in 1868 a soldier of that Country told Gen. Logan of the German Custom of the strewing of flowers on the graves of those who had died for their country. This beautiful custom grows out of the need that man recognizes in his own heart for remembering with reverence great men and great deeds, and to this end he sets apart certain days and seasons to stimulate ideals of courage and patriotism as well as to recall with gratitude these brave men who sacrificed their lives to free the slaves and to preserve our Union.

And Americans today are recognizing the heroes of the Spanish war,—one in which we set free a weak and oppressed people and also demonstrated a high quality of magnanimity toward the conquered people.

As we recall history we find the great nations have not perished from external foes but rather by the power of an enemy from within. Men of conviction, of back bone, of courage and independence must be the foundation of a strong and vigorous nation, and the enemies to prosperity and peace are ignorance, tyranny and a loss of high ideals of justice and honesty.

And so our Memorial Day becomes our Consecration Day as well, in which we strive to attain to the highest posible standards of National purity and patriotism.

A picnicwhist party is to be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Page, 107 Winthrop avenue, Friday afternoon.

Our annual June festival is to be held Saturday, June 11, afternoon and evening, at the summit of Winthrop avenue. There will be the usual attractions of automobile rides, out door sports, pay streak, gypsy camp, besides some novel features. Lunch will be served and ice cream, candy, pop corn, and lemonade. The grounds will be decorated and there will be a brilliant display of electric lights in the evening.

The summer session of the Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches will be held in our church Wednesday, June 8th. The program is as follows:

10.30 A. M. Meeting opened by the President, George Kuhn Clarke of Needham.

10.45. Address "The Present Uses of the Church." Rev. A. W. Littlefield of Brookline.

11.15. Discussion opened by S. Herbert Howe of Marlboro.

11.45. Devotional Service led by the Rev. Charles W. Casson of Dorchester.

12 M. Box luncheon.

1.30. Praise Service led by Rev. Ellery C. Butler of Quincy.

2.00. Address "Theodore Parker," by Rev. E. S. Meredith of West Roxbury.

3.00. Address "Why our Churches ought to work for Temperance," by the Rev. Chas. F. Dole, D. D., Jamaica Plain.

4.00. Adjournment.

June nineteenth will be observed as Children's Sunday, and as usual children will be christened on that day. Consecrated to God and a Christian life.

FIRST RACE OF SEASON.

The first scheduled race of the season of the Quincy Yacht club was sailed off the club house Saturday afternoon. There was a little breeze at the start, but this soon flattened out, and the race was called off when the boats had covered the course once. The Dolly III, W. W. Arnold's new Cape cat, was out for her first race, and she was watched carefully. She proved to be fast and led the fleet until the calm streak struck them off Pig rocks when the Iris drifted to the lead and finished the round first, when it was decided to call the race off. LIMITED OR UNLIMITED

Contention Over Granting Trolley Freight Franchise

The Railroad Commissioners gave a hearing this morning on the petition of the Old Colony street railway company for authority to operate a trolley freight express in Quincy, the City Council having refused to grant an unlimited right this year, having granted a limited one last year.

Bentley Warren appeared for the company and City Solicitor McAnarney for the city of Quincy.

Mr. Johnson of the Keith Shoe company said he had a store in Quincy and factory in Weymouth and wanted the trolley freight privileges.

Robert T. Johnson of Johnson Bros. also appeared in favor to get better service.

J. A. Sedgwick favored an unlimited grant, but would reserve to Railroad Commissioners and city the right to revoke under certain conditions.

In opposition, Councilman J. L. Richards favored only a limited grant.

W. F. Lakin, representing the Ward Four Improvement Association was against an unlimited franchise.

Ex-Councilman J. Q. A. Field was against any grant at all, believeing the streets were too narrow.

Councilman C. A. Ericson was opposed until such time as the street railway company was compelled to share in expense of necessary street widening.

President E. R. Stone of the Board of Trade was opposed to an unlimited franchise.

The counsel argued the case, and Mr. Warren agreed to all restrictions imposed except the ten year limit. The hearing then closed.

EX-COUNCILMAN DEAD.

Michael Owens, a well known granite manufacturer, and an ex-member of the City Council, died at his home, 64 Willard street, Sunday night after a long illness, aged 68 years.

Mr. Owens was a native of Ireland, but came to Quincy when a child, and has lived here ever since with the exception of the years 1859 to 1864, when he was at sea. Returning to West Quincy he learned the trade of a stone cutter ,and in 1876 went into business for himself, operating a quarry and cutting sheds until illness obliged him to give up active business life. In 1876 he married a daughter of the late Adam Vogel, who with a son and daughter survive him. His son is Charles H. Owens, a former member of the School Committee.

Mr. Owens was a staunch Republican and although residing in a strong Democratic ward, he was elected to serve that ward in the City Council in 1898 and 1899. He was a member of St. Francis court, M. C. O. F., and the Granite Manufacturers' Association.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning from St. Mary's church.

MASSES AT CATHOLIC CHURCHES

Special Memorial day services were held Monday by several Catholic societies. At St. John's church Mass was celebrated at 8 o'clock by Rev. John J. Coan for departed members of Quincy court, M. C. O. F. At St. Mary's church C. T. A. and a requiem mass was celebrated for St. Mary's Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus. Later the members of these societies decorated the graves of departed members.

NEW HEATING SYSTEM.

Bids were opened by the Commissioner of Public Works this morning for supplying and installing a heating and ventilating system in the John Hancock school for which the City Council appropriated $6,000. There were but two bidders ,as follows:

Stone & Underhill, $4,998.
Lynch & Woodward, $5,370.

EXPRESS OVERHAULED.

..Inspector Goodhue overhauled the express team of Scribner & Campbell at Squantum Saturday night and found cases of malt liquors on his team. This is one of the firms who were refused a permit to transport liquor. John H. Campbell ,the proprietor, was summoned into court for violation of the liquor transportation law. He will be in court Wednesday.

ANGEL OF CRIMEA AT NINETY YEARS

Reminiscenee of Florence Nightingale, Famous War Nurse.

A VISIT TO HER BEDSIDE.

Like a Pilgrimage to a Holy Shrine, Says Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, Her Goddaughter—Great Heroine Favors Suffragism, but With a Peaceful Campaign.

Florence Nightingale, the "angel of the Crimea" and the most famous of the world's living heroines, was ninety years old on May 12, and it was upon this anniversary that the following reminiscence of the great woman's golden aging and the leaning toward suffrage was told recently by Miss Nightingale's goddaughter, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall.

"It was only the briefest visit," said Mrs. Hall at the Hotel Judson, in New York city, "made in 1902 to Miss Nightingale's pretty home in Mayfair, London, where she had lain a bedridden invalid for many years. But to me it has always seemed like a pilgrimage to a holy shrine.

"Strangely enough, you know it was partly upon the advice of my father, Dr. Samuel Howe, that she undertook that great work to the Crimea forty years before.

Honeymoon on Battlefield.

"My mother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, and my father had just been married in the early forties and were back in England on their honeymoon after visiting the scenes where father had fought and 'nursed' in the Grecian war.

"Miss Nightingale, hearing of his presence, came to him and asked if a great work for humanity did not lie in the foundation of such a movement as has since developed into the Red Cross. 'I think so, and I think it is a woman's place to lead it,' said my father, and two years later Miss Nightingale was away at the German hospitals preparing for the events that even she could not then have foreseen.

"Meanwhile she had become firmly attached to my mother, and when some years later I was born she asked that I be given her name. She sent me a beautifully bound volume of Shakespeare as a birth gift, and I think it the most treasured heirloom in our family today.

"Long, long afterward, when her fame had become worldwide in the Crimea and after mother had also won note through the writing of the 'Battle Hymn of the Republic,' Miss Nightingale wrote to send a lock of her hair to mother and to ask that her goddaughter visit her if ever I came to London. And years after that when I finally did get to London I recalled that invitation which I had heard of as a girl and went upon the pilgrimage to Mayfair.

"As I remember now Miss Nightingale was sitting propped in bed facing a window that looked out upon a long vista of pretty cottages, tiny groves and tinier gardens.

"She was eighty-two then, and even as she lay in bed I could see that before disease wasted her form she must have been a very tall and a very beautiful woman.

"'I am very glad to see you, goddaughter,' she said, putting forth her hand and smiling sweetly.

"Then she asked after my mother; said she had never heard such an inspiring anthem as 'The Battle Hymn' and wished me to convey her dearest love to my parent, whom she remembered to be just a little more than a year older than herself.

Believes In Suffragism.

"I did not press her to tell me of her Crimea experiences, for that was a subject which she had long since put by. But I did discover that she believed in suffragism—not the militant suffragism of the English radicals, but in a peaceful campaign that should go on gathering volume peacefully through the years until it should conquer from the sheer weight of its justness.

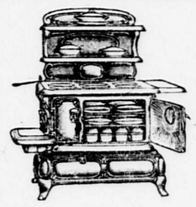

"I think we talked together half an hour. Then I said goodby. I left her home with one idea of her that has never faded—her perfect serenity, the serenity of a great woman who has done a great life's work well and is content to await the end."

Mrs. Hall, herself a woman of many literary accomplishments, has been a resident at the Hotel Judson for several years. She says she believes that Miss Nightingale has entirely abandoned correspondence in the philanthropic movements she aided until very recently.

Prayer at Opening of a Council.

Emanuel Wilhelm, newly elected Democratic mayor of Traverse City, Mich., introduced a decided innovation in beginning his administration the other night by calling Rev. B. A. Hills to the platform and having him open Wilhelm's first council meeting with prayer. A record breaking crowd was present, and all the spectators ceased smoking and in absolute silence listened to the Unitarian minister plead that the city officials be guided by God in their every undertaking. The mayor in his inaugural address declared for the utmost economy and morality.

MEMORIAL DAY

hymns by the band, deposit of emblematic wreaths, salute, taps, America and benediction.

Mayor Shea spoke as follows:

It is Memorial Day. We are assembled according to a time honored custom to pay tribute to the memories of the men who so nobly responded to the call of their country. Men who when that call came were pursuing their usual vocations in life. Yet they did not hesitate, surrounded as they were, many of them by loving families and friends, with bright prospects of life before them. They went tothe front, ready to serve and to endure the hardships of war, sacrificing everything even life itself in order that the grand old flag should continue to wave, "O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Under the folds of the sacred banner which we all love so well you have manfully discharged a soldier's duty and it is fitting that this day should be devoted to the memories of the brave men who did so much for their country. While we, with loving hearts and hands place our wreaths upon the graves of our departed heroes let us not forget their brave comrades whim we still have with us Let us show them that respect and consideration which they so justly deserve from the hands of a nation for which they have done so much. And, on the morrow, when we again take up the cares and responsibilities of life, may we be better men by reason of the memories and inspirations that we get from Memorial Day.

Rev. C. L. Paddock spoke on the lesson of fraternity as exemplified here by the G. A. R. and kindred organizations, and also of loyalty to the flag.

AT THE BUMPUS LOT.

The command next proceeded to the grave of Lieut. Edward Bumpus who was killed by massacre in the Philippines, where Miss Mary S. Bumpus represented the Bumpus family. The service included addresses by Charles H. Johnson and Napoleon L. White, commander of the Camp Bumpus, Army of the Philippines; deposit of wreath, salute and taps. Both speakers were applauded.

If space would admit we would like to print in full the address of Mr. Johnson, but it has been necessary to abridge the report at many points. He recalled how the youthful Bumpus had been reared in this town, and fell in the Philippines in defence of his country, and paid tributes to the soldiers of both wars. He was emphatic in taking exceptions to the Commander in Chief when he said:

"We live in a time of peace and plenty, but did you ever stop to think as you look upon the worn haggard features of the "Boys in Blue," that the peace you enjoy has been bought at a great sacrifice. I was pained to read in the public print yesterday that the Commander in Chief of the G. A. R., believed it would be necessary in the future to make some change in the observance of this day due to its desecration by many people. Is it possible that the public spirit of this nation will stand for this. Arouse yourselves men and demand that laws shall be enacted to govern this matter and let us still have this day as first intended. There are things in this country that the spoiler must keep his hands clear of."

AT UNKNOWN LOT.

The regular W. R. C. services were held at the "Unknown lot." A new and pleasing feature was the salute to the flag. The Corps is fortunate in having among its members, Mrs. Kate A. Blaisdell who gave a very appropriate reading entitled "The Red, the White and the Blue." A salute, taps and benediction closed the services at the cemetery.

The command then marched proudly back to headquarters, the Grand Army having the right of the line. Although their step was not as elastic as the other organizations whose members are younger in years, yet they marched as veterans, and might give a few points. The Sons of Veterans never made as fine a showing as on this occasion; their membership has grown and all had new uniforms. The Spanish War Veterans always have many admirers, and the Signal Corps were proud to take part in the parade. Each of the organizations had music, and they vied with each other along the route of march. The interest in Memorial day seems to be on the increase.

—A public school teacher on the East Side who recently asked a pupil in her United States history class to describe the death and repentance of Benedict Arnold was somewhat astonished when the child, in whose mind American, British, Union and Confederate soldiers were pretty well mixed, replied, "He begged to be allowed to die in a Union suit."—Sun.

CURTISS FLIES ALONG HUDSON

Wins Prize of $10,000 by His Marvelous Performance

FROM ALBANY TO NEW YORK

Distance of Hundred and Thirty-Seven Miles Covered In Two Hours and Thirty-Two Minutes at Speed of Over Fifty-Four Miles an Hour, Breaking All Records—Wonderful Control of Machine

New York, May 31.—Glenn H. Curtiss flew from Albany to New York city in an aeroplane, winning the $10,000 prize offered by the New York World.

He covered the distance of 137 miles in two hours and thirty-two minutes, and came to earth as easily and as lightly as a pigeon.

His average speed for the distance —54.06 miles an hour—surpasses any record ever made by an aeroplane in long distance flight, and in its entirety his feat perhaps eclipses anything man has attempted in an heavier-than-air machine.

Albany was quitted at 7:03 a. m. under weather conditions as near perfect as the most fastidious aviator could demand. One hour and twenty-three minutes later he had reached Poughkeepsie, where there was an hour's intermission. Resuming his flight at 9:26, he sped southward and landed within the boundary of Manhattan Island at 10:35.

Only 100 yards north of the point on which his craft settled stretched Spuyten Duyvel creek, separating Manhattan Island from the mainland. Had he failed to cross this his flight would have been in vain, but as he swept over it, the prize was his. Thence to Governor's Island his task was but a whim of triumph, and the concluding lap of a race already won.

Paulhan's flight from London to Manchester, 186 miles, exceeded Curtiss' feat in distance, but not in speed and danger. The Frenchman's average speed was only 44.3 miles an hour, and below him lay English meadowland.

Curtiss followed the winding course of the historic Hudson, with jutting headland, wooded slopes and treacherous palisades. He swung high over the great bridge at Poughkeepsie, dipped at times within fifty feet of the river's broad surbace, and jockeyed like a falcon at the turns.

Only once did his craft show signs of rebellion. This was off Storm King, near West Point, where at a height or nearly 1000 feet a treacherous gust struck his planes. The machine dropped like a rock for forty feet and tilted perilously. But Curtiss, always cool, kept both his head and his seat, and by adroit handling of his levers brought renewed equilibrium to his aerial steed.

Although he had won, weather conditions were so propitious and he was feeling so gratified at success that he decided to give the city another view of his machine, and at 11:37 he shot away again for Governor's Island. It was during this part of his trip that he received his noisiest greeting. He came down the river at an elevation of more than 300 feet, while harbor craft shrieked their greetings.

Curtiss is 32 years old and was born the Hammondsport, N. Y., the scene of his early experiments.

SOLDIER SHOT TO PIECES

Pierced by Bullets While Helpless on Presidio Rifle Range

Monterey, Cal., May 31.—Claud Hetherton, a private of Company K, Thirteenth infantry, U. S. A., stationed at the Presidio, who was taking measurements of the rifle range, was literally shot to pieces by a firing squad at practice, and died after lingering in the reservation hospital for two days.

All during the afternoon of the day he was shot, Hetherton crept about on the embankment, while the bullets whizzed about him. His cries could not be heard. After the first bullet had brought him down he made an effort to drag himself out of range, but no matter which way he turned, his escape was cut off by the flying missiles.

Finally he sank on the sand mound awaiting the shot that would end his torture. Bullets sped about him, ripping his clothing and tearing his flesh. When markers found him, his head had been shot nearly off.

MRS. RICHMOND GUILTY

Sent to Prison For Life For Murder In Second Degree

Cambridge, Mass., May 31.—Found guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced to life imprisonment in the woman's prison at Sherborn is the fate meted out to Mrs. Elizabeth Richmond, who on the night of July 22, 1909, shot and then beat to death with a small axe, Stewart McTavish, in the Hotel Florence, East Cambridge. The jury was out twenty hours.

To all appearances, so far as actions went, Mrs. Richmond stood unmoved as the verdict was announced. On the front row of the spectators' seats her three daughters sat calm, no movement or look betraying that they were moved by the verdict against their mother.

LAYS HIS REMOVAL TO THE GOVERNOR

Sutherland Gave Warning of Guggenheim Moves In Alaska

Salem, Mass., May 31.—Daniel A. Sutherland, who was recently deposed as United States marshal in the Juneau district of Alaska, says that had not the issue now engaging the attention of the nation developed he would have voluntarily retired from the office of United States marshal in July. He stated with emphasis that he had been mindful for many months that the Guggenheim syndicate was endeavoring to secure absolute control of coal and mining interests in Alaska, and so advised the governor of the fact.

"It was known to me," said Sutherland, "that such information would not be acceptable to the governor of Alaska or the moneyed interests he represents, and as a result summary removal was the sequence."

Mr. Sutherland was for many years a resident of this city and he came here for the purpose of visiting his parents.

WAS OLDEST "OFFICE BOY"

Death of Man Who Worked Seventy-Five Years In One Place

Trenton, May 31.—Samuel Brackett, known as "the oldest office boy in the world," died here at the age of 91 years. He worked seventy-five years with one firm.

When Clark Fisher, founder of the Fisher Anvil works, was teaching Sunday school in Portland, Me., in 1839, he noticed that one of the pupils was a bright, attentive boy—that was Samuel Brackett. Fisher put Brackett to work in his anvil works as office boy, and took the lad with him when the works were moved to Trenton.

Though Brackett advanced rapidly, and held many positions of trust with the firm, he was always known as "the office boy."

Cambridge, Mass., May 31.—Seward C. Simons, Harvard 1911, is said by the police to have cut four inches of hair from the long braid of Miss Lillian Santangelo. He was arrested for assault and battery and later bailed out in $500.

Simons, the police say, stated that he was at times possessed with an unconquerable desire to cut whiskers or hair, and that he was unable to resist when he saw the long black braid in front of him.

Simons, who comes from Pasadena, Cal., is the son of wealhy parents.

DISEASE MADE RAPID STRIDES

Ex-Mayor Hibbard of Boston Dies From Tuberculosis

HEART BROKEN, FRIENDS SAY

Disappointment at Being Turned Down by Civil Service Commission Whon Offered City Collectorship Left Him Without Courage to Fight His Way Back to Health—Postmaster of Boston For Eight Years

Boston, May 31.—George A. Hibbard, ex-mayor of Boston, died at his home in Dorchester. Peacefully and painlessly dissolution came. The man who only a few months ago was mayor of the city had made a heroic though brief resistance against tuberculosis, but the disease permeated his entire system and every day found him less capable of holding its progress in check.

Less than three weeks ago Hibbard heard the pronouncement of his physician that this insidious and tenacious ailment had clutched him. In this short time the malady had so progressed that the exertion required to rise from his bed without assistance and walk across the room was too much for his weakened heart.

The disintegration of his physical forces had been very rapid; yet the end had not been anticipated until the final collapse.

His friends say that grief and disappointment had broken his spirit until he had not the needed strength and courage to fight his way back to health.

Mayor Fitzgerald offered his former political opponent the office of city collector, which carried with it a salary of $5000, and Hibbard, after talking the situation over, decided he could accept it with honor to himself and the certainty of giving the city his best service.

Accordingly Fitzgerald sent Hibbard's name to the civil service commission for a confirmation, and Hibbard, with a ray of hope shining for his future, felt confident at last a way had been found out of his difficulties and by which he could repair his wasted fortunes.

"They will confirm me within the week," he had said to Fitzgerald. "Why should they delay? I have been the postmaster of Boston for two terms and the mayor of the city for two years and I am confident I can fill satisfactorily a minor position."

But how his hopes were shattered is recent history. How the civil service commission kept his confirmation in abeyance day after day and still no word of confirmation.

Mr. Hibbard leaves besides his widow, four children, three girls and one boy. The oldest daughter, Adelaide, was married hardly more than a month ago to Harry W. Fogarty, a former clerk of the ex-mayor.

George Albee Hibbard was born in Boston, Oct. 27, 1864. He graduated from the Roxbury high school in 1880 and married in Boston, Oct, 27, 1886, Miss M. A. Ford.

He engaged in wholesale produce business with his father eight years and then engaged in business as a member of the firm of Weston K. Lewis & Co., commercial paper and bonds. Later he was treasurer of the Hibbard & Mason corporation, tailors.

He was a member of the Massachusettts house of representatives in 1894-1895, and a delegate to the national Republican convention at St. Louis in 1896. He was postmaster of Boston from 1900 to 1908 and mayor of Boston in 1908-1910.

Mr. Hibbard contested for the mayoralty in 1910 and was defeated. He was nominated by Mayor Fitzgerald for city collector and was refused confirmation by the civil service commission.

He was ambitious to lead men from the time of leaving school. His father was a Democrat. Hibbard was known as a reformer both in the postoffice and in city hall.

HARROUN'S CLOSE CALL

His Racing Auto a Wreck, While He Narrowly Escapes Death

Indianapolis, May 31.—Ray Harroun, who won the 200-mile auto race on Saturday, added to his laurels by winning a 50-mile race at the Indianapolis Speedway yesterday and broke the world's record doing it, but he barely escaped with his life.

Harroun's car burst a tire and hurled itself against the cement wall which guards the upper margin of the track. Sliding along on top of the wall, the car tore a furrow in the cement for fifty feet and then toppled over, flinging Harroun from his seat. He got up unhurt, but the Marmon "Wasp" is a mass of tangled steel.

It was only partial consolation for his loss when he was led before the thronged grandstands and given the $10,000 silver trophy and a check for $1000, which he won in the 200-mile race.

HANDCUFFED MAN ESCAPES

Sturgis Deputies Roughly Handled During Raid on Maine Hotel

Bangor, Me., May 31.—One of the most spectacular raids that the Sturgis deputies in this section have figured in took place when a South Brewer hotel was visited. A free-for-all fight ensued between the officers and the men in the bar room, the deputies finding it necessary to draw their revolvers and clubs.

In the melee the alleged proprietor, Peter Smith, with a pair of handcuffs on his wrists, escaped, but Daniel McDonald was arrested after he had been clubbed into submission. Deputy Herman was struck in the eye with brass knuckles and painfully injured.

The arrival of Officer Pooler of the Brewer police deparment quelled the near riot, but not until the deputies had been roughly handled. A wagon load of liquor was seized.

EXPECT TO FIND BIG HOLE IN DRY DOCK

Naval Experts Think the Dewey Was Sunk by Conspirators

Manila, May 31.—Further examination of the United States dry dock Dewey, which is partially submerged in Subig bay, has strengthened the belief of those of the navy who have held that the damage was done deliberately by a band of conspirators against the government.

However, it is now learned that the valves had not been opened, as first declared, though they were found to have been leaking a little. This leakage would not have caused the trouble and the dock sank more rapidly than would have been the case had all the valves been opened and no other opening made.

Accordingly the experts believe that a large hole will be found in the port side or bottom of the dock. It is probable that the mystery will not be cleared until the dock has been raised.

MILK STRIKE NEAR END

Indications That Trouble Will Be Settled at Boston Today

Boston, May 31.—After four weeks of milk strike, contractors and officers of the striking farmers have begun negotiations looking toward settlement of the trouble. A formal conference of the parties to the fight is to be held today, and it is altogether probable that this conference will result in a restoration of normal milk conditions for Boston tomorrow.

For a week or more there has been a sort of tacit understanding between the parties to the affair that nothing in the way of an effort to adjust their differences would be practical if attempted before the legislative committee made its report. The report of this committee and its publication has cleared the way for an agreement.

ALMA KELLNER WAS MURDERED

Little Girl's Body Found In Sub-Cellar of School

DISMEMBERED BY HER SLAYER

Evidence of Attempt to Conceal Crime by Burning Remains—Eight-Year-Old Child Had Been Missing Nearly Six Months, Having Disappeared While on Way to Church—Ring Establishes Her Identity

Louisville, May 31.—The body of Alma Kellner, the 8-year-old girl who mysteriously disappeared from her home last December, was found yesterday in a sub-basement of St. John's school.

The body was found lying in three feet of water. It was found by a plumber, who had been sent into the cellar to stop a leak which had flooded the basement.

Chief of Police Lindsay and Coroner Duncan, who came hurriedly to the scene, announced that the body was that of Alma Kellner, and the chief later gave it out that he believed it to be a case of murder.

The body was wrapped in a piece of carpet, save for one limb, which was later discovered in a corner of the cellar and buried in the clay floor of the basement to a depth of perhaps three feet. The leak in the water pipe had caused water to flow until the floor was covered to a depth of about three feet.

Lamps were brought and the relatives of the child summoned. Frank Fehr, the multionaire brewer and uncle of the girl, stated that the body was that of Alma, for whom he had been searching for months. A ring on the child's finger finally established positive identity.

The school adjoins St. John's church, where the Kellner family worshipped. It was to attend services at St. John's church on the morning of Dec. 8 last that Alma left home about 8:45. She was seen a few moments later, as she neared the church, by a druggist who noticed her stopping for a moment to play with a cat which was sitting in the window of the store. The druggist was the last known person to see the child alive.

As Coroner Duncan's investigation was pursued, it became evident that the girl had met her death in a horrible manner. Her skull was crushed and practically every bone in the body was broken and charred. The coroner said it was evident that the body had been dismembered and packed in a stove or grate, but this means of disposing of the body having perhaps been interrupted, quicklime had been used to aid in the disintegration. The body was not in the fire long, it is thought, because the bones were only partly charred.

The cellar in which the body was discovered is six feet wide and ten feet long, and is reached by two entrances, one a trap door inside of the schoolhouse, which has not been opened for several months, and the other a door near the side of the entrance to the building between the schoolhouse and the residence of Father Schubmann, pastor of St. John's church. This cellar was searched feur days after the girl's disappearance by two detectives, who inspected every corner of the room with lanterns and found nothing.

Belief has gained ground that the little girl was seized by some man as she was within a few steps of the church and taken into the dark subcellar, where she met her death.

CHURCH BUILT IN A HURRY

Ready For Occupancy Ten Hours After Big Gang Start to Work

Peoria, Ills., May 31.—Services were held in the chapel of Central Christian church, built in ten hours by members of the congregation. The church was perfect in its completion, electrically lighted and with an electric sign above the entrance.

The building is 64 feet long, 24 feet wide and 12 feet high inside. Under the supervision of D. C. Chaffee, who planned the structure, 190 men started work at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. At 6 o'clock last evening chimes on the various other churches throughout the city were rung to announce the completion of the mushroom structure.

FIFTEENTH DEATH

Another Man Believed to Have Been Victim of Wood Alcohol

Westerly, R. I., May 31.—Developments following the death of Alonzo Randall at Old Mystic, Conn., indicates that his is the fifteenth death in this vicinity due to the drinking of wood alcohol, sold as whisky.

The physician who attended him, Dr. J. K. Bucklin, has turned over to Coroner Brown of Norwich, Conn., a bottle of liquid, which he says he believes is composed largely of wood alcohol. It is alleged this bottle and its contents was sold to Randall as whisky.

AMERICAN READY TO FIRE

Will Not Allow the Venus to Bombard Back of Bluefields

Bluefields, Nic., May 31.—General Lara, commander of the Madriz forces, again attacked General Estrada's positions yesterday. He began an assault on Estrada's left flank, but after hard fighting, in which many were killed and wounded, the Madriz troops were forced to retire. Estrada's losses are light.

The Madriz steamer Venus has not been permitted to bombard the trenches back of Bluefields.

This would have necessitated firing over the city, and following the order to this effect by the commander of the U. S. S. Paducah, the American gunboat prepared for action, although the necessity for this did not arise.

Clark (Dem.), Vandalia, under indictment for conspiracy in furniture deals; C. L. McMackin (Rep.), who voted for Lorimer and will be examined as a witness; H. D. BIG STRIKE THREATENED

Boston Building Laborers Will Walk Out Unless Wages Are Raised

Boston, May 31.—Every building laborer in the city of Boston will strike tomorrow on their jobs unless the advance in wages sought is granted.

The building laborers' unions of Boston and vicinity, that embody in their membership practically every building laborer, ask 35 cents an hour for bricklayers and masons' helpers, and 30 cents an hour for excavator and concrete workers.

The proposed new rates are an increase of 5 cents an hour for bricklayers and masons' helpers and 2½ cents an hour for the excavator and concrete workers.

Cornell Trims Harvard Oarsmen

An Economical Man.

A commercial traveler told of a man who was riding on a train and pretended to become ill after eating a sandwich. The man opened his grip and took out a hot water bag. "He got a sympathetic porter," the commercial man continues, "to fill the water bag with boiling water, and then he opened up his lunch basket, took out a piece of fried steak and warmed it up on the water bag. You talk about your light housekeeping! Then after he had warmed the steak he cut it all up with a pair of scissors and fed it to himself with a pair of sugar tongs, because he would not take a chance with a fork going around a curve. But his finish was a limit. After he had eaten the steak he unscrewed the stopper of the water bag and poured himself out a cup of hot coffee. He had the grounds in the bag all the time."

Dying to Order.

Dying to order is one of the most sacred customs of the American Indian. Many years ago Standing Elk went to Major James McLaughlin, the author of "My Friend the Indian," and said, "Father, my wife will die today, and she wants a coffin from you."

The major asked him what the ailment was, and he replied:

"Just nothing but that she heard the ghosts calling and must go."

Somebody had told her, it turned out, that she was sick, so she had "painted for death," and all her relatives had gathered about to bemoan her—and incidentally divide her property as soon as she was dead. There was no use in the major's arguing about it, so he had the coffin made.

In many cases those "painted for death" are actually bullied into dying, but Mrs. Standing Elk was still too vigorous. Finally in despair she carried the coffin into the house on her own shoulders, and several years later the major saw it still standing on end in her house. Shelves had been fitted into it, and it was doing duty as a cupboard.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

REJUVENATED LARRY LAJOIE.

Cleveland Star Making Cobb and Wagner Sit Up and Take Notice.

All hats off to Larry Lajoie, the great second sacker of the Cleveland Americans. Having no managerial burdens to carry this season, Larruping Larry is playing the same sensational game he displayed when he was known as the greatest of all ball tossers. Since the 1910 campaign opened he has been slugging the ball harder than any time during the last four years and is at present leading the sluggers in Ban Johnson's circuit with a percentage of .450. Besides knocking the ball all over the diamond, Lajoie is gobbling up everything at the middle station and running the bases like a demon.

If he maintains his present gait he will place Ty Cobb and Honus Wagner in the shade and once more regain the honors of being the leading ball player of the country. Until he took hold of the Naps some five years ago Lajoie was regarded as the greatest player who ever graced the diamond. The burdens attached to the position of manager of a major league club and the failure of the team to win the flag after four attempts proved too much for Larry and affected his playing to a great extent. Last fall he threw up the reins and became a private in the ranks.

Lajoie is one of the greatest pill handlers the game ever produced. Unlike Wagner or Cobb, Larry is the finished ball player all over. Wagner, although a wonderful player, is an awkward one; Cobb is eel-like, with the get there habit, but Lajoie is graceful all over, at the bat or in the field. Placing him at the head as a pilot of a team came pretty near robbing the game of one of its greatest stars.

At the beginning of 1910 he announced that he would make Ty Cobb and Honus Wagner look to their laurels as the leading stick wielders of the country. Larry was at the top of the heap of the batters four times—in 1901, 1903, 1904 and 1905.

The majority of the ball tossers along the line are of the opinion that

LARRY LAJOIE, WHO IS PLAYING IN HIS OLD TIME FORM.

Lajoie will capture the batting honors and his team the pennant. Among them is Rube Waddell of the St. Louis team. In talking of the Naps recently he said:

"The east is going to be knocked into a cocked hat by Cleveland. Yes, siree—Rube takes his toddy now and then, but in smaller proportions than Bugs Raymond. "Cleveland," avowed Rube, "has the doggondest smashing club in the whole league. She won seven straight as easy as rolling off a log. You ought to see Lajoie. He plays as he did years ago; got more ginger than a Mexican greaser filled with liquor. He is hitting about .450. And Stovall is another man hitting like a policeman in a riot. The whole club is swatting, playing inside ball and putting in everything there is known. I watched them, and I know. They looked so good to me that I bet a suit of clothes and a hat that they will win the pennant."

"Beat out Detroit?"

"Cleveland will beat Detroit sure as you're a foot high. Go put all the money you can scrape upon it. Talk about pitchers—they've got them too. This Link and Mitchell, both southpaws, are two of the cleverest I ever saw. Don't know where they came from or whether that's their right names, but they have the stuff. This Mitchell has a cross between a fade-away and a curve that nobody on earth can hit. It is one grand freak of a ball. He has not enough speed to break a pane of glass, but he will stand the batters on their heads. Yes, indeed, Cleveland will kick the stuffing out of the Athletics and take the pennant from Detroit. Put that down and remember what I say when the season closes."

Cubs' Inside Ball Bunk, Says Casey.

"Don't believe all this bunk you read about the Chicago Nationals' inside ball," says Doc Casey, the former Chicago player.

"Evers and Tinker have just one sign, and that tips off which one will cover second on a possible hit and run. This stuff about working with the pitcher is pure bunk."

The Little Things That Tell.

A south side mother was dressing for a tea the other afternoon when the front door bell rang. She instructed the maid that if the visitor appeared to be about to make a formal call to say she was not at home. But the mother had not counted on the five-year-old daughter playing in the front yard.

The maid, seeing a woman dressed as if for calling, obeyed instructions.

"She is not at home," the maid said.

"Why, she is, too, Minnie," came a sharp interruption from the child on the lawn. "I saw her lower the curtain just now."

"Perhaps she just came in," the maid responded weakly. "I'll see."

The situation was saved by the fact that the visitor was the mother's sister, whom the maid did not know.—Kansas City Star.
